ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The fortnightly meeting of this Board was held on Monday last, present—Mr. W. Hargreaves (chairman), Messrs. J. Holmes, J. Hargreaves, J. Oliver, H. P. Newsome, J. Dobson, J. Turner, J. Nowell, and W. Lawton, with the clerk, collector and surveyor.

The minutes of last meeting having been read, were confirmed on the motion of Mr. Dobson and Mr. J. Hargreaves.

GAS RESERVE FUND.—Mr. W. Wright, solicitor, who has been instructed by the Board to conduct the case against the Rothwell Gas Light Co., in relation to their accumulation of a reserve fund since the passing of the Act, attended the meeting and made his report. In conjunction with the clerk and the Gas Committee of the Board, Mr. Wright had prepared and forwarded a 'case' to Mr. Webster, Q.C., requesting that gentleman's opinion on the right of the Co. to lay aside the balance of profits (after dividends, &c., are paid), and increase their original reserve fund year by year, instead of using such balance for the reduction of the price of gas. Mr. Webster's opinion had now been received, and the gist of the communication, while acknowledging certain difficulties, is that the Company have no legal right to such annual accumulation beyond the £521 5s 0d., which existed as a reserve fund in 1882, when the Act was obtained. The Insurance Fund he, however, allows as legal, but any Reserve or other funds beyond the £521 5s. 0d., and that which is set aside under the head of Insurance, is held by Mr. Webster to be illegal. Mr. Webster advises the Board not to take action in the Court of Quarter Sessions, both because of its probable delay in decision, and the doubt as to whether that Court can adjudicate on more than one year's accounts; he recommends the Board to move in a higher Court, and apply for an injunction against the Company for accumulating such Reserve Fund. After some further conversation, Mr. Wright withdrew, and the Board continued the discussion. In reply to Mr. Dobson as to whether there was likely to be a reduction in the price of gas, Mr. Newsome said he had always tried to get the rents of metres lowered, but he was not at present aware of any probable reduction in the price of gas. The chairman urged the wisdom of keeping out of the courts, if possible; if they went to law, the Gas Co. would perhaps spend their £600 out of the Reserve Fund to the disadvantage of the consumers, and the Board might have to do the same at the cost of the ratepayers; while the result of the whole would be simply nothing. If the Gas Co. could be induced to lower the price of the gas, it would meet the whole thing. In reply to Mr. Turner, Mr. Newsome stated (amid unrestrainable laughter, in which Mr. Turner led the way), that he had always held the same opinion as Mr. Turner ('Oh, oh,' from Mr. Turner), but (and it was some minutes before he could get further), there was one thing Mr. Turner had got over, which he could'nt, and that was the 'saving' clause mentioned in the 37th section of the Act, "except as in this act otherwise provided." Mr. Lawton proposed that the Gas Co. have a copy of Mr. Webster's opinion, provided they pay half the cost. From Mr. Newsome's remarks, he thought he was inclined to meet the Board, and as he considered Mr. Newsome a large majority on the Board of Directors, he had no doubt they would follow like a flock of sheep (another roar of laughter followed this sally). Dr. Nowell contented himself with simply seconding the motion. Mr. Turner said he did'nt disagree with all Mr. Lawton had said, he rather looked upon him as a "Daniel come to judgment"; he would be willing, however, to let the Co. have the opinion, provided the Co. allowed the Board to have the opinions they had received. Mr. J. Hargreaves would not be willing to let the Co. have the opinion at any price, unless there was a probability of their meeting the Board in a better spirit than they had already manifested. Mr. Lawton wished to ask Mr. Newsome, if he would give his opinion as to the possibility of the Board coming to an agreement with the Directors on this subject. Mr. Newsome referred to the clause he could not get over; the advisers of the Company had decided that this "saving" clause referred to and included the Gas Clauses Consolidation Act. The late chairman of the Gas Co. read the Act as he (Mr. Newsome) did, and although the clauses seem to contradict each other, he could not see how they could get at the right meaning except through a law court. So far as he was concerned, he believed the Co. wished to settle the thing amicably, but as representing the shareholders, the directors felt that if they had a right to the reserve fund, they should stick to it; while if they had not a legal claim, they would give it up; their desire was to find out what was right. Mr. Oliver asked Mr. Newsome who he meant by "legal advisers," to which Mr. Newsome replied, 'Mr. Tennant, Mr. Warner, and Mr. Fitzgerald'; he further stated that the Co. had received no advice since the Act was passed, only the opinions which were read at the public meeting. Mr. Nowell said that he trusted their voting on this resolution would not stultify them in any future and more important motions. Judging from past experience, he considered there was no better prospect of treating with the Gas Co. now than there was, and he believed they would not do anything more than they were forced to do. Mr. Holmes moved an amendment, that the clerk write the Directors of the Gas Co., asking them now what action they proposed to take, in view of the Counsel's opinion. The Wakefield Corporation lost their Waterworks Bill by reason of their never having approached the 'opposition' and he thought that having now got an opinion (Mr. Nowell and Mr. Turner "not through you") they should first ascertain the Gas Co.'s intentions. The chairman suggested "that the Co. be asked to reduce the price of gas" as part of the amendment. Mr. Oliver thought this was no amendment at all. Mr. Newsome pointed out that the directors could do nothing without a meeting of the shareholders. Mr. Lawton objected to Mr. Newsome's changing so; at first he led the Board to believe he was with them, and now he was turning round against the Board. He thought the Board had gone a long way to settle the question, and that the Co. ought to meet them in a right spirit, and reduce the gas. The chairman, as representing the largest ratepayers, strongly objected to the Board going to law, but trusted the Co. would accept the offer, and at once reduce the price of gas. The resolution to offer a copy of the opinion on payment of half the cost, was then carried, Mr. J. Hargreaves and Mr. Holmes being neutral, while Mr. Newsome is precluded from voting, being a shareholder in the Company. Mr. J. Hargreaves now moved that the clerk do write the Gas Co., requesting them to reduce the price of gas from the 1st of July, 1885. He still held that the Co. ought not to have the Counsel's opinion at all. Mr. Holmes seconded the resolution, which was carried. Mr. Turner against.

HIGHWAYS.—Mr. Holmes, chairman of the Highways Committee, presented a lengthy report of the evidence taken by the Committee on the complaints made by W. Kaye, against the surveyor, and others working on the roads. The Committee had all the men present on Saturday week, and thorougly sifted a number of assertions and complaints on both sides. These several items were separately noted, and reported on, and at the request of the Committee were presented to the Board. By entries in Mr. Starkie's books, and by the Clerk's statements, it was shewn that although Kaye might not have seen Starkie for several days, that certain work to which he referred had been viewed by him at other parts of the day, and that in other instances he had been lawfully engaged, either in connection with the audit, with some Committee order, or other business connected with the Board. The unpleasantness has largely arisen from public house talk and personal ill-feeling. The Board further discussed the subject, and eventually a resolution was moved by Mr. Lawton to look over the past, and to reduce Mr. Starkie's power of suspension for the future. This was not seconded, however, and on the motion of Mr. Turner and Mr. Nowell, it was proposed "to pass on to the next business." Mr. Holmes, who felt himself placed in a difficult position, without a single member of the Highway Committee to support him, after having so carefully and correctly gone into the question and reported to the meeting according to their wish, nevertheless moved that W. Kaye be served with 14 days' notice. Mr. Newsome seconded the motion, which was, however, only supported by Mr. Holmes and himself. The resolution was accordingly carried "to pass on." Mr. J. Hargreaves did not vote.

Mr. Turner moved that circulars be printed relative to the loan of our steam roller, seconded by Mr. J. Hargreaves and carried.

CHOLERA.—The Local Government Board have issued circulars regarding precautions against cholera, which is now so prevalent in Spain.

CROSS STREET.—The Public Works Loan Board having assented to the use of loan money for sewering Cross Street, there is no further difficulty in the matter.

COMPENSATION.—On the motion of Mr. J. Hargreaves and Mr. Oliver, compensation claims must now be settled within a month.

RAILWAY FARES.—The Secretary of the Midland Railway Co. having written in reply to the Board's complaint against the heavy fares charged between Woodlesford and Leeds, asked what the Board wished to have done. On the motion of Mr. Lawton, it was agreed that the Co. be asked to reduce the fare to 4d., and market tickets 6d. Mr. Nowell, in seconding, said that it was ½d. cheaper now to ride from Woodlesford to Hunslet, and from Hunslet to Leeds at two bookings, than it was to book direct from Woodlesford to Leeds.

ASSESSMENT.—The Income Tax Committee are asking how much profit there is in the water scheme. The clerk had replied by sending a copy of the balance sheet.

The Board agreed to the overseers assessing the engine house for rates.

RESIGNATION.—The chairman expressed his regret to receive a notice from Mr. Holmes resigning his seat as chairman of the Highways Committee. Mr. Newsome said he did not see what else Mr. Holmes could do, as the Board had pushed him over board.

SUNDRY.—Mr. Lawton complained of the damage done by traction engines near Bell Hill, when getting water. He also directed attention to the objectionable arrangements of certain ashpits at Stourton, and the fact that they were not being thorougly cleansed on that account. Mr. Lawton also wished to know if Mr. Newsome had fulfilled his duty, by seeing the Squire as regards the old property at the bottom of Wood Lane.

General District Rate	577	11	1
Water	5	11	5
Miscellaneous ...		17	9

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

Holloways Pills.—Enfeebled Existence.—This medicine embraces every attribute required in a general and domestic remedy. It overturns the foundations of disease laid by defective food and impure air. In obstructions or congestions of the liver, lungs, bowels, or any other organs, these Pills are especially serviceable and eminently successful. They should be kept in readiness in every family, being a medicine of incomparable utility for young persons, especially those of feeble constitutions. They never pain or irritate the most sensitive nerves or most tender organs. Holloway's Pills are the best known purifiers of the blood, the most active promoters of absorption and secretion, whereby all poisonous and obnoxious matters are removed from both solids and fluids.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The fortnightly meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday, when there were present—Mr. Jas. Hargreaves (chairman), Mr. J. Graveley and Rev. J. H. Evans (vice-chairmen), Messrs. J. Swales, W. Lawton, C. Grosvenor, G. Jepson, J. Hardcastle, J. Parker, J. Dixon, J. Swithenbank, Rev. G. M. Platt, and Mr. Schofield, the clerk.

The relief cases having been heard, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Ramsden and Mr. Grange reported persons in arrears of their payments, and steps were ordered for obtaining the same; a number of settlement cases were also gone into and decided on.

The caretaker—Miss Shepherd—sent in her notice of resignation, her reason being the illness of her mother. The Guardians expressed their high opinion of Miss Shepherd's ability and character, and regret at the prospect of losing her services. Some discussion ensued on the amount of salary to be offered in advertising for a successor to the post now vacated, but it was eventually decided that the same salary (£15) be offered, by advertisement in the Rothwell Times and other papers

There was a circular announcing a general meeting of officers and guardians connected with the boarding out of children, and inviting a representative from this Union. As the meeting is held in London, no further action was taken.

The reports of the various officers were read as regards the children boarded out, and in every case satisfactory replies have been received.

This being the time for the periodical official visit of the guardians to see the paupers in the Wakefield and Wadsley Asylumns, nine gentlemen were selected to attend at Wakefield, and two at Wadsley, accompanied by the clerk and medical officer.

Some necessary repairs to the workhouse were agreed on.

An application from the matron for her usual leave of absence was granted.

The flowers used at a flower service held in the Friends' Meeting house, have very kindly been sent to beautify and perfume the rooms of the workhouse inmates. Several guardians spoke highly of the large selection sent, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the thoughtful senders of the grateful present.

As the Prince and Princess of Wales are expected in Leeds next Board day, it was resolved that the fortnightly meeting be held on Tuesday the 14th, instead of Wednesday.

On the suggestion of Mr. Lawton, it was agreed to arrange for a thorough inspection of the various cases now residing in the workhouse, with a view to dismissing any who may not now have a lawful excuse for remaining.

The usual lists of wants were then read and agreed to.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

THE annual Sunday School Feast in connection with the Woodlesford Wesleyan Chapel was held on Sunday and Monday last. On Sunday the usual children's service was held in the afternoon, a prominent feature of which was the recitation of "pieces" by the scholars. The morning and evening service—conducted by the Rev. Mr. Jefford—had also special reference to the event of the day. On Monday, the scholars and teachers assembled about one o'clock, and proceeded round the village, singing their hymns previous to the tea which was provided in the school-room. The scholars' treat was followed by a public tea, at which there was only a moderate attendance. The evening was afterwards pleasantly spent in a field kindly lent by Mr. Sissons, which is admirably adapted, and has from time immemorial, been used for the purpose. Here the frolic and sports peculiar to these occasions were freely indulged in by the children and their teachers and friends until dusk put an end to the proceedings. The weather was all that could be desired; though the threatening aspect of the skies and the general haziness of the atmosphere must have given rise to anxious forebodings, which however, were happily dispelled. It may be that "distance lends enchantment," but this event lacks very much of the heartiness, spirit, and "go" which formerly characterised the village "school-feast"; it certainly excites less interest beyond those immediately concerned.

A GREAT deal of unnecessary annoyance might be avoided by timely warning, when the public water supply is to be suddenly stopped for a few hours. The feelings which ruffle the placid bosoms of the industrious housewives, may be more easily imagined than described, when, having made extensive preparations for a "big wash" or to knead a baking of bread, to "wash-up" the dinner pots, or the floor, or themselves—they find the tap dry and not a drop of precious water to be had anywhere. This has occured several times and has occasioned serious loss and sometimes needless profanity. The town's supply is now relied on solely in most cases, and it is a real hardship when this is suddenly withdrawn. Much of the inconvenience might be obviated by half an hour's notice, given through the bell-man.

REPORTS of the proceedings of the School Board which used to be given with regularity have now disappeared altogether and we are left without any record of the doings of our little local parliament, except when we are pleasantly reminded of its existence by the periodical visits of the rate collector. These reports may not be absorbingly interesting to everybody, but many people would be glad to be kept informed of the actions and policy of the Board which was elected under circumstances of unusual interest.

HANDEL BI-CENTENARY FESTIVAL.

"ISRAEL IN EGYPT."
(FROM OUR OWN REPORTER.)

According to promise, I have pleasure in continuing my sketch of this glorious festival On Friday afternoon, I was found, along with a friend, in the Palace of Glass, and awaiting the "occasional" overture which preceded the oratorio of the day, "Israel in Egypt." The numerous items for chorus and double chorus are a great feature in this work, and truly every piece was done up to the mark. In the early numbers, the reiterated word "sighed" as depicting the hopeless condition of the Israelites, created a wonderful sensation of sympathy and sadness throughout every heart in the audience. Passing over other choruses and double choruses, our expectations, high though they were, were far surpassed by the magnificent manner in which the glorious "Hailstone" was rendered; the 'fire' and 'hail' were given with precision, and still the idea of 'mingling' was richly sustained; such a chorus, given by such performers, once heard is never forgotten, and the demand for its repetition was so strong and continued, that Mr. Manns was compelled to break his resolution against encores, and repeat the piece. It would be a pleasant task to refer to other numbers in the first part, but we must forbear, with the exception of Madame Patey's solitary solo referring to the "plague of frogs," which was admirably sung. In the second part, there is an opportunity for the solo vocalists to display their powers, and truly they took full advantage of it, and Madame Valleria and Miss Marriott as sopranos presented a rich musical treat in their performances. Mr. Edward Lloyd, who was in splendid voice, quite overpowered the restraint of the fashionable audience in his rendering of "The enemy said," and he scored a compulsory encore; Madame Patey joined Mr. Lloyd in the duet, "Thou in Thy mercy." It was fine to listen to Mr. Bridson and young Mr. King, as they gave the popular duet, "The Lord is a man of war," while the numbers put down for the chorus were fully as well done as anything in the first part. And so the oratorio went on to the finish, one grand glorious success.

Immediately on closing the work, the well-known strains of the National Anthem were heard, speedily taken up by thousands of voices in the vast audience. Then came the conductor's turn for honour; the choir led off the applause, and were followed by the audience, who, over twenty thousand strong, cordially endorsed the opinion already formed by musicians that at these monster gatherings the popular Crystal Palace conductor may fairly be considered the legitimate successor of Sir M. Costa.

One of the earliest to arrive amongst the audience on Friday was Mr. Gladstone. The late Prime Minister was not observed for a few moments while he stood behind Mrs. Gladstone at the back of one of the divisions of the Royal Box. But he was speedily perceived, and applause from a section of the choir was at once taken up by the rest of the orchestra, and finally by the audience. Slight hissing also was heard, strangely enough, chiefly from the lips of the ladies in the stalls. But the "ovation" was far more enthusiastic than that which greeted Mr. Gladstone at the Festival of 1882, and the cheering was renewed again and again, until the appearance of Mr. Manns gave the commencement of the performance. In another compartment of the Royal Box were the Rajah of Jahore and his suite, who, however, remained only a short time. Among the other notabilities present were the Speaker of the House of Commons, his wife, and his daughter.

The total attendance at the present festival was 85,474 persons. This is, I am told, higher than at any festival save that of 1883, when the total was 87,796. The deficit is accounted for almost solely by the attendance at the public rehearsal, which was 2,091 less than in 1883. The "Messiah" attendance was larger than that of the previous festival. The following official figures show the total attendance on each day, the numbers within parenthesis being those of the festival of 1883, viz:—Rehearsal (19,920) 17,829, "Messiah" (22,388) 22,721, "Selection" (22,200) 22,161, "Israel in Egypt" (23,171) 22,763; and total (last festival 87,796) this year 85,474.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

ANNIVERSARY TEA.—The anniversary tea in connection with the Stourton Wesleyans was held on Saturday last, to which a moderate number attended. After tea the usual meeting was held, when Mr. Swales was called upon to preside, Mr. Hargreaves, the expected chairman, not having arrived. Addresses were delivered by the Revs. F. Woofenden and E. Lyon, and Messrs. Swales and Webber, the superintendents of the school. Mr. Wormald read the secretary's report. The choir gave several selections during the evening, Mr. Genner conducting.

LAUNDRESSES AND HOUSE HOLDERS NOTICE.—A lady says that KAYE'S LAVALINE does three times the work of soap powders.—Advt.

OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS IN EGYPT.—Miss Robinson's excellent Soldiers' Institute at Alexandria, which has proved such a boon to our gallant fellows passing to and from the Nile through the port, and has dispensed creature comfort to many a stricken one, suffering from over-exertion on active duty and the fierce heat of Egypt's "burning strand," is just now sadly in want of financial assistance. We commend the appeal, which will be found in another column, on behalf of this invaluable soldiers' "home from home," to the best sympathies of our readers.

THE WAKEFIELD ELECTION.

Yesterday the election of a Member of Parliament for Wakefield, in place of the late Mr. R. B. Mackie, took place. The Liberal candidate was Mr. W. H. Lee, and Mr. Edward Green was the Conservative. At the close of the poll the result was made known as follows:—

Green	1,918
Majority for Green	257

The poll opened at eight o'clock and closed at eight in the evening, the result being made known by the Mayor (Ald. Moorhouse) at half-past ten. An address was delivered by Mr. Green, M.P., from the balcony of the Corn Exchange, who heartily thanked his supporters for the honour they had conferred upon him, and promising to use his best endeavours for the welfare of every local interest, while he rejoiced in the result as a grand success for Lord Salisbury.

Mr. Lee also addressed his friends from the Strafford Arms, and after expressing his surprise more than his disappointment, hoped that now this battle was over both parties would unite to further the interests of the good old town.

FALL OF A FACTORY IN HUNSLET.

SIX PERSONS KILLED.

On Wednesday noon, a most painful and unexpected occurrence took place at the large nail making works of Messrs. J. & J. Ingham & Co., Jack Lane, Hunslet. The factory is of three stories and strongly built, the girders and supports being of iron, while the walls are 15 inches thick. Many tens of nails and washers are stocked and the turn out of these items is very large, about 120 persons being engaged in the works. On Wednesday morning the work was being carried on as usual, and everything proceeded satisfactorily until about a quarter to twelve o'clock, when all hands were startled by hearing a sudden crash, like the bursting of a boiler. The front wall of a three story building had fallen to the ground, dragging with it portions of the flooring of the two upper stories. It was known that about a dozen women and several men had been working on the bottom floor, and work men, with the assistance of a number of persons who had been attracted by the noise, hastened to the rescue of those who were buried in the débris. Steadily, and with untiring energy, they laboured under the hot July sun, while the relatives and friends of the missing looked on, anxiously hoping and trusting that their loved ones might have escaped. One of the first to be rescued was Robert Dixon, who lives in the Leylands. He was found buried up to the chin in the débris, and had a large flag lying upon his head and neck. He had received a scalp wound, a cut on his lip, and other minor injuries. He was conveyed to the Leeds Infirmary, where he is progressing favourably. Mrs. Sarah Jane Sykes, one of the machine feeders, whose husband is also employed at the place, was found in almost a similar position. She was buried up to the neck, and when extricated was insensible. She was conveyed home, where she was attended to. It was found that although she had been considerably bruised, no bones were broken. Her husband also had a narrow escape from death. He had just passed in front, and was standing within a few yards of the wall when it fell. While the rescuers were still at work inquiries showed that the number of those missing was less than had at first been rumoured. Some of the escapes were quite miraculous. A shearer, named Joseph Powner, had occasion to leave the mill only two minutes before the occurrence; and a woman, having slipped away for a few minutes to cook her family's dinner, had also thus narrowly escaped. It is said that she asked Mrs. Emily Sheldon, Church-street, to mind her machine while she was away. Mrs. Sheldon was killed. Had she been at her own machine she would probably have now been alive. But the most thrilling narrative of all is that told by John Geldart, who had charge of the machines. By his coolness and presence of mind he was enabled not only to save himself but a girl named Emily Lamb, who lives in Pontefract-lane. While returning to his machine, which he had occasion to leave, he glanced upwards—he does not know why he should have done so—and to his horror saw the wall falling in. At the same instant he heard a loud report. At first he thought the boiler must have burst; but a moment's reflection convinced him that this could not be the case. He instantly jumped to one side; but how to make his escape he did not know. Suddenly, through clouds of dust, he saw the sun streaming into the interior, and bethought himself of a window in the corner of the room. He was about to dash through the falling masonry and endeavour to gain this window, when the girl Lamb, who stood close by him, cried out for him to save her. Stretching out his hand, he seized her, and dragging her along with him, reached the window. To drive his foot through the glass and woodwork was only the work of an instant. This done, he sprang through the aperture, dragged the girl after him, and both were saved. They barely escaped however. In another moment, the whole of the wall came tumbling down. The young woman was not much injured, but Geldart had cut his right arm and leg and bruised his ribs. Reverting to the case of Mrs. Sykes, it should be stated that her escape seemed all the more miraculous when the discovery of the dead revealed that the two women who had been working, one on each side of her, were among the killed. It was not until half-past two o'clock that the last dead body was recovered. Six victims had the falling roof claimed, and so mangled and mutilated were the features that it was some time before the grief striken relatives could identify the remains. All the deceased women were married. The following is the list:—

Emily Sheldon, Church-street, Hunslet.
Mary Ann Fawcett, Accommodation road.
Elizabeth Lowther, Grape-street.
Sarah Ann Levett, Wakefield road.
Lizzie Ann White, Pontefract-lane, Bank.
Mary Ellen Taylor, Clark-street, South Accommodation-road.

The inquest was opened yesterday by Mr. J. C Malcolm, the Borough Coroner, at the Exchange Inn, Hunslet. The relatives of the deceased women identified the bodies, and the inquiry was then adjourned until Tuesday. The Borough Engineer (Mr. Hewson) has been instructed to examine the scene of the disaster, and he will make his report next Tuesday.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally "up to all the wrinkles." The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell had a pleasant journey to Gildersome on Saturday, and played a tight game with the village club. The visitors won the toss, and batted first, making 77. To this total Glover, the promising professional, made 42, displaying some fine hitting powers, C Tiffany being next with 14. Gildersome ran up close in their innings, making 74 for 9 wickets. B Wilkinson was head scorer with 21, while G Bedford and T Crowther put on 14 each. C Tiffany took the honour for bowling on the Rothwell side, taking 4 wickets at a cost of 15 runs. Towards the finish of the game the excitement was very great and play had to be stopped several minutes owing to spectators breaking into the ground. The home club were trying their utmost to make a draw, while the visitors put forth all they knew to pull the match off, and owing to the splendid bowling of C Tiffany, they were almost rewarded for their extra exertions, and had there been two or three minutes more time to play it would have been sufficient to decide the matter. At one point of the game when Gildersome had scored 53 for the loss of 5 wickets, and were almost certain of a win (as they thought), not a single minute was allowed to be wasted, and it was not without being grumbled at that a change bowler had time to "set out his field," but when C Tiffany was again tried, and succeeded in taking 4 wickets in 3 overs, and two in two balls at a cost of 5 runs, the home team began to "lag" a little, and I am told it was very amusing to see the last man going to the wicket, "a real gallop," and when he got there he had a narrow escape of being bowled first ball. When the over finished time was called, leaving the match as above stated.

The second elevens of the above clubs met at Rothwell, and—strange to say—played a similar unfinished game to what the first team played. The home team took the wickets first, and put together 75, Pape being at the top with 19, while Cripps (14), and Armitage (13), also did fairly well. Gildersome were a long way off at the finish, as with only one wicket left they had made 48, Westerman (12) being the only man of their side who made double figures. Seanor did best in the bowling department, securing 1 wicket for 3 runs; Chadwick took 2 wickets at a cost of 9 runs, while J Harrison took 2 wickets for 10 runs. Taylor shewed fair promise as a wicket-keeper, capturing two of the wickets in this match.

Lofthouse first eleven made sad havoc of Methley, at Methley on Saturday last. The home team went in first, but could not make the least bit of a stand again the trundling of Asquith and Moss, who got them all out for the gigantic (?) total of 9 runs, which number contained two 3's and three singles the other six batsmen being credited with a "duck." Asquith was fortunate in securing 6 wickets and Moss three. When the last wicket fell on the Lofthouse side, the century had just been reached. Seth Ward was top scorer on this occasion with a not out innings of 24, followed by John Noble (who has done excellent service with the bat this season) and G Dewse with 18 apiece, and T Moss with 14.

Lofthouse 2nd engaged Carlton on their own ground, and accomplished a very creditable win. Going in first, the home team ran up a total of 102, out of which J Hollings was responsible for a nicely played innings of 48, while Wm Dews and A Colley scored 18 and 13 respectively. For Carlton, Beeton obtained 4 wickets, Speak 4, Blackburn 1. Carlton fell short of their opponents score by 46 runs, the Lofthouse trundling being too good for them to make a very large score, and were all out for a total of 56, J Speak making a good stand for 22 not out, while S Nunns was credited with 11. The bowling on the Lofthouse side was shared between Newbold, Hollings, and Newell, the former taking 5 wickets, Hollings three, and Newell two.

Dear me, down we go again. Our poor Temperance club went to Robin Hood on Saturday, and—went down as usual. The visitors went to the wickets first, and made the score of 32, none of the men reaching double figures. This was easily topped by Robin Hood, who put on 79 runs before retiring. S Webster was head scorer with 15, J Fox next with 11, and T Hemsworth 10.

A very even match was played in Haigh Park, Stourton, on Saturday, between Hunslet Paper Mills, and the Stourton Harriers, which resulted in a win for the latter,—by 4 runs. The former club who went in first made a total of 32, of which two were extras, while their opponents (the Harriers) succeeded in making 36, there being 7 extras, thus the losing team on this occasion scored 1 more run off the bat than the successful team. F Fatkin was the only player on either side who reached double figures, having scored 11.

TOWN TALK.

"GOSSIP" received some attention from the "nameless writer of 'Occasional Notes'" last week, and was credited with possessing a remarkable advantage over other contributors to the Rothwell Times columns. He is said to be favoured with "greater freedom and less responsibility" than the "nameless writer," by having placed at top of his contribution, a note from the Editor disclaiming all responsibility for what he writes throwing all the onus on the shoulders of the writer himself. This is incomprehensible; it is impossible for an average understanding to cypher it out, or to see where the application comes in. A fortnight ago I made the most insignificant reference to the way in which the "nameless writer" lays on the oil, and makes things run easy, and as a result am met with the harshest words that a chicken can address to its elder brother. The "nameless writer" says I am discontented and jealous; I don't think I am discontented at all, and certainly I am not jealous of the "N. W.," for I don't envy either his style of writing, or his popularity. Then he says my "bits of talk" are "of a personal and highly seasoned character;" in answer to this let me tell the writer of the "Occasional Notes" which appear every week, that my business is to pick up matter from the talk of the townsfolk, to glean the gossip of the place and put it in readable form. I am sometimes "personal" when I think it is necessary; and with reference to their "highly seasoned" nature, I generally try to observe the truth, which is sometimes very "high seasoned" indeed. However vile my contribution is, I am happy to say that I have never been so hard up for something to "talk" about as to "follow the custom which prevails in other important centres of civilisation," by giving "a brief resume" of the musical and entertainment season of 1884-5. Although I "enjoy all the delights of unt smelled scribbling" I have purposely refrained from speaking unkindly of my "nameless" brother, I know he will learn more sense as he grows older, and in a little while he will peck at anybody rather than at one of his own family. The "nameless writer" has tried to pick up a quarrel with me and has also struck the first blow, so that I am bound to notice his proceedings. Perhaps he has hit me because he dare not attempt to do so to anyone else. Is there no chance of his finding a suitable subject at Woodlesford against whom he may direct his spleen? No! No! they are all perfect there, no abuse to expose, no wrong to put right, no imperfection to remove; all, all are infinitely perfect. Nay, not quite all, the "nameless writer" for instance. People say his contribution was considerably improved last week, as a result of Gossip's rub.

In some districts I have visited, I have been asked the question as to whether miners as a class are not noisy, riotous, and wicked. I suppose they thought I ought to know, having lived amongst them for over a quarter of a century. To this question I have always answered "No" Everybody knows there are bad men among the miners, but there are good men too; ay, many good men amongst them. Good husbands? I should think they do make good husbands. Listen to what the woman said, reading the Rothwell Times, last week:—"Nah then Jim! hear tha! tha often says tha's plenty to dew, bud just ta listen what it sez here—'Miners Notice.—A colliers wife says 'My husband and two lads are miners; when they come home I give them Kay's Lavaline and some warm water to wash with, 'the effect is wonderful.'" The husband remarked drily "ah sud like to see three chaps weshing," to which the good woman replied "mind tha hes'nt to wesh for me some o'these fine days."

It seems that Mr. Starkie has completely denied the accuracy of "Observer's" letter of a fortnight ago. It seems to me that the best way to have done would have been for Mr. Starkie to have denied it in the ordinary way "Observer," having heard of certain acts said to have been done by the Local Board Inspector, took a very wise step in asking through the Rothwell Times if these things were so. Mr. Starkie then seems to have been grossly offended, and declining to reply to "Observer" in the ordinary way gets a paragraph inserted in the Rothwell Times from the proprietors regretting that they had published the letter at all. Well, I'm very glad it did appear; I think it was the proper course to take, and I am not at all pleased at the poor, shuffling way, in which the denial has been communicated to the public. Perhaps he thought it would be a lowering to his dignity (if he h - - a - - -), but I don't. I believe such rumours as "Observer" published want "outing." then, if they are true they stand, if not they fall.

GOSSIP.

THE LOCAL BOARD AND THEIR WORKMEN.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

I wish through your columns to draw the attention of the Local Board to the short hours worked by the Board's employés. All the farmer and carters' men in the district commence work at six o'clock in the morning, whilst the Board's workmen do not begin until 7 o'clock, although they leave off at the same time (5 o'clock in the afternoon). I cannot see any reason why they should not work the same number of hours in a day as other workmen in the neighbourhood, and I, along with others, think it is very unfair, simply because they are paid out of the rates, that they should be allowed an hour a day. I hope this letter will meet with the consideration of the Local Board, and that they will in future see that they obtain a fair day's work for a fair day's wage.

Yours, etc.,
A LARGE RATEPAYER.

GOSSIP AND MR. MANTLE.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir.

I am in a dilemma in the matter of writing in reply to 'Gossip's' last week's remarks regarding myself. Not that I care about anything he might say through your columns; they only shew to what perfection he has attained in respect of himself or anyone else, and perhaps he may do himself more injury than myself. In the first place, it is not the wolves in the Temperance Society, but one or two wolves outside in sheep's clothing under the cover of religion which we have to fear. Secondly, your letter needs no kicking, for it kicks itself with being one mass of falsehoods from first to last, with only one exception, and that is the word you make to figure so very prominent, I mean the word 'worthy,' which I accept with thanks, hoping to keep the title until I finish my presidency, and I will leave no stone unturned to prove that I am and was worthy of the position they put me into as worthy president. Thirdly, 'Gossip' says "he seems to be something more than he is, etc." I will tell him I am something; I have the honour to preside over as fine a Society of honest and true-hearted men and women as ever walked this country, and I am proud of them. This is where the rub comes in, for the person whom I think has given you your information wanted the honour himself, but went the wrong way to get it, and instead of trying to go the right way and gain respect, is drifting himself further in the open sea. I know that there is a few who are going to make a foul try to upset me, only they do not upset themselves first Your informer ought to have spoken the truth, it goes by far the longest way, and is a sure sign of a gentleman; but what is not in cannot come out is a saying of truth. As there is two sides of a tale I will try, by your permission, to give you the history as truthful as I can, leaving the public to form their own conclusion.

We have in our Temperance Hall a door which leads off the platform into the smoke room which is very low at the platform side, so low that several persons who have taken part in our entertainments have caught their heads against the top and been knocked backwards way over on the platform, hurting themselves very much. So low is it that one of the little girls of the Barnsley Juvenile Choir caught her head, and was carried away by our secretary insensible. At the second meeting of the committee after my election, Monday, April 19th, by the wish of the members of the Society I was to bring this door before the committee's notice, with the object of raising it some nine or ten inches. I did so; and on the motion of Mr. E Hampson, it was to stand as it was until the alteration of the Hall: he then got the majority, and the matter rested until the little girl got her knock down. On Wednesday night after the little ones had finished their entertainment, a certain gentleman drew my attention to the door and carefully explained how it could be risen without any injury to the wall, and make it safe for anyone leaving the platform; and further, promised with another gentleman to do the work free of charge if I would bring it again before the Committee and get their consent. We met June 15th, 1885, and in due course I brought the matter forward, but hoped that Mr. Hampson would kindly allow us to rescind his former motion, which he objected to. But when he found he was losing ground, he rose to his feet and said we had no right to do it until the trustees was called together, he being one of them. I rose in reply, but instead of raising any objection to the trustees meeting together, I said that I thought we could not lawfully remove a brick from the wall without first seeing them, in a strict sense of the law, but if the mover was going to run the committee in so small a corner, the sooner we threw down the better, as there had been many more expensive alterations by pounds than this, seeing it was going to cost nothing, and the thing was never before dreamt of, but if he was going to be so narrow-minded the sooner he was removed from his trusteeship the better. Notice his falseness; he said in the committee that he had not the least doubt but that the trustees would give their consent; but when they met he went quite opposite to the impression he gave us that he was in favour of the door being raised, or the motion would never have passed the committee. At their meeting Mr. Hampson said he did not wish to put the Society to any expense, but with the same breath proposed that they pull down the old place and rebuild it in harmony with the hall, incurring a debt of from fifty to ninety pounds, which the members of the Society do not feel themselves in a position to do at present, but all are agreed and has been from the first commencement that the improvement is advisable, and was willing when they could see their way clear, to act upon their proposition. And on purpose to gain his object, he waited upon certain parties, trustees, etc., and gave them the understanding that I wanted to pull down the old place to the foundations, and I said I would do it in spite of the trustees, which was false, and he knew at the time he told the tale to more than one, I never said anything of the kind. This is the truth. You say, Mr. Gossip, 'an old and tried friend.' At what, I ask? Not in the formation of unity and friendship, but the reverse, and always has been so far as I can learn of him before-times. He would not have had the honour to sit as a committee-man at all but for your humble servant; I nominated him, but he knows if he had gone to the ballot what would have been the result. One question I ask which looks rather queer: If I am so unfit for the position, and he knows it, why did he on the night I was elected put up his hand for my election?

As regards 'Gossip's' sweeping clause, it is the first time I was aware I was not still a member of the Church of England Temperance Society (if it exists) nor am I aware of anyone ever wishing me to retire; as for having my own way, there is not one member of the committee can say I wanted one single thing my own way, I always worked in peace with them. And as you appear to be so poorly posted in the matter, I may tell you I had no need to go to the Temperance Hall, for I was a member there at the same time, and had been for one year or so before. So I think it would be much better if you enquired into both sides of the matters you take up, before you run madly into print, and then come to your own conclusion. Thanking you, Sir, for space.

I remain,
Yours truly,
JAMES MANTLE.

AN EYE WITNESS.—We have received your letter, but there being no information as to the author, it cannot be inserted. We would also remind our correspondent that we cannot undertake to decipher a letter evidently written in the most careless manner, and without the slightest regard to the ordinary rules of correspondence.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it soften the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in restoring the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name CONSUMPTION EMULSION. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men, as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 163 of his work, entitled "Consumption: Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." Such a testimony as this speaks volumes for the efficiency of Phthisicon. In addition, it has proved of immense value as a curative agent in the early stages of Brain Disease and Scrofula; in fact, wherever there is impaired nutrition or lack of nerve power, its action is almost certain. It can be obtained of all Chemists at 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. per bottle. Wholesale of Barclay and Sons, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.; or of W. B. Trick, A.P.S., 92, Green-lanes London, N

A SKILFUL SURGICAL OPERATION.

The American Ambassador at Vienna, Mr. Kasson has lately forwarded to his Government an interesting account of a remarkable surgical operation lately performed by Professor Billroth, of Vienna, which wonderful to tell, consisted in the removal of a portion of the human stomach, involving nearly one-third of the organ—and, strange to say, the patient recovered—the only successful operation of the kind ever performed. The disease for which this operation was performed was cancer of the stomach, attended with the following symptoms:—The appetite is quite poor. There is a peculiar indescribable distress in the stomach, a feeling that has been described as a faint "all gone" sensation; a sticky slime collects about the teeth, especially in the morning, accompanied by an unpleasant taste. Food fails to satisfy this peculiar faint sensation; but, on the contrary, it appears to aggravate the feeling. The eyes are sunken, tinged with yellow; the hands and feet become cold and sticky—a cold perspiration. The sufferers feel tired all the time, and sleep does not seem to give rest. After a time the patient becomes nervous and irritable gloomy, his mind filled with evil forebodings. When rising suddenly from a recumbent position there is a dizziness, a whirling sensation, and he is obliged to grasp something firm to keep from falling. The bowels costive, the skin dry and hot at times; the blood becoming thick and stagnant and does not circulate properly. After a time the patient spits up food soon after eating, sometimes in a sour and fermented condition, sometimes sweetish to the taste. Oftentimes there is a palpitation of the heart, and the patient fears he may have heart disease. Towards the last the patient is unable to retain any food whatever, as the opening in the intestines becomes close, or nearly so. Although this disease is indeed alarming, sufferers with the above-named symptoms should not feel nervous, for nine hundred and ninety one cases out of a thousand have no cancer, but simply dyspepsia, a disease easily removed if treated in a proper manner. The safest and best remedy for the disease is Seigel's Curative Syrup, a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors, and by the proprietors, A. J. White (Limited), London, England. This syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of system.

DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 31st of July they tapped me, and took away 304 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 408 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 29th), was again tapped at home and 300 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.
Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 21st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).
William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.
After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.
Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry, What can be done? For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock and Optician Trade Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as SCOTT & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

TEETH, A COMPLETE SET ONE GUINEA.—Precisely the same Prize Medal Teeth supplied by other Dentists at the highest fees, five years' warranty.—Testimonial from Jas. Steward, Physician and Surgeon, L.R.C.P.E. "I have great pleasure in recommending your Guinea Sets of Teeth. The set you supplied to me are much superior to those for which I paid a much higher fee. They must prove a great boon to the working classes." Complete set made and fitted in a few hours. One visit only required from country patients at the Dental Supply Association, 10, BOAR-LANE, LEEDS. Entrance, Gascoigne-street. Attendance, 10 to 7. Country Patients attended at their own Residences without extra charge.

Friday, July 10, 1885.

WHILE there are few matters of interest occuring in the immediate locality, national changes are being consolidated and the New Ministry is getting fairly to work. After the interval last week, required for the re-election of several members of the new Government, the Houses of Parliament again met for serious business on Monday evening. There was a large attendance and some interesting events took place. The first attractive business in the Upper House was the introduction of several of the newly created Peers. Foremost came the late leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, the Earl of Iddesleigh, followed by the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, who sits as Lord Ashbourne, and by the late Tory Whip, now Lord St. Oswald. The Earl of Iddesleigh took his seat on the Ministerial bench next to the Duke of Richmond, who sat next to the Prime Minister, and he was most warmly congratulated on his promotion. If possible, a still more cordial welcome was given to Lord St. Oswald, who made haste to hide away in the obscurity of a back seat. Then there was the 'statement' of the New Premier, the Marquis of Salisbury, which, however, gave no hint of the "gun and glory' rumours with which he was credited, and in brief words, he will get through the few months of this Parliament as agreeably and smoothly as possible, keeping largely on the lines of the previous Ministry. The probability of this being the case has been further exemplified during the week, and Mr. Gladstone's speech on Tuesday fully bore out the general assurance he gave the new Prime Minister, that no unnecessary objections would be placed in his way in carrying out the business of the country. In the House of Commons, there were a large number of Ministers to be sworn after re-election, amongst whom, Rothwell people will be generally interested in Mr. Webster, Q.C., whose legal dictum has lately been received on the 'gas reserve fund' question, and who now rejoices in the title and the salary of Attorney General. Mr. Green, the newly elected member for Wakefield, also took his seat on Monday evening, and was cordially received by his friends.

THE iron glove is to be thrown off the hand with which Ireland is governed. Crime of an agrarian character has happily so much decreased of late that the change is warrantable. It will be much pleasanter for all parties in the Parliament of the United Kingdom if the people of the Sister Isle allow their legislators to maintain the attitude of genial kindness and benign rule: It is as painful for the authorities to have to play the part of stern guardian as it is for the recalcitrants to submit themselves to authority. If coercion has again to be resorted to, there will be nobody to blame but the Irish themselves and the irresponsible professional agitators, who unfortunately at times gain a too attentive hearing from the sons of Erin to their specious and delusive utterances. We trust Lord Carnarvon's viceregal stay in Ireland will be one of prosperity and happiness for that part of her Majesty's dominions, and join with Mr. Gladstone in wishing them God speed in their endeavours to rule Ireland by the ordinary law. "With all my heart," he said, in concluding his speech, "I wish they may prove to be right."

LORD JOHN MANNERS exhibited in a manner most graciously the courtesy which stamps the "old nobility," to whose traditions he attaches such high reward, when he invited his predecessor, Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, to the Post Office the other day to witness the making up of the first Eastern Parcel Post Mail. The arrangements for the working of this new public convenience were, of course, almost entirely made during the period of Mr. Shaw-Lefevre's Postmaster-Generalship, but that gentleman gave all the honour to his foregoer, the late lamented Professor Fawcett, and to the heads of the various departments. The Parcels Post has, since its adoption, been a gratifying success. A recent test shows that the service is better, safer, and cheaper than that supplied by private firms and individuals. Strange to say, the system has not injuriously affected the business of the old carriers of small parcels either, so that we shall be likely to have further extensions and improvements. The public has a confidence in the Post Office which is sure, so long as the charges are reasonable, to bring about large business.

IN the House of Commons yesterday, Sir M. Hicks-Beach made his financial statement. He said he would adopt Mr. Childers' revenue estimate, and he proposed to adopt the increase of taxation agreed to on June 9th, and would meet the deficit of about £2,650,000 by Exchequer and Treasury Bills. He would accept the additional twopence on the income tax, making it eightpence, and the increased stamp duties; but the succession duty and the beer and spirit duties would not be raised, neither would tea nor any other fresh article be taxed. The question as to whether the Sixpenny telegrams Bill should be proceeded with is still under the consideration of the Government.

ROYAL VISIT TO LEEDS.

The Prince and Princess of Wales are coming to Leeds next Wednesday, and great preparations are being made for their reception. All the streets through which they will pass are being profusely decorated, business will be entirely suspended all day, and everybody is going in for a general holiday. The general arrangements are as follows:—Their Royal Highnesses will arrive at Studley Royal, Ripon (where they will reside during their visit to Yorkshire), on Tuesday evening. On Wednesday morning they will leave the Marquis of Ripon's at 10.45, and arrive at the N. E. station, Leeds, at 11.45, where the Mayor and Corporation, with the members of the Council of the Yorkshire College, and other gentlemen will meet them. The Yorkshire Hussars will form the escort during the stay in Leeds, while the Rifle, Engineer and Artillery Volunteers, will form guards of honour at the station, the Town Hall and the College, respectively. The Royal party will proceed to the Town Hall by way of Wellington-street, Park-row, South-parade, East-parade, and Victoria-square. An address of welcome will be presented at the Town Hall, where a picked chorus will sing a madrigal and the National Anthem, and the Constabulary Band will play a selection outside. Members of the Masonic Lodges will also take part in the proceedings, which will close about 12. A procession will then be formed en route to the College, by way of Calverley-street and Clarendon-road, where the Royal party will be conducted over the premises, which will then be formally opened. The procession will then move to the Coliseum by way of Woodhouse-lane, and will partake of luncheon at two o'clock. The Prince and Princess will leave the Coliseum about 3.30, proceeding to the station by way of Woodhouse-lane, Upperhead-row, Briggate, Boar-lane, Albion-street, Bond-street, West-street, Wellington-street, and New Station-street, for the return journey. The route will be lined with members of Friendly Societies and the regiments of Volunteers. In celebration of the Royal visit the Mayor will provide a display of fireworks on Woodhouse Moor, under the direction of Messrs. C. T. Brock & Co., pyrotechnists to the Crystal Palace Company, London. From 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., weather permitting, there will be a continuous flight of balloons. The signal rocket for the fireworks will be fired at 9 p.m., and the display will last about an hour. Provided fine weather favors the promoters, the day will be one not easily forgotten by the hundreds of thousands who will take part in the festivities.

WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

LOFTHOUSE CORRESPONDENT.

The field crops in this neighbourhood have every appearance of yielding a full average. Hay-making commenced about 10 days later than last year. Last year much of the hay was stacked on the 16th of July. Showers fell on July 7th, which have greatly improved turnips and other plants that root near the surface. Rye is now being cultivated here at Lofthouse, Mr. W. Lunn has two fields that promise well, and this is only the second time that this crop has been cultivated to any extent in this immediate locality. This is an exception, but farmers seem to follow very much in one groove, being very reticent in trying improvements with new crops. The new crimson clover (Trifolinm incarnatum) is now cultivated about Kippax, mixed with common clover. It attains the same height; the stems are slender and consequently not so coarse if divested of the leaf in wet weather. Lucern is another crop that might be tried on our soils, it grows luxuriantly on railway banks on sandstone as well as on limestone. Kohl Rabbi I have only seen twice cultivated in this district. Liquorice might be tried in deep soils near rivers, it sells now at 12s per stone as it is got up from the ground. The crops of top fruit about here seem to be a failure. Many of the pear trees were covered with bloom, but the pears, which appeared to have set, have nearly all fallen off, and it is the same with plums. The crops of gooseberries, raspberries and strawberries are satisfactory. The strawberries are now (July 9th) ripe, and are very attractive to the blackbirds, who hop about on the ground and banquet luxuriously on the ripe and red side of the fruit, leaving the green side for the snails. Apropos, I should mention that the gourmand cannot be too circumspect in examining strawberries before eating them. I examined a large strawberry narrowly the other day and found a garden slug in a little cave in the inside of it. The tunnel by which he had entered was very small. Cherries are said to be a good crop in southern districts, and might be cultivated again here with advantage if we could purify the atmosphere, and keep down the sparrows. The cherry trees in Kent are said to be heavily laden with fruit. The cherries in some orchards have been sold for more than £1000, and on one very large estate the high figure of £1700 has been realised.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

"HOPE springs eternal in the human breast." There are sanguine people in Rothwell who still believe that the "Rothwell Railway" will some day become an accomplished fact; and again in Woodlesford there are to be found many who believe that the proposed vicarage will eventually be built. It was confidently expected that a beginning would be made with the vicar's new house this year, but the season is passing without a sign being made. A rather serious obstacle lies in the way; there is a difficulty in getting possession of an available site. The design is prepared and the building fund is in hand; all that is wanted is the site. As the vicarage is looked upon as parish property, the public mind is much exercised in finding out a suitable spot for its location. Rumour has planted it in various situations, and at last it seemed to have found a resting place in a section of "Dobson's Estate" which was set apart in building plots for villas. The estate agents who act for the trustees, however, unfortunately lost sight of the fact that a house requires a road to it. They did not discover until too late that the astute gentleman to whom they sold Laurence Villa had also obtained possession of the only road to the intended building sites, and the conveyance was concluded before this trifling inadvertence could be rectified. This of course upset the proposed arrangement, and the vicarage was again cut adrift from its moorings. It is reassuring to learn that there is a prospect of obtaining a site, in every respect pleasant and well-situated in another portion of the same estate abutting on the Station Road.

THE employés of Messrs. Bentley and Co. were favored with brilliant weather for their annual trip, which was run to Morecambe on Saturday last. The number going was increased to a respectable colony by wives and children of the men, many friends and outsiders also taking the opportunity of a pleasant day's outing. Morecambe is not one of the most imposing or liveliest of watering places, but there are attractions enough in the place and neighbourhood to furnish interest and amusement for all the time at the disposal of day-trippers. A breezy sail across the beautiful waters of the bay was most enjoyable; some found their way to Grange—a lovely little spot; the ancient town of Lancaster; and the antediluvian hamlet of Heysham, with its quaint old church and relics of past ages. The day was oppressively hot; emphatically thirsty weather; and the discovery of a hostelry where Bentley's celebrated ales could be procured afforded intense happiness to many of the visitors. There was no mishap or misadventure to mar the general enjoyment of the day's proceedings.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

Girls' Friendly Society.—The annual festival of the Swillington and District Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society was held at Methley on Saturday. The Rothwell contingent, to the number of some 32, met at 1.30 at the National Schools, and along with the Rev. F. Fawkes and his lady, and several lady associates, proceeded to the rendezvous in a waggonette. The Hon. and Rev. P. Y. Savile kindly met the girls at 2.30 at the lodge of Methley Park, the seat of the Earl of Mexborough, by whose kind permission the house and grounds were shown. Tea was served at 4.30 in the Parochial Schools to about 200, and after tea a select number of Rothwell parish and Swillington, each sang a part song in the rectory gardens, which sounded very sweetly in the open air. The Hon. and Rev. P. Y. Savile then said how pleased he was to see the party in his parish, and how honoured the society must feel that has Her Gracious Majesty the Queen as President, and among its members Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales. The Rev. R. H. Hamilton (Oulton), the treasurer of the branch, read a short report of the year's work, and said the branch had nearly doubled its numbers since last year, numbering now 33 associates, 208 members from the six parishes, i.e., Kippax, Methley, Oulton, Rothwell, Swillington, and Woodlesford. The Rev. F. Fawkes and Rev. R. T. Ripley also spoke, but the time drawing near for service they, were not able to say much. Canon Scott, of St. John's, Leeds, preached from St. John, iii, 4. The choir kindly gave their services, the service was choral and the hymns from the A. and M. Hymn Book. The offertory was for the G. F. S. Diocesan Sick Fund, and amounted to £7 7s. 9½d.

Infirmary Demonstration.—The nett result of the Demonstration at Rothwell, held on the 21st of last month, amounts to £30, which has been handed to the authorities of the Institution by Mr J. Turner, the local treasurer. The total amount received during the day was £37 11s. 11½d., and £3 1s. 1d. taken at the gate at Monday's gala; besides these sums the sale of programmes realized £1 12s. 2½d., and the sale of music 11s. 4½d.; 10s. 8d. was paid for tea by friends partaking, making a total of £43 7s. 3½d. The expenses included £6 15s 2d. for printing, advertising, and music; £2 3s. 11d. for tea; £2 11s. 0d. travelling expenses for the Leeds Band and Castleford singers; 15s. 6d. for use of rooms, and £1 1s. 8½d. postages and sundries; together £13 7s. 3½d., leaving a balance, as we have stated, of £30— £10 less, we are sorry to say, than last year.

Stourton St. Andrew's Church.—On Monday, the Church Working Society in connection with the above church, had a picnic to Middleton. The party left the church gates, Stourton, about 4.30 and drove to Middleton Vicarage where they were received by Mrs. Miller, and Mrs. Nicholson, of Middleton Hall. After partaking of a very sumptuous tea kindly provided by Mrs. Miller, most of the members proceeded to view the beautiful gardens, and conservatories of Middleton Hall, which had been thrown open by the kind permission of Mrs. Nicholson. Returning to the vicarage some of the ladies played Tennis, much amusement being caused when some of the elderly ones took part in a game. After spending a most enjoyable evening (which was only marred by the absence of the Vicar, who had been obliged to leave home), the party returned through the wood and arrived at Stourton about 9.30 highly delighted with the afternoon's excursion.

The funeral of the late Mrs Levett, of Atkinson Street, (daughter of Mrs. Lax, Springfield View, Stourton) who was killed at the recent accident in Jack Lane Nail works, took place at Beeston Hill Cemetery on Friday afternoon last, at 5 o'clock. Long before that time however crowds of people were waiting outside to see the procession, which consisted of above 100 couples leading the way, followed by the hearse, six mourning coaches, and a cab, which contained the family and some of the friends of the deceased. The streets were crowded on either side along the way to Beeston Hill by people awaiting the arrival of the body. There were present at the funeral Mr. Councillor Gilston, Councillor Pickersgill, Councillor Wainman, and more gentlemen, who met the procession at the gate. Mrs Levett had worked until 10 months ago at Messrs Mountain Brothers, Hunslet Nail works, where her husband now works, but on account of sickness left there and began work at the 'Nail Mill' in Jack Lane where she met with her death. The workpeople of Messrs Mountain Bros., expressed their sympathy and condolence with Mrs. Lax in the way of a short letter. Mrs. Levett had been married one year and seven months and has had one child which is now dead. She was 24 years of age when she met with her death.

Rothwell Temperance Society.—On Saturday afternoon a large number of members of this society travelled to Hunslet, accompanied by the Brass Band. A cricket match was indulged in between the rival teams of the Rothwell and Hunslet Temperance societies, in which the Rothwell team proved victorious, as will be seen from our cricket column. The Rothwell Temperance Brass Band afterwards played a selection of dance music at a gala which was held in the field.

Found Drowned.—A man was taken out of the canal yesterday morning near Mr. Horn's whiting mill, but was removed into the Leeds district. He has not yet been identified, but has the appearance of a boatman.

"The appearance upon entering (Providence House, 42, North Street, Leeds), gave us an idea of a fairyland of Furniture and Crystal palace of mirrors."

Miners Notice.—A collier's wife says "My husband and two lads are miners; when they come home I give them KAYE'S LAVALINE and some warm water to wash with; the effect is wonderful, I could not do without it"—Advt.

It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. CRICKET NOTES.

On Saturday last Rothwell encountered Bruntcliffe at home, and gained an easy though somewhat fortunate victory by 20 runs. The home team batted first, and for a time things assumed a very dark aspect, after the first wicket fell for 15, four more went down with 6 runs only added to the score; C Tiffany unluckily played a ball into his wicket for 0, W Richardson, being bowled early for 1, and Borwell first ball for 0. However, aided by their professional (who went in first wicket down and brought out his bat for a careful innings of 39, not out) the tail was enabled to take the score up to 76 before the last wicket fell. The bowling of the Bruntcliffe men was very good and well on the wicket. The visitors scored 56, out of which R Ainsker made 12, and H Hinchliffe 11. The honour of bowling this week fell to Glover who took 6 wickets at a cost of 16 runs, Dobson 2 wickets for 16, and C Tiffany 1 for 19. The victory was only snatched in the "nick of time" as it was the last over in the match and the fifth ball that Glover got the last wicket, and in consequence, great excitement prevailed amongst the onlookers, as was the case in last week's fixture against Gildersome.

The 2nd were found at Robin Hood on Saturday afternoon, and pulled the match off in good style. The home team took the wickets first, and made 85 (a rare good total). To this Eli Milner contributed 30, Sam Hartley 26, and J. Lee 13. The bowling honours were taken by Taylor, who got 5 wickets for 22 runs; Briggs, one wicket for 2 runs, and Harrison 2 wickets for 7 runs. Rothwell made 102 before being disposed of, Pape being at the top with 17, which is the third time in succession that he has gained this honour, while for 7 innings with the 2nd eleven, he has the very satisfactory average of 16 runs per innings, which I consider, fully entitles him to another trial in the first team, and if once again he may be given the honor of playing with his superiors, let's hope that he may be more fortunate than on previous occasions. The other scorers of any note were Taylor and J. Blackburn with 14 each, W. A. Richardson 12, J. Wilson 11, and G. Wilson 10. By the way, I hear that G. Wilson has been drafted into the 2nd team, owing I suppose to his failure in scoring, which is all right so far as I know, but there are others who are equally as bad, if not worse, and deserve the same treatment.

Lofthouse played a good game with Castleford on Saturday, at the latter place. Castleford were fortunate in making 158 before retiring, Byford being top scorer with 43, Rooke 31, Chappell 25, Hartley 19, and Child 11. Lofthouse followed on, and at the call of time had made 76 for 3 wickets, S. Ward (28 not out), and Chadwick (25), being the principal contributers. On Monday, however, Lofthouse did not shew up to well against Whitwood, on the ground of of the latter. In their innings Lofthouse only made 66, out of which France was responsible for a valuable innings of 34, and J Noble 13, the remaining batsmen simply doing nothing at all, four of them being credited with a "duck." Whitwood did exceedingly well, topping their opponents score by no less than 102 runs, the chief scorers of which were Elliott, not out 48, J W Tolson 28, G Tolson 21, Morritt 17, Froggart 16, Mosby 12, and Hartley 11. Lofthouse did somewhat better in their second innings, scoring 27 for the loss of 2 wickets, two reliable batsmen being not out, (J Noble 14, and W Chadwick 10), and might have made a good stand.

'Hurrah ? we've done it at last,' remarked the team of cricketers belonging to Temperance Society, as they marched down Commercial Street headed by their Prize Brass Band, fresh from their splendid and welcome victory over their formidable rivals, the Hunslet Temperance society, being the first win achieved by them so far this season, and they were therefore nearly overwhelmed with joy. Turning to the game, the Hunslet side only put together a total of 40, out of which Berners alone made 15, while 9 were put down as extras. Rothwell did not make a very good impression at first half of the wickets being down for a very small total, but, however, by the aid of E Webdale and W Blackburn who were both not out, the score was taken to 56 when the stumps were drawn for the day.

Stourton Harriers achieved a splendid victory over Burley at Haigh Park on Saturday. The visitors, who defended first only make the meagre score of 22, none of them being able to reach double figures owing to the splendid trundling of their opponents, especially Goldthorpe, who took 5 wickets in four overs at a cost of only one run—a really splendid performance. Stourton succeeded in compiling a total of 58, J Goldthorpe, being again to the fore with 18, when he was out rather unfortunately: F Fatkin also did well in the batting department making 17.

TOWN TALK.

Why hasn't my friend and brother of Woodlesford given us more information about that nice little bill of expenses for that wonderful Church Mission they had some time ago. £22 is no small sum for a ten day's mission. Let me see; ten times two are twenty, and two are twenty two. That's like a poetic effusion, isn't it. But I'll put it in another way. For expenses of advertising (though I didn't hear of any bills about Rothwell) and a trifle to the sexton, two pounds would no doubt be ample, leaving twenty pounds—or say two pounds a day—for our reverend brother. I may be dividing the amount improperly, but according to present facts, this is the only conclusion one can come to. Well may my Woodlesford brother (who deserves our warmest thanks for his statement) apologise for the amount, as an expensive piece of business. I fancy some of our hard-headed folks will have begun calculating. Twenty pounds for a ten day's mission; not a bad business that—quite an easy job too. Talk to folks two or three times a day for about an hour, or possibly two hours, and then go to the squire's or the parson's and get a good meal. Twenty pounds! Why that would provide many a poor miner's family with six month's food. Twenty pounds! It would purchase 1,200 new Testaments for missions, or enable a true-hearted layman to distribute 5,000 penny hymn books, or 50,000 leaflet tracts to as many poor ignorant heathen at home and abroad. Shame on such a charge for a work of 'love and religion.' How many a hard-worked, pious curate would well do with such an addition to his starvation income. How many a country evangelist would gladly mission a dozen places for such a sum. Twenty pounds would keep a couple of 'Salvation lasses" in twenty different places for a week. I sincerely trust some further explanation may be forthcoming for such an item, or otherwise that the £11 already contributed will be the sum total wrung out of a comparatively poor population.

Go it, Lawton; you're on the right track, and I prophecy that before this year is out, those who use the Woodlesford train, will breath a thanksgiving to you for reducing the fare to Leeds.

I was astonished at Mr. Starkie's action in regard to 'Observer,' and had to say a word about it. But really, the affair on Monday week at the Board meeting reminded one of the "mountain (after all its upheavals and groans) only bringing forth a mouse." Letters, libel threats, examination of defendant and plaintiff, with half-a-dozen witnesses, for three hours, in that 'lion's den;' the consultation of the judges, the voluminous report of the Lord Chief Justice, and its presentation before the assembled council; and then—and then—and then—that's all; neither condemnation nor commendation, but 'pass on.' No wonder that Mr. Holmes felt compelled to resign a post in which nearly all his colleagues declined to support him. No wonder either that the surveyor will feel his strength reduced and his interest lessened, and that Kaye will consider his case strengthened. There'll shortly be a 'penny wise and pound foolish' move unless members of the Board pull themselves up on this matter.

* * *

What a pity Mr. Turner voted against asking the Gas Co. to reduce the gas. I hear that the Co. are actually taking 5d. off, in reply to the resolution moved by Mr. Turner's two friends, Messrs. J. Hargreaves and Holmes. It's rather hard cheese, after having worked so hard to get that opinion, and to stop the accumulation of the Reserve Fund, that the proverbial "slip 'twixt cup and lip" should have intervened at the last moment, and the credit of actually obtaining reduced gas be secured by two other gentlemen.

* * *

Mr. Mantle shall have the exclusive honour of styling "one mass of falsehoods." Mr. Mantle's letter is a bundle of nonsense, and if he is proud of those who are members of the Temperance Society, there are those who are not at all proud of their president. Mr. Mantle virtually confirms my note of a fortnight ago. He admits he asked the member in question to be good enough to take himself off; and he admits that the business I referred to properly belonged to the trustees. These two points are the principal part of what I stated, and I am much obliged for Mr. Mantle's corroboration of my statements. If he takes any exception to my statements, let him state them, and I shall be glad to discuss the question with him.

* * *

The profits on gas making the last few years have been exceptionally high, by reason of the high prices of gas tar and gas liquors. Already a turn in the tide is at hand. Instead of the good times recently enjoyed gas undertakings may be plunged into bad times, as the following quotation, which I clip from a daily paper, seems to foreshadow:—"One of the largest sources of profit to gas companies for some years past has been the figures paid for tar, ammoniacal liquor, and other residuals, but in consequence of a very serious decline in the demand for these, the profits, it is feared in some instances, may be turned into losses. As an instance, we may mention that the Retford Gas undertaking, which is in the hands of the Corporation, are now making only 16s. per ton for tar which they sold some months since at £2 6s. per ton, and instead of clearing £500 a year out of residuals, £150 will be nearer the figure in future it is estimated. The Manchester Corporation Gas undertaking has had a failing off of £16,000 in half a year on residuals alone.

* * *

Now that we have warm weather householders who possess a gas cooker will be able to avoid the inconvenience arising from the smothering heated atmosphere, caused by the coal fire in the kitchen grate. This refers especially to the small household of tradesmen and the like, particularly those who have to buy coal.

GOSSIP.

THE LOCAL BOARD AND THEIR WORKMEN.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times

Sir,

After reading 'Observer's' letter of June 18th, with regard to the differences which had arisen between the surveyor and Wm. Kaye, I concurred in 'Observer's' opinion that our Local Board ought to investigate them impartially, and if the charges made against the surveyor were not true, to give him a chance to prove they were a mass of lies concocted to do him an injury, whilst on the other hand if true he ought to be reprimanded; but in the report of the Local Board meeting I cannot find the case has been impartially investigated, but was passed over in a way which does not reflect credit to the Board. In the report of the Board meeting I find the chairman of the Highways Committee presented a report of the evidence taken by the Committee on the complaints made by W. Kaye, against the surveyor, and after carefully considering the various questions, the chairman had apparently come to the conclusion that the charges preferred were unfounded, and arose out of animosity to the surveyor. What is the result of this taking of evidence by the Board; one hon. member of the Board proposed—but could find no seconder—to look over the past, and to reduce Mr. Starkie's power of suspension for the future. I suppose the first part of the motion is to look over the public-house talk, to which the chairman had previously referred, and which I consider should not have been so lightly treated; the second part of the motion I cannot conceive what is the meaning, unless it was intended as an insult to the surveyor, because I cannot think any member of the Board would seriously think of taking away the power which is rightly invested in the hands of the surveyor, namely, to suspend a workman when that workman is not doing his duty, unless that member wishes the Board to give himself the power to suspend the Board's servants, also the Board itself if all do not comply with his wishes. The second motion, to 'pass on to the next business,' found a seconder, but the way in which the mover and seconder were in favour of evading the subject was a proof that they had previously exhausted their eloquence on a question which interested them in a different way than an unfounded charge against their surveyor. Mr. Holmes no doubt felt himself very badly treated by the way in which the Board was dealing with the subject after he had placed before them an exhaustive report, felt himself bound to move that W. Kaye be served with 14 days' notice, which also found a seconder, but was not carried; now I think this would have been dealing too severe with W. Kaye, who should have been censured for making unfounded charges against his fellow servants, the Board hoping that in the future he would be of better behaviour. Now I think it would have been a more honourable course to have taken than to throw insults in the teeth of the chairman of the Highways Committee, and the surveyor, thereby causing the resignation of Mr. Holmes.

Yours truly,
A WORKING MAN.

POLITICS IN ROTHWELL.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Will you kindly allow me a little space in your next issue to make a few observations on passing and previous events.

Sir, it is a well-known fact that up till very recently the reins of the Government of this country have been held in the hands of the Liberal party, and during their term of office they have had great difficulties to contend with. Although opposed in the most ungentlemanly and ridiculous manner, these difficulties have been dealt with in such a manner, that has given satisfaction to all sober-thinking men.

Sir, but things change and new events take place both in private and public life; in the history of countries and their Governments as well as in nature, we read of many changes that have taken place in the world's history; we read of one which came to his own, and his own received him not, but cast him out as a wine bibber, a friend of publicans and sinners; he was not a wine bibber like many in this country who pretend to be the friends of the publicans and sinners, but he was really a friend to all who believed in him. Like our blessed Master, the 'Grand Old Man' wishes to do good unto all men, but he is cast out as evil by his opponents; yet he deserves the highest title that Her Majesty could confer upon him, but like Moses of old he chooses rather to be leader of the people than a titled statesman. I am glad to hear, Sir, that the old gentleman desires no higher title than that which he has held so faithfully and so honourably for this past five years in this highly favoured land of ours. Although the Grand Old Man and his colleagues have held the reins of Government so long and so honourably, they have changed into the hands of their opponents, who have tried no less than seven times to overthrow them, but failed in their attempts. And the time these changes have been going on, the Conservatives of Rothwell have been hiding themselves in some quiet corner, passing votes of confidence in Lord Salisbury; and what have they passed those votes of confidence for? For nothing, only obstruction, and votes of censure on such a government as never sat in any country of the world before; the intelligence it possessed is unequalled. Sir, I do not expect to hear tell of the like again, seeing they have come out of their hiding place and settled at such a conspicuous corner as the top of Church Street, nor will one expect to hear tell of anything that will be misleading to the public, knowing there is such an amount of intellect amongst them. Sir, if they should want a lecture at any time they have the college educated man for that office, or if any law is to be administered they are not wanting in them men either, or if any plan is to be drawn up they have them men also, or if they have anything in the way of underground management to conduct it is there too; if any of the above objects should at any time be carried into effect they would no doubt publish it, then they have the newsagent to carry it about the district and sell it to the people. Oh, for such amount of intellect. Our old friend 'the Gossip' must have seen the change at top of Church Street, that caused him to make the remarks as he did on the 26th June. Sir, I wonder where our friend has been when he saw this change had taken place. He must have been very near; perhaps looking through the window of the British and Foreign Wine Store, or coming down Butcher Lane with fishing under his (H)arms or arm, on his way to the duck pond near to Jaw Bones, or coming up Commercial Street with music book under his arm, off to the pine forest to play an overture to the few assembled there, or having taken a fly round and let at top of Church St. to see if he could gather a little honey for his hive, that he might not starve in winter; or he might not have been in either of the several places mentioned, but simply passing from the Carlton Lanedown to the Times office several times a day. If the latter be him, I will tell him, the Tories in Rothwell is not at top yet, only at top of Church Street; once the Tories had all the votes and nearly all the money, but there has a change taken place, the people have the votes now, and next November will show who will get the favour at Rothwell. Mr. Gossip, we shall be taking your advice and awakening up, and unfurling the red banner, and like Lord Nelson, nailing it to the masthead of the old barque, and sailing right in front of our enemies and pulling down the flag that floats a little just now with the contrary winds, and hurling it into the sea of oblivion, and destroying their frail barque and the whole crew.

Yours truly,
E. R. R. L.

COLLIERY EXPLOSIONS AND COLLIERY REFORM.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

With your kind permission I wish to say a few words on colliery explosions and colliery reform. To remove the former is to adopt the latter; remove the cause, and effect will follow. To get at colliery reform we must be more cemented together, and less divided from each other's interests. There are some peculiar and bad habits amongst us miners. There is the tenacious greed of one miner taking what we call turns. To take his turn (if he can fill the corve) is to take his interest so far as the corve is valued. I will inform you here, Mr. Editor, that in the coal mine the weak have to give way to the strong, wisdom for ignorance, which I will try to show further on. The weak have to give way to the strong in this way; you shall take an ordinary man, who understands and does his work in a workmanlike manner, profitable to his master, and within the rules of the colliery, and the safe working of the mine, and is earning what seems to satisfy him—a reasonable day's wage. Some day he happens to be confronted with a man who is vice versa, strong in the back and weak in the head, regardless of his own or others safety, does not understand anything but filling as many corves as he can, and doing his neighbouring miner as much harm as he can; if there happens to be a lull in the air current or the ventilation begins to flag, all he understands and says is, "It's hot, and I do sweeat," never once thinking or enquiring what is the cause; on he goes hammering away, never thinking that he is the trigger to an explosion that is to make the coal mine into a gigantic holocaust. But it does not end with the sacrifice of so many miners' lives, there are the bereaved ones that are left to mourn the loss of husband, father or brother, who are generally supported by the charitable and humane. I am pleased to confess that the public are ever ready to support the bereaved when such calamities as the Clifton Hall catastrophe occurs. When we read of such calamities as that which has occurred at Pendlebury, it is enough to make one's blood run cold, and to read the evidence brought to the inquest is both sorrowful and disgusting; it is sorrowful to read the sad stories of the women Taylor and Hilton, of what their husbands had told them was sure to occur if things went on as they were doing at Lumb (I suppose that is one of the sections of the colliery), and no wonder when we read of roads being choked up that ought to be open and free, coupled with bad fuel that ought to be of such a quality that it would produce a current of air over and above sufficient for the safe working of a coal-mine; furnace-men are particularly enjoined to keep a brisk fire and the grates well open, so as to encourage the ventilation in every point, hence the difficulty and danger with bad fuel. But I am bound to say this, there are faults with men for not carrying out the manager's orders, and there are faults with the managers for being so much given to bigotry and flattery. Flattery! perish the word. Flattery is an expression that was never felt, a hypocritical attempt at approval, and a base endeavour to accomplish some selfish end; it is easily distinguishable, and is alike degrading to him who stoops to give it, and him who bends servilely to receive it. Don't let anyone mistake praise for flattery; the one is despicable, the other is noble and good; as for bigotry, I have seen pit officials who were too big to receive information from a miner, but he that will teach must learn, and he that would command must know how to obey, he is the best commander that can command himself; however, it is our bounden duty to do all we can to assist our managers and deputies to carry on the safe working of the mine. I am of the old opinion still, that is, that masters, managers and men must work hand in hand to prosper. I hope in these few simple words I have offended no one. I will just say a word of condolence for the bereaved ones at Clifton Hall Colliery.—

A SKILFUL SURGICAL OPERATION.

The American Ambassador at Vienna, Mr. Kasson has lately forwarded to his Government an interesting account of a remarkable surgical operation lately performed by Professor Billroth, of Vienna, which wonderful to tell, consisted in the removal of a portion of the human stomach, involving nearly one-third of the organ—and, strange to say, the patient recovered—the only successful operation of the kind ever performed. The disease for which this operation was performed was cancer of the stomach, attended with the following symptoms:—The appetite is quite poor. There is a peculiar indescribable distress in the stomach, a feeling that has been described as a faint "all gone" sensation; a sticky slime collects about the teeth, especially in the morning, accompanied by an unpleasant taste. Food fails to satisfy this peculiar faint sensation; but, on the contrary, it appears to aggravate the feeling. The eyes are sunken, tinged with yellow; the hands and feet become cold and sticky—a cold perspiration. The sufferers feel tired all the time, and sleep does not seem to give rest. After a time the patient becomes nervous and irritable, gloomy, his mind filled with evil forebodings. When rising suddenly from a recumbent position there is a dizziness, a whistling sensation, and he is obliged to grasp something firm to keep from falling. The bowels costive, the skin dry and hot at times; the blood becoming thick and stagnant and does not circulate properly. After a time the patient spits up food soon after eating, sometimes in a sour and fermented condition, sometimes sweetish to the taste. Oftentimes there is a palpitation of the heart, and the patient fears he may have heart disease. Towards the last the patient is unable to retain any food whatever, as the opening in the intestines becomes close, or nearly so. Although this disease is indeed alarming, sufferers with the above-named symptoms should not feel nervous, for nine hundred and ninety one cases out of a thousand have no cancer, but simply dyspepsia, a disease easily removed if treated in a proper manner. The safest and best remedy for the disease is Seigel's Curative Syrup, a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors, and by the proprietors, A. J. White (Limited), London, England. This syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of system.

Borax Preparations are manufactured by the Patent Borax Company, under Royal Patents, which the Queen has awarded in recognition of their 'Great Excellence' 'Public Importance,' and 'Utility.'

Spruce Beer (Generally known as 'Black Beer.'—Non-intoxicant. Strongly recommended by the medical faculty for its strengthening qualities. Manufactured by Joseph Hobson, Dantzic Brewery, Regent Street, Leeds.

Throat Irritation and Cough.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

Holloway's Pills & Ointment.—Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers.—Daily experience confirms the fact which has triumphed over all opposition for more than forty years, viz., that no means are known equal to Holloway's remedies for curing bad legs, bad breasts, sores, wounds, diseases of the skin, erysipelas, abscesses, burns, scalds, and, in truth, all maladies where the skin is broken. To cure these infirmities quickly is of primary importance, as compulsory confinement indoors weakens the general health. The ready means of cure are found in Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which heal the sores and expel their cause. In the very worst cases the Ointment has succeeded in effecting a perfect cure after every other means had failed in giving adequate relief.

It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it soften the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in restoring the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name Consumption Emulsion. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men, as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 163 of his work, entitled "Consumption: Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." Such a testimony as this speaks volumes for the efficiency of Phthisicon. In addition, it has proved of immense value as a curative agent in the early stages of Brain Disease and Scrofula; in fact, wherever there is impaired nutrition or lack of nerve power, its action is almost certain. It can be obtained of all Chemists at 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. per bottle. Wholesale of [illegible] and Sons, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.; or of W. B. Trick, F.P.S., 92, Green-lanes London, N

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Old Sores and Old Skin Diseases.

The seeds of these disorders are effectually expelled by this penetrating Unguent, not only from the superficial parts, but from the internal tissues likewise. Any case, even of twenty years' standing, speedily yields to its influence.

A Certain Cure for Bronchitis, Diphtheria, Sore Throat, Asthma, &c.

For curing sore throat, diphtheria, bronchitis, asthma, tightness of the chest, and pain in the side—which instant treatment alone prevents degenerating into more serious maladies, this Ointment has the same powers over chest complaints as a blister possesses, without causing pain or debility. Old asthmatic invalids will derive marvellous ease from the use of this Ointment, which has brought round many such sufferers and re-established health after every other means had signally failed.

By rubbing the Ointment round the affected parts, it penetrates to the tissues beneath, and exercises a wonderful power on all the blood flowing to, and returning from, the diseased part. The inflammation diminishes, the pain becomes less intolerable, the matter thicker, and a cure is soon effected. In all long-standing cases, Holloway's Pills should also be taken, as they will thoroughly expel all depraved humours from the body.

Gout, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints.

Gout and Rheumatism arise from inflammation in the parts affected. To effect a permanent cure, adopt a cooling diet, drink plenty of water, take six of Holloway's Pills night and morning, and rub this Ointment most effectually twice a-day into the suffering parts; when used simultaneously, they drive all inflammation and depression from the system, subdue and remove all enlargement of the joints, and leave the sinews and muscles lax and uncontracted.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following complaints:—

Bad Legs
Bad Breasts
Burns
Bunions
Chilblains
Chapped Hands
Contracted and Stiff Joints
Corns (Soft)
Fistulas
Gout
Glandular Swellings
Lumbago
Piles
Rheumatism
Sore Nipples
Scalds
Sore Throats
Skin Diseases
Scurvy
Sore Heads
Tumours

DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 31st of July they tapped me, and took away 304 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 408 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 20th), was again tapped at home and 360 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expense. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.
1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

23, Cursitor Street,
Chancery Lane, London, W.C.
Yours truly,
Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 21st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry, What can be done? For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

TEETH, A COMPLETE SET ONE GUINEA.—Precisely the same Prize Medal Teeth supplied by other Dentists at the highest fees, five years' warranty.—Testimonial from Jas. Steward, Physician and Surgeon, L.R.C.P.E. I have great pleasure in recommending your Guinea Sets of Teeth. The set you supplied to me are much superior to those for which I paid a much higher fee. They must prove a great boon to the working classes." Complete set made and fitted in a few hours. ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The fortnightly meeting of the Board took place on Monday evening, only four members being present at the hour of commencement. Mr. Hargreaves (chairman), Messrs. J. Hargreaves, J. Dobson and H. P. Newsome, with the clerk, collector and surveyor. Messrs. Holmes, Turner, Lawton, and Nowell were also present, shortly after the first item on the agenda paper was decided.

The minutes of last meeting and several committee meetings having been read, their confirmation was adopted.

THE GAS CO.—In reply to the resolution passed a fortnight previously, the Gas Co. intimated to the Board that they had decided to reduce the price of gas by 5d. per thousand, and to alter the rent of meters 25 per cent. less. This information was cordially welcomed, and a resolution passed on the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. Dobson, accepting the intimation, Mr. Newsome, as a gas director, refraining from voting.

HIGHWAYS.—There being some question as to the good quality of dross now being delivered for Leeds and Wakefield road, the Highway Committee promised to see the bulk in the contractor's yard, before allowing any more to be brought on to the roads.

Mr. Nowell complained of the hedges overhanging various footpaths in the district, and the surveyor promised to have them cut at the proper time; the thistles, &c., on the road side will also be attended to.

SEWERAGE.—Tenders for labour in constructing the main drain for Cross Street were considered, and on the motion of Mr. Dobson and Mr. Newsome, the offer of Mr. Bulmer for £24 15s. was accepted, Messrs. Holmes, Nowell, Turner and Lawton being neutral.

WOODHOUSE CEMETERY.—A letter was read from Mr. Simpson, expressing his inability to get an interview with the Town Clerk on this subject. The Board are evidently being wearied of the unsatisfactory manner in which this business is going on, and some more simple and direct method was sought. Mr. Nowell maintained his first contention, that a protest should have been lodged with the Local Government Board, and so stopped further proceedings. Mr. Turner concurred, and strongly objected to further law costs. Mr. Newsome remarked on the agreement which was arrived at when the Leeds Committee visited Rothwell, that Dr. Goldie and Dr. Glaister should arrange such measures as would provide against any harmful results arising from the sewage matter going through the pipes. On the arrival of Dr. Glaister shortly after, this view of the matter was adopted, and a means of rendering innocuous the passage of the sewage through the district, will be carried out by the two medical officers.

WATER.—Mr. Turner, chairman of the Waterworks Committee, having inadvertently left his notes of the Committee meeting at home, asked Mr. W. Hargreaves to state what had transpired as to the proposed alteration in the water rents. Mr. Hargreaves then narrated the gist of a lengthy and exhaustive enquiry into the reported loss on the water account, and proposals for remedying this state of things. He had suggested that as the houses at low rents were undoubtedly undercharged, the water rents for cottages from £4 to £5 17s. a year, should be charged at 1½d. a week, £5 17s. to £7 16s., 2d, and £7 16s to £10, 2½d., a week. Mr. Turner, while acknowledging the simplicity of the proposed change, pointed out that the leaps from one price to the next was too great, as for instance £5 13s rent should pay 1½d., but £5 17s. rent would pay 2d. He suggested a proportionate advance as the rents lowered, charging one twentieth for £10 house, or 10s., one nineteenth for £9, one eighteenth for £8, and so on to one thirteenth for £4 This plan, he thought would regulate the charges more evenly; but neither of these plans would anything like make up for the loss now being sustained. He further demurred to the inclusion in the water account of the annual payment to the Loan Board of principal and interest, inasmuch as the loan being only for 30 years, the present generation would be paying for the advantages of the next. Taking this into consideration, the loss is not near so large as we have reckoned. Mr. Lawton maintained that the whole cost should be paid for out of the receipts. Mr. Newsome speaking from a balance sheet shewing the income and expenditure on water account, shewed that the cost of the water itself, as purchased from Leeds is 6d. or £350 a year, while the expenses of bringing it and maintaining its constant supply to the inhabitants is £343, or about 6d., making 1s. per thousand gallons actual cost. On this basis, the Board could not continue to sell water at 1s. per thousand gallons. He advocated one standard charge for all cottages under £10, as persons living in such houses used about an equal quantity of water. Mr. Lawton agreed with this proposal; the charge for water should be regulated by number of heads in a family (speaking of cottages) and not by the rent; those that use the water should pay for it. Mr. Dobson objected to town's water being used for street watering, and argued that it should be obtained from the streams for this purpose. Mr. Nowell proposed that the water rents should be altered to 1½d. 2d. and 2½d., according to the chairman's suggestion. The chairman agreed with Mr. Newsome that they could not go on charging people 1s. per thousand, when it actually cost that, and suggested a meter charge of 1s. 2d. On the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. Newsome, the whole matter was again referred to the Waterworks Committee.

HEALTH REPORT.—Dr. Glaister presented his monthly statement, shewing that during four weeks ending July 11th, there have been 10 births (6 male, 4 female), and 9 deaths (2 male, 7 female). During corresponding period of last year there were 14 births and 6 deaths. Cause of deaths during past four weeks.—1 male, 5 days, convulsions; 1 male, 6 years, meningitis; 1 female, 40 years, phthisis; female, 15 months, convulsions; female, 66 years, chronic bronchitis; female, 4 years, diarrhœa and convulsions; female, 24 years, phthisis; female, 8 years, scarletina; female, 18 months, meningitis paralysis. The cases of scarlet fever and typhoid fever had been thoroughly isolated, and disinfectants used, no further trouble arising from them.

General District Rate	216	3	6½
Water Rents ...	16	4	4
Miscellaneous ...	3	5	0

Mr. Turner enquired if anything had been heard from the Gas Co. The chairman replied that the subject had been decided before his (Mr. Turner's) arrival. The Co. had resolved to reduce the price of gas by 5d. a thousand, and meter rents by 25 per cent., which the Board had accepted. The agenda paper was laid before him at two minutes before six, and at six o'clock he commenced business, only four members being present. The minutes were taken first, and this question was placed next. Mr. Nowell strongly complained that such a subject should be taken first when only half the members were present. Mr. Turner gave notice that he should move the rescinding of the resolution. After protesting against insinuations as to taking this business first, the chairman warmly retorted that if members were not present at the proper time, they should not complain of business done by those present, and that he took the agenda as it was presented to him, the minutes and business arising from them being first. Mr. Turner said the Co. were trying to save their Reserve Fund of £900 by presenting about £50 in reduction of price, but the action of the Board would not deter private members from taking further action. The meeting then broke up.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The usual meeting of the Board took place on Tuesday, present, Mr. Jas. Hargreaves (chairman), Rev. J. H. Evans and Mr. Graveley (vice-chairmen), Messrs. W. Lawton, J. Riley, C. Grosvenor, J. Swithenbank, R. J. Smith, J. Parker, J. Dixon, G. Jepson, H. Sheard, J. Hardcastle, J. Jackson, Rev. G. M. Platt, and Mr. Schofield (clerk).

The minutes of last meeting having been read, were confirmed.

CARETAKER.—In reply to advertisements for a caretaker, there were several applicants, and after considerable discussion, it was agreed that four of them come before the Board next Wednesday.

WAKEFIELD ASYLUM.—The clerk reported that the Guardians visited the Asylum at Wakefield last Wednesday. They found there are 58 inmates belonging to this Union, 32 males and 26 males, being a decrease of 5 on the year. There are four cases rather better and four cases in a worse condition than before.

WOOD-PAVING.—No answer having been received from the Corporation respecting the Board's application to have the portion of Glasshouse Street in front of the Union Offices, paved with wood, the clerk had written again. A reply was now received from the Town Clerk, stating that the Highway Committee had seriously considered the question, but they had not been able to see their way to do it. The Board expressed very great dissatisfaction with the objection of the Corporation.

GIFT OF FLOWERS.—The master reported having received handsome gifts of beautiful flowers from the vicars of Christ Church, St. Silas' and St. Cuthbert's Churches, and a cordial vote of thanks was passed to the donors on the motion of Mr. Smith and Mr. Hardcastle.

Some small repairs were approved in the porter's house.

Mr. Dixon enquired about the amount to be paid by relatives of persons being inmates of the Asylum, and the subject is to be further gone into next meeting, with a view to its reduction.

Mr. Lawton urged the necessity of visiting Halton and Whitkirk early, but the matter was postponed, it being only four months since their previous visit.

TREAT.—Mr. Riley stated that the Hunslet Band of Hope children were going to have their Demonstration next Saturday, and he invited the Workhouse children to join them. The offer was cordially accepted, on the motion of Mr. Swithenbank and Mr. Hardcastle.

The usual formal matters were then gone into, and the meeting concluded.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

THIS neighbourhood was included within the area of excitement caused by the visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Leeds, and was infected with the holiday spirit which prevailed. The schools were closed and most of the ordinary business was set down for the day, or for the greater part of it. Every train into Leeds was heavily freighted with country people curious to see the familiar streets in their gaily decorated holiday garb, and ready enough to join the thronging masses of townsfolk in welcoming the Prince and his beautiful wife. The appearance of Woodhouse Moor, to which all the crowds in the streets converged in the evening to witness the display of fireworks, might be fitly compared to an extremely ripe cheese in a state of spontaneous motion. The art of the photographer has made everybody in this country familiar with the features of our future Queen, but this is the first opportunity which has been offered to us of becoming personally acquainted with her. The genuine enthusiasm evoked by her appearance is but the outward expression of the widespread regard which is everywhere entertained for her. Many of our people would be reminded of the last visit of the Prince to Leeds many years ago, when he stayed at Templenewsam and passed through Woodlesford going and returning. Some have special reasons for remembering that occasion, for while everybody was off to see the show, the tempting opportunity offered by the deserted villages was made the most of by an enterprising party of burglars who managed to secure and make off with considerable booty.

For the information of those concerned, a detailed list of expenses in connection with the late mission, was posted some time ago in the church porch. The principal items are for printing expenses and new hymn books, &c.; those comprise the cost of leaflets which were specially printed and distributed for some weeks before the mission commenced, elaborate "memorial" and "resolution" cards, &c. Substitutes had to be provided and paid to take temporary charge of the "cures" of the missioners for the two Sundays, and the balance is made up of sundry smaller expenses, such as the hire and carriage of extra chairs, clerk and sexton's fees. There is not the slightest shadow of foundation for an injurious statement which has been made to the effect that the missioners received payment for their services. Their task, which was earnest and hard work, was entirely a labour of love.

THE ROYAL VISIT.

In chronicling the great local event of the week, it would be a heavy, and possibly unnecessary task, to give a detailed description and report of the reception, the addresses, the decorations, the festivities connected with the visit to Leeds of Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales. For "full and complete reports" we refer our readers to the daily papers, and we shall content ourselves with the story of our personal experience and observations, which may prove more acceptable reading to our friends in Rothwell and the vicinity.

As is frequently the case with events of unusual interest, a report was very current in Leeds on Tuesday evening, that the much-beloved Princess would not be coming, and strong expressions of disappointment and disapproval of this possibility, were heard on all sides, especially as on two different occasions, in 1863 and 1868, the Prince has not been able to fulfil the earnest hope that the Princess would accompany him. This fear, however, was dispelled during the afternoon, when telegrams arrived reporting the departure, progress and arrival of both the Royal Visitors.

Wednesday morning was not over promising, the sky being considerably over-cast, and a few drops of rain falling at eight o'clock, there being several slight showers during the day, but not so as to interfere with the comfort and enjoyment of pleasure-seekers.

The collieries and other works in the district as well as the schools, were closed for the day, but there was nothing like a general holiday with tradespeople, who, whether they did any business or not, kept their shops open.

Leaving Rothwell about half-past nine, provided by the kindness of the Corporation and College authorities with carte blanche for the entire proceedings, we drove to the "city." Nothing particularly noteworthy occurred till near Leeds Bridge; business however, except in the hostelries and restaurants, was entirely suspended, and flags and other decorations were seen here and there. The lower portion of Briggate (which was not included in the route), also exhibited a number of flags, sufficient to break the sudden change between its comparative nakedness, and the lavish decoration of Boar Lane and other portions of Briggate. Here then we commenced our observations, and truly the first view of the crimson Venetian masts, the flags, bannerets, festoons of flowers and evergreen, from mast to mast, and from side to side of the street, the mottoes and trophies, and many other signs of welcome and festival, were almost bewildering, and there was at once a decided reply as to the enthusiastic loyalty of the citizens of this ancient town. A further survey of the decorations up Briggate, Upperhead Row, Woodhouse Lane, and Cookridge Street, brought us to Victoria Square, where the noble and extensive Town Hall had received special attention. From the very pinnacle, flags, banners, streamers, fluttered in the breeze, in every variety of size, form and colour, while along the front and sides were bold trophies of flags with divers shields and devices, the massive pillars and other portions of the front being decked with flowers, ever green leaves and plants, the vestibule and statues receiving special attention. As the Prince was to arrive about noon, the Station was the next point of interest, where ticket-holders had taken up their position two hours ago. The arrival platform was tastefully decorated, crimson cloth being largely used in the adornment of the temporary gallery set apart for a privileged few. About half-past eleven, the notabilities began to arrive, including the members of Parliament for Leeds and for other parts of the county, then the guard of honour (Leeds Rifles), and higher military officers in their bright scarlet coats, gold braid, cocked hats, and glittering accoutrements. Then came the Mayor and Mayoress, preceded by the tastefully attired macebearer with his massive emblem of authority, the Town Clerk in his wig and gown, the Reception Committee in their robes of office, eight aldermen and eight councillors (among whom Mr. Alf Cooke was very appropriately numbered), and the Chairman and members of the College Reception Committee, with Principal Bodington, in his academic robes. Three minutes before twelve the Royal train moved into the station, and amid the cheers and welcomes of those assembled, the Prince and Princess arrived in Leeds. Meantime the Volunteer Band played the National Anthem, while the guard of honour saluted their Royal Highnesses. The Princess of Wales at once shook hands in an affable manner with the Mayoress, who presented Her Royal Highness with a beautiful bouquet. The Mayor was introduced by the Town Clerk. His Worship shook hands first with the Princess and then with the Prince, who afterwards cordially greeted the Mayoress. These greetings over, the Corporation representatives led the way out of the station, the path being covered with crimson cloth. The Royal visitors having entered their carriages, the procession moved on, headed by the Chief Constable and four mounted policemen, the College representatives and the Corporation Reception Committee, the Mayor and Mayoress and Town Clerk; then came the Royal carriage drawn by four splendid bays, suitably caparisoned, with postilions in front and a couple of scarlet-coated footmen behind, General Willis attending their Royal Highnesses, while a troop of the "Prince of Wales' Own Yorkshire Hussars" under Captain Ernest Denison, furnished the escort during the visit to Leeds. The route followed was by Wellington Street, up Park Row, along South Parade, East Parade and Victoria Square, the whole barricaded space being thronged with enthusiastic men and women, while more favored persons filled every window and available space connected with buildings on the line. Everywhere were seen decorations and mottoes of various design, testifying to the wish of Leeds to honour its future King and Queen, while all along the streets a constant, ever-renewing "hurrah" rang through the air. The sight on coming within view of the Town Hall was magnificent, and as the carriages drove up to the front entrance, the ringing cheers from the packed multitudes, was like the sound of many waters.

The scene in the Town Hall was passing grand. The gorgeous and spacious interior of the Victoria Hall is well adapted for great ceremonials, and its appearance on Wednesday, adorned with trophies, crimson cloth, and a liberal display of plants and flowers, was most impressive. By favor of the members of the Corporation and others, tickets had been obtained for a coveted seat at the presentation, and there were present ladies and gentlemen connected with all the best people in Leeds and county. The orchestra was filled with a chorus of 220 picked singers, under the command of Dr. Spark, who wore his college robes. This part of the hall was tastefully adorned with flowering plants and shrubs, while the Royal Arms glistened just below the organist's seat, the Prince of Wales' feathers being also fixed in front of the gallery at the opposite end. The path from the entrance of the Hall to the dais was covered with crimson cloth, terminating in a raised dais, on which were placed two gilded chairs of state, upholstered in green plush velvet. On the right hand of the dais were the members of the Corporation and other gentlemen. On the left were the Mayors of Sheffield, Halifax, Huddersfield, Wakefield, Harrogate, Dewsbury, Batley and Keighley, (all wearing their insignia of office), the Master Cutler, magistrates, and other gentlemen. A few minutes before the royal procession, there came a contingent of Freemasons arrayed in their showy and mysterious regalia. All is now in readiness, and by-and-bye, a private signal is given, and the first notes of the National Anthem are heard pealing forth from the grand organ, the chorus at once rising to their feet, and joining in the song, while, amid the plaudits of the fashionable audience, (preceded by Mr. Jolliffe, as marshal of the proceedings), came the Mayor escorting the Princess, and the Prince with the Mayoress on his arm.

Having ascended the dais, the cheers were again and again renewed, while their Royal Highnesses surveyed the animated scene with deep interest. The Mayor then moved forward, and after expressing the thanks of the Corporation to the Prince and Princess of Wales, for their coming to Leeds on the opening of the Yorkshire College, he asked the Town Clerk to read the address. Mr. G. W. Morrison (who seemed quite at ease in his work) then came forward, and in a most graceful manner, and with a voice that could be well heard all over the building, read the beautifully illuminated and bound address, which referred with gratitude to past Royal patronage, and offered hearty welcome to the Prince and Princess. The reference to the Princess, "who has long since endeared herself to the heart of the whole British people," evoked loud and continued cheering, the assembly waving hats and handkerchiefs; and the Town Clerk concluded his well-performed task amid renewed applause.

His Royal Highness, who spoke in clear measured tones, replied, returning thanks for the welcome accorped to the Princess and himself, rejoicing in the advancement of the town, and promising to convey to the Queen, their loyal expressions of devotion. The chorus then sang, without accompaniment, and with sweetness and refinement, the charming madrigal "When all alone my pretty love."

The eight representatives of Free Masonry having been presented to Their Royal Highnesses, Brother W. L. Jackson, M.P., handed in the address from the Order, to which His Royal Highness returned a suitable reply, which was read to the brethren at the Masonic Hall, Great George Street. The ceremony then concluded by the singing of "God bless the Prince of Wales." On reaching the Hall entrance again, the cheering from the vast crowd was simply overpowering, the entire square being filled with life, as far as ever the eye could reach.

The procession now took its way to the College by Calverley Street, Great George Street, and Clarendon Road, the volunteers and constabulary lining the route, and arrived at the College, soon after one o'clock. Here Their Royal Hignesses visited the various departments, accompanied by the Marquis of Ripon, the heads of the College, and other distinguished persons, finally arriving at the Reception Hall (temporarily fitted up for the purpose) about 1.20, where a loyal welcome was accorded. The Archbishop of York, having offered prayer, the President of the College asked their Royal Highnesses to receive an address. The Prince having signified his pleasure, Professor Bodington read it, succeeded by a "statement of the origin and growth of the College" by Sir Ed. Baines, who was warmly received.

The Prince of Wales, who was received with prolonged cheers, then replied to the address, expressing his extreme satisfaction with the endeavour to advance technical and scientific education, and declaring the Yorkshire College open.

Leaving the Prince and Princess to continue their progress down Woodhouse Lane, and Cookridge Street, others who were not included in the procession, took seats in the numerous tramcars, which had been drawn up in readiness at the nearest point to the College, and ticket holders were run down free to the Coliseum. Here a magnificent scene presented itself. Though used for the first time, the new structure is a success, and while extensive and high vaulted, its properties, as a place of meeting, a concert hall, a banquetting hall, a ball room, or circus, or in fact for almost any congregation of persons, are excellent. Built in the theatre form, with two galleries of seats above the main area, richly upholstered and finished, and fitted with the electric light, its popularity is assured, and the committee of private gentlemen who have carried out its erection are certain to be recompensed for their perseverance. As the Archbishop of York uttered the first words of blessing on the good things about to be received, its acoustic properties were decided, and afterwards when the Prince spoke in reply to the toast on his health, his fine manly voice rang through the vast building as clear and distinct as could be desired. The guests invited by the Council of the College having been seated to the number of four hundred, the celebrated Band of the Grenadier Guards, under Mr. Dan Godfrey, performed a selection of music until the arrival of Their Royal Hignesses. On reaching the Coliseum, notified by the cheers of the crowds outside, the Princess was escorted to the table by the Marquis of Ripon, the Prince following accompanied by Lady Lascelles, the guests greeting them with hearty hurrahs and remaining standing till Their Royal Hignesses had taken their seats. The Marquis of Ripon occupied the position of host, having the Prince on his right hand and the Princess on his left, some twenty other ladies and gentlemen occupying seats at the Prince's table. The menu consisted of eight courses and dessert; Mr. Powolny, of Bond Street, being the purveyor. The tables were most tastefully set out, rare flowers and ferns adorning the tables, while glass and plate glittered in rich profusion amid the lavish supply of preserved fruits and other desserts, wines of every description tempting the most fastidious palate.

After luncheon a short toast list was gone through, that of the "Queen" being proposed in a suitable manner by Lord Ripon and drunk with musical honours. The President then proposed the health of "Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," expressing their indebtedness to them for kindly taking part in the ceremony of the day, and urging all to unite to convince their Royal Highnesses that it is by such unselfish disregard of their own ease and convenience that they most surely retain in an ever-increasing measure the lasting affection of the English people. (Loud applause.) The toast was then drunk with musical honours. In the excellent speech following, his Royal Highness commented on the deep interest he had always felt in the advancement of technical education, and also his strong opinion on the benefit to be derived from the cultivation of music. He concluded by proposing "Prosperity to the Yorkshire College."

It was now after four o'clock, and the greater portion of the route was yet to be traversed, and a long procession was formed, consisting of the entire Corporation, College representatives and special guests, which reached the North Eastern station by way of Woodhouse-lane, Briggate, Boar-lane, Albion street, Bond-Street, Wellington-street, and New Station Street. The enthusiasm of the crowds reached its highest pitch during this progress, and the hundreds of thousands of people filling every point of view on the road, from the ground to the roof, was a sight never to be forgotten. The appearance of Briggate turning in from Upperhead Row, was the subject of general remark and admiration, and all the way along, the ever-varying display of flags, mottoes, devices, festoons, was almost bewildering, while the voices and flutter of handkerchiefs were unintermitting.

Arrived at the station, Their Highnesses engaged in conversation with the Mayor and Mayoress, the Town Clerk, the M.P.'s, the College representatives and other gentlemen expressing their extreme gratification with their reception. Bowing their acknowledgment, the Prince and Princess then entered the train, which moved off at five minutes to five, en route to Ripon.

In the evening, a superior display of fireworks took place on Woodhouse Moor, by the extreme generosity of the Mayor.

We believe we express the feeling of every one who had the opportunity of seeing the Royal Visitors, when we say how intelligently and carefully the Prince performs his duties, and how thoroughly he seems to grasp whatever he undertakes, while his really splendid voice, clear articulation, and unhesitating manner, make his addresses most pleasurable to listeners. As regards our future Queen, there can be but one opinion about her, as one observed her graceful figure, her beautiful expression, and her tasteful manner of dress. Standing before those thousands of critical eyes in the Town Hall and at the Coliseum, listening to those long addresses, her features now and again broke into the sweetest of smiles as some loyal expression was declared; or tender reference made to herself or one of the Royal relatives, and as she bowed in response to some manifestation of welcome, all felt that she had won the love of her people and deserved it.

Both the Prince and Princess were dressed in the plainest manner, the Prince wearing an ordinary morning suit and silk hat, without the slightest ornament. The Princess was attired in navy blue alpaca, trimmed with lace of the same shade, with a piece of cardinal silk in the front. The bonnet was to match, in velvet, trimmed with tulle of a lighter hue, and scarlet poppies. The jacket was of stamped velvet of slate colour, and suited her beautiful face to perfection. She is much paler than she was years ago, but with that exception, her features have undergone little change, and both she and her noble husband appear in excellent health and spirits.

For the success of the day, great credit is due to Mr. C. G. Jolliffe, the courteous Deputy Town Clerk, who performed the duties of marshal with energy and effect; also to Mr. Husband, the secretary to the Council of the College, who has afforded every facility to those desiring information or assistance, and deserves especially well of the guests at the Coliseum.

One of the most pleasant memories we shall retain of the Royal visit is the fact that we had the extraordinary good fortune of being seated at the luncheon next to Mr. Melton Prior, the well-known and gifted military artist for the Illustrated London News, who has only a month ago returned from the Soudan, after having gone through that campaign and others. For twelve years past, he has many, many times braved a soldier's dangers on the field of battle, in the trenches and in the zareba, in all parts of the world. Such a co-guest was more highly esteemed even than the presence of our noble host, the Marquis, or his illustrious guests, the Prince and Princess. A man who can coolly risk his life for the advancement of intelligence respecting the doings of our army in distant lands is one deserving of the highest esteem; and we shall ever count it the most precious item in the days' fortunes.

POSTAL REFORM.—We are pleased to state that on and after next Monday, the 20th inst, the obliging postmaster of Leeds has arranged for a morning dispatch of letters from Rothwell at 10.50 a.m. It is also decided to commence a second delivery on the same day, at 4.10 p.m. embracing the town proper, or the same district as is now included in the delivery on Sundays. We are sure every one will feel greatly indebted to Mr. Leal, to the Board, and to those who have several times urged this improvement, through our columns.

THE Mechanics' Institute report is held over till next week.

ROTHWELL PARISH CHURCH.—On Saturday last, the adult members of the Parish Church choir, by invitation of the vicar, had a picnic party at Chevet Park, the seat of Sir Lionel Pilkington. This is the second picnic the choirmen have had at this pleasant Yorkshire nook, the excursion last year having proved so enjoyable, that when Mr. Fawkes gave the invitation again this year, an almost unanimous wish was expressed that a re-visit should be made to "the dam." Starting from the Vicarage shortly before 10 a.m., the party, which numbered 16 with the vicar, had a most enjoyable drive, via Stanley and Wakefield, to New Millerdam, arriving about 11.30. Once there, the party split into sections on their own sweet will intent. Boating, of course, fishing (equally of course) when both vicar and choirmaster are enthusiastic anglers) and sundry botanical rambles where you liked, without let or hindrance, filled in the outline of the programme. The anglers were more successful than on their last visit, and a fair basket, including three pike, was the result. At one o'clock a most substantial lunch was provided in the boat house, and at 5 o'clock the party assembled for tea at the Inn near the entrance lodge of the park. After tea another couple of hours were spent in the grounds, and at 7.45 a start was made for home, which was safely reached soon after 9 o'clock. The weather was all that could be desired, and every one seemed thoroughly pleased with the day's outing. Before separating, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the Vicar for his kindness in entertaining the choir in such a complete and enjoyable manner.

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell received a good 'licking' at the hands of Churwell on Saturday, at the latter place. The home team took possession of the wickets first, and the first two men put on 49 before separating, but the next two wickets went down for the same total. The next wicket fell for very little more, but the one following ran up the total to 73, and the other five wickets only made it into 77. Wice took the honours of bowling for Rothwell, taking six wickets at a cost of 24 runs. Rothwell now handled the willow, and only six had been scored when the first wicket fell. The next two wickets each fell with the total at eleven, when Wice came in, and made a slight stand with Glover (who went in first, and was batting finely all the while), but when the score reached 28 the former was bowled. Then ensued a regular downfall of the visitors' wickets, the next three all falling with the total at 29, and the last three for 30, no less than seven 'ducks' being discernible among the Rothwell score, although it must be confessed the home team had five of the same kind. J. Bell, for Churwell, earned talent money, he doing the 'hat trick.'

The second elevens of Rothwell and Churwell met at Rothwell, and here the visitors proved victorious. Churwell batted first, and put together a total of 65, Ramsden being top scorer with 22, while J. Kellett followed with 13. Rothwell failed miserably in their attempt to reach this total, as their united efforts only made 28, Seanor being responsible for 11. Great difficulty seems to be experienced by our village club just now in raising representative teams for their fixtures, and I think some effort should be made to alter this state of affairs.

The Lofthouse men were no doubt bent on paying back old debts when opposed by Woodlesford last Saturday, on the ground of the latter club. The visitors went in first, and were not dismissed until they had put together the enormous total of 204, the principal scorers of which were H Noble (42), A France (38), T Moss (29), G W Hollings (29), and S Ward, (14), there being only one "0" amongst the whole eleven, and strange to say was due to J Noble who was bowled first ball. Woodlesford had not long to bat, and when the stumps were drawn, had made 27 for two wickets, J Hirst being not out 16.

Stourton Harriers encountered Hunslet New Connexion at Haigh Park on Saturday, and were defeated. The Hunslet team made 44, Prince being at the top with 13, while Greenwood came next with 10. The bowling of Walter Hill for Stourton deserves special mention, as he took 4 wickets for as many runs. The Harriers fell short of the required number, only making 36, none of them reaching double figures.

Robin Hood played an exciting game with Hunslet Mills, at Robin Hood. The home team defended the sticks first, and the first three men fell for a 'duck' each. However the others put on a spurt, and mainly through the efforts of J Lee (17, not out), Butts (17), and Fox (10), the score was taken up to 63. The efforts of the Hunslet team resulted in their scoring 61, or two runs short of their opponents score. Towards this, the first two men, Illingworth and Barrass, made 19 and 10 respectively. The credit of the victory is largely due to the bowling of A Dobson, who took 5 wickets for 14 runs, while E Milner also trundled fairly well.

TOWN TALK.

THE identity of the writer of "Town Talk" periodically exercises the minds of one and another of the readers of the Rothwell Times. "E. R. B. L." which I suppose means somebody residing at Rothwell, Leeds, last week accomplished a most wonderful feat. He seems to have made up his mind that "Gossip" is one of five persons, all of whom he attempts to describe; he is not sure which of them is the culprit, but it is either the first, or second, or third, or fourth, or fifth, or else somebody else. Certainly, the good fellow is quite right. I think his list of supposed "Gossips" might have been considerably improved if he had inserted descriptions of "Santa Claus," the man in the moon, "Jack the giant-killer," and a few others; these are quite as likely as anybody else. "E. R. B. L." has a lot to say about "changes" of various descriptions; he will have to "change" both his time and tune before he can reveal the hidden name of "Gossip." The folly of crediting certain individuals with writing what appears under a "nom de plume," must be specially patent to those five individuals to whom "E. R. B. L." refers.

THERE is to be no trip, this year in connection with the Rothwell Haigh Colliery. This is strange indeed. For many years this annual "off" to the seaside has taken place without intermission, and has really been a most enjoyable and hearty affair right through. There are scores of people who seldom go outside their own district except on this occasion, and it must be very disappointing for these to have the trip dispensed with. Many of the wives and children of the miners will miss this opportunity for recreation and pleasure more than anybody else, and on their account the decision of the miners at their meeting last Monday is much to be deplored. On the other hand there will be a great saving to the pockets of the workmen by this action. Not only will the amount, seven shillings each, be an extra help to their scanty income, but besides this, the cost of the day's out will be saved, and although I like to see the working class taking their enjoyment together on the sands in a jovial and friendly way, yet, perhaps under the circumstances, the course taken is the right one.

THE visit of their royal Highnesses, the Prince and Princess of Wales to Leeds has not made so much difference in the ordinary course of our village life, as one might have expected. It seemed to me that the proper thing to have done would have been to make the occasion of the Royal visit into a general holiday. But this was not the case. Some portions of the colliery, and the various shops in the village were pursuing their ordinary course and the old place had its usual appearance. Certainly business was suspended in one or two instances, and work at the Matchfactory ceased for the day. There were some of our townspeople however who, like myself, had not seen the Princess, and made up their minds to brave the crush with all its toil and inconvenience and have a look at our future King and Queen. It is no use my attempting to describe the events of the day, that is the editor's work; but really it was worth the trouble, to see the sights and hear the cheering. The only thing in connection with the proceedings, noticable at Rothwell, was the fireworks on the Moor in the evening. I am told that the rockets could be seen quite distinctly as they arose out of the smoke of Leeds. 'God bless the Prince (and Princess) of Wales.'

WAS it by accident—sheer thoughtlessness—or design, that certain of Leeds Town Councillors wore red roses in the procession on Wednesday at the reception of the Prince and Princess of Wales? The White Rose of York should have been displayed on that occasion by Yorkshiremen. We may feel quite sure at Preston the day following, the Lancashire men would sport the red rose emblem of the House of Lancaster.

A Confirmation Service is to be held in the Holy Trinity Church, Rothwell to-morrow morning. I hope the weather will be suitable. From what I can learn the service is likely to be a successful one, and it is to be sincerely desired that the work of our esteemed vicar, the Rev. Mr. Fawkes, among the younger section of the congregation committed to his care, will be manifest in the reformed and sanctified lives of the numerous candidates for confirmation.

* * *

I have a bit of good news for the lady readers of my column. It is not that the Princess of Wales had her hair arranged in a new style last Wednesday, nor that she wore a dress, in the making of which, those abominable 'steels' had been discarded, nor indeed is it anything connected with the Royal visitors or their visit. But yet I think it is good news, acceptable and welcome. A good number of my lady friends will remember the Cookery Lectures at the Gas Exhibition last year. Miss Peacock's lectures at that time were very popular, and, it may be said, instructive. Well, I have good reason to think that Miss Peacock is already making arrangements for a course of lectures to be given in the Mechanics Hall during the coming winter. It is said that two lectures per week (afternoon and evening) are to be given and I hope that these invaluable lectures will be well attended both by those who have the responsibility of domestic affairs resting upon them, and also upon those who in the course of a few years will be called upon to perform the same difficult and arduous task.

GOSSIP.

A SKILFUL SURGICAL OPERATION.

The American Ambassador at Vienna, Mr. Kasson has lately forwarded to his Government an interesting account of a remarkable surgical operation lately performed by Professor Billroth, of Vienna, which wonderful to tell, consisted in the removal of a portion of the human stomach, involving nearly one-third of the organ—and, strange to say, the patient recovered—the only successful operation of the kind ever performed. The disease for which this operation was performed was cancer of the stomach, attended with the following symptoms:—The appetite is quite poor. There is a peculiar indescribable distress in the stomach, a feeling that has been described as a faint "all gone" sensation; a sticky slime collects about the teeth, especially in the morning, accompanied by an unpleasant taste. Food fails to satisfy this peculiar faint sensation; but, on the contrary, it appears to aggravate the feeling. The eyes are sunken, tinged with yellow; the hands and feet become cold and sticky—a cold perspiration. The sufferers feel tired all the time, and sleep does not seem to give rest. After a time the patient becomes nervous and irritable, gloomy, his mind filled with evil forebodings. When rising suddenly from a recumbent position there is a dizziness, a whistling sensation, and he is obliged to grasp something firm to keep from falling. The bowels costive, the skin dry and hot at times; the blood becoming thick and stagnant and does not circulate properly. After a time the patient spits up food soon after eating, sometimes in a sour and fermented condition, sometimes sweetish to the taste. Oftentimes there is a palpitation of the heart, and the patient fears he may have heart disease. Towards the last the patient is unable to retain any food whatever, as the opening in the intestines becomes close, or nearly so. Although this disease is indeed alarming, sufferers with the above-named symptoms should not feel nervous, for nine hundred and ninety one cases out of a thousand have no cancer, but simply dyspepsia, a disease easily removed if treated in a proper manner. The safest and best remedy for the disease is Seigel's Curative Syrup, a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors, and by the proprietors, A. J. White (Limited), London, England. This syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of system.

BORAX—PATENT CALIFORNIAN, 'The Household Treasure—Pure Antiseptic,' is sold in small and family packets by all intelligent dealers, prepared and ready for immediate use, with full directions for all Personal and Domestic purposes, and suitable for Academies, Hotels, Hospitals, Asylums, Ships, Public Institutions, and all homes—from the mansion to the cottage—everywhere—everywhere.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

GENUINE ORANGE BITTERS.—24s. per case of one dozen net cash. These Bitters are made from the very finest Servile oranges and will be found to be an admirable and pleasant tonic. Manufactured by Joseph Hobson, Dantzic Brewery, Regent Street, Leeds.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Price 3s. 6d.—For an Oil to make the Hair soft, glossy, and luxuriant, ask for "CARTER'S COLOGNE OIL." Price 1s. of all dealers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in restoring the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name CONSUMPTION EMULSION. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men, as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 143 of his work, entitled "Consumption; Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." [illegible] of all Chemists at 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s. per bottle. Wholesale of [illegible] and Sons, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.; or of W. B. Trick, [illegible] 26, Green-lanes London, N

It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 31st of July they tapped me, and took away 304 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 408 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 28th), was again tapped at home and 360 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.
1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

8, Cursitor Street,
Chancery Lane, London, W.C.
Yours truly,
Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 21st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensations, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry, What can be done? For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made to new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

TEETH, A COMPLETE SET ONE GUINEA.—Precisely the same Prize Medal Teeth supplied by other Dentists at the highest fees, five years' warranty.—Testimonial from Jas. Steward, Physician and Surgeon, L.R.C.P.E. "I have great pleasure in recommending your Guinea Sets of Teeth. The set you supplied to me are much superior to those for which I paid a much higher fee. They must prove a great boon to the working classes." Complete set made and fitted in a few hours. One visit only required from country patients at the Dental Supply Association, 10, BOAR-LANE, LEEDS. Entrance, Gascoigne-street. Attendance, 10 to 7. Friday, July 24, 1885.

THE last of the Royal marriages of this generation took place yesterday at Whippingham Church, in the Isle of Wight, with imposing ceremony, and in the presence of the largest and most aristocratic assemblage that has been known at any marriage since that of the Prince of Wales. No fewer than forty royal personages were at the wedding, while the high functionaries of State were there in large numbers. Princess Beatrice, youngest daughter of Her Majesty, was married yesterday at half-past one o'clock, to His Serene Highness Prince Henry of Battenburg,—the Queen giving away the bride. The happy couple will reside with Her Majesty, and an extraordinary number of presents and testimonials exemplify the best wishes of all for their happiness.

GENERAL Grant is dead! Along with Garfield and Lincoln, the name of Ulysses N. Grant has shed lustre, not only on the manhood of America, but on universal humanity. Were comparison necessary or advisable, Grant's name and character stands as high as any on the bright roll of noble men, and the protracted and painful illness with which he has so long been afflicted has only tended to shew up the simple, patient, manly resolution, which has so largely manifested itself through his changeful life. General Grant succumbed to his disease yesterday morning at eight o'clock, surrounded by his family and friends, and his end was peaceful and painless. All America mourns for him, and England weeps in sympathy.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The monthly meeting of this Board was held on Friday, the 17th; present, Messrs. W. Hargreaves, (chairman), J. G. Turner, J. R. Seanor, J. Batty, W. Lawton, and the clerk and attendance officer.

The minutes having been read, were confirmed.

The Board accepted Sarah Sykes as monitor in the Infants' School, at Rothwell. At Rothwell Haigh necessary alterations in the staff are not yet completed.

Cheques were passed for teachers' salaries, Rothwell Haigh £44 12s. 6d., Rothwell £28 14s. 0d.; tradesmen's accounts and rates £59 16 7d. The fees received amount to £13 10s. 4d. Rothwell Haigh, and £10 13s. 0d. for Rothwell, with £150 from the overseers, on account of precept.

The attendance officer reported that the children at Stourton attend fairly well, but at Rothwell he had a number of complaints. He was instructed to take action against certain persons for neglecting to send children to school. Several flagrant cases of non-payment will also be carried to the court for recovery, unless settled. Having paid a visit to Waterloo, Mr. Denton reported on the half-dozen children residing in that district.

The several head teachers attended, and conversations were held with them, on the internal interests of their respective schools One of the teachers having complained of a man invading the school, and demanding that his child should come out at once, the Board supported her action in declining to do so, and instructed the clerk to write, forbidding him to enter the school again, except by permission.

ROTHWELL CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNUAL FESTIVAL.

Of all the pretty sights with which country people are favored, none can compare with a children's festival, and especially so when held under such specially favorable and interesting circumstances as yesterday. A happy thought of last year was more fully carried into action this year, that of flower gifts for the sick and injured in our charitable institutions, and most thoroughly and happily did the project work, resulting in the presentation of hundreds of bouquets of sweet-smelling flowers for the enjoyment of the poor people confined in such places. Yesterday was the Church school-feast, and as every child had been invited to bring a nosegay of some kind, the morning was fully occupied in collecting and arranging these nature's beauties into suitable forms of taste and harmony. By half-pastone, the children and teachers had nearly all turned up, and shortly after that hour, the head of the long procession appeared at the avenue gate of the school, the banner bearing the name of the school taking the lead, down Commercial St., up the Marsh, and down Butcher Lane to Church. The sight of the large number of young girls was most pleasing, the light and tasteful dresses of the present summer offering the utmost variety of shade and pattern, while the reflection of the sun on the preponderance of white straw hats was quite dazzling. The girls, as well as the boys and the teachers of both sexes all carried a "posey" of some description, some of them very valuable and pretty, and about a dozen bannerets bearing suitable mottoes gave an air of enhanced life and variety to the procession. Arrived at the church, about two o'clock, a short service was conducted by the vicar, the Rev. Mr. Burrell, giving a short address.

The presentation of flowers then took place, and was a most interesting sight, as the continuous succession of children and teachers walked up the aisle laden with her offering of flowers, which were received by the clergy and laid in an orderly pile in front of the altar table, while the flower hymn was sung by Masters Taylor and Cockerham, the congregation joining in the chorus

> We bring sweet flowers and garlands gay,
> Before Thy altar, Lord, to lay;
> The fairest flowers to Thee belong
> The richest gifts, the sweetest song.

This interesting ceremony, which occupied about a quarter of an hour, being concluded, the benedictory prayers were said, and the service ended, while the enormous burden of delicate and beautifully perfuming bouquets were quickly, but carefully packed into a van, and hurried off to the Leeds Infirmary and Hospital for women and children, there to re-appear by the bed side of the sick and suffering, cheering the sad heart, and, while the floral odours filled the room, reminding the weary ones of days gone by, when they too, could listen to the trill of the bird, and drink in the fragrance of beauteous flowers.

The procession having re-formed, wended its way to the schools, where ample provision was made for the young people, and afterwards for their elders. Tea being finished, the Rothwell Old Band led the way to the Vicarage Field, where the usual prizes were awarded, and games indulged in, the happy day concluding about nine o'clock.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

CONFIRMATION AT ROTHWELL.

On Saturday morning last, the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Ripon, visited Rothwell for the purpose of confirming a number of persons residing in the parishes of Rothwell, Woodlesford, Oulton, Methley, Lofthouse and Middleton. The service was advertised for half-past eleven o'clock, and shortly after that hour, the ceremony commenced in the presence of a large congregation. The following clergymen were present with their charge: the Rev. F. Fawkes (Rothwell), Hon. P. Y. Savile (Methley), R. H. Hamilton (Oulton), A. J. Irvin (Woodlesford), J. R. Crawford (Lofthouse), A. J. Miller (Middleton), A. M. Samwell (Rothwell), T. Ripley (Methley), V. Litchfield (Stourton).

After the singing of hymn 270, "Soldiers of Christ, arise," the usual prayers were offered by the Vicar. The Bishop then ascended the pulpit, and in kindly earnest tones, spoke a few words to the confirmations, reminding them of their inability to do any good thing of themselves, but that He to whom they were indebted for ordinary blessings, had also promised His help in enabling them to live godly lives, and urging them to kneel down and in silent prayer to ask God to make this service a reality to each of them. The entire congregation then bowed in silence for a few moments, in prayer for those who were about to undergo the ceremony of confirmation.

The 157th hymn was then sung, commencing,

> "Come, Holy Ghost, our souls inspire," followed by the usual formula, in which the young people promise to keep the vows made for them by their sponsors at baptism. The following are the numbers from each parish attending for confirmation, Rothwell 29 females and 26 males, Oulton 4 and 11, Woodlesford 4 and 11, Methley 26 and 35, Lofthouse 13 and 5, Middleton 4 and 5, a total of 80 males and 93 females. Previous to the sermon the 269th hymn was sung,

> "Christian, seek not yet repose."

The Bishop, having ascended the pulpit, addressed those just confirmed in simple language and with evident feeling, from the words "Go ye also into the vineyard." His Lordship remarked on the probability of their having felt sometimes as they looked on the flowers, the corn, the trees, what an easy life they led, and how beautiful these appeared, as compared with the hardships, the disappointments, the pains they had to undergo. He reminded them, however, that if these beautiful growths of nature could speak, they would tell of their having been originally placed alone in the dark cold earth, of their breaking up, of their near approach to death, of struggles to get free, of their difficulties in bursting through the surface, and their constant effort to maintain life by drawing nourishment from the ground; so even these things which we might envy sometimes could tell of struggle and hardship. The preacher then proceeded to speak of the honour of work, and the disgrace of idleness, assuring them that no one ever fared worse for working hard, and that a'l that was bright and beautiful was brought about by hard work. He then applied this to spiritual life, assuring them that the meanest duty in God's vineyard, if done well and constantly was well pleasing to the Master, and that though there might not be very much reward from this world, we should see things differently in the next. He further descanted on work in the heart, in the home, and in the church, urging honest cultivation of the graces in their own hearts, of Christian manifestations at home, and of actual aggressive service in the church. The fact that men are allowed to work for God in the world should be sufficient reward, but there were promises of greater and higher benefits and rewards which would be revealed to us in the future, when faithful servants should drink the new wine with Christ in His heavenly kingdom.

The benediction was then pronounced, and the service closed about a quarter past one.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

HAVING been requested to open a corner under the above head for asking and receiving information on any questions of general interest, we purpose acceding to the desire next week, with the provision that both questions and answers shall be as concise as possible, shall be accompanied by the writer's own name (not for publication), and that we do not hold ourselves responsible in any manner for answers given. We trust however, that a number of gentlemen well able to afford information on subjects, will kindly interest themselves in the 'corner.'

SEWER GAS IN THE SYSTEM.

For several years the public press has been filled with articles relative to the deleterious effects of sewer gas. Sanitary engineers have racked their brains to devise means for preventing its entry into our houses, so as to avoid the many fatal diseases which are traced directly to its poisonous influence upon the human system. While we have been diligent and watchful in preventing sewer gas from entering our houses, we have been neglectful, and allowed its formation within our own bodies. Sewer gas is as fatal in its effects upon the system whether formed inside our bodies or without. The food taken into the stomach, if not properly digested, ferments, decays, and becomes putrid. The effects of this putrefaction is the production of a gas precisely like sewer gas, and just as poisonous. This poisonous substance enters the circulation, and pervades the whole system, and then people wonder they feel tired and languid, with a swimming dizzy head—wonder why the appetite has failed, and that they feel weak and feeble—they wonder why the breath has become offensive, and that they have pain and distress. But when this matter is fully understood there is no cause to wonder, for this foul gas has poisoned the whole system. The food we eat should be digested, or it does us injury. The familiar saying that "it is not what we eat that makes us strong, but what we digest," is a truthful saying, and we cannot be too particular about the digestion of our food. More than nine tenths of all our diseases arise from imperfect indigestion. When we know that imperfect digestion is followed by the production of this foul gas within the body, and that it is absorbed into the system as fast as it is formed, is it a wonder that we see ill? The wonder is that we are alive. How important it is, then, that the digestive organs should be made to perform their functions by the timely use of Seigel's Curative Syrup, which has proved an unfailing remedy in such cases. Its reputation is based upon a trial that has extended over a period of many years. It seldom fails.

BORAX—PATENT CALIFORNIAN, "The Household Treasure—Pure Antiseptic," is sold in small and family packets by all intelligent dealers, prepared and ready for immediate use, with full directions for all Personal and Domestic purposes, and suitable for Academies, Hotels, Hospitals, Asylums, Ships, Public Institutions, and all homes—from the mansion to the cottage—everywhere—everywhere.

ROTHWELL MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the members of the Institute took place on Thursday evening, but the attendance was only small.

Dr. Glaister, one of the vice-presidents, having taken the chair, read a letter from the president, the Rev. F. Fawkes, who, by by reason of a prior engagement, was unable to be present, but expressing his willingness at any time and in any manner, to assist the Institute. A letter was also read from the secretary, Mr. G. H. Armitage, regretting his inability to be present through sickness.

Mr. John Hirst on being asked to perform the duties of secretary for the evening, kindly consented to do so.

The chairman, Dr. Glaister, then read the report which has already been distributed among the members. Prominent reference is made, of course, to the Art Exhibition held last November, which was so undoubted a success, both pecuniarily and in other ways, thanks being acknowledged to the president and others for their valuable aid. The excellent lecture by Dr. Glaister on "Burns" was also publicly noticed. The drawing classes, under Mr. Herbert Lockwood, have yielded extremely satisfactory results. Some 30 new volumes have been added to the library and the issues have this year reached the highest number ever known, being 3680. The lettings have produced a rather larger sum than last year, £26 6s. 0d., but the members, we are sorry to find is slightly less, also reducing the receipts from their subscriptions, £41 11s. 7d. The report closes with a suggestion to clear off the debt on the building, by means of a Bazaar during the winter; a course of popular lectures was also recommended for the consideration of the new committee. The treasurer has a balance in hand of £11 18s. 7d.

The report having been read, and some remarks made on it, the annual election of officers was proceeded with, resulting as follows:—

President.—Rev. F. Fawkes.

Vice-Presidents.—Mr. W. Hargreaves, Mr. J. G. Turner.

Secretaries.—Mr. G. H. Armitage, Mr. John Hirst.

Treasurer.—Mr. S. Bramley.

Librarian.—Mr. B. Taylor.

Auditors.—Mr. A. Marshall, Mr. S. Morton.

Committee.—Messrs. J. Glaister, Saml. Seanor, Jas. Hargreaves, W. Wright, J. Abbishaw, J. Turner, G. Barker, G. Armitage, Junr., and R. Nicholson.

INFIRMARY SUNDAY AT METHLEY.

The annual festival in favour of the Leeds Infirmary was held at Methley on Sunday, when everything was most favourable. The weather was beautiful, not too hot, nature was lively and advancing, the attendance was very large, and the result altogether most cheering. The Rothwell Old Band, which has so frequently assisted the demonstration by its enlivening music, was on this occasion accompanied by the Oulton Band and the newly-formed Methley Band, so that the procession was both extended and improved by additional attractions and adhesions. Arrived at the church, the usually pretty churchyard was at once the object of all admiration. Not only were the graves neatly kept, but the profusion of bouquets, wreaths, crosses, smiling with beauteous flowers, was charming, while the plants vied with cut flowers, in a gorgeous bloom of roses, geraniums, violas, &c. Loving hands had shewn their affection in the adornment of the graves dear to their hearts, and especially were the last resting places of the working classes tastefully beautified. The church and adjoining yard were crowded with people from all parts, notwithstanding which, the greatest quiet and decorum reigned throughout the day. The service was conducted by the Rector, the Hon. and Rev. P. Y. Saville, the Rev. T. Ripley intoning the prayers. The worthy pastor's earnest address was founded on the appropriate text "It is more blessed to give, than to receive," and while he spoke kindly words strongly emphasizing the Divine truth, his own character and life as a sympathising friend to the poor form an excellent illustration of the happiness of making others happy. It was an easy and natural task to adapt such words to the object of the demonstration; the willing tribute of gratitude for health preserved most appropriately took the form of gifts for the restoration of those who are sick and injured in the Leeds Infirmary. At the close of the service, the Rothwell Old Band performed the Hallelujah Chorus in fine style, the hallowed walls of the ancient church echoing to the well-known strains. It is gratifying to learn that the total collection from all sources, amounts to upwards of £45, being £10 more than has been taken at any previous demonstration. For this handsome sum, the treasurers of the Infirmary are largely indebted to the energetic efforts and influence of the Rector himself.

Holloway's Pills.—Weakening weather.—The sultry summer days strain the nerves of the feeble and decrepit, and disease may eventuate unless some restorative, such as these purifying Pills, be found to correct the disordering tendency. Holloway's medicine gives potency to the nervous system, which is the source of all vital movements, and presides over every action which maintains the growth and well-being of the body. No one can over-estimate the necessity of keeping the nerves well strung, or the ease with which these Pills accomplish that end. They are the most unfailing antidotes to indigestion, irregular circulation, palpitation, sick headache, and costiveness, and have therefore attained the larges sale and highest reputation.

CHEAP NOURISHMENT—Fourteen large Breakfast Cups of strong, reliable Cocoa can be made from at Sixpenny Packet of Cadbury's Cocoa Essence. Ask for Cadbury's, and do not be imposed upon.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Diseases and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere

A WORKMAN'S OUTING TO DOVER.

"Four o'clock and a fine morning!" is an old watchman's common place phrase, but a very pleasant one when you've looked out of your front door and satisfied yourself that it is truly so, especially when you are anticipating a trip to the fine historic old town of Dover, an early rising for our annual outing was inevitable. Victoria station had to be reached soon after half past five a.m., and London being a wide place and our residences not being all in one street in the vicinity of that busy terminus, "Four o'clock a.m." had to be seized by the forelock.

A much pleasanter railway ride cannot be found than that which runs through what is well styled the "Garden of England," full of delightful undulating scenery: it embraces the whole of the County of Kent, passing the grand old Rochester Cathedral and time-honoured Castle; we gave them a hearty cheer, and an extremely loud one to the memory of the workmen who were clever enough to build such famous structures. As the train rolled on we passed many little quaint churches half buried in the trees, and very pleasant to look upon were the hop fields, the copses, and rural dwellings of the Kentish men, some of them (the dwellings, not the men) were half smothered in roses, and the flowers in the gardens were very beautiful.

In due time we landed at Dover; the cravings of the inner man had to be satisfied and a good substantial breakfast accomplished its object. Before dinner a small party of us, under the guidance of a kind and intelligent friend, visited the "Maison Dien Hall;" here is a splendid interior, whose lofty walls are beautifully adorned with full length portraits of renowned local celebrities, and between the pictures by Vandyck and other celebrated artists, are artistically arranged old swords, pistols, daggers, helmets, breastplates, and loads of obsolete weapons of war which are lighted up by some magnificent glass windows.

A leisurely stroll on the famous Admiralty Pier, which is 700 yards, gave us a splendid view of the Castle, Shakespeare's Cliff, the Promenade, and a grand refreshing glance of the sea. But mine host of the "Robin Hood Hotel" has provided an excellent dinner for us, and thither we wended our way—of course we did. After cessation of hostilities and musically drinking to a very important health, the greater portion of our company betook themselves to the famous Castle of Dover, and after a negotiation with the keeper of the dungeon keys by our intimate friend, who is familiar with every inch of Dover, we cautiously descended by the flickering glimmer of a candle enclosed within a lantern, into the subterranean passages reached by time-worn stone winding stairs, gentle slopes, and wooden ladders. Here in these awful depths we wandered over curious trap doors, and through cunning and interesting contrivances to prevent an escape; we peeped wonderingly into suspicious nooks and corners, dimly illumined by the snuffy tallow luminary; we grimly admired the massive portcullis, the ponderous oak doors with their indispensable "locks, bolts and bars," and after much argumentative and antiquarian gossip amongst ourselves, we followed the expiring candle back again through those bewildering and darksome passages, out into the open daylight again.

We now breathed more freely, and knowing that some most antique relics were awaiting our eager inspection, we entered the massive keep, whose walls are 24 feet thick, and its topmost stone 465 feet above the level of the sea. As we ascend a broad flight of stone steps, we stop to admire King John's chapel; it is a most beautiful specimen of Norman architecture. We turn to the left and clamber up the grand staircase with its grim and stupendous walls adorned with the usual ornamentation of an antiquated stronghold; we arrive on the floor where the unfortunate Charles the 1st joyfully received the Princess Henrietta of France on their nuptial day. As we glance on the walls again amid Cromwellian breastplates, shirts of mail, chain armour, and a host of other ancient encumbrances of old time warfare,

> "Whose wearers now for ever fled,
> Need not a helmet for the head;
> They once were active in the field,
> With sword and lance and batter'd shield,
> They courted Death in a gory fall;
> Brave men were they, aye! one and all."

We point out for enquiry to our guide two curious Saxon keys and a rusty care-worn-looking old two-handed sword, which hang upon a rough-looking piece of board upon which no carpenter ever exercised his muscle or jack plane. The keys and sword are mute mementoes of the great Saxon, King Harold; it is said that that worthy sovereign, rather than deliver up these ancient castle keys to the Norman Conqueror, dropped them into the well of the keep, which at that remote period was 400 feet deep.

In the armoury we were deeply interested in inspecting some lances that were used at the Crimea; we also lovingly viewed an "old Brown Bess" from off the field of Waterloo. We saw some tattered flags which signalled for the brave attack upon the Redan, and I'll be bound to say that the strongest horse in Rothwell could not cart away in one load all the useless old pistols, swords, daggers, helmets, and I know not what besides. But time is pressing, and as we cross the Castle yard we see on our left an old, old, very old piece of Roman masonry, called the Pharos watch tower or lighthouse. It is supposed to have been built in our Saviour's lifetime; here is food for building reflection.

As we cross a bridge we look down into the deep moat, and are much amused at the wild rabbits which have found a home in this now verdant valley.

We then paid a visit to an old acquaintance, an extraordinary fat man (Sir John Falstaff and the fat boy in "Pickwick" are nowhere) whose present weight is 39 stone, and whose arms are as thick as an ordinary man's legs. He measures 66 inches round the chest, and his height is 6 feet, 1 inch; he is getting fatter every day, and challenges the world as a fat man. We soon after left the very engaging town of Dover for London, highly delighted with our pleasant and long day's excursion.

ROTHWELL BAND OF HOPE.—This useful organization held its anniversary on Sunday last, in the Primitive Methodist Chapel, Rothwell. Sermons were preached afternoon and evening by the Rev. F. Smith, whose large extent of knowledge on the temperance question, proved highly interesting to the moderately good congregations which assembled. The anniversary hymns were sung by the scholars and friends, accompanied by a small band of brass, reed and string instrumentalists. Several of the children also recited "pieces," some of which were very interesting. On Wednesday, the annual "school-feast" was held, and about half-past one a long procession commenced its way round the town, with colours flying, stopping at various places on the route to sing their anniversary hymns. The Hall was at length reached, however, and the welcome tea and buns were quickly disposed of by the youngsters, when a substantial tea was provided for the older members and friends, which was greatly enjoyed by all present. After tea, an adjournment was made to the Cricket Field, kindly lent by the committee, where races, games, etc., were indulged in by young and old, all appearing to enjoy themselves. The brass band were in the field, but only practised a few selections, and no dancing was performed, to the evident disappointment of many.

BRASS BAND CONTEST.—Provided the present delightful weather continues, the Band Contest to be held to-morrow (Saturday) should prove a thorough success. The enterprise of the Rothwell Old Band has lately manifested itself in various ways, and the present effort to bring a number of competing bands into Rothwell has met with gratifying success, no fewer than sixteen having sent in notice of their intention to compete for the splendid first prize of £10 10s. and silver cornet. We shall be glad to hear that the speculation results in the financial benefit of the Band. Full reports containing the judge's remarks will appear in our next week's issue.

HAY-making has been easy work this year, there having been nothing to prevent farmers and others cutting and housing their produce without the slightest extra cost, and in their own time. The bloom of flowers has been extraordinary, that of roses and sweet Williams being specially prolific and beautiful. Fruit is also likely to be very cheap and good, gooseberries and strawberries being grown in large quantities, while rasps and currants promise a heavy crop. In fact every department of nature's garden laughs with fulness and beauty, and the harvest will bring up the rear with full ears and good corn.

ROTHWELL OLD BAND.—On Tuesday afternoon, the Rothwell Old Band travelled to Hunslet Moor, and there performed a choice selection of dance and other music, in their usual careful and spirited manner. A large number of people were present, and greatly enjoyed the strains of our village band.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

A RATEPAYERS' meeting called by the churchwardens was held in the Board Schools, Woodlesford, last night, to seek some means of removing the deadlock which has existed for some time in the transaction of that part of the parish business for which the highway surveyors are responsible. A dispute has arisen partly on personal, partly on public grounds, between the surveyors, Messrs. Thompson and Langstaffe. They can't agree to act together, and as neither has power to do business separately, and neither will give way, the present deadlock is the result. The surveyors are appointed for twelve months, and the ratepayers are powerless to interfere with them, or call upon them to resign. The only practical outcome of the meeting was the adoption by a majority, of a suggestion offered by the chairman, Mr. R. J. Smith, that the points of difference between the surveyors be referred for settlement to a third person.—This Thompson was willing to do, but his co-surveyor would not agree to it; the matter thus remains where it was. There is a strong element of the ludicrous in the situation, which would be diverting, but for the consideration that pressing public business which requires immediate attention, is being neglected to the loss and discredit of the township.

WE are passing through the season of demonstrations, open air festivals, school feasts, and the like. The Infirmary Demonstration was held in Methley Church on Sunday last. To Methley belongs the honour of taking the lead in this custom. It was a popular institution there for many years before the practice of promoting these annual assemblies became so general in the neighbouring villages as it now is. The demonstration for Woodlesford and Oulton is to be held on Sunday afternoon next in Oulton Church. It is unnecessary to bespeak for this occasion, the benevolent sympathies of the charitably disposed; they will be entirely with the promoters of the movement. It is perhaps hardly right to consider a contribution of this nature as a 'charity.' It should be looked upon from a higher level as the exercise of a duty—the duty of self-help. The Infirmary exists for the purpose of furnishing the most skilful of human help for the relief of every case of suffering humanity which applies for it; and in promoting its usefulness, we are just providing for a need which may come suddenly upon any of us.

The School feast in connection with the United Methodist Free Church at Oulton, was held on Sunday and Monday last. The anniversary was marked with the usual features of interest in the way of a special children's service on the Sunday, and on the Monday a public tea and the scholars' treat, followed by a romp in the fields. The proceedings narrowly escaped being spoiled by the rain, which however, happily cleared off before the outdoor amusements began.

THE annual festival of the Woodlesford Church Sunday School was held on Wednesday this week. This year for the first time, a public parish tea was provided in conjunction with the usual scholars' treat. The new departure has been successful enough to warrant a hope that it may become a fixture as part of this annual event. The tea was provided under the shade of the trees in the beautiful grounds to Eshald House. It could hardly have been enjoyed amidst more pleasant surroundings. The deserted mansion has a desolate look, but the lawn, gardens, and little park are kept in the neatest order, and on this sunshiny July afternoon offered attractions which were more appreciated. The Oulton band was in attendance and played a programme of pretty selections while tea was being served, afterwards providing dance music for those of the visitors who wished to indulge in the "poetry of motion." The school treat which was deferred to the following day, commenced with a special children's service in the church, the children then proceeded to the gardens, carrying gaily colored banners, where they had tea and disported themselves until dusk. The proceedings were closed with the singing of several of the special hymns, and votes of thanks, supported with hearty childish hurrahs, to those who had kindly undertaken the trouble of making the necessary preparations. The weather on both days, was everything that could be desired.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT (MONDAY.)

BAD LANGUAGE.—Thomas Sefton, a miner, residing at Stourton, was charged with making use of profane and obscene language on the highway at Stourton, on Saturday the 11th inst. Mrs. Plaskett, of Stourton, proved the charge, and the defendant was fined one shilling, and £1 1s. 6d. costs, or a fortnight in gaol.

DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR AT ROTHWELL.—A most disgraceful affair came before the magistrates, from Rothwell. John Fox, usually known as "Johnny Fox," was charged with indecent behaviour in the churchyard at Rothwell, on Wednesday, the 15th inst. Mr. B. Kemp, solicitor, of Wakefield, conducted the prosecution. In making his opening speech, Mr. Kemp gave an account of the beastly conduct of the man in the dock. It seems that on the day named, at about six o'clock in the evening, a little girl named Ada Hall, daughter of James Hall, of Spibey Lane, Rothwell Haigh, aged 13 years, was passing the house of the prisoner, (who is middle aged, has a wife, a large family of children, and is a grandfather), when he attracted her attention by throwing something at her; she stopped, and he told her to go into the churchyard, where he wanted to see her. The girl proceeded to the churchyard close by, where prisoner met her, and on reaching the north-west corner of the church, he seduced her among the tombstones; on hearing someone approaching he got up and walked away towards the front of the church, the girl following him, to the front entrance to the church, where Fox gave her threepence. The statement of the prosecuting counsel was corroborated by the girl, Ada Hall, and Mrs. Stephen Stacey, of Rothwell Haigh, who testified to being in the churchyard decorating a grave with flowers, on the date named, and having with her two of her little children; she saw the prisoner in the act of committing the crime, and being afraid of her children seeing anything, she immediately went away, and gave information. P. S. Turton stated that he arrested the prisoner on Saturday the 18th inst., at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, and charged him with an aggravated assault. Fox replied "I am innocent, and have done nothing to her." In answer to the bench the sergeant said that the prisoner had a very bad character, and he knew of respectable people in the neighbourhood who had repeatedly been compelled to come down to Rothwell to meet their children on their way from school, on account of this man's offensive behaviour. Dr. Kendall characterised this case as one of the worst he had ever had to deal with, and in the strongest words condemned the conduct of this detestable fellow, whose beastly ways have become a source of mischief, and uneasiness to the parents of children passing through the locality of his house, and passed sentence upon him for 2 months imprisonment, without the option of a fine, and 1 month more in default of paying the amount of costs, £1 16s. 6d. Such men as these have no right to exist in the midst of a civilized and respectable community and it is a deplorable fact that he is to be let loose on the public again at the end of so short a term as three months.

FATAL ACCIDENT TO A FARM SERVANT.—On Saturday an inquest was held at the house of Mr. John Seatcherd, the Brown Cow Inn, Whitkirk, before the Wakefield Coroner, touching the death of James Nettleship, a farm labourer, in the employment of Mrs. Meynell Ingram, at Temple Newsam. Nettleship was engaged in driving a steam cultivator in a field forming part of Bullesthorpe Farm. It was stated that when he had reached the "headland" he turned the machine too quickly, the result being that it twisted over, and he was dragged underneath it a distance of 10 or 12 yards. Though the man was liberated without delay, he died shortly afterwards. The jury decided that the cause of death was "Accidental."

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell 1st eleven had a fixture at home with Horbury on Saturday, but that club being drawn for a cup tie match on the same day, could not come. The second team, however, journeyed to Horbury, and did exceedingly well. The visitors batted first, and ran up one of the highest scores they have made this season, 110; towards this score, H Richardson hit freely for 35 (not out), having a 5, two 4's, and three 3's among his figures. G Wilson, seems to be getting a little of his old form back, as he batted in a careful manner for 30. W A Richardson, batted safely, but but after making 13 was run out. J Wilson also got into double figures, making 10. The home eleven then took the wickets, and after the first wicket fell, did not make much of a stand, and at the call of time there were six wickets down for 42, M Rigg (22, not out), being the only man of his side who showed any serious opposition. The game was therefore drawn, with great credit to our village second. In my notes of last week relating to the match between Rothwell and Churwell (1st elevens) I inadvertently stated that Wice took the honours of bowling, taking 6 wickets at a cost of 24 runs. Now that was incorrect, as J Tiffany bowled one over and took 3 wickets for one run. He of course takes the honour, though great credit is due to Wice for the manner in which he stuck to the bowling, and captured some of the best wickets.

Stourton Harriers gave Starbeck a nice beating at Haigh Park on Saturday. The visitors who went in first, could not make the least of a stand against the excellent trundling of W. Hill and J. Gouldthorpe, who got them all out for the meagre score of 8, six of the players being credited with a "duck." Hill took six wickets for 6 runs, and J. Gouldthorpe four wickets for 3 runs. The home team did not do much better taken collectively, as out of 31 for 9 wickets, F. Fatkin was responsible for no less than 20, very creditable indeed, although it would have looked much better if the other members of the team had done somewhat better, as six of them failed to score, like their opponents.

TOWN TALK.

MANY thanks to the writer of "Occasional Notes" for the information published last week concerning the expenses connected with the recent mission at Woodlesford Church. He says the amount (£22) has been paid principally for printing and new hymn books, elaborate 'memorial' and 'resolution' cards, &c. The amount is a very large one, and would indeed pay for a lot of printing and buy a large number of hymn books. But then, the 'resolution' and 'memorial' cards were 'elaborate.' Was the 'resolution' beautifully engraved on a tablet of fine gold, with a border of precious gems, and did the 'memorial' consist of an inscription made on a sheet of refined silver with a decoration of pearl? if so, I can quite understand that the bill should be so heavy; but with the present information, I cannot make the bill and the mission agree. The special services have cost plenty, I hope the amount of good done in them will be in proportion. The "Occasional Notes" say "there is not the slightest shadow of foundation for an injurious statement which has been made to the effect that the missioners received payment for their services." Who made the statement? I did not. What I said was that on account of the scanty facts supplied by the writer of "Occasional Notes" the only conclusion one could come to, was that they were paid.

IT was said some weeks ago that the local printers would be very low in the number and extent of their "jobs" this summer. The Flower Show was given up, and that alone was a big drop. The deficiency however from these sources will be more than made up, if all the vicars and incumbents in the district will follow the Rev. Mr. Irvin's noble example,—and spend a twenty pound note on printing and stationery.

THE fact that the Rothwell Gas Light Co. have had to resort to the creation of new capital, and that they have consented to reduce the price of gas supplied from 3s. 9d. to 3s. 4d. and the meters 3d. in the 1s. is something like an evidence that they are not quite sure that they have been acting exactly in accordance with the law. It looks as though Mr. Turner was right in his opinion that they are "steeped in illegality." Fivepence off is, however, very acceptable, but Mr. Turner thinks it ought to have been more. The reply to the Local Board's letter asking the Gas Co. to reduce the price of gas was read and disposed of at the very beginning of the last Local Board meeting, and when four of the members, Messrs. Holmes, Turner, Lawton, and Nowell were absent. I do not propose to discuss the power of the clerk or chairman of the Board, to dispose of the question at the beginning of the meeting; I do not wish to say that Mr. Wm. Hargreaves did anything illegal or out of order; and I shall not attempt to palliate or deny the fact that Messrs. Turner and Nowell were late (as they often are) in arriving at the Board room; all this is an incontravertible fact. Mr. Turner has been at the root of the whole of the investigations into the power and doings of the Gas Co.; he has steadfastly and, shall I say pugnaciously held, in the face of every obstacle and opposition, to the belief that the consumers were being badly treated; he has pulled and shoved and lifted, until now the burden has begun to be raised from the shoulders of the people for whose benefit he has been striving. When therefore the members found this question of importance put first, and also knew that those who were most interested in it had not arrived, they ought in my opinion to have held it over to a later period in the meeting. A fortnight ago I had to say "Go it Lawton;" I repeat the same in favour of Mr. Turner "Go it, Turner."

AT Wakefield Court-house on Monday last, "Johnny Fox" of Rothwell, a middle aged man, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment with hard labour for committing a most repugnant and loathsome crime. The term of imprisonment is sadly too short. Such men deserve more than it is possible to place upon them. To say that he ought to be ashamed of himself would be idle talk; he is said to have boasted of his crimes in the "Publics" over a glass of ale, and he is utterly incapable of feeling shame. He ought to be flogged, for nothing short of the infliction of bodily pain will do some people good. Let this be a warning to parents; they cannot be too particular in observing the ways of their children.

WE are making rapid strides in the right direction just now. The local postal reform is a great triumph, and must be very gratifying alike to Dr. Nowell, the Editor of the Rothwell Times, and those who, from time to time, have asked for this great boon through its columns, and to the tradespeople and public at large. The second despatch and delivery of letters, &c., is now an accomplished fact. Many people have tested the new system by posting letters here at a quarter to eleven, and have had them delivered in Rothwell, Leeds, and other towns on the evening of the same day. It is a great convenience to business people, for they may send their orders into Leeds by the morning post, receiving the reply or goods by Parcels Post next morning. While this scheme is a blessing to the people generally, it will make a lot of extra work and necessitate the more continuous attention of the postmaster; it is to be hoped that his allowance will be raised with the extra trouble, so that the work may be done well, and with courtesy and cheerfulness.

I just now said that we were moving with rapid strides in the right direction. There is a very great danger lest we are compelled to stride in the wrong direction before long. Most of my readers are aware, that for a considerable time, in fact from its very opening, the Rothwell Telegraph office has only been kept going by the guarantors making up the annual loss, by paying the amount out of their own pocket. The period for which these gentlemen guaranteed the financial success of the office, has expired and they decline to be responsible any longer. The result is that the authorities are inclined to close the telegraph business altogether. This would be a great calamity, and I believe steps are being taken to prevent its occurrence if possible. There is a plan talked of among one or two of the local observers of public events, and I will attempt to describe it. These gentlemen who are always looking out for the public good immediately around them, say, that it would be a great deal better to close the Woodlesford office than that of Rothwell. The Woodlesford office was opened for the convenience of the Colliery, Paper Mill, and Pottery businesses, all of which have completely vanished. Nearly all the telegrams received at, or sent from Woodlesford, are on account of Messrs Bentley & Co., Messrs Bower Bros., and the Lowther family at Swillington House, all of whom could as well come to Oulton as Woodlesford. Besides this, whereas the messages delivered in Rothwell from Oulton would be charged sixpence for porterage, (carriage), the messages for Woodlesford have a free delivery from Oulton. This is the ground for the contention that it would be more reasonable to close the Woodlesford, than the Rothwell office, and in the face of these sound arguments it seems impossible for anyone to think otherwise. Of course such an action would put up the backs of the Woodlesford people, but that cannot be helped.

A LITTLE boy to night (Wednesday) called out to me over my garden hedge "Hey, Mr. ——, will you be kind enough to give me a bunch of flowers please." "What do you want them for," I asked. "To send to the Infirmary," he replied, and I found that the children attending the church Sunday School had been asked to bring a bunch of flowers each on the anniversary day (yesterday), to send to the Leeds General Infirmary. I gave the lad a bunch, such as my limited bloom would allow, and thought the work of the teachers very commendable, and worthy of imitation by others.

THE occasion of a children's festival ought always to be a time of joy, mirthfulness, and kindly good feeling one towards another. It is then that old friendships should be strengthened, broken friendships reunited, and forgiveness and unbrotherly sentiments for ever cast away. The Band of Hope festival took place on Wednesday. With one exception the proceedings passed off most happily. It is the practice of some young men at these outdoor recreations to amuse themselves by annoying others, and this propensity often finds opportunity to display itself in securing the balls with which the people are playing, and causing them much trouble in securing it again. It appears that some of the teetotal friends were annoyed in this way, and one of them in his angry attempt to regain possession of the ball, struck another young man, named Greenwood, a blow on the mouth, drawing blood. This young fellow had not got the lost ball, but one very similar to it, and very naturally "landed him another." This led to a fight, and four of the teetotaler's relations, his father, and three brothers, joined in one against Greenwood. This was scarcely fair and others took up the cause of Greenwood, and a free fight ensued, a most disgraceful and humiliating sight presenting itself. If such an occurrence took place in a village "taproom" it would be the subject of the talk of the teetotal "spouters" for a whole year; but I am glad to say such sights are never witnessed in our Rothwell "Pubs." The whole affair is exceedingly disgraceful to the family concerned, and an old woman says it is a Black Burning shame that the Temperance Society should be disgraced with such members. These are the men of whom Mr. Mantle is "proud." I heard of a farmer the other day who was proud of his "muck heap." Mr. Mantle, it must be granted, did all he possibly could to prevent the fight proceeding, and several times placed himself between two combatants, endangering his own peace of body to a large extent, and for this I am desirous of giving him every credit. Although I have crossed swords with Mr. Mantle on some subjects, I always endeavour to prevent these paper bullets from blinding my eyes to my assailant's virtues.

GOSSIP.

LOCAL BOARD NEUTRALITY.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I notice in your paper of yesterday's date, that a meeting of the Local Board has been held. Under the heading of Sewerage, in constructing the main drain for Cross Street, the tender of Mr. Bulmer was accepted, Messrs Holmes, Nowell, Turner and Lawton being neutral. Now I, as a ratepayer of Rothwell, cannot understand four individual members of the Board, being neutral. Is it stupidity, or is it for want of knowledge, or apathy of that which they have in hand? I think when men are elected to represent the ratepayers of a township, they should show cause, either for or against any project, which may be brought before them, or, in my opinion, the ratepayers should show them the right about, and choose men who are able to judge, and express an opinion on that which is brought before them, and not sit idly by and pay no heed to what is going on.

I remain,
Yours etc.,

July 18th, 1885. RATEPAYER.

NEW POSTAL ARRANGEMENTS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I am sure we are all glad to have the advantage of an extra delivery and despatch of letters in our old town. So far I think it has acted very well. On Monday morning I forwarded two letters by the 10.50 despatch, the one to Ripon, and the other to Doncaster. I was very much gratified to find replies to both of them awaiting me when I came down to breakfast on the following morning.

Yours respectfully,
AN INHABITANT.

GOSSIP'S IDENTITY.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Would you allow me to thank Mr. Gossip for his leniency in the chastisement with which he chastises me last week. Mr. Gossip, I am much obliged to you for the very mild way in which you censure me, though you say I shall have to change both time and tune before I can find out who you are. Sir, you must pardon me for not playing my part so well, seeing that I was on so many flats, and the time such an awkward one.

Yours truly,
F. R. R. I.

DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 31st of July they tapped me, and took away 204 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 408 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 20th), was again tapped at home and 260 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.
1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

5, Cursitor Street, Chancery Lane, London, W.C. Yours truly, Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 21st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry. What can be done? For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

TEETH, A COMPLETE SET ONE GUINEA.—Precisely the same Prize Medal Teeth supplied by other Dentists at the highest fees, five years' warranty.—Testimonial from Jas. Steward, Physician and Surgeon, L.R.C.P.E. I have great pleasure in recommending your Guinea Sets of Teeth. The set you supplied to me are much superior to those for which I paid a much higher fee. They must prove a great boon to the working classes." Complete set made and fitted in a few hours. ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The usual meeting was held on Monday, present—Mr. W. Hargreaves (chairman), Messrs. H. P. Newsome, W. Lawton, J. Hargreaves, J. Dobson, J. Holmes, J. Oliver, J. Turner, and the clerk, collector and surveyor.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, Mr. Dobson and Mr. Newsome moving their confirmation.

Mr. J. Hargreaves raised a question as regards a resolution of the Waterworks Committee, recommending that the water rents be altered so that houses under £6 10s. pay 2d. a week, under £10, 2½d., and under £15, 3d., also that the price per 1000 gallons be advanced. He thought they should be very careful before coming to a decision on this question, and although there was evidently a serious loss during the past, he believed this was largely accounted for by leakage, which he trusted had now been got under. If other places could make the water pay, Rothwell ought, although the making and maintenance of the reservoir was a serious item of expense. Mr. Lawton and Mr. Dobson pointed out that Rothwell charges were lower than Oulton and some other places, and that they had only three prices for cottages under £10, the highest being 2s. 6d. and the lowest 2s. Mr. J. Hargreaves moved an amendment to confirm the minutes with the exception of the resolution to alter the water charges. Mr. Lawton held that the waterworks should be self-supporting; Rothwell Haigh and Royds Green got no benefit from the water, but had to assist in paying for it through district rate, a practice to which he was strongly opposed; the subject had been thoroughly discussed, and it was evident they could not go on safely without increasing the charges. Mr. Oliver would feel very sorry to advance the water rents, if they could do without, although it was not the slightest benefit to him, but he was unable to see how they could get on without getting more money out of the sale of water. Mr. Holmes seconded the amendment, so as to delay the decision of this question. He thought every information should be collected, so as to arrive at a proper conclusion, and as the new scale would not come into operation until March 25th next, there was no need to decide the matter to-night. Mr. Newsome maintained his old ground, that all houses under £10 should be charged alike for water, believing that the tenants of all such houses used a similar quantity of water. Mr. Turner opposed this motion, holding that the higher rented cottages consumed more than the lesser rented ones. He also opposed it as being too great increase for the small houses. After further observations on the objections raised to the Committee's proposals, he asked what remedy the Board would propose. Mr. Holmes in reply, said he only desired that the subject might receive the greatest attention possible, and that those who consumed the water should pay for it, as nearly as they could ascertain. The chairman also agreed that it would be wise not to come to a hasty decision, and recommended that the bye-laws of other small towns be obtained. The clerk said that copies of bye-laws had been obtained from five other authorities a year ago, and Rothwell was the lowest of any of them. The original resolution was then withdrawn, and the amendment "confirming the minutes with the exception of the water rents resolution" became the substantial motion. Mr. Lawton moved an amendment to this, taking exception also to the "gas" resolution. There being no seconder, the above resolution was carried, Mr. Lawton and Mr. Turner being neutral.

'GAS' RESOLUTION.—In accordance with notice given, Mr Turner moved that 'the resolution passed accepting the reduction promised by the Gas Co.' be rescinded. He maintained that they had only allowed about £50, but had retained their reserve fund of £900. He also proceeded to take exception to the procedure of last meeting, when the resolution was passed previous to his arrival; (The chairman,—"Please to keep to the resolution,") it had been snatched, and was taken out of the usual order (The chairman, —"Will Mr. Turner proceed with his resolution, he is quite out of order.") Notwithstanding attempts to pull him up, Mr. Turner continued declaring that if the Board allowed it to go, Mr. Nowell and he would take it up. Mr. Lawton,—"Will Dr. Nowell be likely to come soon, (Mr. Turner, —"Don't know") because if he is not, I'll not leave you without a seconder." Mr. Lawton seconded the motion. Mr. Oliver thought Mr. Turner ought really to "rest and be thankful;" he had certainly earned the gratitude of the consumers, and might let the matter rest for a while at any rate. He also remarked that residuals were lowering, and as the Co. were allowing about £165 (not £50) by these reductions, everyone ought to be well pleased with the result of the agitation. The chairman asked the clerk (as he had been charged with unfairness in the proceedings of last meeting) how often Highway business had been taken first during the past 12 months? The clerk said he had examined the books and found that Highway business had been taken first fourteen times; other business arising out of the minutes had been taken first thirteen times. He also reminded members that the 'gas' question had been taken first, when introduced by Mr. W. Wright, solicitor for the Board in this matter, and that in the succeeding meetings it had also come first, as arising out of the minutes. The chairman expressed his satisfaction with the clerk's report, and was quite willing to rely on the minute book. A vote being taken on Mr. Turner's motion, Mr. Lawton and he voted for it, Mr. Oliver neutral, and the remainder against; it was therefore lost.

POSTAL.—The chairman moved that the best thanks of the Board be presented to Mr. Leal, the postmaster of Leeds, for his kindness in improving the postal facilities of the town, by the establishment of a second delivery and despatch, and other advantage. This was seconded by Mr. Turner and carried. Mr. Lawton would like to have waited till a letter box had been put up at Jaw Bones, which he believed was about to be done shortly.

HIGHWAYS.—The clerk reported that he had received £581 17s. 0d. from the County Authority, repayment for maintenance of Leeds and Wakefield Road. The news was received with satisfaction.

The Highway Committee have inspected the dross being broken for the Board, and the question will continue to have their closest attention.

SANITARY.—The chairman hoped that the Inspector would be very particular, this hot weather, about all sanitary matters, for the prevention of anything likely to cause fever. Mr. Lawton remarked that the water-barrel was ordered six weeks ago, and had not yet turned up; they were being choked with dust, and it ought to have been delivered a month ago. Mr. Holmes explained that the makes had been put back by the cooper, but he had seen the barrel that day, all complete and ready for use, and was promised that it would be on the roads by half-past ten next morning. Mr. Turner also complained bitterly of the dust and dirt in Swithin's St., caused, he said, by the material used, and having no water.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH.—In reply to the clerk's letters, the Postmaster General is seriously considering the question of allowing the telegraph office to remain open at Rothwell, without guarantee, and Mr. Leatham, Mr. Jackson and others, are doing what they can to help. Mr. Jackson suggested the advantage of a deputation. Mr. Lawton—"I move that the chairman and myself go t London as deputation on this question." Mr. J. Hargreaves—"I second it, each gentleman paying his own expenses." Mr. Lawton—"No, I didn't say that, I withdraw.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.—The secretary of the Co. having intimated that his chairman would be glad to meet a deputation at Leeds some day shortly, Mr. J. Hargreaves proposed and Mr. Oliver seconded, that the chairman, Mr. Lawton and Mr. Turner be the deputation, especially as "Gossip" has given them both the "go it." Mr. Holmes suggested that they might also mention the advantage of a little station near the Bridge. Messrs. Lawton and Turner heartily coincided in the idea.

WATER.—It was moved by Mr. Newsome, that the collector prepare a return shewing the amount of income received from the various classes of water consumers, seconded by Mr. Oliver and carried. Mr. Dobson was neutral, believing that part of the water runs back again, after having passed through the meter.

LIGHTING.—Mr. J Hargreaves moved that tenders be asked for streets lighting from the Rothwell Gas Light Co. and from the Leeds Corporation; he also suggested that white glass be used for the upper part of the lamps. Mr. Holmes was pleased the question was coming forward early, and thought it would greatly expedite matters, if the Board would say how many new lamps they would allow this year. Mr. Lawton did not see why Bell Hill should not be lighted; there had been two serious outrages, and for the sake of life and property, he gave notice that next meeting he should move such a resolution. The chairman reminded Mr. Lawton of the great cost of laying mains up Bell Hill, which would have to be considered in taking up his motion. Mr. Turner seconded the motion to obtain prices from the two Gas Companies, which was carried.

Mr. J. Hargreaves then moved that 18 lamps be fitted with white glass at the top, that all new lamps be similarly glazed, and that any requiring reglazing be done with white glass tops. Mr. Dobson seconded the proposal. The entire Board agreed with the resolution, although it was evenly divided as to the number, and manner of apportionment between Rothwell and Stourton, the chairman giving his casting vote, leaving this matter in the hands of the Lamp Committee.

Mr. J. Hargreaves also proposed that prices of lamps and pillars be obtained for next meeting; seconded by Mr. Oliver and carried.

Mr. Lawton urged immediate attention to the wretched state of Stourton streets. The chairman reminded Mr. Lawton that the Board could not repair them as they are private property, but that gentleman remarked further that the Board could compel the landlords to do it. It was eventually agreed that the Highway Committee be requested to inspect these streets and report at next meeting.

INFIRMARY SUNDAY AT OULTON AND WOODLESFORD.

On Sunday last, the annual demonstration in aid of the Leeds General Infirmary was held under the auspices of the local friendly societies. A procession consisting of members of the different lodges, Sunday scholars, teachers and others, headed by the Rothwell and Oulton Brass Bands, started from the top of Woodlesford about one o'clock, traversing the principal thoroughfares in Woodlesford and Oulton, and receiving in boxes provided for the purpose, contributions from every household by the way. Circulars had been issued previously by the secretaries inviting people to join the procession, but it hardly reached the imposing proportions of former occasions. This may be accounted for by very natural reasons; the day was intensely hot, and those who performed the self-imposed task of marching along the dusty roads in the fierce heat of the sun, must have been actuated by a very strong sense of duty indeed. It was pleasanter to walk quietly into the church and find a comfortable seat to enjoy the coolness and shade; the softened light of the stained glass windows offering a welcome contrast to the glare and heat without. There was no falling off in the attendance at the service; when the procession arrived there was a difficulty in finding accomodation for all, and when service commenced the commodious church was crowded in every part. The shortened form of evening prayer was conducted by the Rev. A. J. Irvin, vicar of Woodlesford, special hymns and the anthem "O praise God in His holiness" were sung by an augmented choir, the bass solo being very efficiently taken by Mr. T. West. The sermon was preached by the incumbent, the Rev. R. H. Hamilton, from the 1st Epistle of John, 1 chap., 8 verse, "God is love." After speaking of the great love "wherewith God has loved us," the Rev. gentleman went on to say that men should love one another in deed and in truth, and in reference to the grand institution whose finances they were met to assist, he said that one of the best ways of shewing our love for our brethren was to help those who were sick and needy in their hour of need and deep adversity. Large sheets were placed in the church porch, in which many choice bouquets of sweet flowers were placed by those attending the service; these were afterwards sent to Infirmary, where they would diffuse their fragrance and exhibit their beauty by the couch of the sick and dying. An offertory was taken at the close of the service, which, with the sum collected in the streets, amounted to £22 15s. 4½d., and after taking off the amount in preparing the demonstration, there will be close upon £21 to be forwarded to the Infirmary treasurer. The Oulton Band played "Kyrie and Gloria" from the "Twelfth Mass" in the church after the service, which sounded to great advantage, and was enjoyed by everyone. The result, which is in advance of last year, is very satisfactory and must be gratifying to those who have worked so hard and energetically to bring it about.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The ordinary meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday last, present—Mr. J. Hargreaves (chairman), Mr J. Graveley, and the Rev J. H. Evans (vice-chairmen), Messrs W. Lawton, Riley, C. Grosvenor, J. Swales, G. Jepson, R. J. Smith, J. Parker, J. Dixon, J. Jackson, J. Hardcastle, H. Sheard, and the Rev. G. M. Platt, with Mr. Schofield (clerk).

The applications for relief were very heavy and not got through till late. The relieving officers reported a number of cases of neglect to pay the amount due for the maintenance of relatives.

Medical Relief.—Mr. Swales enquired by what rule the medical officers were guided in attending persons requiring medical aid. Mr. Schofield replied that the medical officers must attend any persons applying for their assistance by the relieving officer's order. On the relieving officers being asked as to their regulations in giving these orders, they stated that they visited every person requiring a doctor, and then, if found necessary, they granted orders; occasionally orders had to be issued previous to the visit, but they always inspected the case the same day.

Caretaker.—Several applicants having attended personally for this office, a vote was taken, and by a majority it was agreed to appoint Emma Hawkesworth caretaker in the workhouse at £15 a year with board, lodging and washing.

Vagrants.—In reply to an enquiry by Mr. W. Battle, the clerk reported that the number of vagrants relieved during 1881 was 6292, in 1882, 7026, in 1883, 6276, in 1884, 1208, in 1885, 1054. The reason of the alteration in 1884 is because of the new Vagrancy Acts coming into force that year, whereby men taking refuge in the Workhouse for the night must stay three days and do a certain amount of testwork.

Union Question.—In connection with the appointment of Mr. Platt, the clerk to the Holbeck Union, to Croydon, the clerk asked whether it would be advisable to approach the Holbeck Board, in view of any action which might be taken by the Local Government Board, on the proposed dissolution of Unions. After conversation, a resolution to appoint a Committee for this purpose, was lost, so that, as Mr. Swales suggested, the subject will be allowed to stand over.

Illegitimate Children.—The master reported that there are now seven mothers in the Workhouse, whose children have not been affiliated. The Visiting Committee were requested to see after this matter.

Gift of Flowers.—The master also stated that he had received presents of flowers through Mr. Dixon from Hunslet Carr Chapel, from the Rev. J. Thompson, (Parish Church), and Rev. F. Fawkes, (Rothwell Church), for the pleasure of the inmates of the Workhouse. A cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the kind donors, on the motion of Mr. Dixon, seconded by Mr. Hardcastle.

Lost.—A woman and child had been picked up destitute at Rothwell a day or two ago by P. C. Slimmon, and taken to the workhouse. Enquiries will be made on the case.

Holiday.—On the motion of Mr. Sheard and Mr. Hardcastle, the master was allowed his usual fortnight's leave.

Coffin-maker.—Mr. Smith said the contractor for making coffins had complained that all the coffins were not ordered of him. It appeared there had been one lately made at Rothwell. The chairman said the deaths were really so few in the out-townships that it must have been a very exceptional occurrence.

The usual requirements were then allowed.

OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting was held in the Board Room on Tuesday evening last, present—Dr. Nowell (vice-chairman) presiding, and Messrs. John Farrer, W. Flockton, C. F. Hoyle, and the clerk, Mr. R. J. Smith. After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, the monthly financial statement was submitted and payment of the salaries and accounts ordered. An application for the position of monitor in the girls or infants school was considered but not finally decided upon, and the next meeting was appointed to be held a week earlier, viz: on the 18th August, for the convenience of members of the Board who were likely to be away later in the month. The clerk called the Board's attention to a recent important legal decision bearing on the question of non-payment of school fees and insufficient attendance, and a rather long conversation followed, but before taking any action as a result of the decision, the Board thought it advisable to have an authentic report of the case before them, and the clerk was instructed to obtain one before next meeting.

LOFTHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday night. All the members were present, viz., Messrs. T. Oliver, (chairman), J. Armitage, T. Hargreaves, J. Hammill and H. Hall, with Mr. Lee, the clerk.

The treasurer had received during the month £10 5s. 5d. for Robin Hood School, for Carlton school fees £9 8s. 4d., and 18s. 10d. for books. Cheques were signed for the the usual monthly salaries, amounting to £42 12s. 6d.

Miss M. C. Harms, assistant teacher at Carlton School, leaves the service of the Board at the end of July, her place being taken by Miss Emma Lee, assistant teacher at Robin Hood. The schedules of the examinations were laid before the Board; the average passes are 88 for Robin Hood School, but Carlton School has done very badly, only passing 71 per cent.

BRASS BAND CONTEST.

The Rothwell Old Band, which has lately inaugurated several speculations, proving more or less successful, have, for some three months, been arranging for a contest between brass bands which have not won more than £12 during the year 1884, and numbering not more than 24 performers. In reply to prospectuses sent out, sixteen bands signified their intention to compete, and bills to that effect have been placarded all over the district, giving promise of good competition.

Last Saturday was the day fixed for the contest, and the weather was beautiful and all that could be desired. Unfortunately, however, the Robin Hood Trip had been fixed for this day, and the great fete at Temple Newsam proved very attractive, while many people were anxious to see the cricket match, so that the numbers necessary to make the effort a financial success were not there. Apart from this important consideration, everything went off well, when once a-going.

It was not till after four o'clock, that the first band ascended the stand, the delay being partly accounted for by the fact that the Hinchcliffe Mills band, which had been drawn "No 1" were not on the ground, and so No. 2 (Denby Dale) was disinclined to go on till full time had been allowed for No. 1 to come up. The strain of music then continued with slight intermission up to half-past eight o'clock when the last of the bands descended from their stand.

We append below the report of the judge, Mr. Sidney Jones, who very patiently and carefully noted the performances of the several bands as they appeared, he himself being securely hidden from any collusion, in a small tent a short distance from the band-stand.

Judge's Remarks.

No. 1 (Denby Dale).—Execution, fair, 15; tune, fair, 15; tone, good, 20; style, fair, 15; time, good, 20; attack, good, 20; soloists, 1st B♭ cornet faulty, out of tune, especially in the earlier part of the piece (10); euphonium, a careful performance (15); soprano, fair (15); average 13; rendering of accompaniments, good, 20; total 138. Remarks—1st cornet spoilt the tuning of the band, being flat, especially on some middle register notes, no soprano or trombone solos. General playing of the band good, especially the accompaniments. A good performance.

No. 2 (Castleford Old).—Execution, rough, quick passages show want of careful practice, 10; tune, imperfect, 10; tone, fair, cornets at times overblown, 15; style, wanting in finish, 10; time, good, 20; attack, fair, 15; soloists, B♭ cornet very much out of tune, no opportunity of judging other soloists, so can only award an average of 8; rendering of accompaniments, fair, 15; total 103. Remarks—This band played with dash and spirit, but these qualities are not sufficient without neat execution and good tuning.

No. 3 (Dewsbury Old).—Execution, at times good, occasionally faulty, 15; tune, very fair on the whole, 2nd horn bad, 15; tone, full, 20; style, fair, some piano passages too loud, 15; time, good, 20; attack, excellent, 25; soloists, 1st cornet rough (10), soprano, fair (15), 1st horn, fair (10), average 13; rendering of accompaniments fair, 15; total 138. Remarks—A very difficult selection but a creditable performance. This band lost marks through playing a piece before the difficulties therein had been thoroughly surmounted by the performers.

No. 4 (Outwood Parish).—Execution, very rough and defective, 5; tune, defective, 5; tone, unsteady and coarse, 5; style, 0; time, fair, 15; attack, not so good as the time, 10; soloists, 0; accompaniments, 0; total 40. Remarks—This band may contain some good material, but it requires a lot of hard practice before it can compete with the average of bands in the north of England.

No. 5 (Batley Victoria).—Execution, good, 20; tune, some of the inner instruments require looking to, on the whole good, 20; tone, full and well-balanced, style, good, 20; time, occasionally unsteady, on the whole good, 20; attack, excellent, 25; soloists, B♭ cornet (18, see remarks), euphonium, good (20), soprano, fair (15), trombone, fair (15), average 17; rendering of accompaniments sometimes defective, on the whole fair, 15; total 157. Remarks—This performance improved as it went on till the last movement which was not good, some marks taken from 1st B♭ cornet for introducing grace notes which were bad taste and not intended by the composer; altogether a good performance; solos better than preceding bands, but accompaniments want looking to.

No. 6 (Batley Old).—Execution, very good, 23; tune, good throughout, 23; tone, good quality, 22; style, very good, 22; time, excellent, 25; attack, excellent, 25; soloists, B♭ cornet very good performance, (23), soprano, good, (20), trombone, good, (20), euphonium, good, (20), average 21; rendering of accompaniment, good, (20), total 181. Remarks—a most praiseworthy performance, decidedly the best so far.

No. 7 (Thornhill).—Execution, very good (scarcely equal to No. 6), 21; tune, very good on the whole, 22; tone, full, 20; style, very good, 22; time, quite correct, 25; attack, excellent, 25; soloists, B♭ cornet, good yet faulty (15), euphonium, fair (15), soprano, fair (15), average 15; rendering of accompaniments, good, 20; total 170. Remarks—a performance in many respects equal to the preceding one as comparison of marks will show.

No. 8 (Cleckheaton).—Execution, excellent, almost perfect, 24; tune, very good throughout, faults very slight, 23; tone, excellent always, 25; style, excellent, spirited, 25; time, excellent, 25; attack, leaves nothing to be desired, 25; soloists, B♭ cornet, excellent tone and execution (24), trombone good (20), soprano very good (23), euphonium very good (23), average 23; rendering of accompaniments, good, 20; total, 190. Remarks—An excellent performance.

No. 9 (Rothwell Temperance)—Execution, extremely faulty, 5; tune, trombone in opening very bad indeed, no decided pitch all through, cannot give marks, 0; tone, not good quality, would doubtless be better if the instruments were tuned, 10; style, faulty, 5; time, fair, 15; attack, fair, 15; soloists, euphonium fair (15), B♭ cornet, recitative taken too fast, many incorrect notes, hurried (5), trombone solo dragged badly (5), average 7; rendering of accompaniments, incorrect, very, 0; total, 58. Remarks—Those of No. 4 apply here

No. 10 (Scapegoat Hill, Golcar).—Execution, equal to No. 8, 24; tune, 1st cornet sharp in opening, otherwise very good, 20; tone, excellent, 25; style, very good indeed, 24; time, leaves nothing to be desired, 25; attack, excellent, 25; soloists, B♭ cornet an excellent performance (24), euphonium good (20), soprano good (20), trombone fairly good (18), average 21; rendering of accompaniments, occasionally slightly out of tune, on the whole good, 20; total, 184. Remarks—An excellent performance, almost equal to No. 8.

The following is the order of merit:—

No. 8 (Cleckheaton), 190 marks, 1st prize.
No. 10 (Scapegoat Hill), 184 marks, 2nd.
No. 6 (Batley Old), 181 marks, 3rd prize.
No. 7 (Thornhill), 170 marks, 4th prize.
No. 5 (Batley Victoria), 157 marks, 5th.
No. 1 (Denby Dale) }
No. 3 (Dewsbury Old) } 138 marks.
No. 2 (Castleford Old), 100 marks.
No. 9 (Rothwell Temperance), 58 marks.
No. 4 (Outwood Parish), 40 marks.

From the observations of various gentlemen well versed in such matters, the decisions of Mr. Jones were considered very correct and impartial.

According to announcement, the ten bands united at the close of the contest, and played the National Anthem, under the bâton of Mr. S. Fowler, bandmaster of the Rothwell Old Band. The prizes were presented to the winning bands the same evening, the evening air being resonant with music between nine and ten o'clock as the various bands paraded the streets. The whole affair passed off most satisfactorily and respectably, the hard work necessarily entailed on the members of the Old Band being willingly undertaken gratuitously, Messrs. Thos. Bennett and Wm. Harrison being the secretaries. As was feared, the affair is a heavy financial loss, but it is hoped some means will be devised for liquidating the debt. So honest and plucky an effort reflects great credit on the promoters, and while gratified with the result in one sense, they should be helped to sustain the burden of loss.

TEMPERANCE FESTIVAL AT TEMPLE-NEWSAM.

A festival promoted by the Church of England Temperance Society was held on Saturday, in the grounds belonging to Mrs. Meynell-Ingram, at Templenewsam, near Leeds. The lovely weather that prevailed tempted many thousands of adults, as well as children, to take advantage of the opportunity thus offered of visiting a place possessing so many attractions. The park presented an animated scene, and the gathering had the appearance of a gigantic picnic. The old folks, thankful for the protection afforded by the trees, lounged under their branches, listening to the music discoursed by the bands; while the young, for whose enjoyment special provision had been made, took part in various sports, including singing contests, skipping contests, and foot races. In addition to the selections played by the Leeds Police Band, Oulton Brass Band, Wrangthorn S. S. Drum and Fife Band, and the Leeds Industrial Schools Band, a concert was given by the Leeds Temperance Choral Society, which attracted great numbers. Meetings were held during the afternoon, when Mr. Geo. Ward, Mr. Mark Knowles, the Revs. O. Cookson, C. A. Skelton, C. L. Ivens, and other gentlemen gave addresses. The arrangements, made under the direction of Mr. Tudor Trevor, the secretary, were of a complete character, and an enjoyable day in the country was brought to a conclusion by a display of fireworks. A good number of people from Rothwell, Oulton and Woodlesford, took an 'outing' to the festival.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

Woodlesford Church Choir.—On Tuesday last the members of the above choir had their annual 'trip.' This year they were invited by the vicar to visit Chatsworth and the places of interest in the neighbourhood. Arrangements had been made to stop a special train from Skipton to take up the party at Woodlesford station. Rowsley was reached about nine o'clock, and after stretching cramped legs and despatching a substantial breakfast, the majority of the party chartered a carriage and post horses for the day, and proceeded first to visit a fine old baronial residence—Haddon Hall—once the seat of the Vernon family, now in the possession of the Duke of Rutland. After paying the inevitable 'backsheesh,' the visitors, with a pretty young lady for a guide, were conducted through the interior. Beginning with the banqueting hall, with its raised dais for the 'gentles,' its 'Minstrel Gallery' and pictures, we were shown through the little chapel which was used for purposes of worship more than eight hundred years ago, the state dining and drawing rooms, with their oak floors, carved wainscotting and curious old tapestry, all in a wonderfully complete state of preservation, and the state bedrooms. Leaving with considerable reluctance this venerable relic of old English magnificence, the party were bowled merrily along the picturesque road to Chatsworth, and there had the privilege of inspecting the splendid collection of art treasures, the beautiful suite of state rooms, and the imposing architecture of this—one of the most renowned of 'the stately homes of England.' The visit previously to Haddon Hall, lent additional interest to the attractions of Chatsworth, by affording an opportunity for contrasting ancient and modern glories of pomp and magnificence, which can here be seen at perfection almost side by side. On the way from Chatsworth a visit was paid to the exceedingly pretty village of Edensor. Returning to the hotel at Rowsley, a solid tea was heartily discussed; this was certainly not the least interesting event of the day. After tea followed a drive through five or six miles of interesting scenery to Matlock, where the caverns were visited, High Tor ascended, and other places of interest inspected. The day's proceedings were then closed with a rapid journey homewards, Woodlesford being reached about 10.30.

We are very pleased to learn that Mr. Andrew Blackburn, cornet soloist in the Rothwell Temperance Brass Band, has this week been appointed to play with the band at Roundhay Park. He will be playing every day for about two months. This is the first time such an appointment has been secured by a Rothwell man, and is no less a credit to the town and the Temperance Band, than to the player himself.

Fatal Sunstroke.—A boy named Farrer, 5 years old, died at Lofthouse on Saturday last from sunstroke. The extraordinary heat on Friday and Saturday ranged from 90 to 106 degrees.

Disgraceful Scene at Rothwell Haigh.—On Sunday morning last, a most disgraceful scene was witnessed in one of Mr. Fatkin's pasture fields. Numbers of gamblers hailing from Plevna and other parts of Hunslet, quarrelled on Pontefract Road, and after wending their way up the fields into one near Wakefield Road, got to blows, there being no less than half-a-dozen separate fights. Scores of people assembled to witness the scene, and no policeman being near, it was impossible for Mr. Fatkin alone to attempt to turn them away. The fight was continued for over an hour, when they began to depart, all the sides taking in different directions. The scenes by drunken men on Sundays along Wakefield and Pontefract Roads are very annoying to respectable people and others who are quietly wending their way to the various places of worship.

"Fit it with such Furniture as suits according to the fashion and the times," and purchase from E. Miller, 42, North Street, Leeds.

Accident to a Boy.—On Tuesday evening, whilst some boys were playing on Pontefract Road, Stourton, one of them named James Ramsden, had the misfortune to have his leg broken. It seems that the lads were jumping on each other's backs, when about four of them fell over Ramsden, breaking his leg. He was at once removed to the Infirmary.

Stourton Primitive Methodist Chapel.—The Sunday school anniversary services were held in the place of worship on Sunday last. In the afternoon at 2.15, Mr. J. Garbutt, of New Wortley, conducted the service which consisted of recitations of dialogues by the teachers and scholars. At 6 o'clock, Mr. Garbutt again preached a sermon, the place being well filled. The children sang their Whitsuntide hymns on each occasion assisted by an excellent string band. A collection was made in aid of the school fund, which proved very satisfactory.

Serious Accident.—On Friday morning last, about 6 o'clock, an accident of a somewhat serious nature occurred at the farm of Mr. Fatkin, Rothwell Haigh. It appears that a lad named Wm. Collinson, aged 15, who is employed by Mr. Fatkin, was fetching a horse from a field near, to prepare for going to Leeds. Thos. Walton, the stableman, who was engaged in the stable also preparing for work, hearing a scream which appeared to come from the lad Collinson, looked over the yard wall, at the same time remarking "That lad is teasing the horse again!" and seeing Collinson on his hands and knees ran at once to help him up. Walton found the lad kicked by the horse in the middle part of his forehead. He was quickly taken home, and it was considered necessary to remove him to the Infirmary at Leeds. Here it was found that the poor lad had received a compound fracture of the skull and that great care would have to be taken with him if ever he could come out alive. The doctors decided to have a bone extracted from his forehead, which was safely accomplished. The lad has now had a slight turn for the better, and it is thought that he will ultimately be restored to health and vigour. No questions have yet been asked him as to how it was done, and so it is not exactly known whether he struck the horse or not, but it has always borne the character of being very quiet, and was never known to strike anyone before.

Mrs. Deacon.—On Sunday last, old Mrs. Deacon, of Lofthouse, died; she was in her 91st year. The interment took place on Wednesday, at Rothwell.

Sudden Death at Rothwell.—Yesterday, at about three o'clock in the afternoon, a very sudden death occurred at Rothwell. Mrs. Barrett, the wife of Thos. Barrett, seedsman, Commercial Street, was found by her husband in a dying condition when he returned home from gathering strawberries in his garden. It seems that Mrs. Barrett, who is 62 years old, has been in unsatisfactory health, and has frequently been attacked with fits for a great number of years, but especially has her affliction become aggravated during the last few months. Yesterday, the poor woman's husband left her in bed after dinner, and proceeded to his garden to look after some fruit gathering, and on his return found that his wife was actually at the point of death; she was quite unable to speak, and seemingly unconscious, the only indication of remaining life being a last long stretch. Mrs. Barrett seems to have been aware for some time that her end was approaching and has several times hinted to her neighbours that she would not 'last out' much longer.

Miners Notice.—A collier's wife says "My husband and two lads are miners; when they come home I give them kaye's lavaline and some warm water to wash with; the effect is wonderful, I could not do without it"—Advt.

Rothwell Church Sunday School.—The annual picnic of the teachers and friends of the above Sunday School took place on Friday last. Boston Spa was the place decided upon, and at about half-past nine, the party, numbering over 40, including the Revs. Mr. Fawkes and Mr. Samwell, left the Working Man's Club in two waggonettes, well 'horsed,' on their way thither. The route lay by Swillington, Hook Moor, and Bramham. After a pleasant drive through the beautiful country, they arrived at their destination about noon. Most of the visitors reached the 'Jackdaw's Crag,' and delighted to stroll on the beautiful winding paths with their borders of verdant green. The celebrated Spa Baths received considerable attention, and it is worthy of note that most of the Rothwell friends enjoyed (?) a drink of the delicious (?) water to be found there. Boating on the Wharf and other healthful recreations passed the fleeting time away, and tea-time came. This was provided at the 'Royal Hotel,' and right heartily did everyone seem to attack the substantial and delicate viands, evidently relishing the good things none the less on account of their afternoon's rambles. After tea there was still a little time to spend, and the church was visited, along with other parts of the bright little place. At seven o'clock the return journey was begun, and home was reached at half-past nine. The weather was fine, though rather hot, and everyone appeared to enjoy the outing.

Gordon and the Mahdi.—"A remarkably comprehensive and cheap Illustrated Narrative of the War in the Soudan, entitled 'Gordon and the Mahdi,' has been published by Messrs. Vizetelly and Co. For one shilling is presented a profusely illustrated history of the Soudan, from the period of its conquest by Mehemet Ali to the assassination of the heroic defender of Khartoum. The hundred engravings comprise War Illustrations, a clear Map of the Soudan, portraits of the Mahdi, the late General Gordon, Lord Wolseley, Hicks Pasha, General Stewart, Colonel Burnaby, General Earle, Colonel Stewart, Mr. Cameron, and others, including Ismail Pasha, in the return of whom as Khedive to Cairo is held out hope of the future pacification of Egypt and the Soudan. Regarded simply as a panorama of war in the desert land in which so many brave Englishmen have found a grave, and which many millions of treasure have been sunk, 'Gordon and the Mahdi' is likely to be a popular handbook. When it is added that the hundred and sixty richly embellished pages offer a carefully compiled story of General Gordon's first masterly administration of the Soudan as Governor-General, of his fight against the Slave-Trade, of the rise of the Mahdi, the annihilation of Hicks Pasha's army, the sanguinary battles near Souakim, and the gallant but fruitless Nile Expedition of Lord Wolseley to rescue General Gordon, enough has been said to prove that this wonderfully good shillingsworth should command a wide sale."—Illustrated London News.

Boy Drowned.—On Wednesday afternoon last about 3.30, while some boys were playing near Mr. Horn's Whiting mills, Thwaite Gate, one of them named Arthur Cox, of 7, Cross Street, Water Lane, Leeds, fell into the canal and was drowned. He was taken to the Queen's Hotel, Stourton, where the body now awaits the inquest. Some boys who were with him ran away as soon as they found he was drowned.

Cheap Nourishment—Fourteen large Breakfast Cups of strong, reliable Cocoa can be made from at Sixpenny Packet of Cadbury's Cocoa Essence. Ask for Cadbury's, and do not be imposed upon.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

I am glad to see that the Editor has resolved to open a corner (which should be a column) for 'Notes and Queries.' I hope readers will avail themselves of it to open up questions of scientific or antiquarian interest, avoiding personal matters as much as possible. I will offer a short note—

1. Marsh.—I wish to point out that this name as applied to a part of Rothwell is incorrect; it should be March. The term is very ancient, and originally indicated a border, or frontier. When it was first used, the south side of Rothwell, where Dr. Glaister's house stands, would be a border or outskirt pretty well defined, and the country south of the road would be wood or meadow. The marsh—if marsh to any extent existed—would be on the west side above the mill.—Geo. Roberts.

2. What is the amount received by the Vicar of Rothwell from tithes? and is it principally paid by churchpeople?—Boz.

3. Can anyone say what is the inscription on the wall bounding the Rothwell Church Yard on the West side. I should also like to know who built the church, and any other information as to its early history?—Quid.

4. With reference to the remains of the Old Castle on the pastures, I shall be happy to learn who built it, and at what period; who owned it, and when was it destroyed and also under what circumstances.—Ajax.

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell had a cheap win on Saturday when pitted against Woodlesford, on the Rothwell ground. The visitors had a fairly representative team, and handled the willow first; none of the team, however, reached double figures, (Mr. Irvin being at the top with 8), and they were all disposed of for the meagre total of 37. The bowling was shared between Glover (who took the honours), Dobson, and C Tiffany; Glover taking 3 wickets at a cost of 5 runs, (the bowling 8 overs, of which 6 were maidens). Dobson 2 wickets for 10 runs, and Tiffany 3 wickets for 9 runs. Rothwell lost no time in getting to work, and had good business before drawing time, having compiled the enormous total of 134 for 5 wickets. Of these, W Richardson, who went in first, made 29, by careful and patient batting, while his brother, H Richardson, shewed a bit of his old form in the way in which he hit for his 28. As usual "Dick" Glover did well, making 23, while Dobson put on 18 very nicely, and Pape and Gibson were not out 10 and 11 respectively. Our village club is showing a little better form, and if it continues, a good match will no doubt be witnessed in a week or so, when the Yorkshire Gentlemen will pay us a visit.

Rothwell 2nd encountered Carlton on Saturday last, on the ground of the latter. The visitors who won the toss, went in and compiled the respective total of 87, out of which G Wilson was responsible for 20, when he was rather unfortunately run out, or he might have succeeded in making a good score on this occasion, as he seemed to bat in his best style, and also appeared to be getting well set. A W Seanor came next with 12, followed by Cripps and Briggs with 10 apiece. Carlton started badly, three of their wickets falling for only 13 runs, and at this point a very disgraceful scene presented itself, when one of the Carlton players, who was run out, refused to comply with the decision of the umpire, and accordingly laid himself down in his wicket. The captain of the home team was consulted on the point, and he also refused to abide by the decision, at the same time backing up his batsman in such a disgraceful affair as to not leave his wicket when the umpire had given him out, so the game was at once brought to an abrupt termination.

By way of keeping in form, I suppose the Stourton Harriers still keep on with their cricket fixtures, and on Saturday, they met Hunslet Temperance on the ground of the latter. The Harriers batted first, and compiled the very respectable total of 82, J Goldthorpe being top scorer with a well played 30. The tee-totallers then took the wickets, and at the call of time had 3 wickets down for 45, Henry Passmore having made 19 (not out), and Beevers 15. The game therefore ended with very bright prospects of victory for the home team.

On Tuesday next, the annual match for the benefit of the groundsmen (A and J Tiffany) will take place on the Rothwell Cricket ground. The teams as placarded up and down the town comprise some very good talent, and exceptionally strong, as will be seen below. Rothwell—R Glover, W Hirst, C Tiffany, A Ward, T Austin, A Tiffany, G Finister, W Richardson, J Southall, T Dobson, W Clegg, R Whiteley. District—J Tunnicliffe, F Firth, (Pudsey), A Hartley, E Byford, (Castleford), A Mosby, F Elliott, (Whitwood), A France, J Noble, (Lofthouse), J Brown, A Marshall, (Altofts), J Hirst, (Woodlesford), C Teale, (Methley). The teams are so evenly matched, that if they all turn up, I shall be quiet unable to predict the winning side. Anyhow, should the weather prove favourable, there is every prospect of some splendid cricket for those who take the trouble to be there.

TOWN TALK.

The Editor has dropped me a kindly hint that there is not very much room for my epistle this week. I had over a column last week given to me, so that I cannot complain very loudly.

"Local Board Neutrality" is the heading of a letter in the Rothwell Times last week. It complained that certain members of the Board did not vote on the Cross Street sewerage contract. I think that the reason they refrained from voting perhaps might be, that they did not agree to the main drain being taken up Cross St. at all. That is all well enough in itself; but they knew it had been decided before that this drain should be constructed, and it is the opinion of many that they ought to have been prepared to help in deciding upon a suitable man to do the necessary work.

There is to be a portion of the Rothwell Times set apart as a 'Note and Query' corner. It is a good idea, and only wants well conducting. There is a chance now for all. Those who don't know, may ask those who do, and on the other hand those who have been lucky enough to get to know may inform their unfortunate friends who have not had the same privileges as themselves. There will be some head scratching and brain racking, I'll be bound.

GOSSIP.

We have received an interesting letter on the 'Decline of Rothwell Cricket', which is held over until next week. The writer enters into the details of the season's play, and trys to prove that the Rothwell Club is going down. The letter is signed 'An old hand'.

SEWER GAS IN THE SYSTEM.

For several years the public press has been filled with articles relative to the deleterious effects of sewer gas. Sanitary engineers have racked their brains to devise means for preventing its entry into our houses, so as to avoid the many fatal diseases which are traced directly to its poisonous influence upon the human system. While we have been diligent and watchful in preventing sewer gas from entering our houses, we have been neglectful, and allowed its formation within our own bodies. Sewer gas is as fatal in its effects upon the system whether formed inside our bodies or without. The food taken into the stomach, if not properly digested, ferments, decays, and becomes putrid. The effects of this putrefaction is the production of a gas precisely like sewer gas, and just as poisonous. This poisonous substance enters the circulation, and pervades the whole system, and then people wonder they feel tired and languid, with a swimming dizzy head—wonder why the appetite has failed, and that they feel weak and feeble—they wonder why the breath has become offensive and that they have pain and distress. But when this matter is fully understood there is no cause to wonder, for this foul gas has poisoned the whole system. The food we eat should be digested, or it does us injury. The familiar saying that "it is not what we eat that makes us strong, but what we digest," is a truthful saying, and we cannot be too particular about the digestion of our food. More than nine tenths of all our diseases arise from imperfect indigestion. When we know that imperfect digestion is followed by the production of this foul gas within the body, and that it is absorbed into the system as fast as it is formed, is it a wonder that we are ill? The wonder is that we are alive. How important it is, then, that the digestive organs should be made to perform their functions by the timely use of Seigel's Curative Syrup, which has proved an unfailing remedy in such cases. Its reputation is based upon a trial that has extended over a period of many years. It seldom fails.

"The appearance upon entering (Providence House 42, North Street, Leeds), gave us an idea of a fairy-land of Furniture and Crystal palace of mirrors."

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in restoring the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name Consumption Emulsion. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men, as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 123 of his work, entitled "Consumption: Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." [illegible] this speaks volumes for the efficiency of Phthisicon. [illegible] proved of immense value as a curative agent in the early stages of [illegible] Disease and Scrofula; in fact, wherever there is impaired [illegible] or lack of nerve power, its action is almost certain. [illegible] all Chemists at 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. per bottle. [illegible] and Sons, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.; or of W. B. [illegible], 83, Green-lanes London, N.

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Price 3s. 6d.—For an Oil to make the Hair soft, glossy, and luxuriant, ask for "CARTER'S COLOGNE OIL." Price 1s. of all dealers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it soften the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 31st of July they tapped me, and took away 304 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 405 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 20th), was again tapped at home and 300 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.
1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

23, Cursitor Street,
Chancery Lane, London, W.C.
Yours truly,
Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 21st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptons are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry. What can be done?

For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as SCOTT & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

TEETH, A COMPLETE SET ONE GUINEA.—Precisely the same Prize Medal Teeth supplied by other Dentists at the highest fees, five years' warranty.—Testimonial from Jas. Steward, Physician and Surgeon, L.R.C.P.E. I have great pleasure in recommending your Guinea Sets of Teeth. The set you supplied to me are much superior to those for which I paid a much higher fee. They must prove a great boon to the working classes." Complete set made and fitted in a few hours. One visit only required from country patients at the Dental Supply Association, 19, BOAR-LANE, LEEDS. Entrance, Gascoigne-street. Attendance, 10 to 7. LOFTHOUSE INFIRMARY DEMONSTRATION.

On Sunday last, the annual festival in aid of the funds of the Leeds Infirmary and Wakefield Clayton Hospital, was held at Lofthouse. The various lodges and Sunday Schools in the district, who had been invited to join in the effort, met near the Cooperative Stores, Lofthouse, at about 12.30, and at one o'clock, a long procession, headed by the Rothwell Old and Rothwell Temperance Bands, moved round the village, passing through Mr. Charlesworth's grounds, and down into the cricket field, (kindly lent by Mr. Wright) arriving there about 2 o'clock. The vocal part of the service was rendered in a creditable way by the scholars of the several Sunday Schools, accompanied by a string band of some 15 instrumentalists, led by Mr. Jos. Wormald, and conducted by Mr. Geo. Hollings. The proceedings were opened by the singing of the hymn "Consolation." Prayer was offered by the Rev. F. Hogg, of Leeds, after which the scholars sang the second hymn. J. Charlesworth, Esq., the chairman, then addressed the meeting. He hoped the effort that day would be a success, and asked everybody to do their best for the good of the noble institutions they were called upon to help. Everybody who assisted these efforts had the satisfaction of knowing they were subscribing to a deserving institution. In conclusion, he urged each person present to give of their substance as much as they were able, and he was sure they would never feel the loss of it, but would have the inward pleasure of helping those who cannot help themselves. The children then sang the third hymn. Mr. F. M. Roper, (secretary of the Wakefield Clayton Hospital), was next called upon. He said if there was a class of institutions which ought to be supported by the people of this country, it was the hospitals and infirmaries. When a working man supported institutions for alleviating human suffering, he was in a manner laying up store for himself, as he might at any time be placed in such circumstances, as to require the aid which they are ever ready to give. He wished all working men to take an interest in these institutions, and enter into the spirit of the movement. It had been said that when a person entered a hospital, it in a sense ranked him as a pauper, but the speaker held that it was not so, and if he (Mr. Roper) had to happen an accident, he should desire nothing better than to be taken to the Clayton Hospital. He said that although he was much interested in the Leeds Infirmary, he still thought the Wakefield Clayton Hospital was the nicer place of the two, as it was so pleasantly situated, while the sanitary arrangements were simply perfect. He heartily thanked all those who had subscribed—however little. The Rothwell Old Band (conducted by Mr. S. Fowler) then performed "Kalliwoda's Mass in A;" this somewhat difficult selection was rendered with excellent care and finish, in execution and precision surpassing its performance at Rothwell. The Rev. J. R. Crawford (vicar of Lofthouse) then made a few remarks, opening with an amusing anecdote, which at once put his audience in a good humour. Commencing his address, in the first place he was glad when he saw so many children in the procession that day, but he was sorry to see the large number who were not in the procession. He said it was all very well to wish the hospitals success, but they should also help these institutions by some practical self-denying effort of their own, and however little their mite appeared, they must remember that "every mickle makes a muckle." The Rothwell Temperance Band then mounted the stand, and carefully and with taste performed the dramatic glee, "Hail, Apollo," under the conductorship of Mr. T. Blackburn. Dr. Young, of East Ardsley, was next called upon; in his opinion they could not have met for a nobler cause than supporting such praiseworthy institutions as the Leeds Infirmary and Wakefield Clayton Hospital. He had had large experience of the good emanating from such institutions to the working men of the land. Seeing the example that had been shewn by their vicar, the chairman, and Mr. Roper, it behoved everyone to help this cause to the utmost of their ability. The fourth hymn was then sung by the children, and the Rev. F. Hogg, of Leeds, addressed the meeting. He was pleased to see so many met together for so good an object; he also felt highly gratified on finding himself on the same platform with the gentlemen who had already spoken. After remarking on the object for which they had met, he said that in giving of their wealth to aid the sick and needy, they were carrying out the injunctions of scripture,—that of bearing one another's burdens. After the singing of the "Old Hundredth," Mr. Gilderdale proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, Mr. Charlesworth, and his fellow-speakers. He remarked on the good qualities possessed by the president, saying he was the right man in the right place; he eulogised the institutions they were met to support, and said they could not do better than put all their energy into this hospital movement. Mr. Bennett, of Wakefield, briefly seconded the proposition. The motion was then put, and carried with acclamation. Mr. Charlesworth returned thanks, and said he should be exceedingly pleased if they had improved on last year's amount. He then proposed a vote of thanks to the committee, the bands, and the singers, which was carried. The Rev. J. R. Crawford then offered prayer, and the large gathering dispersed. The bands and other musicians along with the speakers and other friends, then adjourned to the Wesleyan school-room, where a bountiful tea had been provided by the liberality of the president, Jos. Charlesworth, Esq., of Lofthouse House, to which full justice was done by some 120 persons.

The financial result amounts to £18 13s. 0½d., we are sorry to say £10 less than last year. The entire proceeds were well carried out, and Mr. Horner, the secretary, is rightly credited with much of the praise, while a sympathetic committee has worked heartily with him.

LIBERAL MEETING AT CARLTON.

A meeting was held on Tuesday evening, in the Carlton Board School Room, for the purpose of furthering the candidature of C. Milnes Gaskell, Esq, who seeks the suffrages of the electors in the Morley Parliamentary division. Owing to the very short notice given of the meeting, the attendance was not so large as it otherwise would have been, and for the same reason, arrangements could not be made for securing such a report of the proceedings as the occasion deserved. The room, however, was well occupied, and the meeting was considered satisfactory, especially under the various drawbacks.

The chair was occupied by Mr. J. Berry, vice-president of the Lofthouse-with-Carlton branch of the Morley Liberal Association (in the absence of Mr. Hall, the president), and the audience included a large number of intelligent working men, with a fair sprinkling of gentlemen representing the employers' class. The chairman having briefly introduced Mr. Gaskell, that gentleman proceeded to review the history of the past forty years, shewing the great benefits which have been won by the Liberal party, culminating in the Franchise and Redistribution Bills just passed. After making some pertinent remarks on the present Government and its actions, Mr. Gaskell sketched a few of the questions coming forward in the immediate future, in all of which he agrees with his noble leader, Mr. Gladstone. The address was well received and evidently gratified those present, warm applause greeting the speaker on resuming his seat. The candidature of Mr. Gaskell was supported by Mr. Stapleton, secretary of the Morley Central Association, who, in the course of his speech, gave some useful information as regards the Ballot Act, strongly enforcing the truth, that no elector need fear its secrecy being broken. Mr. G. Armitage, Junr., of Robin Hood, also furthered the object in view by the delivery of a capital little speech, good both in quality and manner. Questions having been asked and answered, a resolution supporting the candidate was passed, on the motion of Mr. W. Horner and Mr. A. Beeton. Mr. Milnes Gaskell having suitably replied, he moved a vote of thanks to the chairman, seconded by Mr. Stapleton. The motion having been cordially carried, the meeting separated. We understand that arrangements are being made for lectures and addresses by several eminent gentlemen, which will be further announced as the time of their visit approaches.

PICNIC TO PARLINGTON PARK.

On Monday last, the Rothwell Temperance Society and Band of Hope, with their friends, had a very successful and most enjoyable picnic in the beautiful Parlington Park, near Aberford, by the kind permission of Colonel Gascoigne. Early in the morning, the Committee were busily engaged completing and perfecting the arrangements, and the weather being fine everybody seemed in good spirits. The first intimation received by the general public that the day of the great picnic had arrived, was the departure of the Temperance Band at nine o'clock, when they left the village in waggonettes, playing lively airs. The reason for this early departure of the band is accounted for inasmuch as they had made arrangements to call at the houses of certain gentlemen along the route, for the purpose of rendering selections of music to those outside our immediate district. They proceeded first of all, to the seat of F. S. Wilkinson, Esq., Potterton Hall. This was reached pretty speedily, and the band performed several pieces in front of the Hall. Mr. Wilkinson and his wife both expressed their pleasure at the performance, and entertained their numerous visitors to first-class refreshments. The horses were again started, and directed to Hazlewood Hall, the residence of Sir Thomas Vavasour, Bart., where several pieces of music were successfully performed, followed by a similar token of the occupiers' approval, to that given by Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson. Then the road led right away to Parlington, where they arrived and met their friends at four o'clock. But we must now return to Rothwell, and see how things are going on there. The band has got nicely away, and the next event is the despatch of provisions; these are securely packed in one of Messrs. Seanor and Sons' vans, and in charge of one or two committee-men are sent off, to re-appear when most required at the other end. A little time elapses, and the 'picnickers' begin to gather near the Temperance Hall. See them come from all directions, with baskets, bags and bundles, wraps and robes, umbrellas and walking sticks, all ready and smiling. Eleven o'clock, and the waggons are here. Then the public turned out, and in addition to the five hundred trippers, add two or three times as many onlookers, and you will have an idea that the 'seating' was a lively business. There were twenty waggons and wherries; but one by one they were 'loaded' and passed on to the procession in Oulton Lane and Commercial Street. At a quarter to twelve the procession started on its way, through Oulton and Swillington, when the clouds looked as though they were ready to burst into a deluging rainstorm; but they cleared away at Garforth Bridge, and the end of the journey was found at about a quarter past two. The tables were ready spread, and Mrs. Ireson, Mrs Stead, and Mrs. Smith, with Messrs. Ineson, Poole, Wm. Nunns and Jos. Seanor, were soon busily engaged selling at reasonable prices hot tea and sandwiches, with every other sort of table-stuff. The older people enjoyed a walk in the beautiful park, while the youngsters relished a 'swing,' or engaged in other games on the greensward. The band arrived at four o'clock, as we said before, and after spending a little time with their friends, proceeded to the lower end of the park in front of the Hall, where they struck up a gay bit of harmony. The Colonel came out, and had a long chat with the president of the Society, Mr. Mantle. He expressed his pleasure at their visit, and said he should be happy to grant them permission to enter the park another year, if they felt inclined to do so. Leaving the Hall they returned to the company, and all had tea together. After this dance music was performed by the band, and a very happy hour or two passed away. At seven o'clock the horses were yoked again, and by half-past, all were on their way homewards. The journey was performed with ease, until the procession reached Oulton Lane, when one of the wheels of a waggon collapsed; no misfortune happily befell the occupants of the vehicle, beyond having to walk the last half-mile of the journey. Rothwell was reached at 9.30, headed by the band. Everybody was well tired, but had evidently enjoyed the trip, and the Society ought to feel well satisfied with the success of their laborious undertaking.

LODGE ANNIVERSARY AT LOFTHOUSE.

On Monday last, the Green Spring Lodge, Lofthouse, No. 705, G. U. O. Odd-fellows, celebrated their anniversary. A procession was formed (76 members taking part) headed by their new and artistic banner, and the Wakefield Military Band. The road traversed was from the Rose and Crown Hotel, Lofthouse, by Ouzlewell Green, to Newmarket House, thence to Moor House, the residence of C. E. Charlesworth, Esq., where a very warm reception was afforded them. Mr. Charlesworth regaled the whole company to drinks (alcholic and temperance), and in a very hearty manner addressed a few appropriate remarks to them on self help, and the advisability of preparing for adverse circumstances in time of prosperity. The procession then proceeded by way of Stanley, Outwood and Lofthouse Gate, to Lofthouse House (Jos. Charlesworth, Esq.), when they were again served with bountiful refreshment. Mr. Charlesworth, after thanking the band for performing one or two Welsh airs (which were specially attractive to Mrs. Charlesworth), addressed a little speech full of friendliness and advice to the members. After calling at the homes of one or two other Lofthouse gentlemen, including the vicar's (who, however, was not at home), the procession wended its way back to head quarters. A substantial dinner was enjoyed and a meeting held afterwards, when the secretary's report was presented, shewing the lodge to be in a very prosperous condition, 26 new members having joined during the last twelve months, whose average age is 22 years, making the average age of the whole lodge 28½ years. The meeting closed with votes of thanks to Mrs. Steel, the hostess, and hon. members. The demonstration was a most successful one, and served to bring the lodge more prominently before the public.

LOFTHOUSE CHURCH CHOIR TRIP.

On Wednesday last, Mr. Charlesworth, of Lofthouse Park, once again extended his hospitality to the Sunday school teachers and the choir, by giving them a trip to Bridlington. The invitations (some 85 in all) included friends of the above, together with the churchwardens, sidesmen, and other officials, besides the stationmaster of Ardsley, and the Lofthouse constable, with their wives. Both going and coming the train service was excellent, and had it not been for Selby Show, it would have deserved the description of "express". A glorious day only added to the natural beauties of the grand bay, and tempting many to "dare the dangers of the deep," dangers however which were fortunately no more serious than an attack here and there of mal de mer. Mr. Francis Balme, the supervisor of the trip, contributed to its success by his happy selection of the North Shore Refreshment Pavillion, as the place of rendezvous. A capital place too, with its scrupulous cleanliness and its liberally supplied table. Many found other attractions in the pavillion, whose roof provided a grand look-out over land and bay, and is supplied with a very good telescope, so powerful as to make some believe for the moment, when standing close to the pavilion clock and looking through the telescope at Bridlington Church Tower nearly a mile away, that they not only could almost see a fly winking upon the handle, but could hear the clock clicking; then again there was the billiard room for those who preferred for a time the green cloth to the grey sands; and private rooms and snuggeries for the old fogies and the young couples. After tea, the vicar, seconded by Mr. churchwarden Hartley, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Charlesworth; then after a few remarks by Mr. Marshall, grace was sung and the whole party "made tracks" for the station. A most enjoyable day, enjoyable in every point, was brought to a close by the arrival of the train at Ardsley, from whence some in their own or in hired traps, others on "shanks' mare," returned home to the more serious occupations and duties of life, all, we hope, encouraged to do more than ever pro Ecclesiâ Dei.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

Oulton Wesleyan Sunday School.—The anniversary services were held on Sunday last, and conducted by the Rev. S. Pitt, who preached in the morning and evening, and addressed the scholars in the afternoon. At each service special hymns were sung by the children, the selection being made wholly from "Hymns Ancient and Modern," and the new Wesleyan Hymn Book. The congregations at the afternoon and evening services were numerous, and Mr. Pitt's felicitous discourses were listened to with attentive interest. The selection of hymns was evidently made with judgment, the list throughout comprising good sterling tunes to equally excellent words, unencumbered with long-drawn choruses; being sung with careful attention to modulations and with hearty spirit, and being well supported by Mr. W. H. Flockton on the harmonium, the singing evoked general commendation, and a special compliment from the preacher. Collections in aid of the School funds were made at each service. On Monday afternoon the children partook of tea in the school-room, and by the kindness of Mr. North, of Manor Farm, Oulton, had the use of a good field to play in, of which they availed themselves to the fullest extent.

Masonic Ceremony at Castleford.—At Castleford, on Saturday last, the corner-stone of a new Church School (built on the site of a very old one) was laid with Masonic honours by T. W. Tew, Esq., of Carlton Grange, Pontefract, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master. A procession was formed at the Co operative Hall, consisting of the clergy, the choir, the Free Masons, the Sunday School children, and some of the public bodies, which proceeded to the church through the principal streets, accompanied by the Castleford Brass Band, who played on the march; at the church a service was held, the sermon being preached by the Dean of York. The procession then marched to the site of the school building, where the stone was laid with full masonic ceremonial, in the presence of a large number of people, and addresses were delivered by the Dean of York, the Provincial Grand Master, and others. Tea was afterwards provided in the portion of the school already built. The Masonic gathering comprised members of the craft from Pontefract, Wakefield, Castleford, Barnsley and Leeds Lodges, and among local Masons were Bros. T. W. Embleton, F. Carr and J. Ripley (of Methley) and W. Flockton (of Oulton), the last-named Brother acting as one of the cup bearers in the ceremony. Bro. Carr was the organist at the service.

We are pleased to record the appointment of Miss M. C. Harms, as certificated assistant mistress in the Park Hill Higher Grade School, Liverpool. Miss Harms, it will be remembered, served her apprenticeship in the Rothwell Board Schools, and has since been engaged as assistant in the Carlton School. This appointment she resigned in May last, on gaining her certificate, but by special arrangement with the Board stayed until after the July examination. The Parkhill School is one of the largest of its kind in Liverpool, numbering in its various departments nearly 1,000 scholars.

"The appearance upon entering (Providence House 42, North Street, Leeds), gave us an idea of a fairyland of Furniture and Crystal palace of mirrors."

Throat Irritation and Cough.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

Genuine Orange Bitters.—24s. per case of one dozen net cash. These Bitters are made from the very finest Servile oranges and will be found to be an admirable and pleasant tonic. Manufactured by Joseph Hobson, Dantzic Brewery, Regent Street, Leeds.—Rothwell Agent, H. P. Newsome, Grocer, &c

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

Occasional Notes.

It is satisfactory to be able to state that the public disagreement between the surveyors of the townships of Woodlesford—in reference to which a lively ratepayers' meeting was held a fortnight ago—has been amicably settled, and that the deadlock, compared to which that lately existing in the government of the empire was trifling in importance, has been removed. The sensible suggestion that the points in dispute should be referred for settlement to a third person was adopted, with the modification that the court of arbitration consisted of three persons instead of one, as first proposed. Although it cannot exactly be said that the disputants agreed to kiss and be friends, ratepayers will be content to learn that an arrangement was arrived at which provides for the proper discharge of the duties for which the surveyors are jointly responsible; and the danger of losing the county grant this year, through the neglect of necessary repairs to the Woodlesford portion of the highway, is now at an end. So this storm in a teacup has subsided. The law directs that two or more surveyors shall be appointed for any township. Custom has fixed the number at two, but to prevent the recurrence of this discreditable experience, it would be advisable to elect three surveyors at future meetings for that purpose. This would ensure a working majority, as it is not likely that all three would be inclined to pull different ways.

The present week is the climax of the holiday season of the year. There is a general exodus from the counting-house, office and workshop, to the health resorts of the coast, or the breezy hills and moorlands; and people who are not already away, are looking forward to the delight of a temporary emancipation from the jading worry, and wear and tear of daily business, which under present conditions is for the most part laborious and less profitable than they have known it to be. Scarbro, Filey, Bridlington, on the one coast, Blackpool, Southport or Morecambe on the other, or Windermere and the lake district, offer bewildering attractions to the intending tourist. Those who can afford to take their holiday farther a-field, might follow the example of the Editor of the Leeds Mercury and take the trip to the North Cape, which is being described by the "Rambling Philosopher" in the weekly supplement just now.

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell encountered East End on Saturday, on the ground of the latter, and were as near getting a 'licking' as ever they were in their lives, I should think. East End batted first, and made the enormous total of 165, no less than seven of the team getting into double figures; Hartley took the lead with 36, closely followed by Williams (31), then Waters (18), Bosworth (18), Blackburn (17), Martin (13), and Pershaw (10). There were nine bowlers put on for Rothwell, of whom H. Richardson did best, taking 5 wickets at a cost of 21 runs. Rothwell now took the wickets, but no stand at all was made, as they were fetched out one after the other, by the good bowling of Waters and Williams. At the call of time eight wickets had fallen for 19 runs. One thing I will just mention, not one of the Rothwell men scored a single figure, as Manners (Pudsey) made 8, Hewitt (Woodlesford) 6, and Taylor (Stanley) 2, the rest being extras.

The second teams of the above clubs met at Rothwell, on Saturday last. East End took charge of the wickets first, and made 62, of which Day was responsible for 20 (not out), and Coope 13. In the bowling department Briggs took 1 wicket at a cost of 2 runs, Taylor 4 wickets for 22 runs, and Chadwick 3 wickets for 22 runs. Rothwell now handled the willow, but failed to come up to their opponents' score, only making 49; G. Wilson was top scorer with 18, and Chadwick next with 11 (not out).

The long-talked of district match came off on Tuesday. As usual, there were a lot of absentees on both sides, and on commencing the game the home team was a real Rothwell team, while out of the chosen district team, only five men put in an appearance, the eleven being made up out of men in the field. Altogether, the teams were nothing near like those announced on the bills, and it was very disappointing to those who had come purposely to witness a kind of first class match, and then at the commencement of the game for above half of the best players to be missing. I would recommend the committee (seeing that they are unable to get a representative district team) to abandon this idea next year, and try to obtain the presence of a first-rate club to encounter, and I feel confident that the results (both financially and other ways) will be much better than what they are at present, as things are really getting from bad to worse, and people are beginning to regard this annual match as a mere nothing, and not worth the trouble of walking to witness. The district were first to bat, and they were not disposed of till they had made 102. Towards this total, Joe Hirst batted a careful innings of 47, while the only other double figures were J Noble (27), and A. France (10). Glover took the honours of bowling, taking 6 wickets at a cost of 32 runs, while Pape came next with 2 wickets for 14 runs, and Ward 2 wickets for 33 runs. Rothwell now defended, and commenced disastrously, as a wicket fell before a run had been scored. The score only rose slowly, and at the fall of the ninth wicket, the total was 46, or 56 runs behind their opponents. Pape and C. Tiffany were now together, the two last men, and strange to say, they succeeded in rubbing off the score, with a few to spare. Pape was top scorer with 38, Tiffany being next with 29 (not out), Glover (16) and Ward (12). Glover had again the misfortune to be hit badly, and had to retire, but pluckily resumed play till he was bowled. The honours of bowling for the district team most decidedly rest with Firth (Pudsey), who bowled 23 overs, and secured 7 wickets for 33 runs. Newbold took one wicket for 4 runs, but as he only bowled one over and a few balls, it was certainly no test. There being still some time left to play, the district team again took possession of the wickets, and at the call of time had scored 49 for 6 wickets, of which Newbold was responsible for 16, France 12, and Clegg 11 (not out). Ward did the bowling this innings, taking 5 wickets at a cost of 16 runs.

POINT.

ROTHWELL v. DISTRICT.

The annual match for the benefit of the groundsmen belonging to the Rothwell club, took place in the Cricket Field on Tuesday last. The day was not a favourable one for cricket, as the sky was overcast and occasional showers now and again came down, while it was only cold, and not at all comfortable for the spectators, which no doubt prevented a larger number of persons being present than there really was. The best of the district play was shown by J. Hirst, who batted a careful innings of 47, and going in third wicket down he remained at his post until the conclusion of the innings, and it was thought he would come out bat in hand, but this was not to be, as Pape clean bowled him before he had luck to reach his 50. His side had compiled a total of 102. The home team made a miserable show of batting at the commencement, nine of their wickets being down for 24 runs, but thanks to Pape and C. Tiffany, their opponent's total was passed. Both batsmen are to be congratulated on their plucky efforts, and although Pape gave two or three chances, his innings was no less creditable. C. Tiffany, with the exception of a chance given in the slips, batted equally as good as Hirst, and exhibited great patience and skill, and his not out innings of 29 may be considered a very good one. Besides these performances, Firth and Glover each achieved a splendid feat with the ball, being almost unplayable, but a view of the analysis will give a more correct idea.

Details of play.—At half-past twelve, Firth and Noble appeared as the representatives of the District team, to face the bowling of Ward from the pavillion end and Glover from the park end. Noble opened with a single, while Firth made a 2 and a single in the same over, and then Firth, after scoring two more singles, was caught by H. Richardson at leg. Brown came next, and Noble cut Ward nicely for 3, and in his following over snicked him for the same figure, while he landed Glover over the ropes for 4, bringing 20 up. Brown, who had meanwhile contented himself by playing on the defensive, let out at one from Ward, which bowled him middle stump, after he had scored 3. France filled the vacancy, and Noble drove Glover straight for 3, while France was credited with a like number, one being due to an overthrow. The same batsman was enabled to add another 3 to his score shortly after, but lost his partner the next ball, who was caught by Pape for 17. Off Ward's next over, Hirst and France made 3 each, but Glover succeeded in dismissing the latter in his next over. C. Tiffany now took the ball from Ward, but only bowled one over, as Hirst got his first delivery to leg for 3, and Hartley drove him straight for the same figure, when he gave way to Dobson. Hartley was again fortunate in getting the new bowler's fourth ball to square leg boundary for a trio, but had his middle stump dislocated by the Rothwell professional the first ball in the next over. Clegg took Hartley's place at the wickets, only to retire from the last ball in the over, being clean bowled. Fifty was hoisted shortly after by Hirst making a 2 and a 1 off Dobson, while J. Tiffany obtained a single as well. An appeal for l b w was here made against Hirst by Glover, but the decision was given in the batsman's favour, which he duly acknowledged by sending one to boundary for 3, and cutting one of Dobson's to the same place, while he again added a like number off Glover, but Tiffany, who had only made three singles, was now clean bowled. Smith came next, and Hirst, who was batting very nicely at this point, got Glover well to leg for 3, and also made another cut off Dobson for a brace. Ward again resumed bowling at the pavillion end in place of Dobson, each batsman making a single from his first over. When the score had reached 78, Ward succeeded in clean bowling Smith. Dews followed, and Glover, who had bowled so successfully, was relieved by Pape. Hirst lifted the new bowler's fifth ball clean over the ropes for a quartette, and in the second over drove him almost straight for a trio. He also contributed a 2 and a 3 off Ward, and Dews, after scoring two singles, made a couple of nice 'cuts' for 2 and 3 respectively, which proved to be his last contribution, as Pape clean bowled him next over with a 'yorker.' Newbold brought up the rear, and Hirst sent up the century by hitting Ward for 3, but had the misfortune to be bowled by Pape for a valuable and most praiseworthy innings of 47, the total reaching 102. It being close upon two o'clock, the players decided to adjourn for luncheon.

Play was again resumed at three o'clock, when A. Ward and Walter Richardson were sent in as the first representatives on the Rothwell side, opposed to the bowling of Firth (park end) and France (pavillion end). Richardson was out l b w to the second ball delivered by Firth. Glover took his place, and Ward opened the score by cutting France for 3, and after a few singles more had been scored, Glover got Firth to leg for 3, and also hit the other trundler for a single, bringing 10 up on the telegraph board, for which six overs had been bowled. Ward again hit France for 3, and in the same over Glover received a nasty knock under the chin, which caused his retirement in favour of Dobson. He commenced with a single, following which Ward snicked France for a trio, but fell a victim to Firth the next over, having a very narrow escape of being bowled the ball previous H. Richardson was bowled first ball without scoring, and things looked worse for the home team, when Dobson was out at 23. Glover was heartily cheered on again going to the wickets, when Gibson immediately sent France for a couple, and after a few overs had been sent down, Glover drove the same trundler for 3, and hit a full pitched ball from Firth for a single, bringing 30 up but before the total had been further increased, Gibson was finely stumped by Clegg, and Whiteley was also bowled without scoring, six wickets being down for only 30 runs, a small total mainly due to the splendid trundling of Firth, whose analysis at this point of the game ran 6 wickets for 10 runs in 11 overs, of which 6 were maidens. Hirst was tried in place of France, and Glover cut his first delivery for a couple, adding another single three balls later, while he also drove him for 3 the following over. G. Wilson here gave a hard chance to J. Tiffany in the slips, which this player failed to take. Nothing was lost, however, as Firth upset Glover's wickets the succeeding over. A. Tiffany came next, and a two bye was immediately run. The incomer started by getting a three off Hirst but was soon afterwards dismissed by the same bowler. Pape followed, but lost his partner when only two more runs had been scored. C. Tiffany was last man, and Pape hit a ball up in the air at point, which Firth allowed to drop through his hands. This was immediately followed by an appeal for a catch behind the wickets, which was decided in favour of the batter, when he shewed his appreciation of the same by driving Firth for 3, while Tiffany followed up with a nice leg hit for the same figure. Scoring now became fast, Pape bringing 60 up by making a single, while Tiffany further increased his score by an on-drive for a trio. Pape was again successful in scoring a 3 off Hirst, while his partner made 2 (one overthrow). As no separation could be effected, and runs still continued to come fast, Brown was put on vice Firth, and off his first ball Pape should have been caught by France, a couple of runs resulting from the let off. J. Tiffany now took up the attack at the pavillion end, and sent down a maiden. C. Tiffany now gave an easy chance Newbold at short slip, which he failed to take, after which the batsman pulled the top end trundler to leg for 3, Pape doing the same feat with the next delivery, while Tiffany succeeded in adding another 3 the same over by a straight drive. Firth went on again, and Tiffany had a narrow escape of being run out. Another change was again made in bowling, Brown being put on at the top end, 90 being hoisted a minute or two later. Pape next snicked Brown for 3, and also lifted Firth nicely to boundary for a like number. Noble was next tried, Pape hitting his first ball for a trio, while Tiffany brought the 100 up by getting a single, the winning hit being made by the same player, amid loud cheers, directly after. At 112, Pape was bowled by Newbold for 38, Tiffany being not out 29. Both batsmen were heartily applauded on retiring.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

5. The Libel Law is very obscure to me, as it may be to most people. What constitutes a newspaper libel? Suppose I know of a man who has perpetrated an evil deed. I have complete and absolute evidence that what I have heard of him is true I publish the fact in a newspaper, and it damages the man's character. Is that libellous?—Caliban.

6. Can any of your readers give me information respecting the Old White Hall, the erection of it, and the owner of it, and who built it.—Ajax.

REPLIES.

4. Rothwell Castle.—If 'Ajax' has means to consult Batty's 'History of Rothwell,' or Whitaker's 'Loidis and Elmeti,' he will get nearly all the particulars that can be got, concerning Rothwell Castle. I notice that on the north side of Mrs. Smith's stackyard there is a wall five feet in thickness, which may possibly have been a boundary wall to the courtyard or garden when the castle was inhabited. The fish-ponds would be on the west side. There used to be a bridge from the Manor House to the churchyard, spanning Wood Lane, which would then be a hollow bridle road eight or nine feet in width. In 1260, the Dowager Countess de Lacy, relict of Edmund de Lacy, resided at the Castle. In 1486 it had fallen into a state of dilapidation, and it is supposed that part of the walls were taken down at that time, to build the present Manor House. What now remains is a grand fragment, and serves to recall the fact that Rothwell has seen better days. It would be much better fenced to preserve it from accident, or from further demolition. A low circular wall or a few pales would show that it is not utterly disregarded, and would give it a greater importance in the eyes of visitors, for it is not every town that has the ruins of a castle. Rothwell now is a sort of World's End, but if the railway should happen to come, many visitors would appear, and the first objects they would enquire for, would be the Castle and the church.—G. Roberts.

2. Tithes.—Tithe-rents have no reference to party or creed. They are charges upon the land, and were appropriated to the church centuries before there was any dissent. Every occupier of land sets out with the full knowledge that he will have tithes to pay; it forms part of the rent, and he consequently pays less real rent to the owner.—Geo. Roberts.

2. Boz.—If you will attend a meeting to be held at Lofthouse on Tuesday evening next, you may be able to get some information.—W. Mitchell, Sec. Liberal Association.

Holloway's Pills.—Weakening weather.—The sultry summer days strain the nerves of the feeble and decrepit, and disease may eventuate unless some restorative, such as these purifying Pills, be found to correct the disordering tendency. Holloway's medicine gives potency to the nervous system, which is the source of all vital movements, and presides over every action which maintains the growth and well-being of the body. No one can over-estimate the necessity of keeping the nerves well strung, or the ease with which these Pills accomplish that end. They are the most unfailing antidotes to indigestion, irregular circulation, palpitation, sick headache, and costiveness, and have therefore attained the larges sale and highest reputation.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in restoring the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name Consumption Emulsion. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men, as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 103 of his work, entitled "Consumption: Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." Such a testimony as this speaks volumes for the efficiency of Phthisicon. In addition, it has proved of immense value as a curative agent in the early stages of Brain Disease and Scrofula; in fact, wherever there is impaired nutrition, or lack of nerve power, its action is almost certain. It can be obtained of all Chemists at 4s. 6d., 11s. and 21s. per bottle. Wholesale of Barclay and Sons, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.; or of W. B. Trick, L.P.S., 92, Green-lanes London, N.

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. TOWN TALK.

I was glad to observe the Balance Sheet of the Rothwell Local Board published in the first page of the Times a fortnight since. It is most gratifying to notice that although the balance due to the treasurer a year ago amounted to £991 2s. 3d., it has been altogether removed, and there is now a balance in hand of over forty pounds. This gives rosy promise of reduced rates. If with two one-and-tenpenny rates we could meet all dues and demands, besides paying off nearly a thousand pounds, surely with a small balance in hand instead of a large deficit, we may look joyfully to the future in the anticipation of a considerable reduction in the amount demanded by the rate collector during the coming year. The Balance Sheet does not give a very clear account of the finances connected with the water supply I find from the balance sheet, in its present form, that the 'water supply' costs £392 10s. 11d., while the amount received for water rents is £515 13s. 5d. With these figures before me, I ask, where is the loss you are talking about? Why advance the charge for water at all. This is the way in which the ordinary ratepayer reads the statement. I suppose that the repayment of loan and interest on the water account is not reckoned as part of the cost of the water supply in this case. But it ought to be, and as it now appears one is apt to be led astray. I should suggest that the repayment of loans be stated thus—and so on. We should then be able to get at what the balance sheet is supposed to tell us. In conclusion I should like to point out that there appears an amount of nearly £850 as 'Receipts from other sources.' Surely this is no information at all. Cannot we have such an amount as this given in rather more detailed form. I think these suggestions are worth the consideration of the clerk to the Board, and if he will condescend to act upon my humble advice he will oblige the townsfolk.

Water Scheme ..	000	0	0

The directors of the Midland Railway company seem to be willing to do as well to us as they possibly can. The two "go its," along with the chairman of the Board, are to meet the chairman of the company in Leeds before long. It is likely that the fare from Woodlesford to Leeds will be considerably reduced. Mr. Holmes thinks a little station at the bridge would be an advantage. So do we all. This would be better than the reduction of the Woodlesford fare.

With reference to Mr Lawton's wish to have Bell Hill lighted with lamps during the coming winter, I should like to point out that they would be much more useful, to the people of the Rothwell district, in and about "t'long brig." This is the place where they are most required, on the Haigh side of the town. There should be one or two placed in Churchfield, and notably at the intersection of the roads in the croft, at the bottom of Mr. Clarke's garden. I am requested to say also, that the time of extinguishing the lamps should be fixed an hour later than hitherto. The lamps are all ablaze in the early part of the evening, but it is all over by about half-past ten; so that at the time when the street lamps is most desired, we find that the extinguisher has already been applied, and the belated pedestrian has to grope along through blackness of darkness, until he reaches the comfortable shelter of his home.

The Rothwell Temperance Band cannot feel very much complimented by the remarks of the Judge at the Brass Band Contest. Fifty-eight marks out of a possible two hundred is exceedingly bad. Despite the fact that the band is so low in the report of Mr. Jones, let the members not be discouraged. There is plenty of good raw material in the band and they only require minute training and careful, constant practice, to become efficient players. Let the members endeavour, more and more, to become master of their several parts, and in a year or two, they will, no doubt, be able to compete successfully in these contests.

The Temperance society's picnic to Parlington Park caused quite a commotion in the town on Monday last. I heard there were no less than sixteen waggons, beside a numerous and varied procession of other vehicles. The weather god very graciously refrained from weeping upon the multitudinous company, although several times he looked down with his darkest frown. The "waggonettes" were of that description often used as goods vans, and in removing lime, matches, groceries, &c. I should think it would be a slow process,—the journey,—and I would not care to do the distance under the same circumstances. But I am told they managed to enjoy themselves. It seems to have been one of the best ventures the Society has ever made, and it may become a yearly event; let us hope it will.

Mr. Roberts, of Lofthouse, gave us a very good "Note" about the Marsh in the "Note and Query" corner last week. I have a note but it is hardly good or serious enough for a place in the sacred corner devoted to "Notes and Queries." Roundhay Park, the Rothwell version being "Round O' Park." There was a little lad of five summers instructing his younger sister as to the wonderful sights to be seen in Roundhay Park. I believe his 'pa' had taken him to the Park last Monday seeing that the Flower Show at Rothwell "was not." "Why do they call it Round O' Park" asked Sissie. "Well," replied largely informed Tom, "you know the Park is not square, but nearly round like a round O, so they call it Round O Park."

GOSSIP.

THE DECLINE OF ROTHWELL CRICKET.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

My Dear Sir,

Let me first of all apologise to "Point," the writer of your "Cricket Notes" for taking hold of a subject which very properly belongs to him. I say, belongs to him, but I am sorry to say he does not appear to be over anxious to claim what actually is his own, and this is why I have taken upon myself the unthankful work of holding up to the view of the public, the way in which Rothwell Cricket has, of late years declined. Has it declined? is the first question; scores answer "yes," scores "no;" my opinion is with the former; I think, nay I am sure, it is, step after step, going down, and let me assure the players and supporters of the Rothwell Cricket team, that my only object in writing on this subject is that the cause, (as surely there must be a cause to this direful result) may be found out and removed. Albert Ward has gone over to the Hunslet team, that is a calamity and an indication of the way in which things are falling to nought. Ward is a splendid player, reared and trained in the Rothwell club, and although he has a perfect right to take his talent to the best possible market, it seems sad that his native team should suffer so much at this unfortunate period in its history.

No doubt great exception will be taken to my statement that the excellence of Rothwell Cricket club is on the wane. I shall now endeavour to show the reason why I entertain such an opinion. The facts I shall adduce are taken from the scores as recorded in the Rothwell Times each week, a copy of which I have for several months preserved. The total number of runs recorded for the whole of the matches up to and including Churwell on July 11 is 980, and 73 extras. Of this number 300, or an average of 21¾, is due to the professional Glover, and 144, an average of 20¼, to Ward. Neither of these men can now be fairly classed as members of the Rothwell team, and their combined scores of 444, taken off the total runs, only leaves 536 for all the other players put together; this number does not average 5. It will thus be seen that the paid man has very nearly 1 in every 3 of the total runs of the season. The averages of the individual players supply ample evidence in proof of my case. Leaving out Glover and Ward of course, we find J Tiffany at the top with 11; what a remarkable thing for a second team man to be at the top Next comes Charles Tiffany with 0 and the others with all sorts of other lower averages, one man only having 2 runs in four innings. There are 41 occasions when an innings was played for "0;" in three separate matches there are 4 "ducks," 5 in another, and a week or two ago there appeared no less than 7 against the names of these local willow champions. Only on 16 occasions during the season have double figures been reached, the credit for these being divided amongst seven of the players. I presume we should find the bowling about on a line with other departments of the play, but I have no means of getting the particulars of it, so I will not attempt to write about it at all.

There is something wrong. There is a reason for all this. What is the reason? The club was once a good one, and held its place among the respectable teams of the district, but now its name is "Ichabod" its glory is departed.

Yours respectfully,
AN OLD HAND.

SEWER GAS IN THE SYSTEM.

For several years the public press has been filled with articles relative to the deleterious effects of sewer gas. Sanitary engineers have racked their brains to devise means for preventing its entry into our houses, so as to avoid the many fatal diseases which are traced directly to its poisonous influence upon the human system. While we have been diligent and watchful in preventing sewer gas from entering our houses, we have been neglectful, and allowed its formation within our own bodies. Sewer gas is as fatal in its effects upon the system whether formed inside our bodies or without. The food taken into the stomach, if not properly digested, ferments, decays, and becomes putrid. The effects of this putrefaction is the production of a gas precisely like sewer gas, and just as poisonous. This poisonous substance enters the circulation, and pervades the whole system, and then people wonder they feel tired and languid, with a swimming dizzy head—wonder why the appetite has failed, and that they feel weak and feeble—they wonder why the breath has become offensive and that they have pain and distress. But when this matter is fully understood there is no cause to wonder, for this foul gas has poisoned the whole system. The food we eat should be digested, or it does us injury. The familiar saying that "it is not what we eat that makes us strong, but what we digest," is a truthful saying, and we cannot be too particular about the digestion of our food. More than nine-tenths of all our diseases arise from imperfect indigestion. When we know that imperfect digestion is followed by the production of this foul gas within the body, and that it is absorbed into the system as fast as it is formed, is it a wonder that we are ill? The wonder is that we are alive How important it is, then, that the digestive organs should be made to perform their functions by the timely use of Seigel's Curative Syrup, which has proved an unfailing remedy in such cases. Its reputation is based upon a trial that has extended over a period of many years. It seldom fails.

Epp's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in packets, labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epp's Chocolate Essence.

Holloways Pills.—Enfeebled Existence.—This medicine embraces every attribute required in a general and domestic remedy. It overturns the foundations of decease laid by defective food and impure air. In obstructions or congestions of the liver, lungs, bowels, or any other organs, these Pills are especially servicable and eminently successful. They should be kept in readiness in every family, being a medicine of incomparable utility for young persons, especially those of feeble constitutions. They never pain or irritate the most sensitive nerves or most tender bowels. Holloway's Pills are the best known purifiers of the blood, the most active promoters of absorption and secretion, whereby all poisonous and obnoxious matters are removed from both solids and fluids.

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Price 3s. 6d. —For an Oil to make the Hair soft, glossy, and luxuriant, ask for "CARTER'S COLOGNE OIL." Price 1s. of all dealers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it soften the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 31st of July they tapped me, and took away 304 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 408 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 20th), was again tapped at home and 360 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.

1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

23, Cursitor Street,
Chancery Lane, London, W.C.

Yours truly,
Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 21st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry, What can be done?

For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally "up to all the wrinkles." The middlemen, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

TEETH, A COMPLETE SET ONE GUINEA.—Precisely the same Prize Medal Teeth supplied by other Dentists at the highest fees, five years' warranty.—Testimonial from Jas. They must prove a great boon to the working classes." Complete set made and fitted in a few hours. One visit only required from country patients at the Dental Supply Association, 19, BOAR-LANE, LEEDS. Entrance, Gascoigne-street. Attendance, 10 to 7. MARRIAGE.

SEANOR-CROYSDALE.—On the 11th inst, at the Parish Church, Killington, by the Rev. J. Mann, (the vicar) Frederick James, youngest son of Jabez Richard Seanor, of Rothwell, to Sarah Ann (Sallie), daughter of George Croysdale, Whitley Bridge.

Rothwell Times,

Friday, August 14, 1885.

Holding as we do, a perfectly independent position as regards the various political, religious and social questions of the day, we cannot but notice the importance of the times in which we now live, and the immediate future before us.

The most memorable session of Parliament of the present generation is brought to a close to-day, and many, probably a majority of those who have occupied seats in the House of Commons this session will not be found in the new Legislative Assembly. Whatever may be the opinion of either party on the work done during the past five years, one great statute will stand out as the crowning enactment, the twin Reform Bill of 1885, the result of Liberal sowing and Conservative reaping, the joint product of the two opposing parties in the State. How much belongs to one side, and how much to the other we leave to political wranglers, the broad fact stands forth that each party had a hand in the grand work, whereby two million worthy citizens are now entitled to say how they shall be governed, by whom, and by what laws. Not only has this wide-reaching Franchise Bill increased the number of voters, and brought into the lists the large country populations of such neighbourhoods as ours, but the plan of proportional representation has been adopted, so that roughly speaking, every member of the new House stands as the representative of an equal number of householders, and for the first time in our national history, the House of Commons fairly reflects the people of England. In this matter we are deeply interested, inasmuch as the country villages now possess an importance they never had before. We are being reminded now and again of our position by the visits of gentlemen desiring our patronage and vote in the coming struggle. Last week, Mr. Milnes Gaskell paid a 'pop' visit to Robin Hood, and will no doubt address his constituents more fully in succeeding meetings. A capital meeting was held on a previous occasion, when the chairman and other members of the Association of which Lofthouse-with-Carlton is a branch, were present. Conservative meetings have been well attended at Oulton and Woodlesford, in furtherance of Mr. Charlesworth's candidature. On the 17th of April, a highly successful gathering took place in the Mechanics' Hall, when the gallant Colonel presented himself as the accepted candidate for this division, accompanied by a strong galaxy of supporters. And now, exactly four months after, on the 17th August, we anticipate the pleasure of hearing Mr. Benj Pickard expound his views on the several questions now demanding attention. Mr. Pickard exercises a strong influence on the mining population, having been a prominent member and secretary of their association. It was most gratifying to note the gentlemanly manner in which the Liberal members conducted themselves at the Conservative meeting last April, winning the compliment of Colonel Charlesworth himself, who trusted that the same courtesy would be extended to Mr. Pickard when he came to speak to them. We have no doubt that such will be the case, and that while warmly attached to one's own opinion, we shall all permit our neighbour to have his opinion, although it may be quite contrary to ours.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

On Wednesday afternoon, a meeting of the Guardians of the Hunslet Union was held in the Union offices, Glasshouse Street. Mr. James Hargreaves (chairman) presided, and there were also present Mr. J. Graveley (vice-chairman), Messrs. Lawton, Grosvenor, Hardcastle, Jepson, R. J. Smith, Jackson, Dixon, Sheard, Swithenbank and Parker; together with Mr. Thos. Schofield (clerk).

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The list of settlement cases having been considered, the chairman reported that after the matter had been gone into, it was ascertained that there were no cases of illegitimate children in the house which action for their maintenance could be taken before the borough magistrates.

The Guardians decided, in accordance with a request made, to raise the workhouse cook's salary from £20 to £22 per annum.

A letter was read from Mr. P. C. Slimmons having reference to the case of a woman and child whom he brought on Sunday week last to the Hunslet workhouse. In this communication Slimmons explained that he discovered the two vagrants in question on Sunday, July 26th, at the roadside, Rothwell Haigh. Acting under the advice of Mr. William Hargreaves, he had the woman and her child conveyed to the workhouse at Hunslet; but since that date he had ascertained that the place where the vagrants were discovered is in the parish of Lofthouse. As it was reported by the Master that the vagrants had discharged themselves on the day after their relief, it was deemed unnecessary to take any action in the matter. It may be stated that the case was a fraud. The woman's indisposition was all a pretence, and she had obtained admission into other workhouses under very much the same circumstances.

The Board decided to grant the Clerk the usual leave of absence. Seven days' similar leave was given to the workhouse nurse, and a suitable person was appointed as substitute during the nurse's absence.

The Guardians deputed to make the customary inspection of the Wadsley Lunatic Asylum laid their report before the Board. It appears that there are six cases of pauper lunacy from the Hunslet Union at the asylum. Five out of the six, had made no advance towards sanity. Mr. Lawton spoke in very favourable terms as to the condition of the asylum, which is most excellent in its arrangements. Mr. Swithenbank corroborated the remarks of Mr. Lawton; and the business of the Board concluded.

VOTING LISTS.

It cannot be too generally known, nor too deeply impressed on all persons who have occupied £10 houses for 12 months prior to July 15th, that they, and lodgers under certain circumstances, are entitled to have their names on the list of voters now published, at the church and chapel doors. If the name is not in the list, immediate notice should be given to the assistant overseer of the parish in which the voter resides, so as to have the name inserted. All such claims must be in the hands of the assistant overseer by Thursday next, the 20th inst., otherwise the person will be debarred from using the privilege of voting at the General Election next November.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

Holloway's Pills.—Weakening weather.—The sultry summer days strain the nerves of the feeble and decrepit, and disease may eventuate unless some restorative, such as these purifying Pills, be found to correct the disordering tendency. Holloway's medicine gives potency to the nervous system, which is the source of all vital movements, and presides over every action which maintains the growth and well-being of the body. No one can over-estimate the necessity of keeping the nerves well strung, or the ease with which these Pills accomplish that end. They are the most unfailing antidotes to indigestion, irregular circulation, palpitation, sick headache, and costiveness, and have therefore attained the larges sale and highest reputation.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON LIBERAL ASSOCIATION.

A lecture was delivered on Tuesday evening last, under the auspices of the newly formed Liberal Association for Lofthouse and Carlton, in the Board School-room at Robin Hood. The subject of the address was "Disestablishment, and the approaching General Election," which, in the hands of such a veteran lecturer as Mr. J. Andrew, of Leeds, proved to be a most interesting one. The audience just filled the school-room, and was composed principally of the working men of Lofthouse, Carlton, Robin Hood, and Ouzlewell Green, with a small company from Rothwell. Nearly the whole audience was in sympathy with the sentiments expressed by Mr. Andrew, and joined right heartily in applause, as the numerous points of the lecture were brought out. The bill announcing the meeting stated that the chair would be taken at 7-15, but it was not until ten minutes after that time that the lecturer arrived, having been unavoidably detained. Mr. Amos Beeton was elected to the chair, and in a few sentences introduced the lecturer to the audience.

Mr. Andrews expressed his regret that he was not there at the proper time, and apologised for the delay to which the audience had been subjected. He said the question of "Disestablishment" was one of importance, and since the passing of that great measure, by which most of his audience would receive their rightful vote, it had been vested with even greater importance than it possessed before. It was not "much ado about nothing," nor was it "a storm in a teapot," but a question vitally affecting the interest of the nation. The Church Defence Association had charged them with lying, and issuing incorrect statements to the public; this was not the case, but their object was by using facts, arguments and persuasion, to create such a strong public opinion in favour of religious equality, that the immediate and complete disestablishment of the state patronage and control of religion, would be inevitable. A difference must be drawn between the established church as a "political institution" and as a "Church organization." They had nothing to do with the tenets of the Church, except that in cases where doctrines similar to those of Popery were taught, and acted upon, it was done in the church as by law established, and therefore as representing the country. They did not want to destroy the Church as such, but as a national institution. What they were desirous of accomplishing, was to strip the Church as it now is, of that portion which tends to fetter and hinder its operations, and corrupt its teaching. What they were asking for was neither more nor less than equality, without fear or favour to any particular sect or creed. There was an old Roman saying which ran thus, "Let justice be done, though the heavens may fall"; if justice was done the heavens would not fall, and it was justice they were asking for. There was about one-third of the population of England who attended the Church of England, so that these persons enjoyed the benefits which are the right of the whole community. Besides being unjust, the alliance between the Church and the State was unscriptural. In the Old Testament law, all support of the Church was to be given of a willing heart, and there is not a single word contained in the whole book advocating force for the promotion of religion. Then in the New Testament it is said by Jesus Christ himself, "My Kingdom is not of this world," shewing clearly enough that He desired the sacred and secular things to be kept entirely separate. Their opponents said they wanted to make the country into a Godless country; the lecturer indignantly repudiated such an imputation, and asked if America and Jamaica were Godless countries, and yet they had no State Church. No citizen should suffer on account of his religious views, or his views about religion, and Bradlaugh—or even as one of the lecturer's friends had humorously observed, Beelzebub himself—ought to be allowed the right of acting as a member of Parliament if he had been duly returned by a constituency. Having referred to the anti-State Church movement, the able lecturer glanced at its rise and progress, and in enumerating some of the blessings already secured through the endeavours put forth by the Liberationists, mentioned the abolition of the Church rate, the improvement in the management of endowed schools, the opening of the Universities to dissenters, the abolition of the Town Council's Oath, the new and improved Burial Laws, and the disestablishment of the Irish Church. The question of Church property was an interesting one; in the event of disestablishment taking place, all that property voluntarily given for the church's use, would be returned to the donors; but the other would be national property, and might well be used in paying off the National Debt, or in other ways be devoted to reducing the taxation of the country. The largest source of income to the Church of the State was the tithe rent charge, (about four or five millions per annum); besides this there had been grants by the Government for the erection of Churches in various parts of the land. The lecturer thanked his numerous audience for their attendance and attention, and he hoped they would work on in the name of truth, justice and righteousness, to gain the desired goal. Interested persons and parties might as well try to oppose the mighty wind and endeavour to turn it from its onward course, as attempt to prevent disestablishment coming. When it came there would be more purity and spirituality in the Church, fewer ungodly persons in the pulpits, and less ungodliness in its own constitution. The lecture closed with a stirring quotation from Dr. Watts, and there followed a long and loud burst of applause.

Mr. Webster, secretary of the Lofthouse Conservative Association, came forward to ask several questions which he thought connected themselves with the subject. The questions were not very clearly put, and as a natural result the answers appeared equally indistinct. Half an hour was taken up in this way, and little information elicited. Several angry words were exchanged, and Mr. George Armitage, Junr., rose to a point of order once or twice. Mr. Samuel Hardwick had also a few words to say, and the discussion dropped.

A vote of thanks was given to the lecturer.

LOCAL BOARD MEETING.

The usual meeting of the Rothwell Local Board was held on Monday evening, present Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman), Holmes, Lawton, Dobson, Newsome, Nowell, Turner, J. Hargreaves, and the clerk, collector and surveyor.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed, on the motion of Mr. Lawton and Mr. Dobson; Mr. Jas. Hargreaves was neutral, only having arrived at the close of the minutes.

One item decided by the Highway Committee fixes the hours of labour for workmen employed by the Board as from 6 till 5 on five days of the week, and till 3 o'clock on Saturdays.

STREETS LIGHTING.—In connection with the subject of lighting portions of the district during the winter, by means of gas lamps, Mr. Lawton moved a resolution of which he had given previous notice, "that the Board arrange for the lighting of Wakefield Road from the Queen Hotel to Jaw Bones." He mentioned that other Local Boards and Authorities attended to this matter throughout their districts, and urged the desirability and necessity of doing this work, on account of the great danger to life and property by the numerous casualties which had happened on this road, especially the two outrages committed within the last two years. The ratepayers in that locality were left without either drainage, water, or light, for all which they had to pay their proportion, and he strongly pleaded for the Board's consideration of this matter. Mr. Nowell was disposed to second the proposal, but, he asked, where will this stop? There was no place required this boon so much as the Long Bridge on the Pontefract Road, and although personally he was not at all nervous about passing through at any time of the night, as he had frequently done, yet there were many who had been molested, and many more who dare not go that road at night. If Mr. Lawton's argument holds good for one part of the district, so it does for another. It was however an improvement, a step in the right direction, and on that account, he supported it. Mr. Dobson urged the serious question that there are no mains on the road, and the chairman followed in the same direction, and reminded members of the heavy rates with which the Board is already handicapped. Let them just get the rates lightened and then consider this matter, the advantages of which he would appreciate as much as anyone. Mr. J. Hargreaves also felt he must go against the motion, because of the present heavy rates. He spoke feelingly of the benefit which lighting Pontefract Road would be, and would willingly go in for both roads, but the cost was a reason against it at present. Mr. Turner said he had a hazy notion that it was the Rothwell Gas Light Co.'s duty to lay mains in their district. They had a monopoly of the gas supply in the district, and he thought they should do it. They were keeping other people out, and it looked very much like "buttering their cake on both sides." Mr. Newsome said he believed that if these roads were to be lighted at all, it must be by the Rothwell Gas Light Co. The chairman stated that Leeds had power to go a mile beyond the borough, but no one could compel either Leeds or Rothwell to lay down mains in any part, except it was clearly shewn that the Company would reap sufficient advantage from the consumption in that locality. Mr. Lawton, in further pressing his proposal, expressed his belief that neither Leeds nor Rothwell would hesitate about putting down mains as desired, and that the houses on the road would take the gas. He was favorable to having the whole district lighted, but brought this portion forward first as an instalment. The chairman viewed with alarm the increase of cost to ratepayers which these proposals would involve, knowing the present state of the district; he would, however, be willing to sanction a lamp or two just beyond the Queen Hotel. Two amendments were proposed, postponing the subject a fortnight for further information, but Mr. Holmes' suggestion was eventually agreed to, on the motion of Mr. Turner and Mr. J. Hargreaves—That the question be referred to the Gas Committee, who shall obtain all information they can, and report to the next meeting.

The Gas Committee were not yet in a position to report on proposed new lamps and alterations, but Mr. Holmes moved the erection of four new lamps at Stourton, feeling that they had had very little done for them lately. Mr. Nowell and Mr. Jas. Hargreaves both seconded this, the latter gentleman withdrawing, so as to allow Mr. Nowell to have the honour. Mr. Lawton was very willing to support the motion, provided one of the lamps came over the railway bridge. (Laughter.) Carried.

Mr. Holmes also obtained leave for the Committee to purchase certain second-hand lamps, offered at a low rate.

Mr. Lawton (referring to there being no report from the Rothwell portion of the Committee) moved that as no lamps were wanted in Rothwell there should be some erected from Wood Lane to Jaw Bones. (Laughter).

Mr. J. Hargreaves moved that the Board advertise in the Rothwell Times for lamplighters during the coming season; seconded by Mr. Lawton, and carried.

WATER.—Mr. Nowell, having intimated that a deputation from the Rural Sanitary Authority are intending to wait on the Leeds Corporation Water Committee as regards the deficiency of water, enquired if a Committee of this Board would not join the Authority on this subject. On the motion of Mr. J. Hargreaves and Mr. Holmes, it was agreed that the chairman, Mr. Lawton and Mr. Turner be appointed the deputation.

HIGHWAYS.—The clerk stated that he had received a 14 days' notice to leave from Wm. Kaye, the road foreman. It also transpired that there is constant friction between Mr. Starkey and the foreman, so that there is no probability of their working together. Kaye had moreover intimated to the chairman that he was wishful to cease work at once, if the Board would allow him. Mr. Lawton, while supporting Kaye's side of the dispute, moved that the resignation be accepted at once and payment made up to date; he understood that the man had got another situation and was wishful to commence at once. Mr. Nowell having seconded the motion, it was carried.

The chairman asked the Committee to decide on some early day for the inspection of the roads in the Board's district. Mr. Holmes, referring to the statement of Mr. Lawton last meeting as to "the wretched condition of Stourton streets," threw out a hint that Mr. Lawton had not been at Stourton since the election. Mr. Lawton warmly denied the insinuation, stating that he had frequently been there, on Saturdays and at other times, and he maintained his point.

Mr. Lawton wished to ask the surveyor if he had ever seen the men start work during the last six months. The surveyor declared that he had done so several times, and on being informed of the author of the charge, he roundly denounced Kaye (the informer) as a liar. The chairman warmly supported the surveyor, whom he had many times seen at work before six. He considered Mr. Starkie one of the ablest surveyors in the neighbourhood, and declared that no man under the Board had done his duty more faithfully than he had. He had seen him twenty or thirty times during the last six months before six o'clock. Mr. Lawton replied that he had as much right to speak out as the chairman or any other member. He had received information which led him to ask this question, and when they were going to lose their foreman, he had a right to ask who was going to see the men start work. The conversation then dropped, and the Committee decided to inspect the roads on Thursday.

HEALTH REPORT.—Dr. Glaister being from home, Mr. Stephenson attended and read the monthly report. During the four weeks ending last Saturday, there have been 18 births (9 male, 9 female) and 6 deaths (4 male and 2 female), against 19 births and 14 deaths last year at this time. The causes of death are: male, 2 years, scarletina; male, 19 months, congestion of lungs; female, 39 years, cancer; female, not certified; male, 11 years, found drowned; male, 3 years, scarletina. In reply to Mr. Holmes, the medical officer said the cases of scarletina were at Stourton, and there were several others. Mr. Nowell reported a case of modified small pox in Rothwell; it appears to have been imported, and Mr. Stephenson promised to pay every attention to the matter, and also to see that every precaution is taken for isolating and disinfecting both this case and those of scarletina. The chairman urged immediate action, especially considering the present warm weather, and the danger of cholera breaking out in England.

SANITARY.—Mr. Newsome, as chairman of the Sanitary and Sewage Committe, reported in detail a number of nuisances which exist in the district, particularly at Stourton. There are several ashpits without doors, and some are improperly constructed. The principal complaints, however, are as regards certain ashpits which are too deep, and must be raised; and also that very few of the sink pipes are supplied with gulley traps; they only have 'S' traps and communiate direct with the main drain. Mr. Nowell claimed to speak with some authority on this subject, and while indebted to the Committee for bringing these matters forward, thought they ought to have been reported by the Inspector. (The Inspector—"they have already been reported.") He said there was not a house but what was properly trapped in the Oulton and Woodlesford district, and he held that there ought to be a house to house visitation and registration, and that even roads should bend before the all important question of health. As to the deep ashpits, if the Medical Officer can certify that such places are prejudicial to health, the Board can close them. Mr. Lawton enquired if Mr. Jordan had been informed of the state of these ashpits, since the Committee had seen them, to which the Inspector replied that he had. Mr. Dobson declared that they never were better attended to. As regards the sink drains, he believed they were all trapped in the cellar. Mr. Holmes said the drainage scheme of Stourton was carried out under Mr. Parkinson's (the Board's engineer) directions, and were all trapped in the cellar. Since that time a far better plan has been discovered, and he believed the landlords would do whatever was reasonable, if approached in a proper manner. The chairman reminded Mr. Lawton and the Board that these houses were built before the Board had any bye-laws, so that any fault of construction was not to be placed on the Board. He then moved that the Sanitary and Sewage Committee be commissioned to get landlords to correct these defects, according to the present requirements. Mr. Newsome, in seconding the resolution, defended the Inspector from the imputation of neglect, having already reported these matters, and invited the Committee to go round with him. Mr. Nowell warmly maintained that whatever had been done under Mr. Parkinson's directions did not matter now; they had frequently to alter their arrangements in Leeds, and they must preserve health, if possible. He believed it was a positive kindness to ratepayers that they should be made to keep the law. The motion having been put, was carried, Messrs Nowell, Holmes and Dobson being neutral.

General District Rate	28	4	4½
Water Rent	10	17	2
Miscellaneous	4	0	0
	£43	1	6½

NUISANCE.—A deputation of property owners in Gillett Lane attended to lay a complaint against Mr. W. Brown for nuisances caused by his disposal of offal and other refuse from his slaughter-house. The case was stated by Mr. W. Ward and Mr. J. Haigh, and supported by Mr. A. Ely and Mr. J. Bennett, from which it appeared that the stench arising from this place is so objectionable that persons decline coming to the houses by the back way, and tenants are leaving the houses unless the nuisance is abated. The chairman expressed the thanks of the Board for the moderation displayed by the deputation in laying their very serious complaint, and assured them that the subject should have immediate attention. In reply to Mr. Lawton, it transpired that the Inspector had already reported these nuisances from various butchers. Mr. Newsome thought this opened again the question of a public slaughter-house. In reply to Mr. Nowell, the bye-law referring to this matter was read, and clearly gives very extensive powers and directions as to the disposal of such refuse. It was finally decided that the Slaughterhouse Committee go thoroughly into this matter.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

THE information contained under the head of marriages last week, was rather startling, but none the less welcome, and I beg to present my humble congratulations to Dr. Purdy on the ceremony lately completed, assuring him that the people will be very pleased indeed to receive the lady of his choice as a resident of our pretty village.

THE affairs of Woodlesford are being attended to in one or two particulars by the Rothwell authorities just now. The best wishes of people here are with those who are making efforts to induce the Midland Railway Co to reduce the fare to Leeds. It is not the first time such efforts have been made; the expediency of moving the passenger station to the bridge, and thus doing away with the present dangerous level crossing, has also been pressed upon the attention of the directors, but without effect so far. We should be content with the reduction of fare as an instalment, however, and trust that the Rothwell deputation—backed by the influence of the Local Board—may succeed where others have failed. The benefit would be more generally felt in this neighbourhood than in Rothwell, and we should be proportionately grateful.

ANOTHER Rothwell project, the rather cool proposition to remove the telegraph office from Woodlesford in order to stave off the possible loss of the Rothwell office, will on the other hand, hardly excite much sympathy here. We are told that the ground for this reasonable proposal is to be found in the 'fact' that the Woodlesford office was opened for the convenience of the colliery, paper mill and pottery businesses, all of which have completely vanished. To put it mildly, this is inaccurate. In the first place, the telegraph office was not opened for the convenience of the businesses above enumerated. There was always a telegraph station here, before the control of the telegraph passed into the hands of the Government, and long before the colliery was thought about. And although the colliery has disappeared, the pottery is still going on as usual, and the mill we trust is only in a state of suspended animation, so that they have not al completely vanished. Those familiar with the science of subtraction will see that there is not much 'fact' left on which to base sound arguments for closing the Woodlesford office. The soundest and indeed the only argument which is likely to influence the Postal authorities is, alas! the want of sufficient business to keep it going. The introduction of sixpenny telegrams will no doubt make a considerable difference in this respect at Rothwell, and we may hope that the loss of the office—which would truly be a calamity—will be averted in a legitimate way by a brisker run of business.

OUR sympathy with the efforts of our Rothwell neighbours which are likely to benefit us, and churlish unwillingness to make any sacrifice on their behalf will no doubt be styled selfishness; but it isn't, it is pure patriotism; the same kind of local patriotism which led our Rothwell friends to entertain the notion of robbing us, for their advantage.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

THE anniversary of the Carlton Band of Hope came to a close last Sunday, when Mr. S. Seanor, of Rothwell, preached two sermons in the afternoon and evening in the Wesleyan Chapel. The Band of Hope children attended in large numbers, and in a very creditable way sang their hymns. A collection was taken at the close of each service which was very liberally supported.

THE main street in Carlton has been left in a very unsatisfactory condition by the Rothwell Gas Light Company, who have been taking up the old 2inch gas mains, and replacing them with these of a much larger size. The north side of the road is very dangerous to vehicles, and it is surely out of order that nearly half of this (at the best), too narrow road, should be left in such an untidy and unsafe state.

IT is rumoured that already there is a new programme spoken of for the Infirmary Demonstration in future years. The profit this year has been so small, that the president, and other members of the executive, are convinced that some means will have to be devised, either for advancing the income or decreasing the expenditure.

THE harvest is very early at Lofthouse. Mr. Wm. Lunn, has several fields of oats ready for leading, which appear to be of very fine quality. It is also satisfactory to observe that Mr. Lunn's experiment in the cultivation of rye has proved a successful one, and the crop is very fine.

THE Lofthouse and Carlton Liberal Association shews as much sign of life as the new Conservative Association for Oulton and Woodlesford did a month or two ago. They are all activity and earnestness now, just as Messrs Boothroyd and Co., were in the spring time; they will however calm down a bit perhaps and before the general election actually arrives, be as harmless as the Oulton and Woodlesford friends are become. It is said that Mr. Webster put Mr. Andrew "one in," last Tuesday evening. Mr. Andrews in the course of his lecture on "Disestablishment" said that "if the tories were not all fools, all the fools belonged to the tories." Of course Mr. Webster, as the Secretary of the Conservative Association had two or three questions to ask, and in connection with the remark I referred to and the way in which the lecturer had spoken out in favour of Mr. Bradlaugh, he said "if the Liberals are not all atheists, do not all the atheists belong to the Liberals?" That was paying him back in his own coin and no mistake, and one would think Mr. Andrew will be careful about making such foolish statements again.

NEXT WEEK we shall have pleasure in publishing an interesting description of a short trip into Scotland, by a Rothwell gentleman.

SEWER GAS IN THE SYSTEM.

For several years the public press has been filled with articles relative to the deleterious effects of sewer gas. Sanitary engineers have racked their brains to devise means for preventing its entry into our houses, so as to avoid the many fatal diseases which are traced directly to its poisonous influence upon the human system. While we have been diligent and watchful in preventing sewer gas from entering our houses, we have been neglectful, and allowed its formation within our own bodies. Sewer gas is as fatal in its effects upon the system whether formed inside our bodies or without. The food taken into the stomach, if not properly digested, ferments, decays, and becomes putrid. The effects of this putrefaction is the production of a gas precisely like sewer gas, and just as poisonous. This poisonous substance enters the circulation, and pervades the whole system, and then people wonder they feel tired and languid, with a swimming dizzy head—wonder why the appetite has failed, and that they feel weak and feeble—they wonder why the breath has become offensive, and that they have pain and distress. But when this matter is fully understood there is no cause to wonder, for this foul gas has poisoned the whole system. The food we eat should be digested, or it does us injury. The familiar saying that "it is not what we eat that makes us strong, but what we digest," is a truthful saying, and we cannot be too particular about the digestion of our food. More than nine-tenths of all our diseases arise from imperfect indigestion. When we know that imperfect digestion is followed by the production of this foul gas within the body, and that it is absorbed into the system as fast as it is formed, is it a wonder that we are ill? The wonder is that we are alive. How important it is, then, that the digestive organs should be made to perform their functions by the timely use of Seigel's Curative Syrup, which has proved an unfailing remedy in such cases. Its reputation is based upon a trial that has extended over a period of many years. It seldom fails.

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell would have gained a very easy victory over Churwell last Saturday if time had only allowed of the game being played out. The visitors took the wickets first, but started badly, Pape dismissing two of the batsmen before a run had been scored. However, by the aid of J. Bell (38), Burton (11), Oliver (10), the score was taken to 92, before the last wicket fell. The honours of bowling fell to J. Tiffany, who took 3 wickets for 6 runs, Pape 4 wickets for 28 runs, and H. Richardson 2 wickets for 17 runs. At the drawing of the stumps Rothwell had lost three wickets for 89, W. Richardson having scored 21, Glover 18, and Pape and T. Dobson not out for 21 and 16 respectively.

Lofthouse and Upper Batley were pitted against each other on Saturday, on the ground of the latter. Batley were first to bat, and made the respectable total of 121, to which W Taylor contributed 43, and Sheard 22; C Talbot, who was batting carefully, after making 17 was severely hurt, and had to retire. Blakeley also reached double figures, making 12. Lofthouse now proceeded to bat, and the first two men, France and Hollings, made respectively 26 and 24, followed by J Noble with 19 (not out). At the call of time, the Lofthouse men had succeeded in compiling 88 for the loss of 4 wickets.

The second eleven of Lofthouse encountered Leeds Star United at Lofthouse. The 'united' efforts of the visitors only succeeded in putting together 52 runs, and only one of the team reached double figures, (J Horner, 12), while 15 extras were registered for them. Lofthouse nicely topped this score, making 76, of which Newell was responsible for 17, John Lunn 16, and Balme 10. Not a single extra is seen in their score, however.

In the last issue of the Times, I observed a letter on "Decline of Rothwell Cricket" signed an "Old Hand," in which he partly accuses me in the first place with not fulfilling my duties. He asks the question "has Rothwell cricket declined?" which he answers in the affirmative, and of course goes on to show how it has. Let me state here at the commencement that "Rothwell cricket" has not of late declined, and under the circumstances, also to remark that taken collectively, the team has performed very well, indeed far better than what I really expected they would do, and it was owing to this fact that I did not see a clear course to reap up anything which I thought would be likely to dishearten them. It is an old saying that "practice makes perfect," and without this, it is not to be expected that our local favourites can shew up in the field without practice as they would if they were doing a little almost every night in the week. To bear this fact out, I will ask my friend "The Old Hand" to take a glance at the coal trade in this district for the past few months, and he will soon learn from the fact that the pits having had to work three and four shifts a day, and topmen from 4 o'clock in the morning till 9 o'clock at night, that there has been very little spare time for practice. But then, "Old Hand" might say, the men in the pit only worked one shift at a time, of which I am fully aware, but they had first to be on the morning shift, then the next week the afternoon, and the third week the night shift and so on, while they even had to work on a Saturday afternoon. I will now deal very briefly with a few points connected with Rothwell cricket, and endeavour to shew that the club has done nearly as good as they did the previous year, and also point out that so far as the season has advanced, the club has more than held its own in all its engagements. Now out of 18 matches played, 6 have been won and 5 lost, while the remaining 7 have been drawn greatly in its favour, as the following will show:—On May 2nd, Altofts 62 and Rothwell 51 for 7 wickets; May 9th, Rothwell 97, and Whitwood 14 for 3 wickets; May 16th, Rothwell 123, and Meanwood 46 for 6 wickets. At Hunslet on May 23rd, Rothwell had the honour of keeping possession of the wickets all the afternoon, scoring 134 runs for 8 wickets, on June 19th, Rothwell 131 and Meanwood 26 for 4 wickets; June 27th, Rothwell 79, Gildersome 74 for 9 wickets, and on August 8th, Churwell 98, and Rothwell 89 for 3 wickets. Thus, every one of the above drawn games, may be safely put down as moral wins for Rothwell. Further, I will put it another way, the opposing clubs which Rothwell have engaged, (amongst them being such noted clubs as Hunslet, Dacre Banks, Churwell, Gildersome, Birstal Young England, etc.) have scored a total number of 1137 runs for 166 wickets or an average 6.141 per wicket, while Rothwell has compiled 1478 runs for 157 wickets, or an average of 9.65 per wicket, which is a plain proof that our club has not disgraced itself this season as regards batting analysis. I now come to the most important part of my argument, which "Old Hand" does not note to any extent, that is the bowling, which he says is no doubt on a line with other departments of the play. If this statement be taken as correct, Rothwell must have done extraordinarily well with cricket this season, as I verily believe they have as fine a bowling analysis as any club in Yorkshire. I will not quote any figures but allow my readers to judge merely from the fact, that only twice, out of the 18 matches played, has there been 100 scored against them, and only on three occasions as high as 80. This is a performance worthy of the name of any club in England, and not to be sneered at as "Old Hand" would like to. I am fully aware that the batting individually, is not of the highest order, but then is it to be expected without practice. Glover has done more than his share with the bat, that everybody admits, and deserves the thanks of all, but "Old Hand" only need look to Hunslet, and he would find a similar case with Tye, and the Hunslet men. I have been going to write a few lines on Ward's case on two or three occasions, but decided to wait and see who was really to blame, the committee or himself, and have come to the conclusion seeing that both sides were a little in fault, not to interfere, for fear of setting them further at variance. I may state that I do not altogether agree with Ward, in playing with Hunslet, and leaving his own club (who have taken such great pains with him in the past), in the mire, but if he is doing it, (as I am told he is) so as to bring his name more prominently before the public, he is doing quite right. But how "Old Hand" can class Ward as a non-member of the Rothwell team, I cannot understand, as he is a member of the club, and gets more practice on the Rothwell ground than any other member does, while he was seen playing in the match Rothwell v. District. I will recommend the writer, before penning his next letter "Decline of cricket" to have a just cause for complaint, and make himself better acquainted with every detail, in connection therewith, rather than base his remarks on on the mere scores which appear from time to time in the paper, and I would also have him understand that batting alone is not the "heart and soul" of cricket, by a long way, as many people ignorant of the general rules of the game wrongly imagine it is.

TOWN TALK.

OUTDOOR Sunday Demonstrations for the benefit of the funds of Hospitals and Infirmaries, seem to have gone down, so far as their financial success is concerned. The Demonstration held at Lofthouse a fortnight ago is one of the most striking examples of this fact. On that occasion, there was every reason why the collection should be as large as in previous years. The weather was fine, and there were no counter attractions in the district that I am aware of, there was a very large audience, but the collection was £10 less than that of last year. At Rothwell, only a few weeks ago, the efforts of the active and influential committee met with the same disappointing result. Those festivals have, during the last year or two, been exceptionally successful, and one is led to say "how strange." And yet it is not strange at all. The reason they turned out so successfully at first was because they were a novelty; this has ceased to be, and they are not so much thought of. I wonder if anybody has noticed that in both instances where the service was held in church, the financial result was far in advance of other years.

FROM a "Public Notice" which has been circulated in the village, and displayed in the shop-windows during this week, I learn that Mr. Snell, of Parlington Park, and who, I hear, is the Lodge-keeper at the entrance to the Park, has missed "a pair of silver bracelets," from a bedroom which several of the people visiting the Park with the Temperance Picnic on Bank holiday, used to wash their hands and faces. This is a most unpleasant business for the promoters of the Picnic, it is unpleasant for all those honest persons using the same room, and very unpleasant indeed for Mr. Snell, I should imagine. The notice referred to says "it is supposed" they "were conveyed away in a mistake;" they appear to have been detained, too, by those making the mistake; but perhaps that may only be a second mistake. I should not like to think that any of the visitors from Rothwell, were so far lost to sense of honesty, and so careless of the good name of Rothwell, as to steal the bracelets, and am inclined to hope they will yet be found elsewhere than in Rothwell; but if they have been brought to Rothwell at all, I dont think the fact that they have not been returned before, will add very much to the reputation of any individual who may have them in his possession. I hope the bracelets will be recovered, and returned to their rightful owner; otherwise Mr. Snell will not welcome the Temperance Society to Parlington again.

THE letter of "An Old Hand" on the Rothwell Cricket Club and its doings, is a very interesting statement. Some of his figures are perfectly startling. It is not for me to attempt to say whether they are correct or not, but in all the talk there has been among the cricketers, I have not heard anyone, say that they are untrue. No doubt either "Point" or some other friend of the Rothwell Club will take up the quill in defence of the village team, therefore I must be content with noticing one sentence in his letter. He says that there is one man in the first team who has only secured 2 runs in four matches. This confirms a notion I have had for two or three years on this subject, and the outcome of my thoughts must consist, I think, in throwing out a single hint for the guidance of the committee in selecting the first eleven for another season. I recommend that a regular system be established, whereby, say the two players of the 1st eleven whose averages are the lowest, be left out of the team, and that two players whose average is highest in the second eleven, be raised into their places. There are those in the 1st eleven, who have about as much qualification for a place there, as some of "the Lords" have for a place in the "Upper House," and moreover, they appear to be as safe of a position, as the know-nothing-Lord is of his seat.

I should like everybody who is entitled to vote in the forthcoming parliamentary election to look after themselves and their vote. Remember the School Board election, when only about half the voters' names appeared in the Rate Books, consequently the men could not vote. There is a list of voters placed at the doors of the various places of worship. It is therefore the duty of every occupier to inspect the list, and see if his name and proper description is inserted therein. If not, there is not much time left, But there is time enough. I believe that the list will be finally closed on the 20th inst, but I am not quite sure, therefore see to it at once.

I am glad to see bills announcing that Mr. B. Pickard is coming over to address us; I hope to be there, to hear what he has got to say. The Rev. Wm. Heaton will make a good chairman, and there are several other good men down to speak.

Sunday Times, June 22nd, 1885.—"Gooness & Co. were the first to bring an old idea to a practical result, and have achieved a high name in financial circles for the way in which they conduct their business for the mutual benefit of their clients and themselves. While the Syndicate system has many features to recommend it, the reliability of the Syndicate managers is the essential thing, and in this association Gooness & Co. stand pre-eminent. It is easy to adopt an idea, but not always feasible to carry it out successfully, as many trusting mortals have found out on venturing to deal elsewhere. The old original store in which business-like coolness is ever present, is at Devonshire Chambers, where a welcome is certain, with profit as its almost inevitable corollary."

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in resisting the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name CONSUMPTION EMULSION. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 153 of his work, entitled "Consumption: Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." [illegible] this speaks volumes for the efficiency of Phthisicon. [illegible] proved of immense value as a curative agent in the early stages of [illegible] Disease and Scrofula; in fact, wherever there is [illegible] lack of nerve power, its action is almost certain. MR. B. PICKARD AT ROTHWELL.

LIBERAL MEETING.

The long-expected visit of Mr. B. Pickard, the Liberal candidate for Normanton division, took place on Monday evening, when a large and enthusiastic meeting was held in the Mechanics' Hall, which was crowded with partizans of both parties, the Liberals, of course, being largely in the majority, though there was a compact and well-defined body of Conservatives present, who occasionally made themselves heard.

The meeting was called for seven o'clock, and shortly after that hour, the platform was filled with leading Liberals of this and other portions of the Division. From some cause or other, most of the gentlemen advertised on the bills, did not make their appearance, to the disappointment of many who would like to have heard the Rev. Mr. McCormick, Councillor Gilston, Mr. Gosney and Mr. Cowey. Local gentlemen, however, filled their places very well, and the meeting was thoroughly successful and satisfactory to the promoters.

Mr. Richard Batty, the secretary of the Liberal party in Rothwell, having very briefly introduced the chairman, the Rev. Wm. Heaton, that gentleman addressed the large audience at some length. After remarking on his family connection with Rothwell, he also expressed his interest in the people in their efforts to take their fair share in political matters, and referred to the enthusiastic meeting of last year, against the action of the House of Lords in trying to stop the progress of the Franchise Bill. He could hardly realise the changes which had taken place since then, for they (the Lords) had not only yielded to the demands of the people, but had even given them more than they asked. He had always found in Rothwell, a few good sound Radicals like himself, and they were determined to rally round the old flag and the "old man" once more, and win still greater victories than in the past. He looked upon the Representation Bills as the fruit of the Education Act, one of the greatest blessings which had ever been bestowed on this nation. It had been said that in the passing of the Franchise Bill, their wildest hopes were realised, but he must say that his hopes were wilder still, and that when the people fully realised their position and power, yet greater and wider reforms would be carried out. Hitherto the landed class had predominated, and even now two-thirds of the House of Commons were connected with the aristocracy, leaving the other third to fight the uphill battles of the people. While he acknowledged that the Irish members had foolishly obstructed progress, he held that much of the obstruction had come from half-hearted professed Liberals themselves. While they wanted 'reform' in the country, the House of Commons itself needed reform, so that their representatives should not be merely professed Liberals, but truly so. Much had been done in the past; by Lord Russell's Act of 1832, half a million voters were added to the lists; by Mr. Disraeli's Reform Bill of 1867, another million were admitted to the Franchise; but by the Act of 1885, no fewer than two million men were allowed to use that privilege, so that now about five million persons have the right to send members to the House of Commons. It only required another Act to enable the remaining million and a half to complete his ideal of manhood suffrage. The people are now the ruling power, and were they going to be such fools as place the power of government in the hands of such men as Lord Randolph Churchill ('No, no,') to be played with anyhow, or to be treated with aristocratic contempt by my Lord Salisbury ('No, no'). Such a dream would soon pass away. Lord Salisbury often made rash statements, and he had been telling people 'that the ballot was not perfectly secret, and that it could be known how a person votes.' He wished to say plainly that no landlord or master can possibly ascertain how you vote, and men must understand that they are perfectly secure. It used to be the custom when any one made a rash statement, or as they would call it in Yorkshire, a 'lie,' that people replied 'That's a Salisbury.' He advised them to make the same reply whenever they heard such declarations as these. He considered that Magna Charta was nothing in importance, as compared with this Franchise Bill, and if they returned the grand old man (loud applause) at the head of the Liberal party, he was prepared to confer greater gifts than he had yet done; his strength was not abated, although his hair was grey with age, and as the result of this far-reaching measure, Mr. Gladstone would be able to do what he desires to do, for a newly enfranchised and noble people. (Applause). In supporting Mr. Pickard they would be sending a good Liberal to aid in this grand work, and especially so, as a working class representative. He was in favor of such men. Other classes were largely represented, and if every class was represented proportionately to the electorate, the House of Commons would be so full of working class members, that there would hardly be room for any other. This, however, would not be carried out, but he maintained that a few such men were necessary, and he warmly commended Mr. Pickard as a worthy coadjutor of Messrs Burt and Broadhurst, and he was sure they would have no cause to be ashamed. (Loud applause.)

Mr. Pickard, the candidate for the Divison, then stood forward, and was very heartily received. After congratulating himself and his audience on having such a chairman, the speaker proceeded to defend his position as a candidate. He came before them not because of his personal qualifications, but because of the principles he professed, and although he accepted the title of a labour representative, he nevertheless claimed the character of a Liberal candidate. He was quite well aware that there were those who found fault with him, and it would be a a wonder if he pleased everybody. He could not be surprised if some of his friends did not agree with his candidature altogether, as many of Mr. Gladstone's friends did not go with him in everything. They had had it dinned into their ears that "the interests of capital and labour were identical" as a reason for voting in favour of capitalists, but he maintained that at any rate the interests of the shopkeeper, the collier, the quarryman, the railway man, are identical; for if the working man suffers by short time and reduced wages, the shopkeeper immediately suffers too, and this again affects the merchant or manufacturer, who finds his sales diminishing. He had been told that he would not be well received in Rothwell, but gentlemen 'must take us as we are; our object is not to pull down and destroy, but to raise the working man, and give him such a position as he ought to have had years ago. He had found that working men were not easily gulled either in trade or in politics; they were usually not only horny handed but horny minded, and knew pretty well how much two half-pennies made. The present Government were trying to gull them by saying that they gave us the Franchise Bill ("They did." "No." "Yes," was heard in all parts of the room). However, it is a fact that the Tory party wouldn't allow the Franchise Bill to pass the House of Lords (applause and dissent). He was not going to quarrel about it, they had got it and if the Tory party gave it they were very thankful, it didn't matter much how it came, they had got it (loud applause). Holding as he did, that the Liberal party had given the Franchise to the people (No, no), that party surely deserved their gratitude. There would be no bought votes now, no bribery; they would have pure elections because now they would vote on principle. He believed their first vote would be a pure vote, and there would be a really representative House of Commons. Mr. Pickard proceeded to recount certain Bills which he thought could not be denied as the gift of the Liberal party, although Sir R. Cross had been speaking as if the Tories had done everything, and the Liberals nothing. He mentioned the Mines Regulation Act, by whose provisions many a man was living today who would not have been; a law which compelled careless masters to protect their workmen. He only wished that certain precautions could be carried out, only allowing persons of a certain age to go down the pit, but the present regulations were far in advance of the time when children were carried down on the backs of their fathers; he rejoiced that no one could work half-time till over ten years, nor full time till 13 years of age, whereby an opportunity was afforded lads of getting information before they commenced carrying the burdens of life. By the Employer's Liability Act, bad masters were compelled to make their works as safe as good masters did willingly, and provided for compensation and help where injury and death had been caused by the want of thought in protecting unsafe places. In the Agricultural Holdings Act, the Tories got a clause inserted which took away the very pith of the benefit to farmers, but the Liberals had it altered. The Liberals had done much for the farmers. By the Game law, the farmer had now the right to kill and destroy any hares and rabbits found on his land. The Malt Tax had also been repealed ("But was put on to beer"). The Liberals also passed the Ballot Act whereby all may vote without fear or favour, rich and poor alike. They cannot go and bribe the new two millions, the same as they used to bribe the 650,000 of old. It was out of their power. He had been told there were colliery managers and colliery deputies trying to make the men believe that the ballot was not secret, but he urged them to understand that after placing the ballot paper into the box, no one ever knew how that paper was filled up, unless there was no honour in the country. If they were silly enough to tell any one what they had done, they did as they liked; otherwise no one could know. He would not go as far as the Rev. Mr. Kennedy, who had been telling his people that "if they had any cause to fear an employer, to use deception, and of two evils to choose the least. If he must have an answer, tell your master a lie with your tongue in preference to marking with your pencil a terrible lie against yourself, your family, your class, your county and your God." He objected altogether to such advice, and would have them vote according to principle, and simply reply to any question, that they 'had voted as they thought best.' (A voice "what about them stopping my lamp for shewing opposition at the Conservative meeting." Great confusion followed with cries of "Order." "Chair." "Put him out.") Continuing, Mr. Pickard claimed the Corrupt Practices Act as the result of Liberal activity. He warmly advocated the need for the reformation of the House of Commons itself, declaring that he had heard of and listened to such speeches and sentiments in that House as would not have been published in the Pall Mall Gazette itself. The House had too much to do, and he would distribute their work. What about the House of Lords? ("Shift 'em." "Fay 'em out.") They had seen Mr. Gladstone make Bishops, and they had also had to witness the same Bishops "Forget their maker." If Mr. Morley's agitation had continued, and Lord Salisbury had not managed to compromise the opposition of the Lords to the Franchise Bill, they would have seen a change in the composition of that House before now. As regards Disestablishment, he was one of those who believed that the National Church should be disestablished at once. He held that every church should support its own ministry, and that any man converted might preach the gospel, if he felt qualified to do so, without any Bishop or ritual. In connection with this subject and the intolerance of some, Mr. Pickard quoted the story told a short time ago, of a curate visiting an old woman; on ascertaining that she was a Methodist he took his leave saying "she was certainly on the road to hell." Then, said she, after a pause, "we shall meet again." (Laughter.) The Land laws needed alteration so as to make transfer of land, easy, quick and cheap; he could not understand why should they not be able to buy land as easily as a ton of coals, or a load of potatoes; he would also have land compulsorily registered so as to secure these objects with safety. He was thoroughly in favour of County Government Boards and denounced the enormous expense entailed on companies desiring to cut a few miles of canal or to build a short line of railway; he considered that County Boards composed of members from various localities and of different qualifications, would be able to transact much of the business which is now undertaken by Parliament, and would do it much more economically. He approved of Home Rule to this extent, that Ireland should have equal laws with England, and that no further coercion should be used there than would be used here. On Temperance questions, he was thoroughly in harmony with the Local Option resolution, and as the landlords say the majority is in their favour, they ought to be quite willing to accept this proposal. He would also close all public houses and clubs on Sundays. While a believer in Vaccination, he objected to cumulative penalties; if a man is fined once, he should not be punished any further for that offence. In regard to foreign policy he did not believe that war was good for trade; he held they had nothing to gain by war at all, and he would simply act on the defensive on foreign subjects He ridiculed the Royal Commission on Trade Depression, and wished to know what they were going to do. In 1873. 107 millions was turned over in the coal trade, which in 1885 had increased to 160 millions. There were 4000 more miners in Yorkshire pits now than twelve years ago. The imports had advanced from 371 millions in 1873 to 512 millions in 1885; the exports had risen from 255 millions, to 349 millions now. The volume of trade had greatly increased, but the profits had gone down; 125 millions of coal sold for a profit of 14 millions, whereas 160 millions now sells for 7 million profit. Sir J. Pease says the iron industry has diminished in profits from 7 millions in 1878 to 3 millions in 1885. Here comes the question for enquiry; who is to have the benefit of trade? Mr. Pickard then brought his address to a conclusion, promising that if returned, he should use his utmost endeavours to further the interests of those who were so very inadequately represented, and endeavour to work with such men as Mr. Burt and Mr. Broadhurst, who had won the highest opinions both from Liberals and Conservatives. (Loud cheers followed the close of the address).

The chairman having invited questions, Mr. Inman, of Oulton, proposed one or two, which however did not lead to anything of note. A person who had previously interrupted, asked if it was consistent to take away his livelihood, because he attended the Conservative meeting? (in opposition). A scene of considerable confusion ensued, in which several voices were heard, the promoters of the meeting endeavouring to silence the man; Mr. T. Whitehead also endeavoured to speak (we understood) in defence of the masters, but silence was eventually obtained.

Dr. Nowell then moved a resolution declaring Mr. Benj. Pickard "to be a fit and proper person to represent the Normanton division in Parliament, and pledging the meeting to use its utmost endeavours to secure his return."

He made merry over the old constituencies of 3 voters returning two members, and of the one that was "out at sea" and rejoiced that the country would be fairly represented now. He was pleased with the Conservative meeting, though he supposed it was a matter of necessity that they should come 'cap in hand' and do their best to gain the ear of the people. He trusted the present meeting would emulate that one. Mr. Sam. Seanor briefly seconded the motion, expressing his pleasure in hearing Mr. Pickard's address. He was no great politician. He acted on his own opinions, and never asked his workmen how they voted on any question, leaving them perfectly at liberty.

Mr. McInnes, of Wakefield, supported the resolution in a bold, incisive address, urging the claims of the Liberal candidate, as one of the party whose great aim it had ever been to broaden their liberties and secure their social and political advancement. Considerable excitement was caused by the statement that a leading Conservative had proposed that the tenant farmers 'shall have a bonus of £1 an acre for all wheat grown by them in England.' He put this alongside Mr. Lowther's motion of a 5s. tax on corn, as another attempt to bamboozle the electors. He warmly contended for an increase of working class representatives of whom there were so few, and that Mr. Pickard would be a worthy member for this division. On being put, the motion was enthusiastically carried by a large majority, about twenty hands being held up against. Mr. Pickard having returned thanks, expressed his satisfaction that at all his meetings, he had been supported almost unanimously.

The chairman having to leave at this stage, a hurried but cordial vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Heaton, on the motion of Mr. Pickard, and supported by Mr. J. Turner, who considered that their chairman had far outweighed any orator the Conservatives had produced.

Dr. Nowell having taken the chair, Mr J. R. Seanor moved a resolution of unabated confidence in Mr. Gladstone and the Liberal leaders. Ever since he was a lad he had felt admiration for Mr. Gladstone, (loud cheers) and although few men, Liberals or Conservatives, can go through political life without enduring much criticism and fault-finding, and committing some failures, yet he still retained the highest veneration for the grand old man. Some of his friends wondered that he should be a Liberal, the same side as atheists and Republicans. What right, he asked, had he to leave a good cause, because one man who was an atheist had joined it. Although Wesleyan Methodists were a non-political body, he believed there were more Liberals among them to-day than ever there were. He was trying to act as a sincere and conscientious politician; he believed that labour had a perfect right to be represented, and from his address that night, he believed Mr. Pickard was a worthy and experienced man, and a good Liberal candidate. Mr. S. Batty seconded the resolution, hoping the time would soon come when all would be able to vote on equal terms, and highly eulogising the "grand old man," whose works and good name would never die. The resolution was then carried and the meeting closed.

OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

The monthly meeting was held at the Board room on Tuesday evening last, present, Dr. Nowell (presiding), and Messrs. Farrer and Flockton. The clerk gave the financial statement for the month, and cheques were drawn for the salaries and accounts amounting to £50 16s 4d, the salary account including the salaries paid quarterly, viz., those of the clerk attendance officer, and pupil teachers. The clerk also stated that the half-year's instalment of principal and interest on the School Loan Account, amounting to £111, would be due next month, he having received the usual notification of the fact. The application of Emily Langstaff to be taken as a candidate in the Girls' School for the remainder of the year was considered and declined, the Board not thinking it expedient to make a temporary arrangement of the kind, and the teaching staff at present being sufficient. The recent decision of the High Court of Justice respecting 'sufficient' attendance of children at school was then considered, and a letter from the Education Department in reply to an inquiry of the clerk on the subject, was read. The effect of the decision is that sufficient attendance includes payment of school fees, and that although the child may regularly attend school, such attendance is not legally complete unless the fees are regularly paid, and the parents are therefore in such case liable to a penalty the same as for the personal absence of the child from school. The clerk was instructed to issue a public notice to that effect, so that the new liability of parents with regard to non-attendance may become known.

LOFTHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

A meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday night at Robin Hood School; the members present were Messrs. T. Oliver (chairman), J. Armitage, J. Hammill, T. Hargreaves and H. Hall, with Mr. J. H. Lee (the clerk), and head teachers.

A long time was occupied in hearing several applications for remission of fees; one case only was considered deserving, which the Board granted. Cheques were signed for salaries and cleaning at Robin Hood School £21 9s. 8d., at Carlton £18 3s. 2d.; Mr. G. W. Fairburn one-third Government grant, £42 13s. 2d.; coal account, £21 11s. 0d.; books, stationery, etc., £13 18s. 8d.; and £10 additional salary was granted to Mr. J. Shinning for the favorable result of the examination at Robin Hood School.

The inspector's report of Carlton School was read and considered. It stated that very little improvement had been made since last year, and that the school was in a very backward state. The grant is £127 19s. 7d., against £140 16s. 0d. last year. The pupil teachers have also done badly, no grant whatever being obtained by them. The Board had an interview with Mr. Fairburn, the head teacher, which resulted in his resigning his post, also that of his wife, who is assistant teacher. The Board arranged to advertise for fresh teachers, at the same salaries as before.

"ACROSS THE BORDER,"

ROUGH NOTES OF A VISIT TO THE "LAND O' CAKES."

For some years past I have had a longing desire to pay a visit to "bonnie" Scotland, but until lately the "time and opportunity" did not arrive Thanks, however, to the "Festival of St. Lubbock," or properly speaking, Bank Holiday, with its usual list of excursions to all parts, amongst the number was one to Edinboro' and Glasgow, per North Eastern Railway, the trip to extend over four clear days. This was certainly an opportunity "too good to be lost," and having quickly decided that "now's the day, and now's the hour," it found me, accompanied by a friend, who "with his repairs uses the very best of leather" at the new station, Leeds, at 11 p.m. on Friday, July 31st, ready and eager for the journey As it was night time and consequently dark, we were unable to distinguish anything on the way, so all that was left to be done was to make ourselves as comfortable as circumstances would allow, and pay attention to sleep. Our first stoppage was at York, where a delay of nearly an hour caused us to be behind time the rest of our journey. We had very few stations to call at to take up passengers, only Thirsk, Northallerton, and Darlington; at each of these we received additions to our already large number, and then on past Durham with its famous cathedral, which we did not see, on to Newcastle and the coaly Tyne. As the river was crossed over the far-famed High Level Bridge, the rows of gas lamps on each side gave it a very pleasing appearance. A short stay was made at Newcastle, and by the time of re-starting daylight had appeared, so the rest of our long run was more pleasurable as it then became possible to see the points of interest on the way. Still the country was not very interesting until our arrival at Berwick, a town of historical note, and just on the border of the two countries of England and Scotland. The rest of our journey was a continual change of scenery, glimpses of the briny ocean, well wooded hills, nicely situated villages, &c., these combined made up a panorama of pleasing variety. Of the towns between Berwick and Edinburgh, at the sight of one or two we could hardly help mentally referring to past events which have given them a place in history, viz:—Dunbar, the scene of one of Cromwell's "crowning victories"; Prestonpans, where in 1745 a long and stubborn battle was fought (did it not last a quarter of an hour?), during the rebellion headed by the Pretender. The train was greatly relieved of its burden at Edinboro', but having the chance of spending a day there before our trip concluded, we for a double reason decided to go on to Glasgow. Even then we did not arrive at that city "all at once," for owing to there being such a steep incline into the station the train had to be let down in numbers, and held back by brakes weighing from twelve to twenty tons each. So ended the first part of our travels after a journey of eleven hours Having a friend who is stationed at Paisley, the town of thread-making fame, six miles from Glasgow, we made that our head quarters during our stay, and after a hurried meal took train again to Greenock in order to catch the Saturday afternoon boat for a trip down the Clyde. This was really a most enjoyable excursion, and must prove a great boon, and very health-invigorating to the hundreds and thousands of toiling workmen and their families, who during the week are forced to be 'mewed up' in the city. The sights were really splendid and well repaid the small expense incurred, one and sixpence for a voyage the best part of a hundred miles. There were several landing stages where passengers could get off as they wished, but we went as far as possible, to Rothesay Bay, a beautiful resort. It reminded me of the Welsh Llandudno, and for the two or three hours of our stay, we were delighted. Starting back about eight o'clock we got home at 11-30, well pleased, well satisfied, well tired, and well,—ready for bed.

The next day being Sunday, it was naturally rather quieter than the previous one. We took part in the morning service at the English Church, and on our way thither were agreeably surprised to find such large numbers of people wending their way to different places of worship, a state of things we are not used to here, at least to the same extent; but then we were in Scotland, where the sabbath to all appearance, is held in higher esteem than in our own country. In the afternoon we went to Glasgow to see the sights, Argyle Street, &c., the different bridges, also the "Square" containing a whole host of statues, Royal Personages, Generals, Statesmen, and prominent citizens. We could not help noting this fact, wherever you went you could always find a number of these memorials, and it would appear the remark made by a lady to me, "that either living or dead, the Scotch like big folk" was a correct one. Passing to another part of the city we saw some of the poorest and most wretched places of habitation it is possible to imagine, and one wondered however the inmates managed to exist under such miserable surroundings. What struck us as being a peculiarity was the living in houses, some six or seven stories high, but instead of "one house to a family" and so being "t'maister i mi awn house" as we often hear in Yorkshire, different families live in separate flats or "stairs up," so that it is possible for you to be ignorant of, not your next door, but your "up above" neighbours.

Glasgow Green, the "Vicar's Croft" of the city, is a large open space similar to Hunslet Moor, where many congregate to discuss different subjects. We found a mixture of assemblies, some talking politics, others religion, spiritualism, teetotalism, and many other items One of the orators in question, on the subject of drink was really clever and amusing, and we stayed for some time listening to his remarks The address was full of witty sayings and bristled with humour, and his condemnation of "double distilled dynamite" and personal references to some in the crowd, who took it all in good part, seemed to be fully appreciated by the majority of his hearers. The University of Glasgow, a noble building at the opposite end of the city overlooks the West End Park, a splendid one too, beautifully laid out with ornamental flower beds. This we should judge from the crowds there, is a favourite and fashionable promenade for the citizens.

Monday morning found us stirring pretty early. We were for a time undecided as to what should be the day's proceedings, whether to stay in Paisley and visit Messrs. Clark & Co's. thread mills and other places, which no doubt would have been a treat, or take a trip to Lochs Lomond and Long. We chose the latter and were well repaid for our —well not trouble, but choice. Taking "circular tour" tickets (which is by far the best plan when travelling any great distances, as it saves the annoyance of repeated "bookings," besides being being less expensive) we took train at Glasgow for Loch Lomond, passing on our way Dumbarton, famous for its castle, also the Singer Manufacturing Co's Works. These premises we were informed, cover an area of 35 acres, truly an expensive affair for the manufacture of machines to "stitch, stitch, stitch." On our arrival at Balloch, a terminus of the Lake, we found a steamer waiting to convey passengers to wherever their tickets allowed them to go. It really is a splendid treat to run up this, the "Queen of Scottish Lakes," high mountains rising from the edge of the water, and covered with beautiful vegetation, here and there a snug little cottage or villa residence; these coupled with the islands in the lake, proved such a sight as has not been our pleasure previously to witness. Unfortunately rain came on, which in a slight measure damped our ardour, but taking advantage of the good things provided on board, we got a "proper feed" at a reasonable cost, which kept us good humour, and then after a run of over two hours arrived at Tarbeb, our destination. A change was now made into an omnibus which conveyed us to the head of Lock Lay. After a not very comfortable "wait" we started on our homeward journey, which as regards scenery was a continuation of the earlier part. My advice to intending tourists is take the same route, for the fare is not expensive, the fare on board steamer is good, and given fair weather, you'll enjoy yourselves.

On the Tuesday the Railway Co. allowed those holding excursion tickets to travel from Glasgow to Edinburgh by any ordinary train. As we wished to see as much as possible, we got an early start, and arrived at the 'Modern Athens' in good time. Of all the towns and cities it has been my lot to visit, Edinburgh outshines them all. It has this advantage too, you are able to see at a glance all the chief places of interest, such as Prince's St., The Castle, Sir Walter Scott's Monument, National Gallery, Calton Hill, etc. We visited each of these, and found something to remember and admire. On leaving Waverley Station you immediately come into such a street as cannot be found in any other part of the United Kingdom. Extending for over a mile, on one side is a continuous row of splendid hotels and shops, whilst the other side is beautifully laid out in gardens. Edinboro' Castle, which has an important history, stands 500 feet above the sea level, a seemingly impregnable fortress. It is now used as barracks for soldiers, and during our visit different companies were actively engaged at musket, bugle, and other drill. Not being as yet troubled with 'dynamite scares,' strangers are permitted to stroll into the different parts, and inspect the Crown Jewels, the Chapel, etc., sights which should not be missed. Sir Walter Scott's Monument is a real work of art, erected in Prince's St. Gardens at a cost of over £1,600, as a national tribute to the great poet and novelist. It is over 200 feet in height, and by ascending 287 steps you get within 20 feet of the top. From this eminence you have a splendid bird's eye view of the city. For anyone troubled with 'rheumatiz' in the knee joints, we can safely recommend an ascent as an antidote for the same. The National Gallery, containing a splendid collection of pictures, as also the Museum, where specimens of 'everything' can be found, are both worthy of—and well repay—a visit. Calton Hill was also mounted, and the several monuments there erected, examined; one building, after the Grecian style, is in an incomplete state, owing, it is said, to a scarcity of cash to finish, an instance of 'beginning to build, and not counting the cost.' Just below lies Holyrood Palace, which of course we must visit, owing to its past and present history. We obtained tickets at one of the entrances, which admitted us to certain rooms of importance, viz., the Banqueting Hall, Queen Mary's Rooms, etc The place was shown us where the murder of Rizzio, the Queen's favourite attendant, was committed by the accomplices of Darnley, and even the blood-stained floor along which his body was dragged from the actual place of murder. It is of no use repeating a story in which none of the actors play a very good part. Leaving here we took a tram to Portobello, a favourite watering place, and very much enjoyed the scene, as it is a very pretty resort, and will be convenient for those living in Edinboro' to pop down and have a sniff of—or a dip in —the sea. Our return from here brought the time at our disposal into a very small compass, so after perambulating the streets for a time, we made our way to the station, to catch the train leaving at 11 o'clock for England. After a rather tedious delay, our homeward journey commenced, and eventually we arrived home all safe, and can only say in conclusion that our excursion to Scotland proved an entire success, and if I have before this tired your readers (though I hope not) with what may perhaps be rather a dry description, I think they will agree we 'saw all it was possible to see;' and I can only say to all "Go and do likewise," and you'll never regret it.

ROTHWELL OLD BAND.—On Tuesday last the band performances which have now become a regular thing once a week on Hunslet Moor during the summer, were brought to a close. The Rothwell Old Band, (who have been favoured with three engagements at this place this season) brought up the rear, and again gave every satisfaction, by their careful rendering of various selections.

CONCERTINA BAND CONTEST.—On Saturday afternoon, the Stanley Band inaugurated the first Concertina Band Contest, £8 being offered in prizes. Mr. S. Fowler, bandmaster, of Rothwell, and Mr. J. Plows, of Lofthouse, acted as judges. Their awards were as follows:—

There was also a solo contest, five performers entering A gala concluded the proceedings.

SALVATION LIFE GUARDS.—This regiment of the Salvation Army left Clapton for Hull on Wednesday, on board steamer, under the orders of 'Commandant Herbert Booth' and other officials, and arrived at their destination yesterday morning about ten o'clock, after rather a stormy passage. After a short stay in Hull, they purpose visiting Beverley, York, Castleford, Normanton, Wakefield, Leeds and other places.

MISS BREWSTER.—On Sunday morning this talented lady commenced a series of evangelistic services in the Wesleyan Chapel, which have attracted large and deeply interested congregations. On Sunday afternoon Miss Brewster addressed the children, and in the evening the chapel was filled. Services have been held every evening since, and a well attended meeting for women on Wednesday afternoon. This lady has a remarkable power of description and her word-pictures are full of pathos and reality, the effect of which must ever remain on the minds of those who hear. It is believed her addresses have been blessed to many hearts, and her visit will long be remembered with pleasure.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

THE unpretending little show of the Methley Horticultural Society, held on Monday at the neighbouring village, was attended with a success which has increased annually during the five years of its existence. The managers wisely restrict their aim and object to the encouragement of flower culture amongst cottagers and amateurs who are residents in Methley. They are thus enabled to obtain a show of considerable local interest, while at the same time they avoid the serious risk which is involved in a lavish outlay on objects which many people consider to be outside the province of such a society. In promoting affairs of this kind there is a tendency to incur heedless and unnecessary expense which makes the contingency of unfavorable weather, a serious discouragement to those who have to meet the loss. Upon this rock was wrecked the Woodlesford Horticultural Society, which had a meteor-like career of short but startling brilliance, followed by sudden and complete extinction. The old established show at Rothwell has also this year lapsed into the limbo of departed institutions. What is the cause? Is it because people are tired of cultivating, or admiring the beauty of flowers and other products of nature and art, and that subscribers are becoming unwilling to assist in promoting a healthy taste for this kind of enjoyment, and occupation of spare time; or is it because the Flower Show proper was being gradually pushed out of its place as the primary consideration by other interests which people were not so generally disposed to support.

MR Pickard seems to have had a very successful meeting at Rothwell on Monday evening. The new polling district of Woodlesford and Oulton, will no doubt also come in for a share of the attentions of the Liberal candidate and his friends. A challenge from the enemy might rouse the slumbering energies of the nearly defunct Conservative Association, which a few months ago, with the proverbial thoroughness of a new broom, was sweeping away all traces of Liberalism from the district. And, while our Conservative friends are listening to denunciations of Lord Salisbury and Lord Randolph Churchill and their unholy proceedings, they will have an opportunity of emulating the self-restraint of the Liberals who listened quietly to the vituperation and invective directed against Gladstone and his colleagues at the Conservative public meetings.

WE were unpleasantly reminded here this week that the recent serious colliery disputes are not yet altogether closed, by the visit of a deputation from Frystone colliery, who were seeking help to alleviate the acute suffering entailed by the protracted lock-out. It appears that the miners came out in the first instance to resist the reduction of 10 per cent., but when they decided to return to work at the reduced rate, the company were unable to resume, and the men were compelled to wait a few weeks longer. Finally, when the company were prepared to start the men, a fresh grievance arose as to a check-weighman, and the dispute is as far from settlement as ever. The men are said to have lost from £12,000 to £15,000 in wages during the strike, and the suffering is intense.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

IT is said that Mr. and Mrs. Fairburn, of the Carlton School, are about resigning their duties, and that another master is to try his hand in this school. They have made themselves very agreeable, and it is a pity we should have to lose them. The schools under the Lofthouse and Carlton School Board broke up yesterday for three weeks' holiday.

TOWN'S MEETING.—Yesterday evening, a well-attended meeting of Carlton ratepayers was held at the Board School, Mr. Thos. Oliver in the chair. The meeting had been called in reference to the bad state of the main road at Carlton. A few weeks ago the Rothwell Gas Light Co. laid new mains in the village, and drains had been broken into during the operation, while, after the work was done, the roads were left in a fearful state. A deputation of directors from the Gas Company attended the meeting, and after hearing the complaint, promised to make good the road to the satisfaction of the surveyors. This was accepted, and a resolution was afterwards passed unanimously, that if the roads were not put into proper repair legal proceedings be taken.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT (MONDAY.)

THEFT OF BRASS.—P. C. Seal brought before the magistrates a man named Thomas Binns, 78 High Street, Leeds, who is out on ticket of leave, charged with stealing a brass "bush" weighing 18lbs, which was concealed on his body. The constable's suspicion was aroused by observing something under the man's vest, and on raising it he found this heavy bush tied above his hip with a cord round his body. This was on Friday last about a quarter to three on New Lane, Middleton. The prisoner was remanded till to-day in order to obtain further information respecting four brass "bushes" belonging to Messrs. C. Grosvenor & Sons, of New Hall Colliery, which had been taken away some time on the 10th or 11th inst. The large 'bush' has been identified by an Ardsley firm.

GAME TRESPASS AT ROTHWELL HAIGH.—W Cooper, labourer, of Carlton, was charged with trespassing on the 6th inst., on land occupied by Messrs. Whiteley's executors, Mr. Walker, of Beeston, having the right of shooting. P. C. Slimmon proved the case, and Cooper was fined 4s. and costs 16s.

"THE appearance upon entering (Providence House 42, North Street, Leeds), gave us an idea of a fairyland of Furniture and Crystal palace of mirrors."

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell journeyed to Birstal on Saturday last, to engage in the return match with Birstal Young England, and succeeded in effecting another easy victory over their opponents The home team went in and made a good all round score of 59, A Smith (the only player reaching double figures) being head scorer with 16. J Tiffany again trundled exceedingly well on this occasion, as in six overs and 4 balls he took 5 wickets, at a cost of 10 only runs; Pape also did well at the beginning, capturing 2 wickets in 3 overs for three runs, but proved rather expensive the next two overs, and had in consequence to be taken off, as no less than 12 runs were scored off him in the same number of balls. The brothers Richardson (Walter and Harry) put 29 on for the first wicket, when the latter was unfortunately thrown out for 15. Walter Richardson was also disposed of when he reached the same figures, but Glover, the highly respected Rothwell professional brought out his bat for a nicely got 37. None of the remaining batsmen showed up and at the drawing of the stumps, the score was 85 for eight wickets.

The Rothwell 2nd appears to be "coming out," as on Saturday, they kept the Leeds Middle Class School men "leather hunting" nearly all the afternoon, compiling the respectable total of 125. Towards this number J W Chadwick, who on former occasions this season has been seen to advantage, was again successful, and put together 25. H Chapman, (a promising young colt) must have also exhibited some fine cricket as he brought out his bat for 22. The other members of the team who reached double figures were G Hammill 17, and Willie Richardson and A Cromack 12 a-piece. The visitors had not long to bat, but succeeded in putting together 12 runs without the loss of a wicket.

Lofthouse proved their superiority over Methley by vanquishing them on Saturday, at Lofthouse. The home eleven defended the wickets first, and compiled a total of 130, to which Chadwick contributed 33, S Ward 25, T Moss, 23 (not out), Hollings 19, and France 12. Methley made a poor attempt at reaching their opponents score, as they only managed to put together 48, Berry being top scorer with 13 (not out), followed by Laycock (10), this state of affairs being partly due to the good bowling of Hollings and Asquith.

Rothwell Temperance are again showing up, and this time they journeyed to Hunslet, and encountered the firm of Nicholson and Son. The united efforts of the "firm" only compiled some 37 runs, Johnson being at the top with 10, while Rothwell put together 96, the chief contributors to this score being C Bolderson (26), and Fielding (12). The smallness of the Hunslet score is accounted for by the good bowling of J E Ward, who took 7 wickets at a cost of 6 runs, —a very creditable performance.

Woodlesford were at home on Saturday, opposed by Roundhay. The home eleven went in to bat first, but (with the exception of J Hirst) simply made no stand at all, as they were all got out for 35, of which number Hirst was responsible for 18, and G Abbey 6 (not out), with 5 extras, thus leaving 9 men with four runs between them. The good bowling of Goodall and Hopkinson had a good deal to do with bringing about the result. The Roundhay team vastly improved on their opponents' score, as before retiring they had made 89, Kelk being at the top with 34, and Goodall next with 19, although none of the other men showed up particularly in the scoring.

TOWN TALK.

I had a pretty lively time of it on Monday night; what with the Tory bluster surrounding me, and brother Smart's interjections about "stopping his lamp" combined with the general crowding at the lower end of the room, I felt at the finish as though I had been undergoing the "sweating" process commonly known as a Turkish bath. However, I must have a word in about the meeting. If all had followed the example of Mr. Richard Batty, we should have only just had time to settle down and give a cheer, before it was time to be out. "Brevity is the soul of wit" is evidently one of Mr. Batty's "tit bits." The Rev. Wm. Heaton is a splendid chairman, and kept things going beautifully. His speech was decidedly the gem of the evening, and paved the way nicely for Mr. Pickard. As the chairman intimated our would-be member has many good qualities; he is physically strong and healthy (an important item for an M.P. now-a-days); he has distinct opinions and is able to expound them in plain English; he perfectly understands his position and is prepared to defend it, as a labour candidate; he is not so red a radical as many supposed, and is temperate both as regards Home Rule, Vaccination, and other questions. He is thoroughly with dissenters and teetotallers, and this will go a long way in Rothwell. His speech altogether was successful, as was shown by the increasing enthusiasm which pervaded the meeting, and although I dare say many of our better class Liberals looked askance at him before Monday night, the general body will join together for his return. I was rather tickled with the "get up" of Dr. Nowell, who was evidently in the highest spirits, and graced the occasion in evening dress, but he spoke well, much better than usual. I couldn't help asking myself, and no doubt others wondered, too, where are the advertised speakers? Has something gone wrong? Mr. McCormick was not there, from Castleford; a splendid speaker I understand. Mr. Cowey would be greatly missed by the colliers, I know. Mr. Gosney was fully expected by many. And Peter, where was he? Our constant friend, Councillor Gilston, should certainly have turned up, he would have wound the meeting up to concert pitch quick, and my Tory friends would have had to shriek pretty loud to drown his voice and influence. Another question,—who were those strangers on the platform, who simply occupied the seats these well known speakers should have used? However, with the exception of Mr McInnes, of Wakefield, who "sprang a mine" by that "£1 an acre on wheat," our local men filled up very nicely. The little episode after the meeting closed, must have been eminently satisfactory to brother Smart, who though prevented from airing his grievance during the meeting, had full swing at the finish. I thought he was going to warm Mr. Editor for not burning his fingers by publishing that precious letter "libellous and incorrect," but the incident was only mentioned to let everybody know that the Editor had expressed the opinion "that he ought to go and help Mr. Pickard" the menial labour of coal getting being far beneath a man of brains and eloquence like Mr. Smart.

IT's taken the Woodlesford and Oulton people a long time to form an opinion on the proposal made by some Rothwell gentlemen, to abolish the Woodlesford Telegraph Office, in preference to that at Rothwell. The thoughts of the writer of "Woodlesford and Oulton Notes" on the subject, are quite in harmony with most of his notions on questions affecting Rothwell. He does not pretend to answer my arguments concerning the claims of the two places; he evidently perceives that they are sound, and unanswerable. He says that what I say concerning the opening of the Woodlesford Office is not a 'fact.' His version of the origin certainly is equally untrue, which says that 'there was always a telegraph station here.' I was wrong, I admit, in saying that the office was opened for the convenience of the paper mill, colliery and other businesses; I ought more correctly to have said that all the business done was on their account. But then it is of secondary importance what was the cause of the opening of the office; the question is, at which place is it most needed? and I certainly hold that one office for Rothwell and one for Oulton and Woodlesford, is more reasonable than leaving Rothwell out in the cold altogether, while Oulton and Woodlesford enjoy the boon of two offices.

MR. Starkie, the surveyor, had a rather warm time of it at the last Local Board meeting. They seemed to come on to him on all sides. But he has a pretty broad back in more senses than one, and what he could not bear he would be capable of throwing off without much trouble. One source of much trouble has been the disagreement between the surveyor and foreman; and now that the foreman is leaving the employ of the Board there is a good prospect of quieter times.

"FACTS and Rumours" is a new 'head,' recording news, etc., from the Lofthouse and Carlton side of the district. I very cordially offer the writer a shake of the hand, and hope he will continue long and steadily to follow his good and useful work. Mind some of your 'facts' are not simply 'rumours,' and be careful that the 'rumours' have a bit of fact in them.

SEWER GAS IN THE SYSTEM.

For several years the public press has been filled with articles relative to the deleterious effects of sewer gas. Sanitary engineers have racked their brains to devise means for preventing its entry into our houses, so as to avoid the many fatal diseases which are traced directly to its poisonous influence upon the human system. While we have been diligent and watchful in preventing sewer gas from entering our houses, we have been neglectful, and allowed its formation within our own bodies. Sewer gas is as fatal in its effects upon the system whether formed inside our bodies or without. The food taken into the stomach, if not properly digested, ferments, decays, and becomes putrid. The effects of this putrefaction is the production of a gas precisely like sewer gas, and just as poisonous. This poisonous substance enters the circulation, and pervades the whole system, and then people wonder they feel tired and languid, with a swimming dizzy head—wonder why the appetite has failed, and that they feel weak and feeble—they wonder why the breath has become offensive, and that they have pain and distress. But when this matter is fully understood there is no cause to wonder, for this foul gas has poisoned the whole system. The food we eat should be digested, or it becomes an injury. The familiar saying that "it is not what we eat that makes us strong, but what we digest," is a truthful saying, and it is equally true that the feeling of lassitude is because of the indigestion of our food. More than nine-tenths of all our diseases arise from imperfect digestion. We know now that imperfect digestion is followed by the production of this foul gas within the body, and that it is absorbed into the system as fast as it is formed. Is it any wonder we are ill? The wonder is that we are alive. How important it is, then, that the digestive organs should be made to perform their functions properly by the timely use of Seigel's Curative Syrup, which has proved an unfailing remedy for such cases. Many have been restored upon a trial that has extended over a period of many years. It seldom fails.

DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 31st of July they tapped me, and took away 304 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 408 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 20th), was again tapped at home and 380 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.
1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

23, Cursitor Street,
Chancery Lane, London, W.C.
Yours truly,
Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 8st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry, What can be done? For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally "up to all the wrinkles." The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds. If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

TEETH, A COMPLETE SET ONE GUINEA.—Precisely the same Prize Medal Teeth supplied by other Dentists at the highest fees, five years' warranty.—Testimonial from Jas. Steward, Physician and Surgeon, L.R.C.P.E. "I have great pleasure in recommending your Guinea Sets of Teeth. The set you supplied to me are much superior to those for which I paid a much higher fee. They must prove a great boon to the working classes." Complete set made and fitted in a few hours. One visit only required from country patients at the Dental Supply Association, 19, BOAR-LANE, LEEDS. Entrance, Gascoigne-street. Attendance, 10 to 7. Country Patients attended at their own Residences without extra charge.

HARVEST-TIDE.

THE time of the ingathering of the crops has come. The fields are white unto the harvest, and the noise of the reaper is heard in the land. Gladness pervades the face of nature, and labourer and farm lord vie each with each in effort to secure the yield of golden grain. We have no old harvest-tide ceremonials now, of lord and lady of the harvest, of hockey load, or kern baby, none of the antique panoply with which our rustic foregoers were wont to surround what was to them the white-letter season of the year, the time which witnessed the full fruition of their toil. The bustle of the latter-day life, the hurry-scurry of market competition, the introduction of marvellous machinery, these and other circumstances of our advancing age have combined together to crush out almost all the romance from the life of the farmer and his dependents. Such sweet simplicity as surrounded Ruth when long ago she gleaned in tears amid the alien corn, have gone for ever; even the silvery scythe and flashing sickle of our fathers' days have given place to monster and complicated cutters of wonderful construction, which automatically perform with unerring precision every part of the harvesting operations. These in turn are supplemented by steam threshing machines and other scientific implements of agriculture, so that the whole business of procuring bread for the eater has been revolutionised, and the picturesque yields the palm to the practical, from the initial preparation of the soil and the sowing of the seed, right up to the garnering of the grain. Even the once universal festivities of harvest home have fallen into desuetude, and in place of rustic rejoicing and roystering, and the observance of more or less elaborate ceremonials in continuance of the pagan festivals of ingathering, we have nothing now-a-days save the universal harvest thanksgiving services held in connection with our churches and chapels. It is better so. Instead of offering oblations to the sun and mythical man-made deities, as our ancestors were wont to do in more primitive days, we hymn our grateful praises to the Giver of every good. And if at times we are inclined to lament the decay of old customs which cast the glamour of romance over rustic occupations, and to sigh for the merry pomp which erst accompanied the chief carnival of the agricultural year, when mirth and song and shout held sway in every hamlet, we are more than compensated when we remember that the changed times have brought us new knowledge, that the old manners and customs of darker days have given place to enlightenment and understanding. With a truthful appreciation of man's place in nature, and of his obligations to nature's great Author, have come also skill in the cultivation of the earth and almost immeasurable advancement in the methods of growing and gathering its products. And so harvestide is a serious season in the business of life's year, a time to anxiously and watchfully regard. We are just now, taking the country through, in the thick of the ingathering. Farmers and their men and machinery are busily occupied from the first streak of dawn until after nightfall in securing their crops, and the reports as to the yield and condition of the harvest in progress are scanned with eager interest. Happily there is reason to expect that the result will be one to call forth thankfulness. The season has been singularly free from those sharp changes of weather which are so characteristic of the climate of Great Britain, and so dangerous and disagreeable to the farmer; still the comparative steadiness has arisen so much from drought as not to have been altogether favourable in the result. However, on the whole, though it is unsafe to come to a decisive conclusion before the ingathering is fully effected, it seems likely that the harvest of this our year of grace will be found favourable beyond the average. It must be borne in mind that there has not been a much better growth of hay for years, and that it was, generally speaking, stacked in excellent condition. And where bright, uninterrupted sunshine has somewhat lightened the cereal crops, it has made them secure, and facilitated an early harvest. Despite the drought, too, root crops are in most neighbourhoods fairly good, so that at the end of the year the farmer will be able in all probability to look back upon a better reward of his endeavours than often falls to his share. It is, as is pretty well known, not always the most abundant harvests which prove the most profitable to the grower, for in a season of universal heavy yields markets rule low. It is scarcely charitable to feel thankful and rejoice because others have not been so fortunate as yourself, but there is an old proverb which sets forth that "it is an ill wind which blows nobody good." The British farmer, being but human, will then take heart of grace from the intelligence that the corn harvest in America and the grain-exporting countries of the Continent of Europe are this year greatly under the average. This will bring to the home producer a measure of relief, from the fact that imports being necessarily correspondingly reduced, British corn will be in active demand, and command better prices than it would were the normal quantity of foreign growth in the market. The wheat yield, which after all is the most important of the cereal returns, will, as already indicated, be a very good one in this country. An analysis of five hundred reports from as many British districts, given in an agricultural contemporary, indicates a yield of as high as three and a half above the average; and though this is perhaps a somewhat liberal estimate, it shews us a most encouraging state of things deducted from a large area. Let us be thankful, therefore, for the harvest that crowns the efforts of the British farmer in 1885, and trust that the propitious weather, which so favours the ingathering, may continue until the last load has been garnered in.

LOCAL BOARD MEETING.

The usual meeting of this Board took place on Monday, present—Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman), J. Oliver, H. P. Newsome, J. Nowell, W. Lawton, J. Hargreaves, and the clerk, medical officer, collector, and surveyor.

During the early part of the meeting, Mr. Lawton and Mr. Jas. Hargreaves were not present. The minutes were read and confirmed.

Dr. Glaister attended in regard to the outbreak of small pox and fever, and was pleased to state that the patient attacked with small pox was convalescent, and that no other cases had occurred either of that disease or scarlet fever; a thorough disinfection had been carried out, and it was hoped that no further cases would have to be reported.

HIGHWAYS.—The clerk reported having received £308 from the County Authority, towards the maintenance of the roads.

GAS AND LAMPS.—The clerk having stated that the Gas and Lamps Committee had not been able to complete their report, read the reply of the Rothwell Gas Light Co. as to charge for supplying gas during the ensuing season. The Co. offer to supply gas from the 1st of September to the end of April (except the full moon weeks, as agreed), at 25s. per lamp (2/6 less than last year)), the lamps to to be extinguished at 12 o'clock on Saturdays and 11 o'clock every other night. The chairman considered this a very liberal reduction, and moved the acceptance of the offer. Mr. Oliver seconded the resolution, which was carried.

The Leeds Corporation, in reply to the Clerk, express their inability to attend to the Stourton lighting at a less price than last year, 35s per lamp. This, however, includes the lighting, extinguishing, and cleaning of the lamps, and the supply of gas all night. The chairman complained of the ineffective manner in which the lamp-lighting was done last year, sometimes two hours being lost in lighting up; he suggested that a strong letter be written to the Gas Committee, drawing attention to this matter. The Board agreed, and the resolution accepting the offer, and urging the complaint, was carried on the motion of Mr Newsome and the chairman.

For the situation of lamplighter, there were several candidates. Mr. Newsome, Mr. Nowell, and the chairman voting for Jos. Harrison at 14s. a week, while Mr. Lawton and Mr. Oliver supported the payment of 12/6 to Thos. Woodcock. These were the only members present, and Harrison was appointed.

The question of lighting up Wakefield Road had to be left over, as there was no report on cost, &c., from the Gas Committee. Mr. Lawton did'nt at all relish the postponement of his motion, and turning to Dr. Nowell asked "Where's Mr. Turner, I think the Doctor and Mr. Turner are not so full of gas as they were." Dr. Nowell—"No, the bladder's pricked." Mr. Lawton—"Well, I have'nt pricked it; if you are cocking your pistol at me, you had better turn it the other way."

COMPENSATION.—On the motion of Mr. Jas. Hargreaves, seconded by Mr. Nowell, the Compensation Committee were authorised to deal finally with the various compensations, and if necessary call in assistance.

SLAUGHTERHOUSES.—Mr. Nowell reported that at four o'clock that morning on "going to business" (laughter) (Mr. Lawton—"What, you are an early bird") a man had met him, and stated that the nuisance at Mr. Brown's was rather increased than otherwise, the skins of sheep having been left five days outside the premises.

General District Rate	503	14	6
Water Rents ...	15	2	8
Miscellaneous	0	0	5
	£518	17	7

WATER.—Owing to a misunderstanding, the Waterworks Committee were not present with the Rural Sanitary Authority, who waited on the Committee of the Leeds Corporation as to the deficient water supply, but from Dr. Nowell's report, it is anticipated that good will result from the interview, and that there will be no cause for complaint in future.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

CHEAP NOURISHMENT.—Fourteen large Breakfast Cups of strong, reliable Cocoa can be made from a Sixpenny Packet of Cadbury's Cocoa Essence. Ask for Cadbury's, and do not be imposed upon.

GENUINE ORANGE BITTERS.—24s. per case of one dozen net cash. These Bitters are made from the very finest Seville oranges and will be found to be an admirable and pleasant tonic. Manufactured by Joseph Hobson, Dantzic Brewery, Regent Street, Leeds.—Rothwell Agent, H. P. Newsome, Grocer, &c.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The fortnightly meeting of this Board took place on Wednesday afternoon, present—Mr. Jas. Hargreaves (chairman), Mr. J. Graveley (vice-chairman), Messrs. J. Parker, Wm. Lawton, J. Dixon, B. Riley, R. J. Smith, G. Jepson, J. Hardcastle, C. Grosvenor, and the Rev. G. M. Platt, and the clerk (Mr. Schofield) and assistant clerk (Mr. Keight).

The relief cases having been disposed of, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Blind Asylum.—According to the Board's instructions, Mr. Smith stated that he had visited the Blind Asylum, Manchester, and had seen a woman who is supported there by the Board. She has been 42 years in the Institution, and everything seems to be done for the comfort and well being of the sightless inmates. The old person expressed her thanks to the Guardians for the visit of Mr. Smith.

Sleepers.—Mr. Graveley reported that he along with Mr. Lawton and Mr. Jepson had attended the sale, and purchased 18 lots of sleepers for £3 17s. 6d, a lot.

Holidays.—Applications for one week's leave of absence were presented by the cook and porter, which were granted, on condition that necessary provision is made for filling the vacancies during their absence. Some interest was caused by the statement that the "two" will have become "one" before their return.

Apprentices.—Two lads being now old enough to learn a trade, the subject was considered, and necessary steps taken for placing them in some situation. Considerable discussion ensued, on the statement that one of the boys wished to go to sea, several guardians feeling disinclined to carry out the lad's desire, as they feared they would not have any further information about him after he got away, and he might fall into bad hands. It was eventually agreed that the Clerk should correspond with certain persons with a view to giving the lad an opportunity of tasting the "life on the ocean wave" before fully indenturing him.

The formal statistics and requirements were then read and the meeting concluded.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD

A meeting of the Board was held on Friday last, present—Messrs W. Hargreaves (chairman), J. R. Seanor, J. Batty, W. Lawton, and the clerk and attendance officer.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Teachers.—In reply to an advertisement for an ex-P.T. in Rothwell Haigh Boys' School, there were several applications, two of the applicants being requested to attend the meeting for an interview. The final decision was reserved pending further enquiry.

Memorial.—A letter was read from the Department, enclosing copy of a memorial from Stourton, and asking the Board's observations on the matter referred to. The memorialists (13 in number) complain of Miss Greaves keeping scholars in till half-past four and half-past twelve; also that children had been refused admission to the school. The teacher referred to distinctly denies having refused admission, and also corrects the statements as regards the hours of closing. The Board resolved to hold a special meeting for enquiry into the matter.

Attendance and Fees.—Two persons attended for remission of fees, which the Board agreed to grant, on conditions. Several persons seem resolved to set the Board at defiance in regard to the attendance of their children, and renewed authority was given to the attendance officer to summon before the magistrates.

Finance.—The treasurer has received during the month of July, £150 from the overseers, Rothwell Haigh fees £16 16s. 9d., Rothwell £11 3s. 2d., goods sold £1 2s 10d., and from the Guardians, 19s. 10d. The cheques are as follows:—Rothwell Haigh salaries £44 4s 6d., Rothwell £28 13s. 0d., Leeds gas account £3 0s. 5d., and Public Works Loan Board £29 16s. 6d.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

Temperance Mission.—A temperance mission has been held in the Temperance Hall, Rothwell, during the evenings of this week, commencing on Sunday last, when a "Temperance sermon" was preached by Mr. Henry Poulter, of Methley. We regret to learn that the audiences during the week have been far from satisfactory, the Hall being only about half full at the best meetings. The speakers included Mr Tudor Trevor, organizing secretary and lecturer of the Church of England Temperance Society, Mr. Thomas Troughton, agent of the Yorkshire Band of Hope Union, Mr. B. Brook and Mr. Mumby, of the Leeds Town Mission, and the Rev. John Bell, late missionary in Jamaica, a list of gentlemen whose ability and popularity should have attracted crowds of listeners. The chair has been occupied by various members of the Temperance Society and committee, who have conducted the meetings in a homely and kindly manner.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT (Friday.)

"Love me, Love my Dog."—William Greaves, blacksmith, Oulton, was charged with assaulting a young man named Samuel Green, who resides at the same place, with his grandmother, Mrs. Brown, who is a cowkeeper. Mr. Kemp appeared for the complainant, and Mr. Lodge for the defendant. Green stated that on Sunday morning he was going his milk round, and was followed by his grandmother's dog. As he was delivering milk at a house near defendant's premises Greaves came out of the yard with his dog. The defendant's dog ran up to the dog which was with him (complainant), and they got to fighting. As they were in danger of upsetting his milk can, he put his foot out to part them, and in doing so he happened to kick defendant's dog. Greaves came up to him in a rage, and dealt him a violent blow on the arm with a big stick which he carried. The blow made him sick, and disabled his arm, so that he had been unable ever since to follow his occupation, and had been under the doctor's treatment. A witness named John Chadwick corroborated, and said he told defendant that if he had struck him in that way he would have given him a "gob-oppener." The defence was that Green, on being remonstrated with for kicking Greaves' dog, was very impudent, and this provoked defendant to strike him with his walking stick, but the blow was not a severe one. The Bench ordered defendant to pay a fine and costs amounting to £2 17s.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

Facts and Rumours.

"Gossip," the writer of "Town Talk" offered me, very cordially, a shake of the hand last week. I accept it with very many thanks, and beg humbly to return the compliment, hoping we may always remain good friends and true. I notice his advice, as to the nature of my communications from week to week, and shall act upon it as far as possible, seeing that it comes from one who has walked the same road before, and desires, probably, to warn me, lest I should fall into the same errors in the meshes of which he himself has been entangled.

We are always glad of improvements at Carlton, although we are so unfamiliar with them. There are so many places in which a little energy, and a small amount of money, would work a wonderful change for the better, that one scarcely knows where to begin first. Not very long since the sides of "the beck" near Mrs. Woodhouse's were considerably improved, and the Surveyors only need to go a little further to make a good job there. They ought to put up a fence (posts and rails would do), along the side of the road where the "beck" flows. It is one of the easiest things possible, for a conveyance to be thrown into the stream, on a dark night, especially as the peculiar bend of the road is so puzzling to any one not intimately acquainted with it.

I unfortunately omitted to give a notice of the Carlton Band of Hope trip to Shipley Glen, in my last week's contribution. The trip, which was a very successful one, took place on Saturday, the 15th inst., there being a company of children, with their parents and friends, numbering about 50, taking part in it. The party journeyed by rail from Ardsley, and spent a very pleasant holiday in the glen, returning by the 5.40 train in the evening.

Last Sunday, there were two Services of Song given in the Primitive Chapel. In the afternoon "Her Benny" was carefully and creditably rendered by the Rothwell Primitive choir, the singing being conducted by Mr. Alfred Steel, while the connective readings were effectively rendered by Rev. T. Pearson. The chapel was well filled. The choir from Stourton gave "Rhoda, or the Gipsy Girl's Mission of Love," in the evening, to an overflowing audience. The reading was kindly done by Mr. J. A. Longley, and Mr. A. Webster conducted the singing, which was accompanied by Mr. W. Castlehouse on the harmonium. Collections were taken at the close for the circuit expenses.

The gas supply for Lofthouse has hitherto been brought all the way from Rothwell via Robin Hood and along the highway. The supply will very shortly be brought through Carlton, for the Gas Company are continuing the line of pipes recently laid in Carlton, along Lofthouse Lane, and before long the work will be completed.

It is very gratifying to know that there is a movement on foot for establishing a Reading-room at Lofthouse. Some years ago a similar room had an existence in the village, but eventually it ceased to live, partly on account of the lack of interest on the part of the public, and partly because of the conduct of the few persons who did visit the room. Then there was the Carlton Reading Room, which also had a short and dim existence, and likewise sunk into oblivion. In spite of previous failures, there is to be another try. I saw a notice to-day, which I think was in our esteemed vicar's handwriting, calling a public meeting for Monday next, for the purpose of taking the preliminary steps in the noble work. Let all those who have the moral and mental welfare of the people at heart, attend this meeting, and endeavour to found a Reading room which shall be supplied with the very best literature, at the smallest possible cost. The project is worthy of the notice of everyone, and has my very heartiest wishes for its present and future success.

Miss Brewster attended a meeting in the Wesleyan Chapel, Lofthouse, on Wednesday night, and delivered an address on "David's lament over Absalom." All who have heard this gifted lady will be able to imagine the effective and glowing descriptions of which such a subject is capable, and the large audience listened with rapt attention to the flow of warm and beautiful thought with which the address was filled. Mr. Alcock presided at the meeting, and a very hearty vote of thanks was given to Miss Brewster for her services in the neighbourhood, on the motion of Mr. S Seanor and Mr J Fozzard. Miss Brewster cordially reciprocated the kind words spoken, and expressed her deep thankfulness for the very kindly reception she had met with in Rothwell, Lofthouse and elsewhere.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

Occasional Notes.

Local readers of the Rothwell Times will be glad to notice a resumption of reports of the School Board meetings. The report published last week contained an important item of information on the somewhat hazy state of the law respecting compulsory payment of school fees. There is a notion abroad that arrears of school pence cannot be recovered as a legal debt, that in fact no one can be compelled to pay school fees at all, and this has been tacitly admitted by the local authority up to the present. It has been understood, however, that the Board may compel the attendance of children at school, and now this compulsory attendance, under a penalty, is said to include the regular payment of school fees, so that non-payment of school pence renders the parent liable to the same penalty as for the non attendance of a child at school. This is another lovely specimen of the circumlocutory labyrinths of British common law. The Board Schools re-opened on Monday last after the usual three weeks summer holiday.

The Wesleyan Chapel anniversary at Woodlesford was celebrated this week. It is somewhat earlier than usual this year. On Sunday morning and evening, sermons were preached, and in the afternoon an address given to the scholars and others, by the Rev T. Carnson, of Batley. On Tuesday afternoon, a public tea was held in the Alma School-room, followed by a meeting held in the chapel. The chair was taken by Mr J. J. Flitch, of Leeds, and addresses were given by the Revs. J. H. Carnson, T. Rathmell and S. Pitt, Mr. Alcock, and others. There was a good attendance.

Now that harvest operations are in full swing it is hardly right to wish for a downpour of rain; but it would undoubtedly be a public benefit to the neighbourhood just now, in the way of flushing out the open sewer which was once the bright and clear river Aire. The miasma arising from its filthy accumulations floods the district with a noxious effluvia on favorable nights, and compels people to close doors and windows tightly in the closest weather. This, together with the stench from the open grates of the drains, which are still the only means of ventilation, is very trying to the general health of the locality, and a downfall of rain would be a welcome mitigation of the nuisance and danger.

Holloway's Pills.—Weakening weather.—The sultry summer days strain the nerves of the feeble and decrepit, and disease may eventuate unless some restorative, such as these purifying Pills, be found to correct the disordering tendency. Holloway's medicine gives potency to the nervous system, which is the source of all vital movements, and presides over every action which maintains the growth and well-being of the body. No one can over-estimate the necessity of keeping the nerves well strung, or the ease with which these Pills accomplish that end. They are the most unfailing antidotes to indigestion, irregular circulation, palpitation, sick headache, and costiveness, and have therefore attained the largest sale and highest reputation.

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell had a "nice thing" on at Woodlesford on Saturday, where they would have gained a decisive victory over the club of that village had there been enough time for the game to have been played out. The home team went to the wickets first and did very well indeed (much better than was expected) compiling the respectable score of 74, of which J R Hewitt played a creditable not out innings of 24. J Hirst batted fairly, as well, and contributed 20 towards the total, while H Horn was next best scorer with 13. This score (74) was heartily applauded on the termination of the innings by the home partizans, who thought that their favourities had a "look in," and were in expectation that they would pull off the match. This idea, however, was soon dispelled, as the brothers Richardson, by careful batting took the score up to 30 for the first wicket, when Harry was out for 6; Whiteley was out for one, which proved to be the last wicket down, as Walter Richardson, and Glover played out time for 12 and 35 respectively which along with 10 extras made a total of 64 for two wickets. Glover batted in a very careful manner again on Saturday, and seemed again bent on playing a not out innings, which he safely accomplished, though he must bear in mind that another time, when he feels inclined to stop the innings out (if he can that is to say, of course), to run when there is a run, and not throw several notches away in order to gain his own object, as I was inclined to think was the case on Saturday, and it is my opinion that the match might have been won, if the runs had been well looked after.

On the Rothwell ground the 2nd eleven were opposed by the Temperance C. C. the latter of whom I thought had drifted out of existence, but alas, they turned out in full force on Saturday no doubt with an opinion that they would gain the upperhand of the 2nd eleven, but they did not, and after what they received on Saturday, there is little prospect of our hearing of the name of Rothwell Temperance C.C. again, and I am afraid there will be some truth in their "going to the dogs" now, whether there was before or not. I fail to see what part of the game they propose to play, in anything like cricket form. Their bowling, taken on the whole is very simple indeed, while with the bat, (save the old veteran G Hammill,) there is neither style nor correctness to be seen, and last but not least, the fielding is an utter disgrace, and I have witnessed better by a long way, in matches amongst mere youths, who, though not able to master every point in the art of fielding, will get to the ball and return it in some bit like style, which is more than the Temperance will do. Rothwell went in first, and made the enormous total 174, and with only half their usual strength of team in the field too. A notable feature in this innings was the batting of G Wilson, who went in first, and was not dismissed until the close of the innings for a nice score of 103, which included twenty-five 3s, six 2s, and singles. It was pretty freely asserted that he would last out the innings, which however he failed to accomplish, being clean bowled, with a very easy full pitched ball, without the slightest break or curl. His innings, save one or two mistakes, was a remarkable one. The only other batsman who exhibited good form, was A Cripps, scoring 16 in creditable manner. The Temperance side failed to make any stand at all, and were all out for a total of 35. Briggs in the trundling department secured equally as good honours as Wilson did with the bat, clean bowling seven of his opponents for only 8 runs, taking three wickets in three successive balls at one time, thus performing the "hat trick." Bravo Briggs!

Lofthouse made a poor show on Saturday against Woodhouse Temperance, as compared with some of their previous efforts this season. The game was played at Leeds on Saturday; the visitors batted first, and to commence with, three wickets fell for no runs. Hollings, however made a slight stand, scoring 9, but none of the others did any batting, and the whole team were disposed of for the meagre total of 14, no less than 8 of the men being out for a "duck." The home eleven next defended, and made the respectable score of 82, to which Whittaker contributed 22, Taylor 19, and Dufton 16.

TOWN TALK.

"We live in an enlightened age" is a sentence one is constantly hearing now-a-days from pulpit and platform, and this sentence was the first that rushed irresistibly to my lips on hearing "the latest out," not very long ago. I heard the story early enough to have recorded it last week, but my readers may remember that a certain writer complained a fortnight since, that the affairs of Woodlesford and Oulton were being attended to by Rothwell people just now, therefore I thought I would give that writer an opportunity of attending to these affairs himself; but he has not yet presented the interesting little story which I am going to relate, and lest it should pass by unnoticed, I have thought proper to bring it out to the light of day. In a certain village not far from Rothwell, the generous squire has displayed his magnaminity in removing from the village church all the plain stained glass windows, and replacing them with windows composed of beautiful stained glass designs, illustrating the great events of the Bible times. But what was to be done with the old ones; had they not been consecrated, to be used in the church for ever? True, they had; and they could not be used for any other purpose. They must be buried! Can it be true? Buried they were, I am told, those valuable windows. Did they inter them in a coffin? What sized coffin did they take? Did they read the burial service over the remains? and was the "Dead March" played upon the organ? Who preached the funeral sermon? Is the stone the "regulation size and shape"? What is the inscription? To all these questions I can give no answer. If some daring party of thieves does not pay a "body snatching" visit to the church yard, we shall probably never see the windows again, for I don't suppose there will ever be a resurrection of stained glass windows.

No one can be more wishful than "Gossip" to help and encourage the efforts of the working men of Rothwell in the cultivation of the arts and sciences. It pleases me beyond measure, when I see these 'sons of toil' banding together to cultivate the arts of music, drawing, etc., or the sciences of mechanics, building construction, cultivation of flowers, etc. In all these they have my best wishes. But I cannot agree with that Band (I don't know which of the two it was) which held its rehearsal on Sunday afternoon, at the east end of the village. Many persons were annoyed by this performance on the Sabbath. The peace and calm of the day—the working man's rest day—was to a considerable extent interrupted, and this, I need scarcely say, is very objectionable. My views on what shall be done and what not done on this day, are very simple, and I will briefly state them. Everybody has a perfect right to do as he pleases, so long as what he does is not an annoyance to his fellow citizens. If I like to confine myself in some remote corner of an unoccupied house, and there spend my Sabbath in one long and uninterrupted string of blasphemies, I have a right to do so; but then I should not be allowed to do this in the street, or in the church. No, it would annoy all decent people within the sound of my voice, and means would be taken to put a stop to such objectionable behaviour. So, as this noisy practising in the open air, on the Sabbath day, is a great annoyance to many individuals, it cannot be tolerated, and I hope both the Brass Bands will 'make a note' of this, and try to oblige us in future.

There were two brothers, both intending to be married. Their business connection would not allow of them both being away from home at the same time. Therefore, as they intended having a longer honeymoon than that of the Royal bride and bridegroom a week or two ago, they could not be married on the same day, however desirable such an arrangement might be. There was a great problem to solve. Who was to be first, and who was to be last? Well, it will be rather interesting to my readers to know that the tossing up of a penny decided this important point, with the inevitable result, that the first was to be last, and the last, first.

There was also another very laughable little episode occurred in connection with the wedding to which I have just referred. Of course, everybody knows that the younger of these two young tradesmen completed the hymeneal contract on the 19th inst., at the Parish Church, Rothwell. All passed off gaily, and the happy pair left the village for the seaside town of Blackpool, where the honeymoon was to be enjoyed. . . . Ah! but there was somebody else from the village staying at Blackpool. Two lively, happy mischievous young fellows, as ever went off together to the Spa. These two young men, on the day of the wedding, first paid a visit to a certain grocery warehouse, and after purchasing a small parcel each, proceeded to the railway station, and met the train in which the bride and bridegroom were expected to travel. After secretly watching them alight from the train, the two young fellows presented themselves, and commenced to pelt the startled couple unmercifully with the contents of the aforesaid parcels, which—as everyone but those possessed of the densest intellect will have surmised—contained rice.

I remember that some time ago, Mr. John Turner complained very strongly to the Local Board of the material used in covering Swithin's Street. For many years this street had been macadamised, but it had become very much worn, and I think it was in the early part of this year, that the Board covered it with cinder. Ever since that time the road has been in an extremely unsatisfactory condition. The surface of the road is always covered with a fine dust, varying in thickness from a very thin layer, to one an inch deep, according to the state of the weather. If the surveyor will notice this road, I think he will acknowledge it is a very dirty affair, and avoid such work in future.

I hear that the Rothwell Wesleyan Choir and their friends intend having a picnic some day next week. The members of the Church Choir have been encouraged in the performance of their duties, by a kind acknowledgment of their invaluable services, in the shape of the annual trip, and I am glad to hear that those who give their time and ability to make the musical portion of the chapel service attractive, are to have the same kind attention paid them by the chapel authorities.

The secretary to the Committee for carrying out the Cookery Lectures has sent to me a bill announcing the course of lectures, with a request that I should help them by recommending the lectures to the notice of my numerous readers. It gives me great pleasure to comply with this request. Miss Peacock is not coming over to Rothwell this time, but another young lady from the same school, Miss Theed, and she will no doubt gain the same amount of popularity for her lectures, as was shewn towards those of last winter. All particulars will be found on the bills and advertisements, and I hope there will be a large attendance, both afternoon and evening.

It has been rumoured this week that the Rev. A M. Samwell had taken very decided steps towards establishing a branch of the volunteer corps in Rothwell. There are, however, very serious obstacles in the way at present, and it is probable that this scheme will not be carried out for some time.

Only a little time since I mentioned the list of voters placed at the entrances to the various places of worship. I have now to draw attention to some other lists which have just appeared, and are to be found at all the churches and chapels. There is the list of persons claiming a vote as 'lodgers,' another list of claimants as 'occupiers,' and two lists of persons who have been objected to as 'occupiers' and 'owners.' It behoves those concerned to examine these lists and ascertain whether their vote at the forthcoming election will be all right.

I notice that the Salvation Life Guards (whoever they may be) are coming this way in a week or two. Can't our Captain get them to give us a night. I'm sure we must be a dark, deluded lot; the Church folks have tried to attract us by their beautiful music, their stained windows, their ornaments and ritual; the Methodists have given us sermons and prayer meetings and hymn singing; the Salvationists have tried to drum the devil out, and shout us into better ways; for goodness sake, lets have the Life Guards, they'll maybe galvanise us into "proper sort of people."

GOSSIP.

SALVATION ARMY.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

Allow me a short space in your most valuable paper to have a word on or about the Salvation Army. "People that come here to see and hear, but to give nothing, had better keep away;" such was the phrase uttered last Sunday evening in the most holy Salvation Army Barracks, and one thing that caught my attention on Sunday evening proved the words quite true that the reverend captain had uttered. As the collection box was going round the captain was keeping a sharp eye to see who gave something to help him to live a more luxurious life, and his eye detected a young man letting the box pass without contributing to his Lordship's wants. After the collection was over and singing began, what should he do but walk across the seats in spite of the people sat thereon, and order the lad out whom he had seen miss the collection box. What I have to ask is this, is this religion, or is it the so-called religion or christianity of which it may be said

"Money is their creed, they'll not preach without it,
Their heaven is closed against all those who doubt it."

See how the captain drives his poor slaves or his would-be soldiers if they don't see exactly as he does, and do exactly what he wishes them to do; if they don't feel inclined, they are expelled from the Royal Company. And see how they can be big men and gentlemen living on the poor people instead of doing some work for their living; and besides, if the slaves (or soldiers) wish to go to another place of worship a chance time they are rebuked by his Lordship, and are told if they go there any more they will be discharged. I hope the people will look to their own welfare, and at home, before they help to keep people for doing nothing.

Aug. 18th, 1885. AN OBSERVER.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

I notice you have a letter under the same heading as I wish to write; whether it is of the same character I cannot pretend to imagine, but I really would like to remind our Captain to have a little consideration for others, while beating the drum at the head of his regiment. I am not in any wise opposed to the Salvation Army, and although we all have our opinions on religion, and the means of securing converts, I would not for a moment quarrel with anything that is done within the four walls of their meeting house, and heartily trust their efforts to gather in the outcasts will be thoroughly successful. But I do object to the constant drum-beating and inharmonious music (shall I call it) with which the air is filled, night after night, and at all times on Sunday. When I happen to be in the town in the evening, all conversation must be stopped till the drum goes by. When I visit my sick friend, his head is distracted for hours after, by the mixed noises which accompany the march of the 'Army.' Now in all fairness, are our friends believers in that golden rule, 'doing to others as we would that others should do unto us.' I am quite sure their success would be as large, and certainly outside help would be more cheerfully and generously afforded, if there was more consideration for the comfort and feelings of others, if these hints were taken, as they are offered by

LIBERATION MEETING.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I am very glad to see that you have at last found a correspondent at Carlton or thereabouts and I hope he will continue his Facts and Rumours from week to week.

From the construction of his letter I infer that he was not present at the meeting on Disestablishment last Tuesday evening and if this be the case he has had to depend on hearsay and has been mislead. Not a word was said in defence of Mr Bradlaugh or of the policy he has pursued. In fact Mr. Andrew was very careful to disclaim any allusion to Mr. Bradlaugh's religious tenets, and the policy Mr. Bradlaugh has pursued on the Oaths question was not mentioned at all. What was done by Mr. Andrew was simply this: he said that part of the energies of the Liberation Society had been directed to the question of oaths, and there had been the result that the oath had been to some extent altered, and that the Liberation Society hold the opinion that the Oath for members of Parliament may be altered with advantage to the extent of permitting an affirmation, if the oath be objected to.

I was very much pleased when I saw Mr. Webster get up to ask questions, and beg to say that I think he showed tact and good feeling throughout, except in the first sentence he used, and I think on reflection he will conclude that he might have conveyed his meaning in a better mode. As to his gaining any advantage over Mr. Andrew—no such thing took place. In the course of his lecture certain positions had been taken and in answer to questions these positions were maintained. In reference to the point mentioned about "fools and Conservative party," Mr. Andrew gave it as a quotation, so that if there were any "paying back" at all, Mr. Webster paid Mr Andrew in somebody else's change—not his own. Mr. Webster's string of questions was stopped—not by Mr. Andrew nor by any one connected with the Liberal Association, but by the meeting. Mr. Andrew had protested that some of the questions were not raised by his address, but after this protest he answered two or three of them. The last question put by Mr. Webster was about 'tithes left by will.' I believe his question was not answered. On its being put several persons rose at once—myself amongst others—and some confusion occurred, and during this Mr. Webster resumed his seat. My object in rising was to ask Mr. Webster to extend his question so as to make it cover rather more ground.

I am, Sir,
Yours truly,
W. MITCHELL.

WHAT IS THIS DISEASE THAT IS COMING UPON US.

Like a thief at night, it steals in upon us unawares. Many persons have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The afflicted one feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the urine is scanty and high coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. It has been found that medical men have mistaken the nature of this disease. Some have treated it for liver complaint, others for kidney disease, &c., but none of the various kinds of treatment have been attended with success because the remedy should be such as to act harmoniously upon each one of these organs, and upon the stomach as well; for in Dyspepsia (for this is really what the disease is) all these organs partake of this disease, and require a remedy that will act upon all at the same time. Seigel's Curative Syrup acts like a charm in this class of complaints, giving almost immediate relief.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in restoring the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name Consumption Emulsion. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 1[illegible]3 of his work, entitled "Consumption; Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." [illegible]

It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Old Sores and Old Skin Diseases.

The seeds of these disorders are effectually expelled by this penetrating Unguent, not only from the superficial parts, but from the internal tissues likewise. Any case, even of twenty years' standing, speedily yields to its influence.

A Certain Cure for Bronchitis, Diphtheria, Sore Throat, Asthma, &c.

For curing sore throat, diphtheria, bronchitis, asthma, tightness of the chest, and pain in the side—which instant treatment alone prevents degenerating into more serious maladies, this Ointment has the same power over chest complaints as a blister possesses, without causing pain or debility. Old asthmatic invalids will derive marvellous ease from the use of this Ointment, which has brought round many such sufferers and re-established health after every other means had signally failed.

By rubbing the Ointment round the affected parts, it penetrates to the tissues beneath, and exercises a wonderful power on all the blood flowing to, and returning from, the diseased part. The inflammation diminishes, the pain becomes less intolerable, the matter thicker, and a cure is soon effected. In all long-standing cases, Holloway's Pills should also be taken, as they will thoroughly expel all depraved humours from the body.

Gout, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints.

Gout and Rheumatism arise from inflammation in the parts affected. To effect a permanent cure, adopt a cooling diet, drink plenty of water, take six of Holloway's Pills night and morning, and rub this Ointment most effectually twice a-day into the suffering parts; when used simultaneously, they drive all inflammation and depression from the system, subdue and remove all enlargement of the joints, and leave the sinews and muscles lax and uncontracted.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following complaints:—

Bad Legs	Corns (Soft)	Scalds
Bad Breasts	Fistulas	Sore Throats
Burns	Gout	Skin Diseases
Bunions	Glandular Swellings	Scurvy
Chilblains	Lumbago	Sore Heads
Chapped Hands	Piles	Tumours
Contracted and Stiff Joints	Rheumatism	Ulcers
	Sore Nipples	Wounds

The Ointment and Pills are sold at Professor HOLLOWAY'S Establishment, 533, Oxford Street, London; also by nearly every respectable Vendor of Medicine throughout the Civilised World, in Pots and Boxes, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., 22s., and 33s. each. The smallest Pot of Ointment contains one ounce; and the smallest Box of Pills four dozen.

Full printed directions are affixed to each Pot and Box, and can be had in any language, even in Turkish, Arabic, Armenian, Persian, or Chinese.

DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 31st of July they tapped me, and took away 304 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 408 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 20th), was again tapped at home and 360 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.
1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

22, Cursitor Street, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.
Yours truly,
Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 21st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry, What can be done? For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally "up to all the wrinkles." The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, [illegible] the Goods he are the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and [illegible] Row, Leeds.

Rothwell Times,

Circulating in Rothwell, Woodlesford, Oulton, Carlton, Lofthouse, Middleton, Leeds, Hunslet and Stourton.

Friday, September 4, 1885.

THE reality of the change in our Parliamentary representation, becomes daily more palpable. The long list of persons duly qualified to exercise the suffrage lately fixed at the entrance to places of worship, is now succeeded by announcements of the visits of revising barristers to hitherto unknown localities. For this portion of Normanton Division of the South West Riding, Adolphus Liddell, Esq., will sit at Oulton on the 19th, and hear claims and objections on behalf of persons residing in Rothwell with Rothwell Haigh and Royds Green, Oulton-with-Woodlesford, and Methley. Our Carlton, Lofthouse, Thorp and Middleton residents will be required to attend at Morley in regard to their Parliamentary business, on the 17th inst. We shall no doubt have various visits from, and meetings in support of the several gentlemen seeking a seat in the House of Commons, and by the end of this month, we should begin to feel the warmth of the political contest which will be waged before a new Parliament is complete.

THE experimental introduction by an enterprising Newcastle, firm of electric lighting into their colliery, is an innovation which will be watched with great public interest. If the "imprisoned lightning" can be so controlled as to prove manageable as an illuminant in the bowels of the earth, many of the grave difficulties and dangers which wait upon the collier's calling will be at once removed, and the terrible fatalities which from time to time shock the world reduced to a minimum. Disseminating no heat, engendering no gas, but giving off a strong and wholesome light, electricity possesses un-numbered advantages over the invention of Davy. There are a great many mechanical difficulties in the way of the general adoption of the electric light in the coal seams "fathoms deep" underground, but the engineers are confident of their ability to overcome every hindrance in the end.

OLD ENGLISH PAGEANT.

It is not often one has an opportunity of seeing such a reproduction of old English sports and pastimes as was exhibited at Grimston Hall on Tuesday, by the generosity of J. Fielden, Esq., High Sheriff of Yorkshire, on behalf of the Society for the Protection of Young Girls. Arriving at Tadcaster, a mile-walk brings us to the gates of the park, where we press forward between avenues of ancient trees, and ever-varying scenery and beauty. As we pass on, carriage after carriage rolls up, and many ladies and gentlemen of the district enter the hospitable mansion, where they speedily transform themselves into "fair maidens" and "lusty varlets," while we seek the cool, green shade of wide spreading boughs, and inhale the sweet fragrance of the adjoining gardens. Shut in by the hall, with its white, graceful front, and by a low stone balcony, the garden is heavily scented with bright English flowers, rich in perfume and in colour. Stocks, geraniums, pansies, pinks, marigolds, from the deepest orange to pale silvery gold, nasturtiums from rich yellow to crimson, fill the air with their fragrance and the eye with their colour, while star-like in their midst sleep the evening primroses. Garden and hall are alike bedecked, but "themselves the sweetest flowers among them all" are the young girls, dressed all of them in delicate costumes of the olden time. As two o'clock drew near, the restless, ever changing panorama was withdrawn from public gaze. Only a few privileged spectators were permitted to view the scene that now took place in the court-yard at the west of the hall. Hither came all who were to share in the "progress of the harvest Quene." A bustling, brilliant crowd it was, such as is occasionally seen on the opera stage, yet without any theatrical obtrusiveness or tinsel. The Rev. H. Vyvyan has thrown aside the sombre robes of modern ecclesiasticism. Clad in a close-fitting tunic of brown velvet, with a pink sash and lace collar, and wearing a broad plumed hat, he issues his orders from the edge of a stone fountain in the middle of the sunlit court. Mr. D'Arcy Ferris, "Ye maister of the ye revells," is busy among the crowd. His violet coloured doublet and embroidered robe are conspicuous among less brilliant habits. An able seconder he has in Miss Milner, who wears a regal circlet from which hangs a veil. Her mantle is of the days of Queen Anne, and is garnished with white fur. A dark green long gown with wide sleeves, fastened by a girdle at the waist, falling over the shoulders and displaying the inner vest, give to the almoner, Mr. Fielden, a staid and dignified appearance, which not even long black ringlets can altogether destroy. But the ladies' costumes! What labour and skill must have been expended on them. Nothing can exceed the brilliance and beauty of some of them. That group near the cordwain, for example. What could be more delicate or more charmingly simple than the plain loose skirt of white striped with blue, or of white edged with poppy and cornflower, the black velvet laced bodice, the fluttering ribbon of red and blue, the jaunty cap or cowl of white, and the dainty black-shod foot. These are the Maypole dancers, among them Miss Maude Bower, Miss Ellen Bower, Miss Gunter, Miss L. Gunter, Miss H. Gunter, Miss Lloyd, Mrs. Vyvyan, Miss Grattan, Miss Whitehead, and Miss Kathleen Whitehead. To display the graces of the figure, it would be difficult to find a costume better fitted than that which several other of the ladies have adopted—the loose flowing robes of white—like—looped up with bands of gold. The procession is ready. The gates of the court are thrown open. The festival banner, with its four rampant lions on a cross of crimson, is unfurled. The band of the Fourteenth Regimental District tunes its reeds and its drums to the sweet strains of Hatton's Bridal March, as arranged by the leader, Mr. H. Bartley. The progress of the Harvest Queen has begun. Mr. T. Fielden and Mr. Mark Landon, the men of motley, are to the front with gibe and joke. The Master of the Revels comes close behind, his long embroidered robe upheld by two sumtuously clad pages. A company of "blithesome singers" follow, "in colours all diversely dight," from bright red to cool green, mauve, and brown. On horseback comes "Ye Oaten Princess," Mrs. Curzon, in flowing robes of orange hue, accompanied by her maidens. Flora (Mrs. E. Grey) rides her car in company with four maidens personating Sweetness, Purity, Grace, and Modesty. They are symbolised as honeysuckle (Mrs. Leather), lily (Miss Busfield), harebell (Miss Florence Bower), and violet (Miss Kitty Harris). Behind the car rides the Barley Princess (Mrs. Alexander), accompanied on foot by flower-bearing maidens, Miss May Colley and Miss Eden. Ceres (Mrs. P. Cunliffe) has for companions, maidens personating Fruit, Wine, Roots, and Corn. The goddess Pomona (Mrs. A. Wilson) and her maidens precede the Sheriff's banner and coach with its body of liveried servitors. Reapers, gleaners, rakers, yeomen, and farmers, all of them like the rest in habit of olden days, come afterward. Then follow fifteen dancing children, in costume of blue and white, wreathed with bright flowers. A wain ladened with wheat, and surmounted with a cross of corn, evergreens, and poppies, creaks behind Milch cows with garlands of flowers are led not unwillingly by Miss Ada Bower, Miss Evelyn Fairfax, and Miss Florence Dawson. The six maidens with trophies of fruit are—peach, Miss B. Buckle; plum, the Hon. Miss C. Beresford; apple, Miss E. Buckle; lemon, Miss G. Powlett; pear, the Hon. Miss E. Beresford; and pomegranate, Miss Mordaunt. They are dressed in loose flowing robes, looped up with golden girdles, and wear round their necks strings and bands of gold. The Almoner and his cup-bearer, the lads and lasses of 'ye vineyard', and flower-ladened children precede the Harvest Queen. The Hon. Cecil Bingham, Her Majesty of the Golden Fields, is mounted on a chariot embowered with sweet flowers, driven by Cupid, and attended by many maidens and pages. Like more than one of her devotees, the Harvest Queen is clad in a loose white garment, and in her dark hair sparkle bands of gold. A dwarfish priest, with shorn head, riding and unwilling mule, follows the band of the York Industrial School, and so brings up the rear of the procession. In this order, singing and dancing to the stately music of the Bridal March, they move through the park, to the admiration of several hundred spectators. Viewed from whatever point, whether from a woody knoll, at a bend in the road, or amid interlacing branches, the scene was one that none would willingly let fade from the memory.

The progress of the Harvest Queen was but a preliminary to the pastimes on the merry green. There was the play of Robin Hood. A woody part of the grounds near to the hall was chosen for a theatre. Nature was the scene painter, and had converted this quiet spot into an ideal theatre for Robin Hood and his merry men. It was a delicious slope in the cool green shadow facing an amphitheatre of trees—the star-leaved chesnut, the needles of the pine, and the broad-leaved beech. These formed the background. In front, seated in picturesque groups on the greensward, were the members of the procession. No sooner had they taken their places than there sounded from the thicket the chorus in Hatton's cantata,

Oh! merry is the outlaw's life,
Roving wild and free.

Friar Tuck's (Mr. Mark Landon) appearance was greeted with much laughter. His make-up was capital, and his bye-play went not a little way to sustain the interest of the performance. That well-known episode in the life of the famous outlaw, in which the Sheriff of Nottingham fares somewhat badly, was represented with picturesque realism. Indeed every one took his or her part well, and received from the spectators most hearty marks of approval. When the play "be over, ye guests who feel emptye maie go and eat of ye hospitality provided." Many people availed themselves of this quaintly expressed invitation by repairing to the tent in front of the hall. Later in the afternoon a morris dance was given on the green. This was followed by a game of quintain or tilting. The ribbon dance was one of the chief features. The dancers in white and blue and white did their task "right merrily," with colour brightened, eyes sparkling, and rosy mouths smiling satisfaction at the applause of the delighted spectators. A mock bull fight closed this novel and most interesting entertainment—one which should speedily put to flight the old-fashioned bazaar as a means towards a charitable end.

SACRED CONCERT AT HUNSLET.

Sunday last being Hunslet Infirmary Sunday, an open-air concert of sacred music was given in the Black Bull Field, Hunslet Road, in the presence of about 4,000 persons. The programme opened with the hymn "O, worship the King," (to the tune 'Hanover') which was given with thrilling effect by a chorus of about 500 voices, accompanied by a full orchestra of some 80 instrumentalists. Mr. Jas. Gosney, the president, then addressed the large assembly, and after remarking on the splendid musical treat in store for them, of which they had just had a foretaste, urged them not to forget the object for which they had met, that of assisting the funds of that noble institution, the Leeds Infirmary. The chorus then proceeded with the programme, which comprised some of the best numbers from Mozart's "12th Mass," Haydn's "Creation," and Handel's "Messiah," the proceedings concluding with the "Old Hundredth," in which the audience joined. Considering the difficulty of the works and the circumstances under which they were sung, great praise is due to the band and chorus for their rendering of the music, and to Mr. Haywood, who conducted with care and precision. Selections from Handel's "Samson," and Weber's "Mass in G," were played by the 1st West York Artillery Band. The proceeds, which amounted to £78 0s. 10d., will, after deducting expenses, be handed over to the Leeds Infirmary.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

CHEAP NOURISHMENT.—Fourteen large Breakfast Cups of strong, reliable Cocoa can be made from a Sixpenny Packet of Cadbury's Cocoa Essence. Ask for Cadbury's, and do not be put off with any other.

GENUINE ORANGE BITTERS.—24s. per case of one dozen net cash. These Bitters are made from the very finest Seville oranges and will be found to be an admirable and pleasant tonic. Manufactured by Joseph Hobson, Dantzic Brewery, Regent Street, Leeds.—Rothwell Agent, H. P. Newsome, Grocer, &c.

TO LONDON ON WHEELS.

During the recent Midsummer holiday, two members of the Aurora Bicycle Club, determined to make a trip to London, that 'big village' of the south country.

Starting from Rothwell at about 5.30 a.m., we ran along the well-known route past Wakefield and Newmillerdam to Barnsley, where we dropped a line home informing them of our safety thus far. From Barnsley we journeyed to Rotherham, passing through the black iron-smelting district, encountering some very bad road, which greatly hindered our satisfactory progress right away on to Mansfield. However, notwithstanding this difficulty, we landed at Mansfield in time for a late dinner, doing the last three miles in about 11 minutes. After leaving Mansfield we passed through a part of Sherwood Forest, and then on to some very good roads, the condition of which was too excellent to last, and we were soon among the stones again. After a long and somewhat tedious ride, we arrived at Nottingham. Much as we desired to stay in the town we were obliged to push on to Melton Mowbray, but before we had got far we found, upon enquiring, that we were upon the wrong track, and were obliged to walk about two miles along a country bye-lane. When we reached the direct route again we soon made up for lost time, and being about five miles from Melton we called at a wayside house and were informed that the day before two bicyclists, on their way from Bradford to London had stayed at the same place, and while resting, one of the machines was stolen; also that between us and Melton there was a hill some 2 miles long. When we reached the foot of this hill we found it impossible to ride, although the road was good; there was nothing for it then but to trudge to the top, where we landed tired out. After resting a little, we mounted again and arrived in the town about dusk. Next morning we started early, but encountered a large troop of horses and herds of cattle; the former were troublesome to pass, on account of their spirit, and the latter on account of their obstinacy. We soon crossed Rutland, touching at its two most important towns; then across Northamptonshire, through Rockingham, Kettering, Higham-Ferrers, and several other towns, at none of which we spent any time. Bedford was our first resting place, where we had a light refreshment, and inspected the broad river and the beauties of the town. Leaving the main road, we started for Luton, but on account of the chalky character of the roads, they were somewhat dusty; for this drawback, however, we were quite repaid by the novel scenery and shady avenues through which we passed. Upon arriving at Luton we put up for the night with some friends, and after tea sallied forth to see the town, public parks, and various other sights of which the Luton folk are evidently proud. Next day we visited Dunstable, and saw the old priory church, one of the seven oldest churches in England, also the door to which Catherine of Arragon's divorce was nailed (or supposed to be). Be this as it may, the door was very old, and even if it had been placed in a barn instead of a church, it would have been considered shabby and very much out of repair. Having walked about Dunstable, we returned to dinner, and then drove about 10 miles out of Luton, to see the surrounding parks and villages, arriving home about seven. After refreshing ourselves, we proceeded to the Straw Plait Exhibition, which had been opened in the afternoon by some "great gun" or other from London. Either the visits of Princes are more common to the inhabitants of Luton than to those of the more northern towns, or else they are of a less demonstrative turn of mind than we in Yorkshire are, for very little stir was made upon the advent of this unit of the upper ten. Next morning we started somewhat late for Hatfield, with a 14 miles run before us, and only a little over an hour in which to cover the distance, but the roads were good, and we reached our destination, putting up our machines just in time to catch the 9.5 train to King's Cross where we arrived about 9.30. After doing a little business in town, we went about the city on various omnibuses, until we had seen as much as possible under the circumstances. We then took the metropolitan train for South Kensington, where we arrived after much stopping and shunting, with but little appreciation of the famous underground railway. Arrived at Kensington, we made for the Exhibition, through a long sub-way built of white bricks, and lit up with the electric light. For two reasons I shall not attempt to say anything about the Inventories, because in the first place, it is too serious a task for my feeble pen to perform, and secondly, there have been full descriptions previously given in the various magazines and newspapers. Sufficient to say, we enjoyed ourselves immensely, and were much amused and edified by the wonderful and multitudinous exhibition of the products of man's ingenuity and skill. Starting from Hatfield in the morning, we ran along on our homeward journey very merrily; the roads were very good, but owing to the recent heavy rains were rather moist; they continued to be very satisfactory all day, but the constant drag of the wet began to tell on us, so that we did not reach Stamford, our destination, until some time after dusk, and were then very much tired. During the night heavy rains descended, and in the morning it continued to drizzle, but we made our way to Retford in spite of it all, passing through Grantham and Newark. We arrived at Retford about 5 p.m., and as it was market-day, the town was somewhat lively. Next morning at about 10 o'clock, we started for home, passing through Bawtry, Doncaster and Pontefract on the way. At Pontefract we stayed the evening with some friends, running down to Rothwell by about 9.30, ending an enjoyable ride of over 400 miles.

Kaye's Lavaline is king of soaps,
That's what the people say;
They buy from H. P. Newsome,
Who sells it every day;
There is Charles Ward and Son,
Also there's Alfred Drew,
Together with the Co-op'tive Stores,
And a host of others too.

Just you try Kaye's Lavaline,
Try Kaye's Lavaline!
You'll say then with the rest
It's the cheapest and the best
Of all the soaps you've seen.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

Choir Trip.—By the generosity of the stewards of the Wesleyan Chapel, the members of the choir were presented with tickets for a free trip to Harrogate yesterday. A number of friends joined the party, and over 40 persons met at Woodlesford station at 8.45 en route to the "town of medicated wells." After a slow ride, broken by forty minutes' wait at Leeds, they arrived at Harrogate, and made at once for the Coffee Hotel, where the various necessary encumbrances, bags, umbrellas, cloaks, etc., were deposited for safe keeping. Dinner was then gone into, and by twelve or half-past, everybody was out "doing the wonders." About half the party made their way to Knaresbro', while the remainder spent their time on the Stray, at the wells, on tricycle or donkey, and in other ways. The Knaresbro' contingent left Harrogate at 1.55, and spent an enjoyable afternoon in the quaint old place. Mother Shipton's relics and the dropping well occupied some time, while the Castle, its ancient history and attractions, greatly interested the visitors. The shower during the afternoon prevented a larger number from enjoying a row on the placid river, but a small company took this pleasure at a later hour, and had the usual adventures of being stuck fast among the overhanging branches, run aground on the 'rocks' and nearly wrecked, culminating in a run for the train, and a hurried tea. There were two or three showers during the day, which somewhat interfered with the pleasure of the trippers, but they generally happened to be near shelter, and so took no harm. The return journey was commenced, after tea, 6.40 from Harrogate, and arriving at Rothwell about nine o'clock. Everyone seemed to have greatly enjoyed the 'trip,' and the choir felt deeply indebted to the friends for giving them this little outing as some recognition of their valued and constant services.

Brass Band Gala.—The Rothwell Old Band and the Oulton Band held a gala in the field behind the Black Bull Inn, Rothwell, on Saturday evening last. The attendance was very small and the thing was unfortunately an entire failure.

Rothwell Primitive Chapel.—A Service of Song was given in this chapel last Sunday afternoon, by the Carlton Primitive Choir. The service was entitled 'Gems from the life of John Ashworth' and is one full of interesting "gems" on the life of the popular Rochdale tract writer, as well as containing some excellent pieces of song. The readings were very effectively rendered by Mr. Joseph Milner, of Beeston Hill, and the singing was carefully conducted by Mr. Joseph Firth, and Mr. J. Ward accompanied the singing with taste on the harmonium. The audience was a fairly good one and listened attentively both to the musical and literary part of the service. A collection amounting to about twenty-five shillings was taken at the close.

Temperance Mission.—On Friday last the mission at the Rothwell Temperance Hall was continued, when the meeting was addressed by the Rev. Mr. Ivens, of Immanuel Church, Leeds. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. R. Seanor, and there was a moderate audience present. On Sunday two services were conducted by Mrs. Binks, Mrs South and Mrs. Sheard, all of Leeds. At the Cross in the afternoon, Mrs. Ineson presided, and at the Hall in the evening Mrs. Morton. The Hall was crowded, and Mrs. Morton, with the three ladies from Leeds, delivered very stirring and earnest addresses on behalf of the cause of temperance and religion, and much good may be expected to grow out of the services.

Service of Song.—The Wesleyan Musical Society gave one of these pleasant and profitable entertainments on Wednesday evening in the school-room, in the presence of a good audience, much larger than might have been expected on so unfavourable a night. The subject of the work is "The Torn Bible, or Hubert's best friend," a deeply interesting story with some pretty musical illustrations. Mr. Seanor occupied the reader's desk, and did his part even better than usual. The choir of forty voices generally acquitted themselves very well indeed, Miss Clarkson and Mr. Tilley singing the two solos most creditably. The accompaniments were played by Mr. A. Batty, assisted by primo and secondo violins, and viola, all of whom were well up in their parts. The rendering by the entire force of the chorus "Disdainful of Danger" was excellent, and more effective and powerful than could have been expected from so small a choir. The largest share of labour and also of praise is due to Mr. Idle, who ably conducted the work throughout. A collection was made during the evening, which is presented by the Musical Society to the fund for painting and decorating the chapel, and amounted to £1. 13s. A very hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Society for their services, on the motion of Mr. S. Batty, seconded by Mr. S. Seanor, and acknowledged by Mr. Marshall, one of the vice-presidents.

"The appearance upon entering (Providence House 42 North Street Leeds), gave us an idea of a fairy-land of Furniture and Crystal palace of mirrors."

The lad Wm. Collinson who was some weeks ago injured severely from the kick of a horse, at Valley Farm, was brought home from the Leeds Infirmary on Tuesday. The lad fortunately has partially recovered and it is thought that with care he will soon be perfectly cured, although his injury was thought to be of a very serious nature.

Stourton Wesleyan Methodist School-Chapel.—On Saturday last the anniversary tea in connexion with the above place was held, when a moderate number attended. After tea a meeting took place presided over by Mr. Thos. Lee. Addresses were delivered by the Revs. T. Stewart, F. Woofenden, Messrs Phillips, Webber and Kale. A very interesting and instructive evening was spent. A collection was made at the close in aid of the trust fund which proved very satisfactory. The choir sang at intervals, conducted by Mr. T. Genner.

Such has been the success of Dr. G. H. Jones' system of painless dentistry, and the consequent run on his illustrated explanatory pamphlet, that the whole of the first edition has been disposed of, and a new edition is now ready. Send address on an ordinary postcard to Dr. G. H. Jones, 57, Great Russell Street, London, and pamphlet will be sent by return.

Holloways Ointment and Pills.—Health's Defences. None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsey will attack these most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well-known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

Facts and Rumours.

In my first contribution to the columns of the Rothwell Times, I made reference to a sentence uttered by Mr. Andrew, at the meeting on "Disestablishment," to the effect that all "fools belonged to the tories." Mr. W. Mitchell, who, it may be said, is the secretary to the newly formed Liberal Association, took the trouble last week to pen a letter to the Editor, explaining that the sentence in question was given as a quotation only. I admit Mr. Mitchell's statement as correct, but I must point out that Mr. Andrew would not use a sentence belonging to another man, if the sentiment did not suit his own ideas, and I maintain that Mr. Webster got the advantage decidedly, by his "atheist" argument.

A Convention of the Teachers of the Wesleyan Sunday Schools in the Wakefield Circuit, was held last Saturday, in the Wesleyan Chapel at Alverthorpe. There were two papers read, and strange to say, they were both given by gentlemen from this district. That in the afternoon was given by Mr. Milner, of Ouzlewell Green, and entitled "A charge to the teachers of the schools connected with the Union," while the evening was occupied by Mr. T. Stephenson, of Robin Hood, on "The influence of sports and pastimes on the work and character of Sunday school teachers." I don't know how the meetings came on, but I have no doubt our local essayists would do their work well.

As I intimated last week, there is a movement on foot for establishing a reading room for Lofthouse. A largely attended meeting was held in the National Schools on Monday evening, to consider the steps necessary for resuscitating the reading room and library which had formerly been in existence in the village. There were some sixty or seventy persons present, and the vicar opened the meeting by introducing the subject. Certain rules were laid down to form a nucleus for a further meeting of the Committee. A certain number of gentlemen was elected as a Committee, with Mr. Joseph Charlesworth as the president. The meeting was very enthusiastic, and great hopes are entertained of its resulting in a successful establishment of the object desired. I hope next week to be able to place the matter before my readers as an accomplished thing.

The small but enterprising society of Wesleyans at Ouzlewell Green, held their anniversary on Sunday and Monday last. There were two well attended services conducted by the Rev. S. Pitt on Sunday afternoon and evening, after which an offertory was received. On Monday, the anniversary was continued by holding a public tea and meeting. At the meeting the chair was taken by Mr. Henry Hall, of Lofthouse, and addresses were delivered by Messrs John Milner and Thos. Oakley. The annual report and balance sheet was read by Mr. S. Hardwick. The funds are in a remarkably sound condition; there has been about £160 raised in the past two years, and the chapel is now clear of debt.

In connection with the Lofthouse Wesleyan Anniversary there is never any meeting held, and the members of the society and congregation, have no means of hearing how things are going on, or what is being done with the money from year to year. Perhaps if the stewards had had such a healthy report to present as that recently given at Ouzlewell Green, some means would have been devised whereby the state of affairs would have been made public.

The Lofthouse Cricket team when engaging the Temperance men at Woodhouse on the 22nd ultimo, made the gigantic score of 14, all the runs being secured by Hollings, Chadwick, and H. Noble, the other eight men being out for 0. Last Saturday they did very little better I fear. Well, these happily are the exceptions, and it is probable that any club in the district would have to strain every nerve to beat our village team.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

Occasional Notes.

The School Board have lost no time in availing themselves of the recent decision of Her Majesty's judges that non-payment of school fees is insufficient attendance, and may be visited with a penalty of five shillings. Notices have been issued warning parents of the intention of the Board to prosecute under this new interpretation of the law. Careless apathy in the matter of payment of school fees has increased seriously lately, and a little wholesome severity in dealing with flagrant cases, may do good. At the same time the Board show a generous disposition to remit the fees altogether where it is proved to be advisable.

If the committee of our Mechanics' Institute are desirous of reviving some interest in its affairs, they might follow the example set at Rothwell and give people here the advantage of a course of cookery lessons. Such a course would be popular and very useful, and might give a little impetus to the sleepy concern, for the winter session. If the Mechanics' Institute is too apathetic to take the matter up there is no reason why the School Board should not start such a class as a night school for older girls. They would have the advantage also of a government grant. There is a cooking kitchen to hand on the premises, provided for the purpose, and if the lectures were commenced there would soon be an eager rush of pupils. A thorough knowledge of cookery is a real necessity to young maidens to fit them for the destiny they all look forward to. Loveliness and amiability may—and does always—captivate the sterner sex, but the way to a man's heart of hearts (the poets notwithstanding) is through his stomach, and his subjugation is only complete when the young wife understands the art of ministering to his tastes in this respect.

The Revising Barrister for the Normanton Division, Adolphus Liddell, Esq., will hold a court for the revision of voting lists, for this and the neighbouring townships, at the Old Masons' Arms, Oulton, on Saturday the 19th Sept., at two o'clock in the afternoon.

WHAT IS THIS DISEASE THAT IS COMING UPON US.

Like a thief at night, it steals in upon us unawares. Many persons have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The afflicted one feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the urine is scanty and high coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. It has been found that medical men have mistaken the nature of this disease. Some have treated it for liver complaint, others for kidney disease, &c., but none of the various kinds of treatment have been attended with success because the remedy should be such as to act harmoniously upon each one of these organs, and upon the stomach as well; for in Dyspepsia (for this is really what the disease is) all these organs partake of this disease, and require a remedy that will act upon all at the same time. Seigel's Curative Syrup acts like a charm in this class of complaints, giving almost immediate relief.

TO SECRETARIES OF FOOTBALL CLUBS.

We shall be glad to receive match cards for insertion in this paper, and also reports of matches, which must reach us not later than Wednesday morning.

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell journeyed to Bruntcliffe on Saturday, and played the return match with that club. The visitors batted first, and a total of 60 was put together by them; as usual, that clever batter, Glover, was responsible for a large proportion of the runs scored, but he was thrown out after making 29. Dobson was next with 14, but none of the other batsmen made any determined stand, and the innings closed for a total of 60. Bruntcliffe next handled the willow, and although the first wicket fell for no runs, an alteration was quickly made, and at the call of time, they had scored 69, with only 4 wickets down; to this total Jubb contributed 21, Epton, 11, Ratcliffe 13 (not out), and Leeming 9 (not out).

The second team of Rothwell stayed at home, and encountered Robin Hood. The visitors acted on the defensive first, and made the respectable score of 128 before retiring. J Lee was head scorer with 29, followed by T Hemsworth with 23 (not out), S Webster 22, and S Hartley 10. The Rothwell men had no less than seven bowlers on, of whom Briggs had the best average, taking 3 wickets at a cost of 16 runs, although Chadwick bowled the longest, and secured 6 wickets for 37 runs. Rothwell now essayed to bat, and at the call of time had made 55 runs with 7 wickets down, of which Cripps was responsible for 18, and W Richardson and Chadwick 11 each. The home team may therefore consider themselves lucky to have escaped a crushing defeat.

Lofthouse had to put up with another defeat on Saturday, this time at the hands of Altofts on the ground of the latter. The visitors were only successful in compiling a total of 47, the lion's share being done by A. France, who scored a very useful 24, which, with six extras, made 30, leaving only 17 runs for the remaining ten men, six of which failed to break their "duck." This low score was mainly brought about by the good bowling of Thompson and Brown, the former taking six wickets for 16 runs, and the latter three for 15 runs. Altofts succeeded in compiling a total of 89, with ten men (one being absent), J. Teasdale heading the list with 32, followed by Brown with 23, while 14 were down for extras. My Lofthouse friends will have to bestir themselves a little and show some of the old form (not such as has been shewn this last two Saturdays) or they will make a sorry figure when pitted against Wakefield to morrow, on their ground. However, we must hope for the best, and trust that the 'scales' may be turned in their favour.

The second teams of these clubs also opposed each other on the ground of the Lofthouse Club, but in this instance, I am pleased to relate that the result was vice versa to that of the first teams, and no doubt had time allowed of the game being properly finished, the home team would have been congratulated on a somewhat heavy score. Altofts put together a total of 85, to which J Cooper made 20, Webster 14, and J Gaunt 13 (not out), while 13 were numbered as extras. This score was easily overtaken and passed, as E Wilson and J Hollings, the first pair of batsmen, made 72 between them, the former being responsible for 38, and the latter 34. The other batsman of note was J. Lunn, who brought out his bat for 10, and at the drawing of the stumps the total reached 101 for 6 wickets.

'Nah lad! we've done it to-day! Nearly bet a club 'et Roddill seckond kan't beat, only we hed'nt time to play it out. Ah wonder what point 'ell have to say next week.' This is what I heard repeated in regard to last Saturday's match between Rothwell Temperance and Carlton, on more than one occasion. It is only fair to give honour where honour is due, and I (if I may be allowed,) congratulate them on the result achieved. The match was played at Carlton, and Rothwell going in first made a total of 79, which is very good indeed, though I should have been much more pleased if it had been more evenly divided, as out of this number W Blackburn alone was responsible for 37 (not out), a creditable performance; Pickersgill and E Nunns made 10 apiece, and Websdale 6, which, with 13 extras, adds up to 76, only 3 runs remaining for 7 men, but as this number (3) was got by A Newton, it follows that six players had failed to score. Carlton did very badly indeed, not one of the players reaching double figures, and when the stumps were drawn for the day had lost 9 wickets for only 31 runs. Pickersgill and Smith for Rothwell did well in the trundling department, the former bowling 4 wickets at a cost of 11 runs, and the latter 5 wickets for 16 runs.

Stourton Harriers encountered Hunslet Wesleyans, on the ground of the latter, which resulted in a very easy win for the visitors. Stourton put together the respectable score of 70, J Goldthorpe being once more to the front with 18, then comes G Blackburn with 13 and W Coggill 12. Their opponents were simply 'not in it,' as Coggill and Goldthorpe did so well that they were all disposed of for the meagre score of 22, the former capturing 6 wickets at a cost of only 4 runs. This total (22) was obtained by five men, therefore the majority of the team were out for none.

TOWN TALK.

In spite of what I said last week (and I believe my words pretty nearly expressed the popular sentiment), the bands not only continued their rehearsals last Sunday, but indulged more freely in their playing than previously. It is all very well for the band men to think and say they will do as they please; I beg to tell them they wont, and indeed cannot. They will be compelled in the long run at any rate, to do as the people of Rothwell and district will allow them, and nothing more. I must point out that by such behaviour as theirs, they are pushing some of their supporters away from them, and as the bands are absolutely dependent upon public patronage and favour, it behoves the members to be careful how they proceed. I for one will not help in any way to support these organisations, if they continue in their Sunday practicing, and I think that the monetary assistance of all right thinking men, will not be extended to those who refuse to recognise the right of hard working people to a bit of peace on the sabbath. Now I should be the last to help the bands down, I would much rather have to commend than to condemn them, but I cannot allow such things as these to go unrebuked. I think that when a brass band comes and starts blowing away at their noisy instruments, within a stones throw of places of worship, during service time, it is time something was said, and I mean to tell these men who have so little consideration for the comfort of others, that they ought to be completely ashamed of themselves. Let my readers remember the position I have taken in this matter. What I ask the bands to do is to go to a place (say top of Swithen's Hill) where they will not be an annoyance to the townsfolk, and I have nothing more to say on the matter.

There was some talk at the end of last week among the villagers about the "New Railway," and one very interesting point was a rumour that a gentleman, who was supposed to be the engineer trusted with the word of constructing the line, had been over to Rothwell to secure apartments during the period in which he would be occupied in and about this district. This sounded very much like business. It seemed as though a bright star had suddenly burst through the still midnight darkness, which was destined to grow in size and power, until the very sun should appear dim and ugly by its side. Alas, alas, instead of enlarging in its course, this star shot suddenly across the sky and disappeared again into oblivion. When I heard the news of the arrival of this welcome visitor to our village, I seized my hat and staff, and proceeded "post haste" to Leeds, to enquire for "latest details." The darkness deepens. Lo! when I arrived at the office where the business of the E. & W. Y. Union Railway was conducted a little time ago, I found it closed, the name taken off the window, and everybody departed. It has been said "the darkest hour is that before dawn"; let us hope it may be so in this case, and that before long we may behold the "Aurora Borealis" in the shape of a resurrection to life of the long lost sun—the railway scheme—and we shall all rejoice in the splendour of its re appearing.

"Notes and Queries" have been conspicuous by their absence during the last few weeks. The Editor was right in consenting to give a "corner" for this purpose, and another gentleman was wrong in suggesting that it ought to have been "a column." When the paper was issued last week, I heard one person say "Well! no "Notes and Queries" again. If I were them I'd have some sort." "Yes," said the friend "how would this do for a query. 'Where was Moses when the light went out'." "Capital! Capital! Let us send it;" but they didn't. There is surely some information to be obtained through this medium and I hope it will not be neglected. One correspondent asked about the 'Libel Law'. Who is more likely to give information on that subject than the Editor?

The cry has often been raised for more detailed reports of the meetings of that august body, the Rothwell Local Board. Some have even gone so far as to express their opinion that verbatim reports of what every member says, should be provided for the gratification of the curiosity of the ratepayers. It has often occurred to my mind that we should have some strange literature in the columns of the Rothwell Times, if such a plan was adopted, supposing it to be practicable, and from the report of the Board meeting as recorded last week, that opinion has been confirmed. Those two little conversations between Messrs Nowell and Lawton, the one about the bladder getting pricked, and the other about Dr. Nowell's "going to business" are the portions of the report to which I refer. No doubt this humourous style of talking, serves to relieve the Board meeting of some of the monotony which would otherwise cling to it, and a bit of it, now and then, enlivens the report somewhat, but to have a verbatim report of all that is said, both of the nature of common sense and twaddle, would be an infliction too severe to be borne, and may we ever be saved from it by the judicious Mr. Marshall.

The kind hearted Guardians of the Poor, who used to be called "bulldogs," are very careful as to what they do with their lads, in reference to the trade which it is intended they should learn, or the occupation they should follow. Behold how carefully they consider the request of a lad wanting to lead a seafaring life, and mark how anxious they are that he should do well. Led by the kindly disposed and thoughtful Mr Hargreaves, the hospitable Mr. Graveley, (who provided the Guardians with such a sumptuous "tuck out" when they paid their annual visit to Halton), and the large hearted and generous parson, the Rev. Mr. Evans, (the founder of a soup kitchen and penny dinners for Hunslet, (how can they be otherwise than prudent and kind They have done well to let the lad have a chance of tasting the joys (?) of a seaman's life before binding him to any ship, and the chances are he will change his mind before he has been at it long.

The gardeners in our immediate neighbourhood make doleful complaints of the loss of their apple crop, and damage to trees by boys and young men breaking through fences to steal the fruit. I noticed the other day a case reported of a person being sent to gaol for 40 days for stealing apples. The culprit pleaded hunger, but the magistrate told him he should have applied to the relieving officer, and would not admit the plea. I don't think the apple stealers in our district, if caught, would say that hunger impelled them. There is a moral laxity upon the fruit question when dangling from a tree. Men and boys will steal from a tree who would not pilfer from a stall. I fear nothing but a sharp lesson before the magistrates will cure the evil complained of.

LIBERATION LECTURE.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

That "veteran lecturer" Mr. J. Andrew, made several statements at Robin Hood which are somewhat startling as coming from one who should be well posted in his subject, and I greatly regret that absence in Cambridgeshire prevented me from being present to support my friends Mr. Webster and Mr. Marshall.

He said that the clergy were state-paid. Mr. Gladstone, Lord Granville, and Lord Salisbury have lately declared most publicly that "the clergy are not state paid." Mr. Andrew opposed this three fold testimony by quoting the opinion of a clergyman to the contrary; but when asked his name Mr. Andrew could not give it. Now I can give the name of an eminent Wesleyan who wrote "The church is indeed established and endowed, but it does not derive a farthing of revenue from public taxation. The tithe cannot, in strict sense, be regarded as a tax. It is ecclesiastical property, but not a public tax or rate." The name of this writer is none other than that of Dr. Rigg, a former President of the Wesleyan body. Again, 'The London Quarterly,' a high class Wesleyan Magazine, lately said "The endowments of the church unquestionably represent, with few exceptions, the voluntary contributions of the past." And a noted Barrister and Wesleyan layman, the late Mr. Toulmin Smith, has declared, "Every parish Church in England was founded not by the state but by individual donations, with a few exceptions, and the parson's income is derived from similar sources."

Mr Andrew is reported also to have declared that "The largest source of income—some 4 or 5 millions—is derived from tithe rent charge." Now five independent estimates before me at this moment, show that the whole income of the church is probably only just over 4 millions. So much for Mr. Andrew's accuracy.

Again, the lecturer says that a State Church is antiscriptural. Of course this opinion is probably based on the theological interpretation of a school, and not on the secular practice of Christendom. The general practice of christianised nations has notoriously favoured a state church. As the form of Government in the Jewish common wealth was two fold, secular and religious, separated personally, having divaricated in Moses and Aaron, but united nationally through the mutual work of Princes and Priests; so has it been in the early history of a converted Europe, Asia, Northern Africa, and Southern America. But take the theological interpretation. A text is quoted "My kingdom is not of this world." No one ever maintained the contrary. But "the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of God and of his Christ;" and our duty is surely to hasten that day by both civil and ecclesiastical exertions. How then can it be sinful for a state to say to a church "Let us enter into partnership, let us give and take; I will be a nursing father to you in the way of protection and support; and be you an adviser to me in spiritual matters, caring, as a responsible church, for me and mine"? That this view of the scripture's teaching commends itself to some Noncomformists, as well as to the church folk, has been plainly shown by the action of the London Missionary Society—a noble Noncomformist Society. The ministers of that society led a Polynesian nation to embrace christianity, then to endow it, then to have the king crowned at a religious ceremony and finally to form a parliament enacting laws obliging the people to observe the sabbath, &c.; and Mr. Noble, the chief missionary, was president of the Parliament. I have heard that some of these very advocates of a state church in the antipodes are preaching against the iniquity of the church and state compact here. But surely this cannot be, for they must know that in common fairness, what is sauce for the Church goose is sauce for the Noncomforming gander. And yet perhaps it is true, because at the antipodes, if they dont stand on their heads they may think topsy-turvy. If any of your readers care to have it, I can supply them with a very fair list of leading Noncomformist divines, who distinctly upheld the state-church interpretation of "nursing fathers and nursing mothers," "kings and queens."

I have mentioned "some exceptions." Mr. Andrew quoted, when pressed, in support of the statement about a State paid Clergy, the fact that naval and army chaplains have their stipends quoted in the Budget. This is true. But when Mr. Webster reminded him that Wesleyan, Presbyterian, and Roman chaplains were also appointed and paid by Parliament, Mr. Andrew said he was not aware of the fact. All I can say is that a lecturer who does not know of so notorious a fact, one mentioned over and over again in the military gazettes, and repeated in all the chief daily papers, is a lecturer who is very badly posted up in the subject he proposes to instruct others upon. This ignorance or forgetfulness on the part of liberation lecturers is evidently wide-spread. I have met several examples of it. In one case a lecturer quoted "The Peel Churches" as being built by Act of Parliament and paid for by Parliament, and so triumphantly proving that the church is state paid. I reminded him that at the very same time Parliament voted a proportionate sum of money to Noncomformist bodies to enable them to build chapels. The lecturer had quite forgotten this! Either the Liberation Society employ agents who do not read up their subjects or have very poor, or what is far worse, very conveniently short memories.

Now, Sir, there is a cry abroad ostensibly to free the church from abuses. Parliament has, however, been asked over and over again to do that and has done it when allowed. But the real cry, only openly declared at the Liberation Society's more private meetings (I will oblige any one with chapter and verse in proof of what I say) is this "Down with her, down with her, to the ground." By "her" the church is meant. I hope the English nation will weigh well the words "Trust not in wrong and robbery." I hope too that the people of this parish will verify facts for themselves. I know that a large majority of Noncomformists have openly expressed themselves as shocked with that ungodly union formed between professed christians and avowed atheists, which has for its end and aim not the freedom, but the spoliation of the church. She has her faults, are Noncomformists perfect? But she has educated and is now actually educating more than half the children in the country. She has and is even now tending alike the sick and sorrowing amongst church folk, noncomformists, and sceptics.

Mr. Andrew may be a veteran lecturer, but I feel sure that he must have a stronger case than that he put forward the other day, before "he comes the old soldier" over the great majority of the intelligent and justice-loving voters of Lofthouse. I seldom trouble you, Sir, and never on purely political questions. But this question is a religious question, and I for one do not wish to see that act done which, as Gladstone has said "would leave nothing behind but a bleeding and lacerating mass."

Thanking you for your great courtesy in giving this long letter insertion.

I am, yours faithfully,
J. R. CRAWFORD.

SALVATION ARMY.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

I notice a letter in your issue of the 28th inst., in which statements are made irrespective of truth, which is the only reason I have for troubling you to insert a reply. I never fear any just or fair criticism, but I do want truth and justice, and therefore disclaim such falsehoods as the following—'That I have said at any time 'that people who did not come to give had better stay away,'' also that any person has been turned out of the building in consequence of not putting money in the collection box; with reference to the latter case the facts are as follows:—The collection referred to was made about half-past six o'clock; I was not aware who had or who had not given any money, and no person was turned out of that meeting; but in the after meeting, i.e., prayer meeting, a young man about 16 years of age was sent out for disturbing the meeting in various ways; this would be about 8 o'clock or after. The remainder of 'Observer's' letter is simply an insult, and in keeping with the former portion referred to. I feel satisfied that all who know anything about the working of the Salvation Army will know how to appreciate the ravings of an enemy who fears to sign his name. Had 'Observer' made personal enquiries of me, I should probably have been able to satisfy him without in this way having to expose him. Hoping he may yet be saved,

I am, Sir,
Yours truly,
GEO. KING, Captain.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The fortnightly meeting of this Board was held on Monday evening; present, Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman), J. Holmes, J. Hargreaves, J. Oliver, H. P. Newsome, J. Dobson, J. Turner, W. Lawton, J. Nowell, and the clerk, collector, medical officer and inspector.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Gas and Lamps.—Mr. Jas. Hargreaves, as chairman of this committee, reported that Mr. Holmes and he had met, and as no other member turned up, they had proceeded with the appointed work. At Stourton, four new lamps had already been agreed on by the Board, and they suggested a fifth (in Mayflower Street) so as to give every street one lamp. They also proposed the addition of four new lamps in Rothwell, specifying the places most requiring additional light They also would like the Gas Co. to put up a Bray's lamp at the entrance to their yard in Commercial St. Mr. Oliver quite agreed with the propriety of the committee's suggestions, but asked how they were going to pay for them. When the present rate was laid, it was understood that no extra expenses be incurred until the rates were reduced. He held that although he had no objection whatever to the increase of lamps in suitable places, that when the question is taken up, the entire district should be considered, and not to expend all their money on one part to the exclusion of others. He urged that nothing further should be done this year, and as he calculated the addition of these nine lamps would cost something like another penny in the £, he should vote against the proposal. Mr. Jas. Hargreaves and Mr. Newsome demurred to the estimated cost, as most of the lamps would be placed on brackets, and would only cost about £5 each, with gas, etc. The chairman reminded the Board that four are already decided on. Mr. Oliver said he had calculated that the present lamps cost £220, the supply of gas £70, and lamplighting, etc., another £20 (There will now be 33 lamps at Stourton, and 55 in Rothwell). Mr. Holmes said they had done their best to carry out the resolution, although the other two members were not present, and they left it with the Board. Mr. Oliver proposed that no other lamps be granted, till the rates are reduced. Mr. Lawton complained that one of the Stourton lamps was not on the railway bridge. Mr. Jas. Hargreaves replied that the committee had gone into the question of further lighting, and presented the following statistics: from Windmill Lane to Wakefield Bridge the length was 3,093 yards, for which some 61 lamps would be necessary, costing £244 and the gas would cost about £106; besides this there was the question of laying mains, etc., with which they had not meddled at all. Mr. Holmes gave the opinion of a Leeds official as quite against any extension of their mains. The resolution was then put, the chairman (who seconded it), Mr. Oliver and Mr. Dobson voting for it, the other gentlemen being neutral on the question. Mr. Lawton gave notice of his intention to move its being rescinded, in order to re-introduce the subject of lighting part of the outlying districts. The clerk reported having received letters from owners, agreeing to gas brackets being fixed to their property at Stourton.

Highways.—Mr. Turner enquired on whose authority, ashes were being put on various streets and lanes, to which the chairman replied "The Highway Committee." Mr. Turner—"Are we to suppose that the Highway Committee can order material without the Board." The chairman—"Certainly." Mr. Turner—"Then the sooner they leave their seats the better." Mr. Lawton—"If Mr. Turner is right in regard to ashes, then the Committee ought not to order stone either." Mr. Turner—"But you don't order stone." Mr. Lawton—"Oh! yes we do." Mr. Turner—"Then you ought to have to pay for it." Mr. Lawton—"Oh, but if there's going to be anything of that sort, I shall pull off the Committee." Mr. Oliver said that the Highway Committee ordered material, which the Board usually sanctioned, on confirming the minutes of the Committee meeting. The Clerk—"There has been no material ordered and used, by the Committee, except with the sanction of the Board; there is a resolution for the ashes." Just as the conversation was closing, Mr. Nowell entered the room, and warmly joined in denouncing the way in which Royds Lane and other streets were being repaired, describing it as simply a 'tip' for rubbish.

Health Report.—Dr. Glaister attended and read his monthly report as follows:—There have been 12 births and 14 deaths, while during the corresponding period of last year there were 19 births and 14 deaths. The causes of death are:—Male, 24 years, peritonitis; female, 69 years, senile decay; male, 9 years, scarlet fever; male, 67 years, Bright's disease; male, 72 years, senile decay; female, 61 years, senile decay; male, 16 weeks, mesenteric disease; male, 5 months, enteritis; female, 60 years, cancer; male, 4 years, scarlet fever; female, 53 years, apoplexy; male, 1 year, pneumonia; female, 30 hours, convulsions; male, 5 years, scarlet fever. The case of scarlet fever had only come to his knowledge that day, but he stated all the other cases were quite better, and nothing further had occurred in the affected houses referred to at last meeting.

Slaughter-houses.—Mr. Oliver reported that he was the only member of the Committee who met to visit the several slaughter-houses. He then described the result of his inspection (along with the Inspector). Both Mr. Heaton and Mr. Clayton's slaughter-houses and boiling pans were clean and tidy, and everything very fair. At Mr. Brown's, they found the slaughter-house kept beautifully clean and tight. The boiling had just been finished, but there was nothing at all objectionable in what they saw. In regard to the complaint of certain property owners, Mr. Brown stated that the smell had arisen from his boys having put a dead sheep into the boiling pan, while he was from home, without his knowledge and against his orders. To prevent any smell arising from the pan in future, Mr. Brown suggested that he should have a cover to the pan, and a steam pipe directed from the pan into the chimney. The report and explanation appeared to be satisfactory to the Board, and it is hoped things will go on agreeably in future.

The Chairman having to leave at this moment, Mr Oliver was voted to the chair, on the motion of Mr. Dobson and Mr. Nowell. Mr. Holmes, Mr. Newsome and Mr. Jas. Hargreaves had also left the meeting previous to this.

Water.—Mr. Nowell introduced the question of supplying Messrs. Horns' with water, which was warmly supported by Mr. Lawton (whose house is in a similar condition). Mr. Turner suggested the probability of a surcharge, which Mr. Lawton scouted as unlikely to be supported by the Local Government Board. The chairman, after further conversation on the subject, hinted the advisability of Messrs. Horn or the Aire and Calder Navigation Co. making some proposition towards defraying the initial expense of laying mains, etc., after which the Board might be prepared to consider the question Mr. Nowell then formally moved a resolution to this effect; seconded by Mr. Lawton. Mr. Turner voted against, Mr. Dobson neutral, and the chairman, Messrs. Nowell and Lawton in favour.

General District Rate ...	121	12	5
Water Rent	26	5	9
	£147	18	2

On the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. Lawton, a resolution was passed, supporting the collector in any legal proceedings he might find necessary for completing the collection of rates, which should all be paid in by to-morrow (Saturday).

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

Last Wednesday, the above Board met at the Union Offices, present, Mr. Jas. Hargreaves (chairman), Mr. J. Graveley, (vice-chairman), Messrs. J. Parker, H. Sheard, J. Dixon, J. Hardcastle, W. Lawton, B. Riley, G. Jepson, C. Grosvenor, J. Swithenbank, Rev. G. M. Platt, and Mr. Keight, assistant clerk.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The question of apprenticing one of the boys to a sea-faring life was considered, in view of certain suggestions from other Unions, and the matter was adjourned to another meeting.

Tenders for the half-year's requirements were ordered to be advertised in the Rothwell Times and other papers.

The boarding-out returns as regards children belonging to the Union, were placed before the Board, and the reports are satisfactory.

The master reported that two cases of fever had occurred in the House, but they had been removed to the Fever Hospital that afternoon. He also stated that a parcel of Graphics had been received from Mr. Jas. Hargreaves, chairman of the Board, and also a parcel of books from Mr Jas. Yates, the Librarian of the Leeds Free Library. The thanks of the Board were presented to these gentlemen, on the motion of Mr. Parker and Mr. Riley.

The various wants for the House were read and approved of.

Epp's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in packets, labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epp's Chocolate Essence.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

ROTHWELL PRIMITIVE CHAPEL.—A Magic Lantern entertainment was given by Mr. Alfred Steel, of Rothwell, on Tuesday last, in the above chapel. The attendance was good. The subject was "A holiday in Ireland," and as representations of the great sights to be seen in the sister Island were thrown upon the canvas by means of a powerful light, a very interesting description of the holiday tour was read by Mr. Steel. There was also a great variety of other scenery and a number of droll moving figures exhibited, much to the amusement of old and young alike.

OULTON WESLEYAN CHAPEL.—The anniversary services at the Oulton Wesleyan Chapel were conducted on Sunday and Monday last. On Sunday Mr. Joseph Rathmell (father of the Rev. T. Rathmell, of Wakefield) preached two sermons, which were full of interest, and delivered with great earnestness. The evening service was very well attended by people from the neighbouring villages. The public tea took place at 5 o'clock on Monday, after which a public meeting was held. Mr. Councillor Lenty occupied the chair and addresses were delivered by the Revs. A. B. Gardiner and S. Pitt, and Messrs S. Batty and J. Varley. Mr. J. Walker read the annual report and balance sheet, from which it appears the chapel is in a flourishing condition. The proceeds of the anniversary reaches the tidy sum of £7, which will be devoted to chapel expenses.

COOKERY LECTURES.—Under the auspices of a number of ladies, arrangements have been made with the Leeds School of Cookery, for the delivery of a course of lectures on superior and domestic cookery in our Mechanics' Hall. The first of these demonstrations took place on Monday, when Miss Theed addressed a company of some thirty ladies on the preparation of "Baked lobster," "fillets of beef and Bearnaise Sauce," 'Victoria tartlets,' and lemon cream, illustrating the descriptions in actual demonstration by means of a 'Carlton' gas stove. The meeting was considered quite successful, and it is anticipated that the attendance will increase. In the evening, Miss Theed shewed the best and cheapest means of preparing several plain dishes, including "Fish baked in milk," "Irish stew," "cabinet pudding," "beef tea" and "lemonade." At this lecture, the object was to show how tasty nutritious foods may be cooked at a very low cost, and everyone was highly pleased with the work accomplished. As the charge for the evening lectures is very low, and the course is specially designed to meet the requirements of working men's homes, it is hoped that a large number of our housewives will avail themselves of these valuable opportunities. It will be seen that the next lecture is on Monday, superior cookery at 3, and plain at half past seven.

SALVATION LIFE GUARDS.—On Saturday last, General Booth's regiment, the "Salvation Army Life Guards" passed through this district, and were witnessed by a fair sprinkling of spectators. The regiment consists of about 140 soldiers and a brass band, which includes about forty performers, making together some 200 strong. They are under the supervision of Commandant Herbert Booth, who is mounted on a spirited and valuable black horse with military trappings. The other members of the regiment are on foot. The Guards wear white helmets, with white linen puggarees, red jerseys, blue trousers, and regulation leggings, and each carries a knapsack, lantern, water bottle and overcoat. The men march extraordinarily well, and the band is also much better, and far more musical than is usual with other bands belonging to the Salvation Army. Following the band and soldiers, and drawn each by a pair of good horses, are two large and well built vans, named "Rescue" and "Victory" which are used as sick hospitals. The Guards held a meeting at Robin Hood, and afterwards marched on to "Jaw Bones," where they arrived about half past one, when orders were given for the men to halt, and an hour's rest was enjoyed before the march was continued to Leeds.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT (MONDAY.)

DRUNK.—William Nicholson and David Ryder, turners, Hunslet, were both charged by P. S. Turton, with being drunk and disorderly, in Wood Lane, Rothwell, on Saturday the 5th inst. The officer said that he found the two men laid across the footpath, and addressing very objectionable words to the passers by. He got them up, but they refused to go home and Ryder became very violent and abusive, adding that if he (the Sergeant) touched him he would convert him into a corpse. He then took them both into custody and had them locked up. Nicholson was fined 2s. 6d. and 12s 11d. costs, Ryder's fine was 5s. and a similar amount of costs.

DRUNK AND RIOTOUS.—James Blakeley, blacksmith, Rothwell Haigh, had 2s. 6d. and costs to pay, for being drunk and riotous on the highway at Stourton, on Sunday morning at 2 o'clock. P. C. White proved the case, and said the prisoner became very abusive.

(FRIDAY.)

TRAPPING A NEIGHBOUR'S PIGEON.—Robert Ellis, miner, Carlton, was charged with stealing a tame pigeon, value 5s., the property of Charles Lofthouse, landlord of the Lord Nelson Inn at that place.—Evidence was given to the effect that on the 25th ult. Lofthouse was at his work and his wife was at Leeds, the house being left in charge of Joseph Thackray and his wife. During the afternoon Thackray's attention was drawn by his wife to the conduct of Ellis, who lived opposite, and who was trying to entice three of Lofthouse's pigeons into his bedroom by scattering corn on the window sill. Ultimately Thackray saw Ellis "click" one of the pigeons and draw it into the room. When Mr. and Mrs. Lofthouse came home information was given to the police, and Police-constable Slimmon went to the house several times, but no one was in. After a summons had been taken out against Ellis the lost pigeon returned home.—The defendant said that the pigeon he caught belonged to a man named Bell, whose name was stamped on it, and he took it back to Bell the same evening.—A witness bore out this statement.—The Bench, however, believed that the defendant decoyed Lofthouse's pigeon, and fined him £1 and £3 10s. costs, or one month's imprisonment.

INTERESTING TO SALVATIONISTS.—On Thursday morning a young man named Robert Goodall, was brought before Mr. Bruce, at the Leeds Police-court, charged with "disturbing a meeting of Protestant Dissenters" at New Wortley, on the 28th ult. Some four or five hundred people, it appeared, had been gathered together under the auspices of the Salvation Army, when Goodall interrupted the proceedings by throwing paper about, and by otherwise behaving in a disrespectful manner. The magistrates convicted him, and remarking that if people chose to attend such meetings they must behave decently, imposed a fine of 20s. including costs, with the option of fourteen days' imprisonment.

Holloway's Pills.—Weakening weather.—The sultry summer days strain the nerves of the feeble and decrepit, and disease may eventuate unless some restorative, such as these purifying Pills, be found to correct the disordering tendency. Holloway's medicine gives potency to the nervous system, which is the source of all vital movements, and presides over every action which maintains the growth and well-being of the body. No one can over-estimate the necessity of keeping the nerves well strung, or the ease with which these Pills accomplish that end. They are the most unfailing antidotes to indigestion, irregular circulation, palpitation, sick headache, and costiveness, and have therefore attained the largest sale and highest reputation.

CHEAP NOURISHMENT.—Fourteen large Breakfast Cups of strong, reliable Cocoa can be made from a Sixpenny Packet of Cadbury's Cocoa Essence. Ask for Cadbury's, and do not be imposed upon.

THE Golden Cup Cocoa House, 157 Briggate.—The new premises are now complete and the accommodation greatly improved.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

THE School Board summoned William Pape, Geo. Ashton, James Armitage, and William Walker, all of Carlton, before the Wakefield magistrates on Monday last, for neglecting to send their children to school.—Mr. Horner, the schoolwarden, having given evidence, the Bench fined Pape and Ashton 2s. 6d. each, but dismissed the other two cases.

I am glad to be able to tell my readers that the Lofthouse Reading Room is an accomplished thing. The room has been opened this week, and is on a fair way to become a great success. Of course the number of newspapers and magazines is yet somewhat limited, but the number no doubt will be increased as time goes on and finances improve. I was glad to notice on the table a copy of the Rothwell Times, and hope that our town's-people will make it their "own paper." Various entertaining games are carried on in the room, and these along with the literature provided will, I doubt not, be the means of keeping the members together, and save them from entering into company and places, which are not calculated to improve them either morally or physically. It is beyond my power of vision to see what good results may, and will spring from the judicious management of this room; but I would suggest that as soon as it is thought there is sufficient strength, a mutual improvement class be formed at which debates, essays and lectures may be given. So will the good work go on, and may great success attend every endeavour of the committee.

The anniversary of the founding of the Lofthouse Wesleyan chapel was celebrated last Sunday, when special services were held. The usual morning and evening services were conducted by the Rev. Henry Jefford and the Rev. A. B. Gardiner respectively, and in the afternoon Mr. Jefford held a service for the children of the Sunday school with their parents and friends. The hymns recently used at the Sunday School Festival, were heartily sung by the children and choir. A collection in aid of the chapel funds was taken at the close of each service. There was no meeting held as I have previously stated, and it is surprising to me that so many people should be irritated at my comment upon this unusual practice last week.

The Rev. Mr. Crawford's letter in the Rothwell Times last Friday in reply to Mr. Andrew on "Disestablishment" is a long and interesting one, and has been read by many of the inhabitants. I am not going into the question as to which is right and which is wrong, but consider it worthy of notice in order to admire the pluck the Vicar shews in taking up the sword in defence of his side of the subject. No doubt the Rev. gentleman's statements will not go unchallenged, but he appears to be on the alert.

It is my painful duty to record a very sad and sudden death, which has occurred in our midst this week. Mrs. Horner, wife of Mr. James Horner, of Westgate, Lofthouse, expired very suddenly at about a quarter to two o'clock yesterday morning in her own home. It appears that the deceased has not been very strong for some time past, but she appeared to be in her usual health on Wednesday evening, and retired to rest about half past ten. She was, however, unable to remain in bed, being short of breath; and had to come down stairs again, remaining there on the couch until about 1-30, when she became seriously worse, and on her husband attempting to raise her, she, as it appeared, in a moment ceased to live. Mr. Horner immediately called his grandaughter, Edith, who lives with them, and who had retired to rest at the usual time, and roused some of the neighbours, but life was extinct. It is supposed that heart disease was the cause of death. Mrs. Horner, who was 73 years old, is much lamented by her numerous circle of friends, amongst whom she has lived so long and amicably, and therefore has been much respected by all.

How did it happen that Messrs. Hall and Stephenson were to be seen in Lofthouse church last Sunday? I thought they were both very prominent members, and indeed stewards of the Wesleyan Chapel; this strange visit seems even stranger still when one remembers that at their own place of worship the anniversary services were being conducted.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

7. CAN any of your readers give some information concerning the East and West Yorkshire Railway; has it sunk into oblivion or is it still slowly growing.

8. HAVING fallen in with a copy of the Poll list of electors for the County of York, in the year 1807, we purpose publishing extracts from the book next week showing the persons who exercised the franchise in this district at the time and how they voted. The list will no doubt be deeply interesting to the descendants of the favoured few who were able to vote 80 years ago, and we should be pleased to hear from any who may be still living in the district.—The Editor.

No. 6 still remains unanswered.

REPLIES.

5 LAW OF LIBEL.—We do not bind ourselves to take up any questions which may remain unanswered under the head of Notes and Queries, and the enquiry proposed by 'Caliban' would form a very capital peg on which to hang a long list of legal replies. We are pleased, however, to say a few words. Should any of our correspondents be inclined to test the question, what constitutes a libel, we would first give Punch's historic answer "Don't"; but if resolved to persevere, we would advise our friend to engage the most astute lawyer, and the wittiest witnesses, and to carry the point to the highest Court in the land, always provided that a few thousands are of no great moment to him. Mr. Justice Blackburn declares that "a libel is a publication without a lawful excuse, reflecting on the character of another person or tending to bring him into hatred, ridicule or contempt." Here is a wide field for definition and explanation. What is a lawful excuse? Does it reflect on a person's character? Is it intended to bring the person into ridicule, hatred and contempt, or does the statement tend thereto? and many other questions arising out of these. As the primary object of any prosecution for newspaper libel is the unhappy individual who owns, edits, prints, or publishes the journal in which it appears, we trust our correspondents will not "lead us into temptation," but—forgive us when we deem it advisable to keep our heads out of the lion's mouth by declining to print their eloquent lucubrations.—ED.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as SCOTT & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

CRICKET NOTES.

Rothwell would most certainly have added another win to their list of victories on Saturday last, had time allowed of the game being played out. East End were fortunate in winning the toss, and while they occupied the wickets made the respectable score of 102; of which J Waters was responsible for 32, and Joy 29, the result of first rate batting, J Perkin following with 13. The first wicket did not fall until the first-named batsmen had taken the score up to 59. The bowling honours on the Rothwell side were won by W E Richardson, who took three wickets at a cost of 6 runs, closely followed by Dobson whose average was 4.1. Rothwell made a very good beginning, and appeared as though they were going to carry it through. H Richardson and Glover put on 24 for the first wicket, and at the drawing of the stumps the score stood 76 for four wickets. Dobson made 18, Glover 17, H Richardson 15, and Chadwick and A Tiffany not out for 17 and 7 respectively.

Worse than ever! I did really think that my Lofthouse friends would show up somewhat better on Saturday, than what they have done for a short time past, but this was not to be, however, and the Wakefield men, (or a few of them) completely smothered them, by such a crushing defeat as I have seldom heard of. Their efforts only realised 59, of which Hollings was responsible for 24, which along with six extras makes a total of 30, leaving the meagre score of 29 runs for the ten men, while Hayley and Gill ran up a total of 206 for Wakefield, and were both not out at the drawing of the stumps. This is a disgrace, and a proper one I should think, and all I can say, that its a blessing the season is near its finish.

WHAT IS THIS DISEASE THAT IS COMING UPON US.

Like a thief at night, it steals in upon us unawares. Many persons have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The afflicted one feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the urine is scanty and high coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. It has been found that medical men have mistaken the nature of this disease. Some have treated it for liver complaint, others for kidney disease, &c., but none of the various kinds of treatment have been attended with success because the remedy should be such as to act harmoniously upon each one of these organs, and upon the stomach as well; for in Dyspepsia (for this is really what the disease is) all these organs partake of this disease, and require a remedy that will act upon all at the same time. Seigel's Curative Syrup acts like a charm in this class of complaints, giving almost immediate relief.

TOWN TALK.

I HEAR that 'mine host' at the "Black Bull" is contemplating leaving the house, and that Mr. John Clayton has an idea of taking it. Mr. A. Judson last week occupied the "Coach and Horses" at Rothwell Haigh.

THE exceedingly heavy rains which have descended this week in Rothwell and the vicinity, will considerably hinder the active operations of the farmers in the harvest fields. Should there be no more rain, the ingathering of the "precious grain" will be delayed some days, and it is very sincerely to be desired that the clouds will roll by, and that the "God of the harvest" will send suitable weather in which to collect and gather in the abundant and rich crops, which have been brought to such a state of perfection as has not been the case for some years past.

ALL Church people and not a few dissenters, will be pleased to hear that it is likely that their old pastor and friend, the Rev. G. Heberden, will occupy the pulpit, at the evening service on Harvest-thanksgiving day at Rothwell Church. It is said that the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Ripon will preach in the morning, and I am sure we shall all be proud of the visit, but Mr. Heberden's face will be made even more welcome than that of the Bishop himself. The memory of our late vicar's kindness to the poor, his attention to the sick, and sympathy with those in trouble will be fresh in the memory of all, and there is many a poor widow who will, even if it be with the help of a staff, toil to church on that day so that she may have a good look at her former pastor.

THE experiment of placing white glass at the top of some of the lamps has proved quite a success. The light is reflected, and instead of a portion of the light escaping out of the top panes, all the light is thrown upon the street. The Board ought to have all the lamps done at once.

I am sorry that both our bands were unsuccessful at the Castleford Contest on Saturday last. It was generally admitted that there was no chance for the Temperance Band, but it was thought that possibly the Old Band might secure a prize. They were both however put out by superior bands, and must be content to wait a little longer until their playing has become more perfected.

I AM glad to observe that there was no band practicing on Sunday last. I thought the members of the bands were open to reasonable views, and I am pleased that they have acceded to the wish of the public.

THE attendance at the Cookery lecture last Monday afternoon was considered as satisfactory, there being about thirty ladies present. Of course a very much larger number, it was anticipated, would attend in the evening, when the art of plain cookery was to be demonstrated, but I am sorry to say that only about fifty persons attended that useful lecture. It is really lamentable that the wives and daughters of the working classes cannot be got to attend this most beneficial course of lessons, so that their knowledge of the indispensable art of cookery might be improved and enlarged. I do most heartily recommend these lectures to my readers and would urge all my female friends to attend them.

THE Cookery Lectures were not the only lectures that I expected would be provided for us this coming autumn and winter. Are we not to expect something from the Mechanics Institute committee in the shape of popular educational lectures of some kind. Why not ask Dr. Purdy to give his lecture on "Ambulances"? And then Dr. Glaister might be asked for something either in the literary or physiological line. Mr. Wm. Hargreaves perhaps would give something on 'Coal mining,' and Mr. Turner, Mr. Wright, and Mr. S. Seanor are very able and entertaining lecturers.

GOSSIP.

DISESTABLISHMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

In reference to the letter by the Rev. J. R. Crawford, printed in your issue of Sept. 4th, I wish to say that I have sent a copy to Mr. Andrew, and we may have a reply from him. I understand that shortly after the meeting at Robin Hood, Mr. Andrew would leave England for a lengthened tour, and if that be so some time must elapse before he can get his paper, as I do not know his present address. Nor do I know the exact line of argument any reply he may make will take. Supposing then he does reply, it will not be a matter of surprise if upon some points there may be some difference of opinion between him and myself. Nor do I pretend to an acquaintance with the question, so extensive as to enable me to decide points of great difficulty.

I may perhaps be allowed to say, although somewhat out of proper order, that the author of 'Facts and Rumours' does not add very much to the knowledge possessed by mankind when he says that I am the secretary of the Lofthouse-with Carlton Liberal Association, seeing that the same fact was very loudly proclaimed and very widely known a considerable time before 'Facts and Rumours' made its appearance. Now whether Mr. Webster did or did not gain an advantage over Mr. Andrew is not of the slightest importance to me. If he did gain one he will have credit for doing so, and Mr. Andrew will perhaps learn something from the lesson.

I am very glad that Mr. Crawford has taken up the question. I also heartily join with him in advising the inhabitants of the parish, and other parishes also, to 'trust not to wrong and robbery,' and to verify facts for themselves. We may, however, arrive at different conclusions as to who are the wrong-doers and robbers, and upon the facts.

In the second paragraph of his letter, Mr. Crawford says that Mr. Gladstone, Earl Granville, and Lord Salisbury have recently declared that the clergy are not State paid. I shall feel obliged to Mr. Crawford if he will give the text of the declarations. I have heard of it, but although I have made some amount of enquiry for it I have been unable to get it. I have been told that the text gives a meaning different to that implied by the rev. gentleman. In the same paragraph Mr. Crawford gives three quotations, which are of considerable interest:—1st, 'The church is indeed established and endowed, but it does not derive a farthing of its revenue from public taxation.' What is 'public taxation'? Has Mr. Crawford verified his statement? Does Mr. Crawford class 'poor rates and highway rates as public rates or taxes? 'The tithe cannot in a strict sense be regarded as a tax.' But in what other sense can it be regarded? It is so nearly like a tax that the distinction is without a difference. It is imposed, enforced and distributed by the same authority as all taxes are—by Act of Parliament. 'It is ecclesiastical property and not a public tax.' But all ecclesiastical property is the property of Parliament, and no one else has any control over it. 2nd, 'The endowments of the church unquestionably represent, with few exceptions, the voluntary contributions of the past.' 3rd, 'Every parish church in England was founded, not by the State, but by individual donations, with a few exceptions, and the parson's income is derived from similar sources.' Has Mr. Crawford verified these statements? If so, will he give us the dates at which these 'contributions' and 'donations' were given? And will he oblige me by a statement of the 'few exceptions'?

I have before me an estimate which places the income of the Church at probably not less than six millions. This is about two millions more than Mr. Crawford states. I am unable to give any direct verification of the amount, but if Mr. Crawford will furnish details of the amount he states, I will try to compare them. It is very difficult to get at any fair approximate.

As to the payment of Wesleyan ministers in the Army being in the Budget, Mr. Andrews said he was not aware of the fact, and I have made a little enquiry about it, and have been told this morning that such is not the fact, at least in the manner implied by the question as put to Mr. Andrew. How the case may stand I am not in a position to decide until I have made further enquiry.

I do not understand the term 'the Peel Churches,' and shall feel obliged if Mr. Crawford will furnish the date of the Act by which money was voted to enable Nonconformists to build chapels.

I am,
Yours truly,
W. MITCHELL.

POLICE STATION WANTED.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

We are not notoriously bad folks at Rothwell, else this letter would not be required, inasmuch as the object in view would have been accomplished long ago.

I want to point out the serious disadvantage we are living under in not having a Police Station in the district. I just now said we were not notoriously bad folks in Rothwell, but we are honoured (?) very often with the attention of very notorious Leeds and Hunslet vagabonds and thieves. Being what is sometimes termed a "man about town," I have frequently noticed that our police officers have often a large portion of their "good work" to perform after the hour of 10 o'clock p.m., and it often happens that at the hour mentioned, the long and tedious work of conveying offenders to Wakefield commences. Now it will be readily seen that on these occasions the peaceful sleeping villagers are left entirely unprotected, at the untender mercies of the prying prowling thief, and that at the most lonely time of the night. Both our policemen have to accompany prisoners to Wakefield, so that there is a clear course for those who are so inclined, to carry on the work of housebreaking, etc. We want a Police Station, and I think the Local Board ought to move in the matter. It would not make a penny difference to the rates, nay, we have in truth paid for it already, and the building would be provided by the County. I am persuaded it only requires the application of the Local Authority, to secure this great convenience to Rothwell. The Hon. and Rev. P. Y. Savile got one for Methley not many years ago, and here in the midst of this large population, we have not even a place in which to lodge inebriates, etc., for the night. The Station at Methley contains three cells; the same size would do for us. Lest I should be a follower of the inventor of the guillotine,—who was the first to suffer death by his own machine—and be the first occupant of the cells, I shall not give my name, but subscribe myself

SALVATION ARMY.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Captain G. King's reply to an "Observer" is very moderate and is probably the correct statement of facts as regards the night in question. There is no reference to my complaint at all, and now that the two Bands have taken the Sunday for practice, and even the Concertina lads must join in to desecrate the 'rest day,' I really think some protest should be made against the whole lot. I don't see the slightest difference between the two parties into which the Captain will no doubt divide these noisy competitors. The 'saints' beat a drum without any regard to music and in the most unmerciful manner, to the cruel distress of those who are sick or nervous; while the 'sinners' do the same thing, only displaying more taste and keeping a bit out of the way. All, however, are equally to be denounced, and none of them have any right to disturb the peace and quiet of the English Sabbath. Let the Captain of the 'saints' lead the four regiments of 'drum beaters' in the "path they ought to go." Let the army sing, and march, and exhort as hard they like (the other bands might follow their example in this too) but for God's sake, let us stop the noise which like the instrument producing it, is only a sign of emptiness and want of substance.

A FRIEND.

SUNDAY PRACTICING.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Will you allow me a short space in your columns for a few words on a subject with which 'Gossip,' the writer of Town Talk, has on two occasions thought fit to find fault. I do not altogether agree with practicing on Sunday, but I think if "Gossip" had been better acquainted with the state of affairs he would never have written the article, as I believe it was not the intention of the bands to make it a regular thing in the open-air, only that both were entered for the Castleford contest, and in consequence adopted this plan as a means of securing full rehearsals. As regards being a nuisance to the places of worship, I don't see that it was any more so than what has been carried on from Sunday to Sunday. The Temperance band (at the top of Butcher Lane) cannot have been more noisy there than what they are when in their Hall, when they have the windows open, especially to the Primitives, as the field is further away, than what the Hall really is; but as for the Old Band's place of rehearsal, I think there is little cause for complaint, as I don't suppose they were ever heard by those taking part in God's service, while they were also a fair distance from the road. Now, I think he goes too far, when he says that the bands will not have to practice on Sundays, &c., and more than what he is able to carry out, as I can't see how he is going to stop them. His idea is that in the long run they would be compelled to take his advice, as the public would not continue to support them. Public patronage and favour would be lost, would it? This sentence caused me to smile in spite of myself, and I will just place before my readers a sample of this 'public support and patronage.' The Temperance Band has not speculated much, but this is not the case with the members of the other band, who have tried several means to secure public support, all of which have met with little or no success. Galas (a thing which nearly always leaves a balance on the right side in other districts, even at Oulton) have been several times tried, but failed. A sacred concert (at a very small charge) held in the Mechanics' Hall, only tended to draw some twenty or thirty persons, and a repetition of the same music, rendered near the Cross, just about cleared printing expenses; lastly the band contest, which, with a really splendid day, some excellent bands, and other items necessary to make the thing a success, left the promoters with a debt of £14 on the affair. If this is the support 'Gossip' speaks about, the bands have little to fear, and if one of their chief supporters had laid a complaint, I have no doubt but that the thing would be rectified. In conclusion, allow me to say that I am not a bandman, nor am I in any way connected with either of these organisations, but I do believe at all times and in all ways, in

Kaye's Lavaline is king of soaps,
That's what the people say;
They buy from H. P. Newsome,
Who sells it every day;
There is Charles Ward and Son,
Also there's Alfred Drew,
Together with the Co-op'tive Stores,
And a host of others too.

Just you try Kaye's Lavaline,
Try Kaye's Lavaline!
You'll say then with the rest
It's the cheapest and the best
Of all the soaps you've seen.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in restoring the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name CONSUMPTION EMULSION. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men, as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 143 of his work, entitled "Consumption: Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." Such a testimony as this speaks volumes for the efficiency of Phthisicon. In addition, it has proved of immense value as a curative agent in the early stages of Brain Disease and Scrofula; in fact, wherever there is impaired nutrition or lack of nerve power, its action is almost certain. It can be obtained of all Chemists at 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. per bottle. Wholesale of Barclay and Sons, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.; or of W. B. Trick, L.P.S., 23, Green-lanes London, N.

DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 21st of July they tapped me, and took away 284 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 308 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 20th), was again tapped at home and 280 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.
1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

21, Cursitor Street,
Chancery Lane, London, W.C.
Yours truly,
Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 21st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry. What can be done? For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

GENUINE ORANGE BITTERS.—21s. per case of one dozen [illegible]. These Bitters are made from the very finest Seville oranges and will be found to be an admirable and pleasant tonic. [illegible] by Joseph Hobson, Dantzic Brewery, Regent Street, Leeds.—Rothwell Agent, H. P. Newsome, Grocer, &c.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Price 3s. 6d. —For an Oil to make the Hair soft, glossy, and luxuriant, ask for "CARTER'S COLOGNE OIL." Price 1s. of all dealers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Old Sores and Old Skin Diseases.

The seeds of these disorders are effectually expelled by this penetrating Unguent, not only from the superficial parts, but from the internal tissues likewise. Any case, even of twenty years' standing, speedily yields to its influence.

A Certain Cure for Bronchitis, Diphtheria, Sore Throat, Asthma, &c.

For curing sore throat, diphtheria, bronchitis, asthma, tightness of the chest, and pain in the side—which instant treatment alone prevents degenerating into more serious maladies—this Ointment has the same powers over chest complaints as a blister possesses, without causing pain or debility. Old asthmatic invalids will derive marvellous ease from the use of this Ointment, which has brought round many such sufferers and re-established health after every other means had signally failed.

By rubbing the Ointment round the affected parts, it penetrates to the tissues beneath, and exercises a wonderful power on all the blood flowing to, and returning from, the diseased part. The inflammation diminishes, the pain becomes less intolerable, the matter thicker, and a cure is soon effected. In all long-standing cases, Holloway's Pills should also be taken, as they will thoroughly expel all depraved humours from the body.

Gout, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints.

Gout and Rheumatism arise from inflammation in the parts affected. To effect a permanent cure, adopt a cooling diet, drink plenty of water, take six of Holloway's Pills night and morning, and rub this Ointment most effectually twice a-day into the suffering parts; when used simultaneously, they drive all inflammation and depression from the system, subdue and remove all enlargement of the joints, and leave the sinews and muscles lax and uncontracted.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following complaints:—

Bad Legs
Bad Breasts
Burns
Bunions
Chilblains
Chapped Hands
Contracted and Stiff Joints
Corns (Soft)
Fistulas
Gout
Glandular Swellings
Lumbago
Piles
Rheumatism
Sore Nipples
Scalds
Sore Throats
Skin Diseases
Scurvy
Sore Heads
Tumours
Ulcers
Wounds

The Ointment and Pills are sold at Professor HOLLOWAY'S Establishment, 533, Oxford Street, London; also by nearly every respectable Vendor of Medicine throughout the Civilised World, in Pots and Boxes, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., 22s., and 33s. each. The smallest Pot of Ointment contains one ounce; and the smallest Box of Pills four dozen.

Full printed directions are affixed to each Pot and Box, and can be had in any language, even in Turkish, Arabic, Armenian, Persian, or Chinese.

Friday, September 18, 1885.

THE sixpenny telegram comes into operation in a very few days, and doubtless it will be deemed a boon by business men and others to whom the sending of a short message is an hourly or everyday occurence. The new rate fixes a minimum of sixpence for a dozen words or less, and a half-penny for every additional word. Both address of sender and receiver are to be charged, though, as is pointed out, in few cases more than the mere name of the sender will need to be given. Some important little concessions are made to the public, too, in the matter of word charging, a compound place name, such as Kingston-on-Thames or Tunbridge Wells, being charged as one word only, while five figures count as only a single word This latter announcement will be received with pleasure by operators on 'Change, whether stockbrokers or buyers and sellers of produce, as they will chiefly benefit thereby. The Post Office authorities are anticipating a large acceleration in the business of the telegraphic department by reason of the alterations, and, doubtless, they will not be disappointed. Perhaps one of the most beneficial results of the change, as a contemporary points out, will be the practical public teaching in brevity which this statutory limitation of twelve words for sixpence cannot fail to form. The increased quantity of telegrams will materially reduce the number of letters written too. The cheap message will strike a hard blow at long disquisitions, and school men in the desirable art of saying exactly what they mean in the fewest possible words. It may be that some day the telephone will be as widely and generally employed as a means of communication, as the telegraph is likely to be on and after the first of next month, and possibly some of us will live to see both occupying in combination the place now held by the penny post as the universal method of carrying questions and answers, thoughts and messages between men and men sundered by space. Already this anticipation is in course of realisation, for this morning we learn that an instrument has been constructed, and conversation is being carried on over 2200 miles of wire immersed in the Gulf of Mexico. The notion of speaking across the Atlantic is now assuming practical shape, and as suitable telephonic apparatus is now being prepared by the great cable companies, we may look forward to having the pleasure shortly, of 'talking' with Brother Jonathan in New York.

HARVEST THANKSGIVING FESTIVALS.

We are just now on the eve of our Harvest Thanksgiving Festivals. Every church and chapel in the three kingdoms has its special service of praise and thanksgiving at the completion of the ingathering of the crops. This calmer and more reasoning rejoicing seems to have almost altogether taken the place of the old Harvest-home feasts which characterised the merry England of poetry and song. The same spirit of gratitude to the Author of every blessing, more or less perfectly understood and appreciated, seems at all times to have had ebullition at Harvest-tide through successive centuries. The resonant praise was not always, it may be, rendered to the true Giver of good, but the thank-offering and the song of joy ascended according to the knowledge and the light of the happy harvesters. A round of rejoicings, the historians tell us, has marked the conclusion of harvest work ever since the story of the world and its ways was written. We read of the feast of the harvest in the records of inspired Moses. The peoples of classic Greece and Rome had their annual harvest-tide celebrations. Eugene Aram, scholar and felon, points out how these old world offerings were intended as a grateful acknowledgment to the sun whose genial warmth had caused the corn to ripen. In these festal institutions, dating back to the morning dawn of history, we recognise the origin of the peculiarly English harvest-home, an annual merrymaking to which the rustics of years of yore looked forward with eager expectation. What this rural high-holiday was, all who have felt any sort of interest in English folk-customs well know. The labourers of the favoured age which knew naught of land-nationalisation and cared little for politics of any sort, loved their harvest-home, and their agriculturists, wise in their day and generation, knew the value of the autumnal merrymaking as a sweetener of toil, and never failed to furnish a bountiful board on the occasion. As a charming songstress of rural life in our land picturesquely put it, then it was that there was—

> "Merry laughter in the field,
> And harmless jest and frolic routs,
> And the last harvest wain went by
> With it's rustling load so pleasantly,
> To the glad and clamorous harvest shouts."

Heaven was thanked in this antique feast, in no spirit of serious or puritanical gloom, but by a glad outpouring of grateful joy and sparkling mirth. Though manifested in a less refined form than is our observance within some sacred fane, our grandsire's ceremonial sprang from the same source. It was a festival of joy and of thanksgiving, joy for the garnered treasures of the field, gratitude for the Divine goodness which had sustained the exquisite equilibrium of heat and cold, sunshine and rain, which had its resultant in countless sheaves of full-eared and well-ripened golden grain. No wonder that mankind in every age, should at this season be thus moved. When we remember that even a trifling change in the temperature, an alteration so seemingly insignificant at the time that the variation of a few degrees in the thermometer's reading would suffice for its indication, would have wrought famine and desolation in the earth, bringing misery to millions of now happy homes, then we can to some extent appreciate the gratitude due to the benevolent Creator and Governor of the Universe for the maintenance of these wonderful natural laws, without which there could be no budding spring, no blossoming summer, and no crowning glory of fruitful autumn. We have now no Lord or Lady of the Harvest, as our forefathers had; no Mell Doll, or Corn Baby; no Hockey-load; even the harvest home supper has assumed a more matter-of-fact, less roystering aspect. The romance of the festival has fled before the sound of the steam reaper, just as the pagan associations of the rural ceremony, as exemplified in sun worship, have long since given way to reverential thanksgiving to Him who alone can give the increase. It is well so. We should not lament that advancing enlightenment and wider knowledge, in sweeping away the anomalies and abuses of the "bad old times," have also wrought a radical change in the harmless harvest-home of earlier days. It could not be otherwise than that with the decline of ignorance and decay of legend-born custom, a more logical if less romantic form of festival should fill the place of the time-honoured holiday. The first-elaborate harvest-tide ceremonials of which Brand and Bloomfield and Tusser have told are now nothing more than a poetic memory, and even the village virgins have ceased to vie with each other in qualifying for the coveted honour of election to the distinguishing dignity of Harvest Queen. But, as has been said, in place of these old-world customs, we have to-day that well-established and excellent institution, the Harvest Thanksgiving Service of the Church, an appropriate religious ceremony celebrated by Episcopalians and Nonconformist bodies in all parts of Britain. Thus we still sustain the usage of ancient time, though with us, happily, the thank-offering of praise has a deeper meaning and more truthful significance than it possessed in the classic countries centuries ago. Instead of celebrating costly services and offering ignorant sacrifices to the sun, we hymn our grateful adulations to the Most High, who, to employ the inimitable language of the Psalmist, "causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, and herb for the service of man, that he may bring forth food out of the earth; and wine that maketh glad the heart of man, and oil to make his face to shine, and bread which strengtheneth man's heart."

ROTHWELL CHURCH CHOIR TRIP.

On Saturday last, the Parish Church Choir had their annual trip, Scarboro' being again the place selected for a visit. Considerable anxiety had been caused during the week by the unsettled state of the weather, and on Saturday morning the pleasure seeker awoke to find his worst fears realized. A steady downpour set in about 6 a.m., and shewed signs of a persistency, which were very discouraging.

The meet was at the N. E. Station, Leeds, and on "roll call" it was found that there was a very large muster, in spite of the adverse weather.

Besides the choir proper, there were a few friends availing themselves of the trip tickets, and the whole party, including the vicar and Mr. Samwells and party from the vicarage, numbered 67. A special carriage was attached to the 9.5 express, and soon after that time a start was made. A westerly wind and a somewhat high sky gave the "knowing ones" some little hope that brighter and better weather would be found as the train sped eastward, but mile after mile brought no change. At York it poured, at Malton it literally sheeted down, and many, and very amusing, were the surmises of some of the party as to how they were to spend the day. On nearing Seamer however, it brightened up a little, and the sun was seen struggling behind a watery curtain, and when the train ran into Scarboro' at 11.40 it was possitively "fine at last," and with the exception of a very slight occasional sprinkling, the weather was good during the stay of the party.

The afternoon was spent in the enjoyment of the usual sight-seeing and means of pleasure found at this pleasant watering place, though boating was rather at a discount, as a fresh wind and a rising tide caused a very lively looking sea.

At 4 o'clock the choir met at the dining rooms attached to the Grand Hotel, where a very excellent tea had been prepared for them, the consumption of which proved a very enjoyable part of the programme.

After tea, the party again split into sections, each intent on its own particular kind of enjoyment. From 5 to 6-30, the bay presented a very fine sight, the fresh bracing wind sending in the rising tide, now near its height, in long rolling waves, breaking with a scornful crest, and a semi-defiant kind of roar right up to the promenade.

Shortly before 8 o'clock, a general assembly was made in the station, as arrangements had been made to have the "special" attached to the 8 p.m. train for the return journey. Just before the train started a somewhat novel scene took place, the adult members of the choir forming on the platform and giving several glees in fine style. The singing drew together an immense crowd of passengers, porters, guards, and other railway officials, who testified their appreciation of the choir's efforts by loud and continued applause. A similar scene took place at York, during a rather long wait for the "Mail" to pass, and it was most amusing to watch the porters first trying to coax, then to push the recreant passengers back to their respective carriages when the mail had gone. The people seemed quite oblivious of time while listening to the strains of "Of a' the Airts."

Owing to this wait, the train did not reach Leeds until 10-50. The vicar had a large waggonette waiting for the choir, and the party was speedily on its way to Rothwell, which was safely reached shortly before 12 o'clock. The gloomy prospects of the morning had been happily dispelled, for once the "knowing ones" had been right, and the choir had a most enjoyable afternoon and evening, adding yet one more to the pleasan excursions its members have had in the company of their vicar.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

Holloways Ointment and Pills.—Health's Defences. None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsey will attack those most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well-known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

THE Golden Cup Cocoa House, 157, Briggate.—The new premises are now complete and the accommodation greatly improved.

AN ELECTION 80 YEARS AGO.

A copy having come into our hands of the Poll for Knights of the shire of York, held in 1807, we have taken the trouble to extract a few interesting items, which will no doubt be agreeable reading to many of our subscribers. The preface declares that "A Parliament having been called, to be holden at Westminster, on the 22d day of June, 1807, the usual Writ directed to the Sheriff for the Election of Knights of the Shire, Citizens, and Burgesses, within the County, to be returned to serve in the new Parliament, was tested at Westminster, on the 30th day of April, 1807, and on the 4th day of May following, was delivered to the Under-Sheriff. The same day proclamation was made by the County Clerk, of a Special County Court to be holden at the Castle of York, on Wednesday the 20th day of May, 1807, for the Election of Two Knights of the Shire.

On the day of Election, the business of the County Court was opened at the hustings in the Castle Yard, and the Candidates were proposed in the following manner, viz.—

WILLIAM WILBERFORCE, of Markington, esq.
By Sir Robert D'Arcy Hildyard, bart.
Seconded by Bacon Frank, esq
The Honourable HENRY LASCELLES,
By John Bacon Sawrey Morritt, esq.
Seconded by William Fenton Scott, esq.
By Sir Francis Lindley Wood, bart.
Seconded by William Wrightson, esq.

Upon a show of hands, the High Sheriff declared the majority to be in favour of the Honourable Henry Lascelles, and the Right Honourable Lord Milton; whereupon a poll was demanded by Mr. Wilberforce, which commenced the same day, and continued fifteen days.

In court the High Sheriff presided in person, or by his Under Sheriff, and the disputed Votes were determined by the Sheriff's Assessors, Samuel Heywood and John Bayley, esquires, Sergeants at Law.

The poll was taken in the Castle Yard, at thirteen booths, amongst which the Wapentakes were apportioned according to a previous agreement between the Committees of the Three Candidates. In the different booths, the Sheriff had a deputy to put the usual questions, and a Poll Clerk to record the votes; both of whom were sworn to take the poll; and in every booth each of the Candidates was allowed to have, in addition to his Cheque Clerk, an Agent to object to the doubtful Votes, and a Messenger to conduct the Voters objected to into Court, either to the Assessors, or to the Commissioners for administering the oaths.

The poll was daily open from nine in the morning, to five in the evening, except on the first and last days. On the latter days of the poll, when the number of objections to votes increased, the Sheriff, with his Assessors, continued sitting till eight in the evening; and those Freeholders whose right to vote was established, were allowed to poll in court. In this case, their votes were added to the numbers of the next day's poll.

On the fifteenth day, about two hours after the close of the poll, the High Sheriff declared William Wilberforce, esq., and the Right Honourable Lord Milton to be duly elected; after which the debentures of return were executed."

Then follows a table giving the name of the presiding deputy sheriff at each booth, with the number of persons polling each day, with the voting for each candidate. The total summary resulted as follows:—

Wilberforce	...	11,806
Lascelles	...	10,989
Milton ...	...	11,177

Mr. Wilberforce and Lord Milton being declared duly elected.

Then follows a list of the name, occupation, and site of freehold, of the various persons exercising their right of voting, with a figure showing for whom they voted. Many strange anomalies are exhibited in this list; as for instance, Normanton (the present head of the constituency in which Rothwell, Oulton, and other places are included) only numbered four voters, while Oulton boasted nineteen. Morley was the name of the largest division, including in its list such places as Bradford, Halifax, Dewsbury, Batley, etc.

In order to preserve the roll of honourable names whose owners upheld the elective prerogative, we append the list for places in this neighbourhood, and have no doubt many of our readers will be deeply interested in the manner their ancestors voted.

We have placed the work in the hands of our esteemed friend, Mr. G. Roberts, of Lofthouse, and anticipate shortly having the pleasure of publishing his remarks on the list itself, and the manners and customs practised at elections in our "grandfather's days"

LOCAL & GENERAL.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—On Saturday last, the series of winter evening entertainments for the season was opened at the above Hall with a performance by the Hunslet Ragged School. The men connected with the school, had engaged the Rothwell Temperance club at cricket during the afternoon, (as will be seen in another column). Recitations, songs, etc., served to make up a moderate entertainment, while two or three sketches were given, which reflected great credit on the performers. The Hall was crowded in every part, and a good beginning has been made by the Society.

COOKERY LECTURES.—The second of the course of lectures in cookery was given on Monday last in the Mechanics' Hall, by Miss Theed, of the Yorkshire Training School of Cookery. The weather in the afternoon was again unfavorable, and the attendance not quite so large at the afternoon lesson, which illustrated the best way to make 'Vegetable Mulligatawny Soup,' 'Dutch Sweet Bread,' 'Claret Jelly,' and 'Cornflower Cake.' The plain cookery lecture in the evening was more successful so far as the attendance was concerned, Mrs. Fawkes having presented admission tickets to the scholars of her Sunday class. Miss Theed in this lesson shewed how to make 'Haricot Soup,' 'Lancaster Stew and Savory Balls,' 'Cold Fruit Pudding,' 'Rice Mould,' and 'Stewed Rhubarb.' The lessons are very attractive, and useful, and we recommend them to the notice of all those who are interested in the art of either plain or superior cookery.

ERRATA.—We inadvertently stated a wrong amount in connection with the Oulton Wesleyan Chapel Anniversary, in our report last week. The amount taken at the services and at the tea was actually close upon £14, instead of £7 as we reported.—ED.

"THE appearance upon entering (Providence House) 42, North Street, Leeds), gave us an idea of a fairyland of Furniture and Crystal Palace of mirrors."

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

MR W. Mitchell in his letter last week, said it was not of the "slightest importance" to him whether Mr. Webster gained an advantage over Mr. Andrew at the "Disestablishment" lecture at Robin Hood or no, and yet it will be remembered by most of my readers, that Mr. Mitchell took the trouble of writing a letter to the Editor to contradict a statement I made to the effect that Mr. Webster did gain a point. Perhaps the truest part of Mr. Mitchell's letter is that which runs thus, "nor do I pretend to an acquaintance with the question" &c.

THE funeral of the late Mrs. Horner took place on Saturday afternoon. There was a large attendance of friends, and a considerable number of villagers witnessed the ceremony.

THE Lofthouse Wesleyan Band of Hope held their fourth annual demonstration on Saturday last. The members met at the school, and proceeded round the village in considerable numbers. The Carlton Concertina band headed the procession playing various inspiriting tunes as the procession moved along. Halts were made near the Co-operative Stores, and opposite Mr. Brooks' house, where hymns were heartily sung by the children. The members were then refreshed, with a good tea, and the band continued to play, until things were ready for the meeting. Mr. John Keighley (the President) gave out a hymn and engaged in prayer, and a gentleman from Leeds (I did'nt hear his name) took the chair and conducted the meeting. Very interesting and profitable addresses were delivered by the Rev. Chas. Bonham, of Stanley, and Mr. J. Q. Cawley, of Leeds. A collection was taken at the close of the meeting in aid of the Band of Hope LOFTHOUSE has produced more than one antiquarian in its history, and we are not completely minus such a commodity to-day. Mr. George Roberts does a bit in that line I believe. But Mr. Roberts is in his glory when amongst the mysteries of nature, and I am gratified to hear that the second volume of his "Topographical and Natural History of Lofthouse" is just ready. I have seen a copy. It is full of interesting matter and is got up to match the previous volume.

A MAGIC Lantern entertainment was given in the Carlton Temperance Hall on Monday evening. The room was well filled and the audience was much pleased with the pictures thrown on the sheet to represent the scenes in the Soudan and Zulu wars, the life of Cinderella &c. An address was given on the events connected with the wars, and this proved to be very interesting.

ANOTHER Magic Lantern lecture was given on Tuesday night in the Carlton Wesleyan chapel. This was upon a very different subject, viz. "life and times of the Rev. J. Wesley." Mr. J. A. Issot, of Sheffield, provided the entertainment and opened the meeting by throwing on the sheet the words of the hymn commencing "All hail the power of Jesu's name" which the audience sang. Then the lecture began and during the sketch, Mr. Issott touched on all the interesting events in the intreating life of this great man, giving great satisfaction both by the lecture and the views. After the lecture a few 'funny ones" were put through, producing peals of hearty laughter. Then another hymn was sung in the same way as the first, and the entertainment closed. The proceeds amounted to about £1. 8s.

A SERVICE of Sacred Song was performed by the choir from Newton Lane in the Primitive Methodist Chapel, Lofthouse, on Saturday evening last. A public tea had been held in the chapel previously to which a moderate audience sat down, and the service was commenced as soon as the tea was cleared away. The subject was "The Torn Bible" being a very good story of a soldier's life in India. The singing was well rendered, and great praise is due to the conductor, Mr. W. Hartley, and the organist Mr. G. Scargill. Mr. John Bennett, of Lofthouse Gate, feelingly read the literary part and a pleasant hour was spent.

I AM glad to notice the Carlton streets much tidier and safer than they were some weeks ago. Bulmer (the contractor) has evidently taken pains to satisfy the Carlton Surveyors on this point. There is a report abroad that the cross sewers from the Unicorn Inn to the Board Schools are in a very unsatisfactory condition. Some day Carlton people will have to go in for a complete system of drainage. "Not one like that at Rothwell" I hear some one say; no, one without "stink" I should advise, if such a one can be found. At present, however, the taxpayers are too poor and too heavily rated to attempt such a great undertaking, and this is probably one of the things to be considered in something like the same way as one is apt to look forward to the millenium.

By the way, the Thorp roads were in a deplorable plight during the recent rains. Ruts and pools of water everywhere. It is certainly time these neglected places had a little attention bestowed upon them.

To those of my readers who have not tasted Soot hill water, I may state it is of splendid quality. I have no hesitation in saying it is the most beautiful water I ever tasted or saw. It possesses all the essentials of a good drink. You taste it to find it 'very nice,' you drink it to find it satisfying, and you drink again and again because you like it. In this respect it resembles good beer, or, had I better say, good tea, only it is cheaper and certainly quite as wholesome. My advice is, first try this water by testing it, and then get it conveyed to your houses.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

I am sorry not to have been at hand last week to offer my congratulations to the leader and members of Oulton Brass Band, on the creditable position they secured in the contest at Castleford. Their playing must have been a very neat and finished performance to have won such an eulogium from so exacting a critic as Mr. J. Sidney Jones. The verdict on the style and treatment of the selection played by the band contrasted favourably with those passed on the playing of rival bands of much louder pretensions. The judge's remarks were entirely complimentary, the defect being simply want of power or numbers.

The Rev. R. W. Fawkes, late rector of Swillington, now of Trant Rectory, Kent, occupied the pulpit at Swillington church morning and afternoon on Sunday last. Mr. Fawkes, by his earnest and unaffected style of preaching, made the services at Swillington Church very popular during his rectorship, and his visit caused quite a revival of the old interest

It is really time more energetic steps were taken to house the Vicar of Woodlesford in his long promised vicarage. He is at present in the exceedingly uncomfortable position of being driven from home by the defective sanitary arrangements of his temporary residence. Like many other houses in Woodlesford and Oulton, the drain connections seem to be chiefly adapted for introducing the sewer gas into the rooms, and as if this was not enough one of our patent "death gates" is provided by the entrance door in the street. The sewerage scheme generally, instead of being the advantage it ought to have been is, from the lack of intelligent supervision when it was being laid down, a constant source of irritation, annoyance and expense to the patient, long-suffering ratepayer. It is annoying and expensive to have to take up and relay a drain connection which the hapless householder has already been compelled to pay the Sanitary Authority's employés for doing inefficiently. This occurs not in one or two isolated cases but in very many. And it is irritating to see the pressing need of some system of ventilation, persistently neglected, whilst we are being poisoned with the effluvia from the makeshift outlets in the streets by our doors. If those responsible could hear the general remarks—more forcible than polite—anent this subject, they might be roused from their stolid unconcern about the matter.

AS a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples, Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere

CRICKET NOTES.

W. Hirst, the last season's professional, assisted Rothwell on Saturday last against Whitwood, and rare and well did he bat, treating the onlookers (a very few) to a little of his old form, making 48 in fine style. His coming seemed to bring an extra bit of 'good luck' to the team, as the majority of the players also batted exceedingly well, C. Tiffany especially shewing to advantage, having a not out innings of 49. T. Dobson was also to the fore with 28, while the old veteran, R. Whitely, displayed some fair cricket for his 24. The next in order of merit is the worthy captain A. Tiffany, who was successful in making 16. Winning the toss, Rothwell went to bat, and kept possession of the wickets all the afternoon, and at the drawing of the stumps had scored no less than 183 runs for the loss of eight wickets—a most praiseworthy performance. By the way I hear that W. Hirst has signified his intention of accompanying the team to Dacre Banks next week—capital.

Rothwell Temperance had no fixture on Saturday last, but a match was played against a team designated as the Ragged School, the latter of whom had come purposely to give an entertainment in the evening at the Temperance Hall. It was not much of a match, and I need only say that Rothwell went in first and made 32, while their opponents failed to obtain more than 14. Pickersgill captured five wickets and Smith four.

TOWN TALK.

MR. Oliver appears to have bowled his friend Mr. Lawton clean out by his motion that no more lamps be put up until the rates are reduced; but unfortunately, by this motion the people of Rothwell, who were expecting more light this winter, are bowled out too. The other night I had occasion to go to Mr Starkie's house, lately occupied by Mr. Jos. Wright; the darkness could be felt, and was as thick as the hood of my mackintosh cloak. There is a bracket in the corner of the building, I am told, and formerly a lamp shed its genial ray; but times are worse now. I did resolve, however, that if ever I found a burst water-pipe, or had to report a fire to the Inspector after dark, I would get some one to grope him out who had the eyes of a cat in his head. We have a number of dark places still without lamps in the village, which ought to be lighted. The Gas. Co., I hear, have reduced the price of lighting. Surely the Board would have been justified in erecting a few more lamps in the worst places; the total cost would have been no more than last year. Bell Hill may have to wait a year or two before it is illuminated at the expense of the Rothwell ratepayers, but the dark roads in Rothwell village can not wait.

AT the Wakefield Court House a fortnight since, a Carlton man was fined £4 10s. for stealing a pigeon. This amount seems very large, and when it is placed alongside the sentence pronounced on Fox a month or two ago, there seems to be something wrong. One month or a fine of £4 10s. for stealing a pigeon, and letting it return home the same day, and three months for indecency such as that commited by the man Fox. Is the law at fault or is the administration of it bad; one or the other must be the case.

IN reply to "Fairness," who tries to defend the Bands in their Sunday practising, I need only say that their rehearsals were a great annoyance, both to people in their own homes, and to those worshipping in a certain chapel. If this is not sufficient reason why they should be asked either to stop the practising, or go to a greater distance from the village, I should like to know what would be. He treis to show that the Bauds do not receive much public recognition in the way of monetary assistance; I should like to know how much money they actually receive from any other source. Not a penny, I should think.

I AGREE with "A Friend" that the "Salvation Drum" is a very great nuisance, and I shall be glad to hear that its assistance has been dispensed with. If the drum of the Army is tolerated, the drum of the Brass band, ought also to be allowed, and it is high time the Captain stopped this practice.

IT is rather dangerous to write about the weather. It is fine to day (Wednesday) but what may it not be to-morrow. The harvesters are having a "tickle time" of it, and are having to seize every opportunity of gathering in the grain. We do indeed need a bit of fine weather, and I hope the sunshine will continue for a week or two, so that the crops may be safely garnered; then there will be good reason for holding the numerous harvest festivals which I hear of for the immediate future.

The Rev. Mr. Fawkes, the vicar, is about to form a branch of the Young Men's Friendly Society for Rothwell. The object of the Society is to promote purity, temperance, morality, and healthy literature and amusement, to protect young men from evil influences when leaving home, to encourage thrift and independence, &c., &c. All these are very necessary even in country villages, and I hope Mr. Fawkes will secure a lot of church-going youths to work in this cause, who perhaps cannot be induced to work either in the Sunday School or Church.

WE are not quite past hope of one day seeing the East and West Yorkshire Railway completed, and an important station and junction at Rothwell. I told my readers a week or two ago, that there was a rumour abroad that "a gentleman" had come to construct the line. I thought at that time there was rather a dreary prospect, and had not much belief in the truth of the report. I was however much delighted to hear at the beginning of this week that "the gentleman" was at Middleton conducting the work of surveying and staking out the land. Another day or two passed away, and I kept my ears and eyes open, when to my unspeakable joy I descried just beyond Rothwell Pit, the man for whom I had been looking, with his "three legs" and other necessary apparatus. It may be readily imagined that I seemed to have been raised by an invisible power into the seventh heaven, with all its proverbial happiness. Of course the navvies will soon be in full swing. To those who aspire to the position of porters on this line, I would say it is time they began to get ready. They should begin as John Hartley says, to "practice wi t'old woman's oven," opening the door and bawling out "change here for Woodlesford, Oulton, Carlton, Lofthouse &c., &c," then bang it to again and pass on to the next "carriage." Well I hope there will be no more delay, but that all will go on sweetly, and before many years are gone by we may have the great boon of being connected with the world in which we are, but of which we are not yet a part.

GOSSIP.

DISESTABLISHMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

I am glad to see my letter has been noticed. Mr. Mitchell simply asks for more information. To this request I gladly make the following return,—

1.—From the way in which the passage of arms between Mr. Webster and Mr. Andrew has been repeated in your three last issues it would appear that some one scored a hit. 'Every Conservative is a fool' Mr. Andrew informed his audience, who had assembled for instruction concerning the church. 'Is not every Atheist a Radical'? was Mr. Webster's rejoinder. Now it matters not one whit that both remarks were given second-hand. The one, however, is more open to be proven than the other; for what constitutes a 'fool' is a matter of opinion (even though Atheists will think it came from the mouth of David) but an Atheist is an individual who never hides his light under a bushel. 2.—Mr. Mitchell wants the exact texts of the letters I quoted. The Church Defence Institution, 9, Bridge St, Westminster, will gladly supply applicants with a copy. But as Mr. Gladstone's reply happens, on this point, to be dictated in remarkably few words, I can find space for it, in extenso. Here it is—"Sir, Mr. Gladstone, in reply to your letter, desires me to inform you that the clergy of the Church of England are not State paid." As it is Doncaster week, I may perhaps be allowed, though ignorant of racing matters, to describe this letter as 'the straight tip' and 'no hedging.' Equally straight are the other replies. 3.—Mr. Mitchell asks me to verify the statements I quoted from other evidence. I might also ask Mr Andrew to verify the statements he quoted as made by 'the great unknown,' the clergyman whose opinion he set up against the contrary view. But this is not the point at issue. I have set the views of Mr. Gladstone, Lords Salisbury and Granville, Dr. Rigg and Mr. Toulmin Smith against the views held by Mr. Andrew and his unnamed clerical authority. The letters and writings of my supporters of the statement 'that the Church is not State paid,' are easily procurable. When the opposing names are carefully noted, most of my readers will feel disposed, I imagine, to agree with me that my witnesses 'are good enough,' and 'may be backed with safety.' 4.—Now as to the exceptions to the rule implied by the above quoted opinions. I again quote the Peel Churches. I believe, but am not sure, that St. Mary's Church, Quarry Hill, Leeds, is a so-called Peel Church; and perhaps there may be some chapel in Leeds built, in part at least, from the same source. This grant was made through the instrumentality of Sir Robert Peel. Other special gifts were made for the special spread of Christianity. For example—In 1672, 'The Regium Donum' was given to Presbyterians and other Nonconformists, and the sum then handed over was commuted by Parliament in 1871 for—I believe, £700,000; thereby endowing these bodies with that sum. If the exceptional gifts to the church are to be quoted as establishing a rule for the confiscation of her endowments; then the exceptional gifts made, under similar circumstances, to Nonconformists, must, in fairness, be quoted as establishing a rule for the confiscation of their endowments; which amount to-day to no inconsiderable sums of money. 5. Again, the same argument holds if the existence of Church chaplains in the Services is quoted against her; for the fact that Nonconformist chaplains do exist is well known. I recollect mention being made of the special devotion to his duties of one Wesleyan chaplain during one of our latest wars. 6.—As to the question of income; my figures are to be seen in a table given at page 203 in Webb's lately published "England's inheritence in her Church"

Now, Sir, I bid your readers notice that I have combatted several statements made by Mr. Andrew; have given chapter and verse; and have as yet received no answer. In conclusion, whilst thanking you for your fairness in admitting my letters, let me ask your readers to pause and enquire how it is that Atheists are such almost universal supporters of a society, which professes to disestablish and disendow the Church, in order to 'give new life and energy' both to the work of the Church and 'to all religious bodies'? Is it because these Atheists think that by disestablishment Christianity will really prosper the more, and want it to do so? Is this likely to be the opinion and motive of those supporters of the Liberation Society who say "Let there be no God?" I regret that this letter has, of necessity, been but a tedious repetition of my former one; but I do hope it will lead many to hesitate before they join hands with those who say "God is no Father, Christ is no Saviour, the Holy Ghost is no Guide and Comforter." Vote for Liberals or Conservatives, as opinion leads you to do, but as Christians demand a straight forward answer to this question, "Will you or will you not vote for disestablishment"? and if the answer be, "Yes, I will," be sure you are convinced of the fairness and policy of such a course before supporting such a candidate for merely secular party purposes

Yours faithfully,
J. R. CRAWFORD.

SUNDAY NOISES.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I have read in your useful paper during the last few weeks complaints of some of the annoyance to which the peaceful inhabitants of Rothwell are subjected on Sundays. The Sunday practices or rehearsals of the bands which have been justly complained of, I incline to think will not be repeated; the bandmen I believe will listen to reason, and I hope we shall have no more of that annoyance. Of the proceedings of the so-called Salvation Army soldiers, one cannot be so hopeful. No doubt they are well meaning, but mistaken people. The spirit of the religion as exemplified by the Master whom they profess to serve is decidedly opposed to meaningless and noisy demonstrations; we can only hope that ere long, they will learn better and be more successful in their efforts to do good. There is another Sunday annoyance which I beg leave with your permission to notice, and that is, the loud clanging of the church bells for an hour long with little intermission every Sunday morning and evening before the services. Each of these Sunday annoyances I hold to be an infringment on the rights and privileges of the quiet and peace-loving inhabitants of this place. As in England the Sunday is legally and universally recognized as the day of rest, quiet and worship, we have a right to demand that the peace and quiet of that day be not disturbed by the thumping of the Salvationist's drum, the combined noise of a score or two of loud musical instruments, or the clanging of the church bells raised to their highest pitch of sound. I never hear those bells as at present rung on Sundays without being reminded of the six or eight men in the church tower stripped of their outer garments, engaged in labour more severe probably than their week day occupation requires, and then I am further reminded of the formal yet solemn and beautiful service in which we read, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work: but the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt do no work:" then the response "Lord have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law." Could any two actions be less consistent with each other; on one hand, the work just done by the bell ringers, on the other, the commandment solemnly read by the clergyman and the prayer uttered by the congregation? To be consistent, either the work must be left undone, or the fourth commandment left out of the service. Not the latter surely! But if the bells must be used on the Sunday, why not go back to the soft musical chimes adopted by the late vicar, Mr. Heberden, to which I think no one could reasonably object. I would further say in conclusion, that the way in which the bells are now rung on Sundays is neither a good work nor a work of mercy, necessity or usefulness, therefore ought not to be performed on the sabbath day. Would the present respected vicar by his example and influence do what he can that we may again enjoy peaceful and quiet Sundays as in past years?

I am, sir,
Yours respectfully,
PEACE.

SUNDAY PRACTICING.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

In reply to your correspondent, who styles himself "Friend," I should like to know, on behalf of the Concertina band, how we are descerating the rest day by playing Sankey's hymns, and a few marches, nearly a mile from either Rothwell or Carlton. I suppose his next absurd idea, will be to complain to our worthy Vicar for allowing the Church bells to be rung on the aforesaid day of rest. When the poet Longfellow wrote the words—"Music hath charms to soothe the savage beast." he must have been decidedly wrong, for it only seems to irritate him instead of soothe him. In future I hope all such "Friends" will emigrate to the backwoods of America, or to the Arctic regions, where no strains of music will be heard, to upset their nervous system.

A CONCERTINA LAD.

(WE are not sure whether our correspondent desires the line to read 'beast' or 'breast,' but supposing that the former word suits his meaning better than the poet's own word (breast), we leave the new rendering as it is written in his 'copy.'—ED.)

WHAT IS THIS DISEASE THAT IS COMING UPON US.

Like a thief at night, it steals in upon us unawares. Many persons have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish-coloured expectoration. The afflicted one feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the urine is scanty and high coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. It has been found that medical men have mistaken the nature of this disease. Some have treated it for liver complaint, others for kidney disease, &c., but none of the various kinds of treatment have been attended with success because the remedy should be such as to act harmoniously upon each one of these organs, and upon the stomach as well; for in Dyspepsia (for this is really what the disease is) all these organs partake of this disease, and require a remedy that will act upon all at the same time. Seigel's Curative Syrup acts like a charm in this class of complaints, giving almost immediate relief.

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in restoring the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name CONSUMPTION EMULSION. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men, as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 1[illegible] of his work, entitled "Consumption: Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." Such a testimony as this speaks volumes for the efficiency of Phthisicon. In addition, it has proved of immense value as a curative agent in the early stages of Brain Disease and Scrofula; in fact, wherever there is impaired nutrition or lack of nerve power, its action is almost certain. It can be obtained of all Chemists at 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. per bottle. Wholesale of Barclay and Sons, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.; or of W. B. Trick, A.P.S., 62, Green-lanes London, N

DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from me, but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 31st of July they tapped me, and took away 304 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 408 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 20th), was again tapped at home and 330 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.

1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

23, Cursitor Street,
Chancery Lane, London, W.C.

Yours truly,
Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 21st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry. What can be done? For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

LOCAL BOARD MEETING.

The ordinary meeting of the Board took place on Monday evening, present:—Messrs. W Hargreaves (chairman), J. Hargreaves, J. Dobson, J. Nowell, J. Oliver, W. Lawton, and the clerk, collector and surveyor.

The minutes of last meeting and committee meetings were read and confirmed.

HIGHWAYS.—In reply to advertisements for tenders for stone, only two tenders had been received, and considerable discussion arose as to whether either should be accepted; also as to whether this (Ribblesdale) stone was the best and most economical for the purpose. It was however, finally agreed that 200 tons of this material (as per sample) should be ordered at 7/7, delivered on any part of Leeds and Wakefield road. Moved by the chairman, seconded by Dr. Nowell, and carried.

The clerk read an application from Messrs. J. & J. Charlesworth, to allow a temporary crossing for iron rails, to be put down on the road near to the Jaw Bones, so as to reduce the labour necessary in removing the contents of the pit hill to the valley a short distance off. The Board cordially acquiesced in the proposal, on the motion of Mr. Oliver and Mr. Nowell.

Some amusement was caused by the production of a "bass bag" by Dr. Nowell, from which he drew certain ominous pieces of material, jocularly named dynamite, but which proved to be samples of church yard stone, found in Royds' Lane, as road material. Mr. Nowell roundly denounced the using of such rubbish (and other) for the repair of any roads, and the practice should be at once stopped. After some enquiry, it was found that this "stuff" was carted on to the road without cost to the Board by a former contractor, and that the Highway Committee were not aware of its existence. It was unanimously agreed that no person be allowed to cart anything on to the roads without the authority of the surveyor, as such material is really not worth the gift.

LAMPS.—Mr. Lawton, in conformity with his notice, rose to move the rescinding of the resolution "putting out his highway lights" last meeting He thought that if the cost of lighting Rothwell Haigh roads as suggested, would only cost 1d. in the £ as stated by Mr. Oliver, that the people in that locality ought to have some of the advantages so largely enjoyed by Rothwell. He believed the Gas Light Co. would be prepared to lay mains to Wakefield Bridge, and he held it was as much the duty of the Board to place lamps along the road, as in Rothwell or Stourton. The Wakefield road was a very dangerous one, as had been proved during the last two or three winters, and if Mr. Oliver had to travel it at eleven o'clock at night, on account of holding honorary positions as some of them had, instead of being comfortably at home, he (Mr. Oliver) would not be surprised at his anxiety to have these lamps. He feared he should be out-voted, but in moving this resolution, he should feel he had done his duty in an attempt to light this district. Mr. Oliver, in reply, denied his having said that the scheme would only cost 1d. in the £, and recapitulated his calculation shewing that the extra cost would be something like 4d. in the £. He did not envy Mr. Lawton his eleven o'clock trips, although he sometimes had to be out late himself; but when the rates would allow it, he would be prepared to consider the lighting of the entire district. On the chairman asking for a seconder to Mr. Lawton's proposal, there was no response, and the motion was therefore lost, Mr. Lawton contenting himself with the consoling reflection that "it was all right, he had done his duty."

FINANCE.—A lengthy list of accounts and salaries was proposed for payment by Mr. J. Hargreaves and Mr. Lawton, and agreed to. The Collector reported having received as follows during the fortnight:—

General District Rate	228	14	5
Water Rents	51	6	3
Miscellaneous ...	0	0	8
	£280	1	4

COMPENSATION.—A meeting of this Committee was arranged to meet on Tuesday, to complete the unsettled cases requiring compensation in connection with the sewerage scheme. A novel part of the resolution was that it was moved and seconded by members not on the Committee, Messrs J. Hargreaves and Dobson, which, as Mr. Oliver said, looked very much like whipping them up to duty. They took the whipping very smilingly, however.

This concluded the business.

Holloway's Pills.—Weakening weather.—The sultry summer days strain the nerves of the feeble and decrepit, and disease may eventuate unless some restorative, such as these purifying Pills, be found to correct the disordering tendency. Holloway's medicine gives potency to the nervous system, which is the source of all vital movements, and presides over every action which maintains the growth and well-being of the body. No one can over-estimate the necessity of keeping the nerves well strung, or the ease with which these Pills accomplish that end. They are the most unfailing antidotes to indigestion, irregular circulation, palpitation, sick headache, and costiveness, and have therefore attained the largest sale and highest reputation.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

On Wednesday evening, a meeting of the above Board took place, Mr. Jas. Hargreaves presiding. There were also present, Mr. J. Graveley and Rev. J. H. Evans (vice-chairmen), and Messrs. J. Swales, J. Parker, J. Dixon, C. Grosvenor, J. Hardcastle, H. Sheard, R. J. Smith, G. Jepson, W. Lawton, B. Riley, J. Swithenbank, and Rev. G. M. Platt, with Mr. Schofield (clerk), and Mr. Keight (deputy clerk).

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed, after which the cases of relief were considered, and committees appointed to go through cases in the various townships of the Union.

THE SAILOR LAD.—The apprenticing of a lad at present in the Hunslet workhouse was again considered by the Board. Mr. Graveley reported that Mr. Dixon wished to state that the Committee had seen the lad, and he was quite determined to go to sea, if the Guardians could get him properly indentured. Mr. Graveley proposed that the boy be placed as apprentice to a Grimsby firm, a month's trial being guaranteed. This was seconded by Mr. Lawton, and carried with one exception.

THE PORTER asked for a testimonial in view of his intended application for another post in an adjoining Union. The Board agreed to the request, and a testimonial will be supplied.

LOFTHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday night, the members present being Messrs. T. Oliver (chairman), J. Armitage, T. Hargreaves, H. Hall, and J. Hammill, with Mr. J. H. Lee, clerk.

The receipts during the month are: Fees, Robin Hood School £7 1s. 4d., Carlton £3 5s. 4d., and £173 18s. 10d. for Robin Hood grant. Cheques were signed amounting to £69 17s. 2d., being for officers' and teachers' salaries, and cleaning, and the proportion of grant due to the late Mr. H. Moorhouse.

One application for remission of fees was made and granted. Two monitors (with a view of their becoming pupil teachers) were appointed, viz., A. Nichols, of Rothwell, to Carlton School, and Geo. Giles, of Rothwell Haigh, to Robin Hood School

The report for Robin Hood School was read, and although the grant is rather less than last year, taking the report throughout it was satisfactory.

The Board next proceeded to consider the applications received for the post of head master and for an assistant mistress for Carlton School. There were 133 applicants for the former and 42 for the latter. The Board first considered whether it was not desirable to appoint a man and his wife to the situations, or not: in the past, things have not always worked agreeably. After viewing the matter carefully, it was resolved that if a suitable couple could be got it would be for the best. The Board went through the applications of this kind, and selected three, to have an interview at a meeting in the course of a few days.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The monthly meeting was held on Friday last, present—Messrs. J. R. Seanor, J. Batty and W. Lawton, with the clerk and attendance officer.

Neither the chairman nor vice-chairman being present, it was agreed that Mr. Seanor occupy the chair, after which the minutes of previous meetings were read and confirmed.

The appointment of Mr. J. H. Kaye, as assistant master at Rothwell Haigh Boys School, was confirmed, at a salary of £50 a year.

Cheques were signed for teachers' salaries, Rothwell Haigh £47 11s. 4d., Rothwell £29 5s. 0d., officers' salaries £11 5s. 0d., sundry accounts £1 1s. 0d.

The treasurer has received Rothwell Haigh fees £6 16s. 0d., Rothwell fees £7 4s. 9d. for the month of August.

The attendance officer reported that the infants schools generally are well attended, the girls are much better than previously, and the boys very good. One person had two of his children's fees remitted; several persons were ordered to be cautioned, and if no improvement in their children's attendance, to be summoned.

REVISION COURTS.

At the New Masons' Arm, Oulton. Normanton Division, Mr. Adolphus Liddell, the revising barrister, held a court to revise the lists for Methley, Rothwell and Oulton. Mr. W. E. Raley, Barnsley, assisted by Mr. David Burnley, were the Liberal agents, and and for the Conservatives appeared Mr. Freeman, Huddersfield, instructed by Mr. Shuttleworth, Conservative agent, Wakefield The Liberals sustained a number of new claims, but the Conservatives did not advance any new claims, but sustained the lodger votes of the curates of Methley and Rothwell, Revs. T. Ripley and A. M. Samwell, objected to by the Liberals. Mr. C. Brears, Rothwell, assistant in a draper's shop at Leeds, claimed a vote as lodger, and sent a written declaration by the Rev. A. M. Samwell, to the effect that he paid £10 yearly for furnished rooms. The Rev. Mr. Samwell said he was instructed to say that £10 did not represent the whole of the rent, but that figure was named as a test. The Revising Barrister: Then it is a false declaration, and Mr. Brear renders himself liable to imprisonment or a fine. Vote disallowed The Liberals claimed a vote for Mr. Arthur Batty, Rothwell, married, residing with his widowed father, on the ground that he paid his proportion of the rates—rated at £41—but being unable to state definitely the amount of his proportion, the vote was not allowed. There are now about 1,100 occupiers in Rothwell township eligible to vote at Parliamentary elections, besides 150 owners and others. The question of how many of these may be counted to one party or the other cannot possibly be ascertained at present, and will only be actually discovered when the General Election is over, and the polling books are proved. The revision only occupied about an hour and a half.

LIBERAL MEETING AT STOURTON.

A meeting was held last Friday evening, in the Board School-room, Stourton, to further the candidature of Mr. B. Pickard, the selected Liberal Candidate for this division.

The attendance was not so large, nor so enthusiastic as might have been expected, but the room was nicely full, and those present proved an atttiveen and interested audience. The Rev. Wm. Heaton occupied the chair, and was surrounded by Mr. B. Pickard (the candidate), Councillor Gilston, Councillor Atha, Messrs, Gozney, Ramsbotham, Simpson, Swain, and others.

As may be supposed, Mr. Heaton opened the proceedings in an excellent address, bearing on the past history of Liberal successes, and depreciatory of the Tory party. The first resolution was proposed by Mr. Gosney, seconded by Mr. Ramsbotham, and supported by Mr. Simpson (Barnsley), "that in the opinion of this meeting, Mr. Benj. Pickard is a fit and proper person to represent the Normanton Division in the House of Commons," which, on being put, was carried almost unanimously.

Mr. Pickard was then introduced and was warmly received. He went on to review the proceedings of late years, and to state his views in regard to future legislation. He declared himself in favour of free education, the reform of the House of Lords, and the abolition of perpetual pensions. He also strongly animadverted on the heavy impost of royalties on coal, amounting to some seven or eight millions, which bore so very largely on the wages of miners, and expressed his opinion that the Commission now sitting to enquire into the 'Depression of Trade' would come to a conclusion disadvantageous to the working classes. Other questions were discussed, after which questions were invited. One of the audience was about to propose certain queries, when, owing to his not being a householder or ratepayer, the chairman ruled him out of order. At this point, Mr. Heaton having to leave, Mr. Gale, of Hunslet, was voted to the chair.

A second resolution was then carried, pledging the meeting to secure the return of Mr. Pickard, and other Liberal candidates at the forthcoming General Election. Mr. Councillor Gilston spoke on the motion in his usual humourous but forceful manner, ably followed by Councillor Atha, and Mr. Swain The meeting was then brought to a close in the usual manner.

HARVEST FESTIVALS.

The series of Harvest Thanksgiving services commenced in this district last Sunday, and during the next two or three weeks nearly every church and chapel will have celebrated this appropriate and interesting festival in a manner more or less complete. From the uncertainty of the weather, the crops have not been so largely gathered as they might have been, but we hope this cause will not operate in the quality of the grain when it comes to be threshed. This, however, has not militated against the heartiness with which friends have contributed their gifts, and in another column we have pleasure in reporting two festivals held on Sunday, and anticipate a succession of such reports.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

OWING to press of advertisements this week, we are compelled to print our cricket and football news on the last page.

PRIMITIVE METHODIST HARVEST FESTIVAL.—The members of this body celebrated their Thanksgiving Services on Sunday, and for two or three days previously had collected together a large quantity of fruit, flowers and corn, gifts from many friends. The result of their efforts in this direction was seen on Sunday morning, when the perfume of flowers and the odour of fruit met the senses of the congregation on first entering the Chapel. In every available spot reminders of the harvest were visible in devices and bunches of nature's products, corn mingled with flowers and fruit. The principal objects of interest were naturally the rostrum and communion, and here an abundant quantity and variety was stored. By the kindness of Mr. James Wood a number of flowering and variegated plants filled the principal space within the rails, while in front were piles of fruit, bouquets of flowers, etc., the steps round the rails being crowded with every description of vegetable. A small stack occupied a prominent position within the rails. On the rostrum were also a number of small plants, with bunches of flowers and grapes. A motto was placed in the panels behind the preacher, "Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness," and another near the clock, "Seedtime and harvest shall not cease." There was a considerable quantity of grapes depending in clusters from the gasaliers, etc., and the windows, stall heads, etc., all had some some decoration from nature's garden. The Rev. T. Pearson conducted the services morning and evening, the texts being connected with the festal season as a cause for thanks giving. In the afternoon "The joy of Harvest," a very interesting and appropriate Service of Song, was rendered by the choir, Mr. Pearson giving the readings in excellent voice, intelligent emphasis, and a pleasing manner. Collections were taken on each occasion for the Society's funds. On Monday, a public tea was held, after which the various gifts of produce were sold, and the proceeds of the tea and sale added to the Sunday collections, the total nett result being £10 12s. 3d.

WESLEYAN HARVEST FESTIVAL.—On Sunday last, the fourth of what may now be called the annual Harvest Thanksgiving Services, were held in the spacious Wesleyan Chapel, and passed off most successfully. The amount of decoration and of produce was not nearly so extensive or so abundant as in the Primitive Chapel, but what was done was extremely tasteful and pleasing, and was most gratifying to all who witnessed it. With the exception of bunches of corn and flowers about the gas brackets and round the pillars, the attention of the decorators had been solely devoted to the orchestra, rostrum and communion, and the effect was certainly very pretty. Many thanks are due to Mr. Thos. Fielding, who very generously agreed to lend a large number of plants, fusheias, tomatoes, etc., which he arranged in an artistic manner round the communion rails. Within were some choice bouquets of flowers, dishes of fruit, etc, with a miniature stack completely finished, original sheaves of wheat and barley standing at either side. The rostrum was adorned with festoons of grain and flowers, while baskets of evergreen, etc., depended in front. The motto text behind was "Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness." Considerable pains had also been expended on the decoration of the orchestra, tasteful festoons and bouquets of grain and flowers, with evergreens, hanging from various points, while across the organ ran the words, "Gloria in excelsis Deo," enclosed in a neat 'grain' border. The services were conducted by the Rev. Sidney Pitt, (resident minister) and were very successful, both in attendance and interest, and in the collections, which were for the 'choir and organ expenses' fund. The morning sermon was a call for general thanksgiving, from the 67th 'psalm,' "Let the people praise Thee, O God; let all the people praise Thee;" the necessity for a larger measure of gratitude and thanksgiving both in our prayers and praises, in life and word, being urged, especially at such times as the harvest. A new harvest anthem was rendered by the choir in a very excellent manner. In the evening, the chapel was well filled, and every part of the service was most enjoyable. Mr. Pitt's sermon was founded on I Samuel, 12, 17,—"Is it not wheat harvest to-day?" and certainly surpassed any effort he has previously made both in originality, in diction, and in earnestness. The references to the little change observable between the harvest field of Samuel's day, and that of forty years ago, and the difference now existing between their dependence on their own harvests and our independence of an English harvest, were clearly and beautifully described. At the same time the preacher remarked on the fact that although it matters comparatively little whether we in England are favoured with a bountiful harvest or not, seeing that we draw our supplies from every quarter of the globe, yet that it is the same kind providence which provides for the growth and harvesting of the single Jewish field, and for the vast acres of our corn growing countries. He stated on good authority, that if the harvest of the whole world was to fail for one single year, the entire human family must cease to exist, and that every harvest time we are within a month or two of absolute starvation, it being calculated there is never more food in the world than will last eighteen months. Turning the season to illustrate spiritual things, the preacher earnestly and impressively besought all present to gather up every grain of knowledge, every hour of time, every opportunity of getting good, so that when the great harvest home is celebrated, each one might be garnered by the angel reapers, with the wheat in God's great granary of heaven. During the service, the choir rendered Mozart's 'Gloria' in splendid style, and the entire service of praise was most exhilarating. On Monday morning the various gifts were distributed among the sick and poor connected with the chapel, and the thanks of the friends are presented to all who kindly contributed.

THE BAILIFFS AT NEW WOODLESFORD.—A 'SCENE.' On Friday last, before the West Riding magistrates at Wakefield, Thomas Taylor, auctioneer, Woodlesford, was charged with wilfully and maliciously damaging the property of Richard Nixon, miner, New Woodlesford, by breaking a rocking chair and a wringing machine board. The particulars of the case were somewhat amusing.—Mrs. Nixon, the complainant's wife, who said that she had not a friend in the world, told the magistrates that on Friday the 4th inst., the defendant and another bailiff named Joseph Clay went to her house and demanded 3s. for a week's rent. She had no money, but went to a neighbour's house and borrowed the amount, and on handing it to the defendant he then demanded 5s. 6d., for expenses, and declared that he would not go out of the house until he got the money. She told the defendant she had no money, and as they were strangers in the district she could not borrow any more. The defendant said he must have the money, and unless he got it he would have to take a gun or some other articles in the house. The house door was locked at the time, and the defendant told the other man to open the window, to get out of the house through it, and fetch a policeman. The man was trying to get out of the window, when he fell backwards upon a rocking chair and his right foot went through a rush bottomed chair. The defendant, who was in a great rage and behaved in a most shameful manner, got up from another chair and pushed Mrs. Nixon with so much force against a wringing machine that a board in connection with it was smashed, and she went down with a "soss." Corroborative evidence was given by a girl named Sarah Fowler, and Mrs. Ruth Maskill, after which the defendant said that he went along with his man Clay to levy a distress on the complainant's goods for 3s. for a week's rent due to Mr. Thompson, of New Woodlesford, who had been much annoyed by persons leaving his property without paying the rent due to him. After they got to the house the complainant and some other women abused them, refused to pay the money, and the house door was locked. He ordered his man to get out of the window and fetch a policeman, on which the prosecutrix and her girl seized his man by the coat tails to pull him back, and in doing so he fell upon an old rush-bottomed chair and made a hole in it. With regard to the alleged damage to the wringing machine, he denied it.—Police-constable Phillips gave evidence for the defendant, and a man named George Abbey said that the house door was locked, and the key was outside the door. He unlocked the door, and then defendant's man "popped off for a Bobby," whilst defendant remained "sitting inside the house like a parrot" (laughter).—Joseph Clay, the person who was with the defendant declared that neither the chair nor the washing machine were damaged.—The Bench dismissed the case.—The defendant asked for costs, and Mr. Ianson told him he must make his application in another Court; they had nothing to do with it in that Court.

COOKERY LECTURES.—Miss Theed's course of lessons on cookery which is being delivered in the Mechanics' Hall, Rothwell, from week to week, are increasing each time in popularity. On Monday last, the audiences were good, in the evening particularly, when the Large Hall was more than half filled with ladies. The dishes prepared by Miss Theed in the afternoon (superior cookery) were "quenilles of salmon," "Scotch Eggs," "Louise pudding and apricot sauce," and "Cheese Soufflè," and in the evening's lesson, the best ways of preparing "plaice fried in batter," "Stuffed vegetable marrow," "ginger bread pudding," "wheat meal scones," and "brown bread" were demonstrated. The addresses are full of interest, and studded with useful hints to those who are responsible for the preparation of food of all kinds, and quite merit the success they have found.

"FIT it with such Furniture as suits according to the fashion and the times," and purchase from E. Miller, 42, North Street, Leeds.

SAD DEATH OF A BLACKSMITH.—On Thursday, the 17th inst., P. C. Jackson received information that there was a man on the Wakefield Road, near to Messrs Whiteley and Waterhouse's quarry, Rothwell Haigh, who was in a helpless condition through sickness. Jackson proceeded to the place indicated and there found a man named James Blakey, a tramping blacksmith, who has recently been staying in the district, in a dying condition. This occurred, about two o'clock in the afternoon, and the police officer immediately procured a conveyance, and took the poor fellow to the Wakefield Workhouse, where his death occurred immediately on his admission, at about four o'clock. An inquest was held on Saturday, before Thos. Taylor, Esq., Coroner, at the workhouse, when a verdict of "death from natural causes" was found.

THE ALLEGED ROBBERY OF WATCHES AT LOFTHOUSE, NEAR WAKEFIELD.—On Monday, at the West Riding Police-court at Wakefield, Wm. Shaw, described as a lace maker from Nottingham, but said to be a travelling thief, was brought up on remand from the previous Monday on a charge of stealing two silver watches of the value of £9, the property of Geo. Kellett, groom to Mr. Jo. Charlesworth, J. P., Lofthouse. On Whit-Tuesday afternoon the watches were stolen out of the prosecutor's house, and subsequently the prisoner sold one to a broker at Leeds for 10s., and last Friday week he offered a portion of the other missing watch for sale to Mr. Alexander Wilson, watch maker, Bradford, who finding that the watch was "wanted" gave the prisoner into custody. The defendant was committed to take his trial at the next Sessions.

CAUTION TO MISCHIEVOUS LADS.—For some time owners of property have been subjected to loss and vexation by reason of damage to trees, walls, &c. On Sunday night last, some half-dozen lads from Brighteyes and Lofthouse mischievously knocked off some of the coping stones in Carlton Lane, and having been caught, they only escaped appearing in the police court by their paying 5s. each to the owner as compensation. We would recommend this information as a warning to those who do wilful damage to property.

ROTHWELL CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.—The interval between the manifestoes of the rival candidates for Normanton Divison have been rather long, but now that the decisive conflict is drawing near, we may anticipate a succession of skirmishes from one side or the other. The committee of the Conservative Association have secured the services of, Councillor Gordon, a young gentleman of growing popularity, and whose addresses are always interesting, even to those who object to their tenor. Fuller particulars will be found in our advertisement columns.

PISTOL ACCIDENT.—On Friday last, Richard Walmsley, of Wakefield Road, Stourton, was admitted into the Leeds Infirmary suffering from a fracture of the hand caused by a pistol exploding. It appears that the lad Walmsley had loaded the pistol and was in the act of placing it in his pocket, when it exploded, the shot passing through the palm of his hand. The wound is healing favourably and will be speedily cured.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

THE Rev. J. R. Crawford is prosecuting the war against the local liberationist enterprise, with great determination and fierceness. His letters have been pointed and pithy, and although written with the intention that no one should be able to "pick a hole" in them, they are not dry, but really interesting. Our Vicar is going about this business in a real "John Bull" style, and is not likely to lose much in the struggle. I hear there is to be another spoke put into the wheel to-night, when a lecture on "Our Mother Church" is to be delivered in the National Schools.

LAST Friday a new rate for the maintenance of the highways in the Carlton township was allowed by W. H. Lee, Esq., and G. M. Gaskell, Esq., two of the Justices of the Peace for the West Riding. The rate is at 10d. in the £, and will receive the usual welcome (?) when presented to the ratepayers.

WHEN may we expect to hear something from the Conservative party in our district. It seems a poor prospect for those who are desirous of voting Tory at the election in November. They ought to be deciding pretty speedily as to who shall be their candidate; and when he is chosen, I hope we may have the pleasure of hearing what are his opinions.

WHAT IS THIS DISEASE THAT IS COMING UPON US.

Like a thief at night, it steals in upon us unawares. Many persons have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A sort of sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load on the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation at the pit of the stomach which food does not satisfy. The eyes are sunken, the hands and feet become cold and feel clammy. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greenish coloured expectoration. The afflicted one feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. After a time he becomes nervous, irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a sort of whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood becomes thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow; the urine is scanty and high coloured, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is frequently attended with palpitation of the heart; the vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; there is a feeling of great prostration and weakness. All these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population has this disease in some of its varied forms. It has been found that medical men have mistaken the nature of this disease. Some have treated it for liver complaint, others for kidney disease, &c., but none of the various kinds of treatment have been attended with success because the remedy should be such as to act harmoniously upon each one of these organs, and upon the stomach as well; for in Dyspepsia (for this is really what the disease is) all these organs partake of this disease, and require a remedy that will act upon all at the same time. Seigel's Curative Syrup acts like a charm in this class of complaints, giving almost immediate relief.

Kaye's Lavaline is king of soaps,
That's what the people say;
They buy from H. P. Newsome,
Who sells it every day;
There is Charles Ward and Son,
Also there's Alfred Drew,
Together with the Co-op'tive Stores,
And a host of others too.
Just you try Kaye's Lavaline,
Try Kaye's Lavaline!
You'll say then with the rest
It's the cheapest and the best
Of all the soaps you've seen.

TOWN TALK.

OF course, I must begin about the new railway. That is the all-important question, and the topic of everybody's conversation just now. Well, the business of surveying the land is progressing favorably; the 'sticks' having gradually found their way from the pastures, across Wood Lane, and into Churchfield. Numerous and varied are the rumours afloat concerning this step. Those who could give us information of a reliable nature, are as mute as mice. Therefore the people are left to their own thoughts, hopes, fears, and imagination and invention. One thing, however, is quite certain, viz., that the surveying now being done, is in connection with the proposed line, and it is most satisfactory to see that we are being looked after at last. Let us hope for the best. I shall not be at all surprised to find operations beginning in right good earnest before many months are gone by. We may live in anticipation of that time when we shall hear the hoarse snort of the iron horse passing through our own district, on its way to the distant town, bringing and taking merchandise of all kinds, and in every way facilitating and increasing our business, and assisting mankind generally in securing comfort and happiness.

IT has come to my ear that several of the poles used by the gentlemen in setting out the land for the railway, have been uprooted and taken away. Perhaps the offending individual is not aware that a heavy penalty can be inflicted upon him for every one he removed or interfered with. Let everybody make a note of this. These gentlemen cannot spend their valuable time in ascertaining a certain point, and then have their work tampered with by anyone who chooses to do so. Let a word to the wise be sufficient.

THERE is another paragraph yet on railway matters. It is amusing to think how some people take things in earnest. An old lady who occupies a cottage in Churchfield, gave the landlord notice of her intention to leave her house. On being asked her reason in taking this sudden and unpremeditated step, she solemnly and seriously explained that she understood her cottage would be demolished by the new company in making the line, and she thought it better to leave now, or else when the line came she should be left without a house in consequence of the great influx of new trade and new people. She actually gave in the notice, and is on the look out for another dwelling in which she may settle down before we are all crowded out.

GENERAL Grant, the late lamented American hero, was not fond of music. He was once addressed by a celebrated lady vocalist in these words—"Oh! General, I must sing you something." "Must you," drily replied the General. "Yes, what shall it be," enquired his fair friend, who was considerably surprised when she received the unfeeling reply, "Something short." 'Peace' last week complained about the noise made by the ringing of the church bells on Sundays. I feel inclined to exclaim "What nonsense!" but I refrain. He is like the General, he does not like music. I do, and most people do, I believe. I should be very sorry to have the style of ringing the bells altered. In my opinion, the difference between hand and machine ringing is the same as that between the performance of an accomplished player on the pianoforte, and the dismal, inharmonious din produced by that man who enters our back yard and grinds out music (?) with a wheel. Stop the stupid thumping of the drum, and the blast of thirty trumpets, but let us still have the beautiful sweet-toned bells of the village church, calling the devout to the house of God.

"How sweet to hear, on Sabbath morn,
The old church bells ring on the air,
We know the day is newly born,
The day of rest, the day of prayer."

ONE night last week the alarmed occupants of a house near the Cross went in great haste to summon Mr. Starkie, the inspector, and 'Oscar' the plumber. It was ten o'clock p.m., and they said the water pipe had burst. Quickly slipping on his boots, Mr. Starkie proceeded along with his friend Parker, to the house described, and in the cellar heard the sound which had filled the folks with alarm. It was not the noise made by a burst water pipe. Where did it come from? "Is the gas meter all right?" "Oh, yes, the gasman put it right to-day." "Let's see it," said Starkie, and then he found that there was too much water in it, and the gas coming into violent collision with it, produced the thudding noise so much like that made by an explosion of the town's water main. The woman of the house hoped it would not get into "Town Talk," but it has. 'Gossip' is often not far away when anything is going on.

GOSSIP.

DISESTABLISHMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

Generally in my newspaper correspondence I notice minor matters first, and for this reason I again put Facts & Rumours in the first paragraph I have only to say that the quotation given in the last two lines of his note is incorrect. Mr. Crawford also gives an incorrect quotation from Mr. Andrew's lecture. At this I am somewhat surprised, as I think Mr. Crawford had it correctly at first. In connection with a circumstance mentioned in Mr. Crawford's first letter, the following correspondence has taken place, and although of some length I quote the letters in full.

Scholes House,
Rothwell Haigh,
Nr. Leeds, Sept. 15, 1885.

The Secretary, London Missionary Society,

Dear Sir,

The extract at foot of this letter is taken from a letter by the Rev. J. R. Crawford, printed in the Rothwell Times, Sept. 4th, 1885. I think I have seen a denial of the statement therein contained in the Leeds Mercury, but as I am not sure I write you for information, and shall feel obliged by your reply,

Yours truly,
W. MITCHELL

"That this view of the Scripture teaching commends itself to some Nonconformists as well as Church folk has been plainly shown by the action of the London Missionary Society—a noble Nonconformist Society. 'The ministers of this society led a Polynesian nation to embrace Christianity, then to endow it, then to have the king crowned with a religious ceremony, and finally to form a parliament enacting laws obliging the people to observe the sabbath, etc., and Mr. Noble, the chief Missionary, was President of the Parliament.'"

London Missionary Society, Established 1795.
Rev. R. Wardlaw Thopson,
Foreign Secretary,
Rev. Edward H. Jones,
Home Secretary.
14, Bloomfield Street,
London E. C., Sept. 17th, 1885.

"The Foreign Secretary presents his compliments to Mr. Mitchell, and thanks him for his note of the 15th inst. He begs to inform him that this society has not and never had a Missionary of the name of Noble."

To me this note appears to disprove the whole story.

I am obliged to Mr. Crawford for the address of the Church of England Defence Association. There is also another Association—called, I think, the Northern Counties Church of England Defence Association. Can he furnish their address? If Mr. Crawford wishes to ask Mr. Andrew to name his "unknown clergyman" or any other question upon which he (Mr. Crawford) may desire information, he has a perfect right to do so either through the public press or otherwise. But to assert this right does not answer my questions and I again press these questions on Mr. Crawford's attention, in the hope that he will state his views next week. So far as I can understand, to verify a statement, whoever may be the author, is not only to see that the words are properly copied, but to see whether the statement is consistent with the truth, and I ask him again whether or no he has verified these extracts, in this sense, and if he has done so, does he or does he not class Poor rates and Highway rates as public rates? I also want him to define the difference between tithe and tax. I cannot see it, and I want to understand the subject clearly.

It seems to me that Mr. Crawford is in a good position to understand the subject, and I again ask him to give us the dates at which the "voluntary contributions" and "donations were given."

I again ask him if he has verified his statement about the income of the Church. In his first letter he states the whole income of the Church to be "probably just over "four millions." In his last letter Mr. Crawford gives his authority for the statement—But is his authority right?—Parliamentary returns issued not very long ago, say "that from "commuted tithes" alone the income of the church is just over four millions, and the two statements appear very much alike as far as the money is concerned, but one says it is the whole income, and the other says it is the income from "Commuted Tithes,"—and that is not the whole income of the church.

I am not at present prepared to give a definite reply to Mr. Crawford's remarks on the 'Regium domum" —I think he is in error in the dates—but whatever the case may be, my opinion is that Nonconformists would make very little difficulty about paying back any money they received, if the church would pay back the money they have got.

In conclusion—there are other points in the Rev. gentleman's letter deserving of notice but the length of this letter and the shortness of time compel me to defer their consideration.

I am, Sir,
Yours truly,
W. MITCHELL.

[WE have received a letter from Mr John Andrew in reference to Mr. Crawford's remarks on his Liberation lecture, which will be published next week We are also promised another letter from Mr. Crawford on the Liberation question for our next issue.—ED.]

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

Steward, Physician and Surgeon, L.R.C.P.E. I have great pleasure in recommending your Guinea Sets of Teeth. The set you supplied to me are much superior to those for which I paid a much higher fee. Holloways Ointment and Pills—Health's Defences. None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsey will attack these most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

"THE appearance upon entering (Providence House) 42, North Street, Leeds), gave us an idea of a fairy-and of Furniture and Crystal Palace of mirrors."

THE CONSUMPTION EMULSION (registered as PHTHISICON).—The public have it in their power to very materially relieve many of the distressing symptoms arising from Asthma, Bronchitis, and diseases of the respiratory organs. Phthisicon, however, is invaluable in restoring the waste of tissue caused by that dreaded disease Consumption, hence the name CONSUMPTION EMULSION. This Emulsion has been recommended by many eminent medical men, as the only emulsion which can reliably be used for this purpose; and we have the authority of Dr. Alabone, the eminent specialist in Consumption, that this preparation has filled a long-felt want in the treatment of Phthisis—viz., "a compound which shall arrest waste of tissue, and serve as a digestible food to the Consumptive patient." We cannot do better than quote his own words. On page 163 of his work, entitled "Consumption: Its Cure," &c., he states, "It greatly assists my treatment. I almost invariably find there is a gain of weight even after it has been used." Such a testimony as this speaks volumes for the efficiency of Phthisicon. In addition, it has proved of immense value as a curative agent in the early stages of Lung Disease and Scrofula; in fact, wherever there is impaired nutrition or lack of nerve power, its action is almost certain. It can be obtained of all Chemists at 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. per bottle. Wholesale of [illegible] and Sons, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.; or of W. B. Trick, F.P.S., 92, Green-lanes, London, N

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it soften the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally "up to all the wrinkles." The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as SCOTT & CO., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

WATCHES, JEWELLERY.—MIDLAND COUNTIES WATCH COMPANY.—(Cheapest house in the World) Ladies' or Gents' Fine Silver Crystal Glass, heavy Ladies' Watches, 25/-; Ladies' heavy-cased Gold Levers, 70/-; Gents' do. do. do., 80/-. Before purchasing send for Company's Catalogue, beautifully illustrated, 1,000 fine copper-plate engravings, gratis, post free on application, to any part of the world. Apply Company's Manager, A. Percy, Vyse Street, Birmingham. The press universally recommend their readers to obtain a catalogue.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Price 3s. 6d. —For an Oil to make the Hair soft, glossy, and luxuriant, ask for "CARTER'S COLOGNE OIL." Price 1s. of all dealers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

UNION LINE.

CAPE of GOOD HOPE, NATAL, & EAST AFRICAN STEAMERS.—The UNION S.S. Co.'s MAIL PACKETS sail from SOUTHAMPTON every alternate Thursday, leaving Plymouth the next day. DEAR FRED,

You will be surprised at receiving a letter from .., but thank God, I am pleased to say am getting better every day. I shall be so glad to breathe the fresh air again. It has seemed a dreadful long time to be in bed. You know I was taken to the Hospital last April to be treated for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Well, on the 21st of July they tapped me, and took away 304 ounces of water. The same thing was done again on the 18th September, and 408 ounces of water obtained. On the 9th October I was discharged from the Hospital as incurable. In January this year (the 29th), was again tapped at home and 300 ounces of water taken away. The St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London refused me admission as a hopeless case, and the St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Chatham, also refused me, as being the worst case they had seen for years, and two local doctors gave me up as hopeless. When I came from the Hospital it took three to put me to bed. My clothes had to be cut off. I was an object of misery and despair. After the Hospitals had refused me, and doctors given me up, my wife persuaded me to try Hop Bitters, and from the commencement have improved daily. I have only taken them seven weeks and can now get downstairs and walk about without even a stick. With the aid of a few more bottles of the Bitters shall be well again. The water has entirely left my body and legs. The only trace left is in my feet. It is a wonderful medicine. I wish I had tried it sooner, as I have nearly ruined myself and family with doctors' bills and other expenses. I might have been well long ago. At the Hospital I had no appetite whatever, but since using the Bitters eat everything with a relish. The only difficulty is the expense, but must not mind that so long as I am getting well. Am cheerful now that recovery is near, for every one had given me up as a bad job. With best wishes to . . .

I remain,
Your affectionate Brother,
(Signed) William Grayson.
1, Bush Terrace, Cage Lane, Chatham, March 14, 1885.

To the Hop Bitters Co., London.

Gentlemen,—I enclose letter from my brother-in-law, Wm. Grayson, Chatham. He considers he owes his life to your Hop Bitters, and feels he cannot say enough in its praise.

Yours truly,
Fred. Stammers.

LATER.

Chatham, March 24.

Since I wrote you ten days ago I have improved wonderfully. To-day I walked to the barber's shop (and got shaved), and back again by myself without fatigue. This is the first time I have been out alone since last April—over eleven months. When I was discharged from the Hospital, October 9, I weighed 11st. 4 lbs., now I weigh about 9st. (my usual weight).

William Grayson.

May 4th, 1885.

After March 24th I made more rapid progress than ever, and on the 22nd of April was able to visit my brother in London, and am now spending a few days with my mother at Grimsby. I am so thankful to tell you I feel as well as ever in my life. All swelling has disappeared, and no trace of the disease left.

Wm. Grayson.

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Dr. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of a death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back and around the loins, severe headaches, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry, What can be done? For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

COUNCILLOR GORDON'S LECTURE.

Last evening, under the auspices of the Rothwell Conservative Association, a meeting was held in the Large Hall of the Mechanics' Institute, to hear an address by Mr. Councillor Gordon on "Practical Politics." The room was about three parts filled, the audience consisting largely of working men, while the two political camps were well represented.

The chair was occupied by E. Calverley, Esq., who after satisfactorily explaining the reason of his son's absence (the president of the Association) briefly introduced the lecturer, warmly eulogising his ability as a leader and speaker on political questions. He hoped everyone would be allowed a fair hearing, as every man had a right to hold his own honest opinion. (cheers). He complimented the members of the opposite party on their conduct at Major Charlesworth's meeting, and trusted the present audience would act with similar courtesy to every speaker.

Councillor Gordon, on rising, was very cordially welcomed, and in making some preliminary remarks, reminded his friends that the holding of meetings was all very well and necessary, but his experience was that to win an election, they must work for it. The lecturer then proceeded to consider some items in Mr. Gladstone's recent manifesto, as, seeing the Conservatives "have no policy," he must look to the great Liberal leader for opinions. In this "hydra-headed monster" manifesto, there were seven heads devoted to the past, one to the present, and ten to the future, and he would consider some of them. There was one paragraph relating to the procedure in the House of Commons, which he maintained was simply an attempt to gull inexperienced electors on a subject which referred to the internal conduct of business and was therefore little understood. It had done well for Pitt, Palmerston, Peel and others, and why should Mr. Gladstone seek to play the despot a second time, in further restrictive regulations. As regards the proposed reform of the House of Lords, he warmly defended the beneficial influence of such an independent and impartial assembly, where questions could be discussed and decided without considering how such decision would affect certain constituents. With Sir Lyon Playfair he held that there was as much ability displayed in a House of Lords' debate, as in the Commons, notwithstanding the declaration of some Rothwell gentlemen that the Lords are 'idiots.' Speaking on Mr. Gladstone's paragraph headed 'Disestablishment,' the lecturer pictured that gentleman reading the lessons in Hawarden Church, 'turning up the whites of his eyes' and acting in so saintly a manner, (groans), and yet prepared whenever the country demands it, to pull down his own Church Establishment. He held that the country demanded a clear expression of opinion from such a man as Mr. Gladstone, and not wait for the country to lead him. On the subject of land, too, the manifesto contained no distinct opinion, and we had to turn to Mr. Chamberlain (hisses and cheers) to ascertain the Radical policy. Mr. Chamberlain appeared to have taken certain ideas from Mr. Henry George's work on "Poverty and Progress," and (like the teetotallers, who traced all crime and poverty to drink,) he (Mr. Chamberlain) seemed to beleive that all our troubles were due to the present land laws, and that if these were altered, and the land cut up into small holdings, all crime and poverty would at once disappear. This notion was strongly denounced by the lecturer, who stated from his own observation, that small farms could not be made to pay, even though all the family worked on them from early morn till late at night. He scouted the notion that the Tory minority had hounded on the late Government to carry on the Soudan war, and in reply to the taunts cast at Tories for allowing the Crimes Bill (Ireland) to lapse, said they had simply done what the Radicals would have forced the late Government to do. Declaring himself a Free Trader, he shewed the fallacy of some Radical statements regarding other countries, especially ridiculing Mr. Chamberlain's statement that England was better 500 years ago than she now is; while Mr. Gladstone declares that what Great Britain has now become is due to the labours of the Liberal party (!) Mr. Gordon then referred to several matters in which the Conservatives had shewn some interest, relating to the Depression of Trade, Sanitary Improvements, Federation with the Colonies, and a foreign policy which will support our friends and not truckle to our enemies: in short a policy tending to the well-being of our trade, the well-being of our people, the well-being of our empire. The lecture was frequently cheered, especially in several smart hits, while the speaker exhibited a thoroughly well stored fund of knowledge on the subject, fluency of speech, a pleasing delivery, and evident self-possession, being greeted on resuming his seat, with rounds of applause.

Mr. Harms, in moving a vote of thanks to the lecturer, stated that it had been decided not to allow discussion, but suggested that the Liberal party secure the services of some gentleman to support their opinions. Mr. J. Turner jocularly seconded the vote, which was, however, properly undertaken by Mr. John Hirst, and carried.

A similar motion was carried for Mr. Calverley's services as chairman, Mr. Gordon and Mr. Jos. Wright speaking on the vote.

OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of the Board was held on Tuesday evening last, present, the Rev. A. J. Irvin (chairman), Dr. Nowell, and Messrs. Hoyle and Flockton. Cheques were signed for the salaries, and for sundry payments, amounting together to £25 9s. 11d. The clerk read the financial statement for the month, which shewed a credit balance of £53 7s. 0d. He also read an estimate of income and expenditure which he had prepared for the ensuing half-year, which shewed that £350 would be required, towards which the sum of £190 would be forthcoming in the shape of Government grant, School fees and from sundry small sources, leaving £160 to be provided by the overseers, which the clerk said would be £40 less than heretofore, a result which all the members present agreed was very satisfactory. The clerk also stated that there had been a very considerable increase in the amount received for school fees since the issuing of the notice respecting the decision of the Judges as to what constituted sufficient attendence. The parents of several children whose attendance had been irregular for some weeks past, appeared before the Board, and the cases were severally investigated. The complaint of a boy's father to the effect that his son, who had passed the 3rd standard at a school elsewhere, and who ought now to be in the 4th standard at the Woodlesford Board School, but had been put into the 3rd, was adjourned until the next meeting for further enquiry to be made into the case. The school cleaner applied for an advance of wages, and it was unanimously agreed that an advance of 1s. per week might fairly be made.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

COOKERY LESSONS.—The fourth of the course of lessons in cookery took place in the Mechanics' Hall, Rothwell, on Monday, when Miss Theed prepared 'Oyster Soup,' 'Boudins,' 'Cocoa nut Cheesecakes,' 'Flakey Pastry,' 'Caramel Pudding,' and 'Strawberry Sauce' in the afternoon; and 'Vegetable Soup,' 'Roast Pork,' 'Savoury Pudding,' 'Lemon Mould,' 'Custard Pudding,' and 'Gravy stock' in the evening. The audiences were good.

STOURTON PRIMITIVE METHODIST SCHOOL-CHAPEL.—The first harvest festival in connection with the above Sunday School was held on Sunday and Monday last. On Sunday afternoon every available seat was filled to hear a service of song entitled "Joy of Harvest," by the choir. The service was conducted by Mr. A. Webster, Mr. Wm. Castlehouse accompanying on the harmonium. The connective readings were exceedingly well rendered by Mr. J. R. Seanor, of Rothwell. In the evening, Mr. Frith, of Hunslet, preached an appropriate sermon, the chapel again being well filled. On Monday, the ladies held a sewing meeting tea, when from 70 to 80 partook of the good things provided. The proceeds of the tea amounted to £1 14s. 8d. In the evening, a harvest service was given by the choir and children, consisting of singing, recitations, etc. The chapel was decorated splendidly, and much praise is due to the friends who helped in this work, and also to the many people who have been kind enough to present the various articles. A collection was made at the close of each service which proved very satisfactory. At the close of the Monday night's meeting, the decorations were sold, and after all the expenses were paid, a balance was left of £8 16s. 5d. This amount, together with the proceeds of the tea, made a clear profit of £10 11s. 1d.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH, STOURTON.—The first service in connection with the Harvest Festival of the above church was held last night, when a good congregation was present, considering the state of the weather. The Rev. A. J. Miller (vicar of Middleton) conducted the service, assisted by the Rev. A. M. Samwell (Rothwell), and the Rev. V. Litchfield (curate of St. Andrew's). Mr. Miller preached an excellent harvest sermon, taking for his text Galatians, 6th chap., 9th verse. Previous to commencing his sermon, however, he thanked the congregation and others who had so willingly helped to decorate the church, (which was very tastefully done). Mr. Miller also expressed their indebtedness to the organist and choir, who rendered the service of praise very efficiently, and gave the "Hallelujah Chorus" at the close.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.—Wilson's Minstrel Troupe from Lofthouse visited the above Hall on Saturday evening last, and gave an entertainment to an overflowing audience. The principal performers were Messrs. Wilson, Jarrel, Green, Hartley, Cooper, Scholey, Hill, and A. Scholey. The lengthy programme comprised songs, conundrums, banjo solo, clog dancing, etc.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE CHOIR.—The choir connected with the Rothwell Temperance Hall, gave a service of song, in the Hall, on Sunday afternoon, to a crowded congregation. "A peep behind the scenes" was the name of the service. The singing, which was conducted by Mr. T. Blackburn, was well rendered, and pleased the audience greatly. The chair was occupied by Mr. Johnson, of Leeds, and the connective readings were effectively given by Mr. R. Watkin, while Mr. Lindley accompanied the singing on the piano. A collection was taken at the close on behalf of the funds.

EPP'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in packets, labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epp's Chocolate Essence.

"OUR MOTHER CHURCH."

Lecture by Mr. Bairstow.

On Friday last, a lecture was delivered in the National School at Lofthouse, by Mr. Bairstow, of Leeds, on "Our Mother Church," being in its result a counter-blast to Mr. Andrew's address on "Disestablishment" some few weeks ago.

Mr. Thos. Hargreaves presided, and in introducing the lecturer, expressed his regret that the audience was not larger. He bespoke a fair hearing for Mr. Bairstow, and expressed the opinion that the lecturer would give good reasons why the Church should not be either disestablished or disendowed.

Mr. Bairstow prefaced his address by stating that he had brought ample proofs of every statement he would give, and said the Church party were deeply anxious that the subject should be fully discussed, believing as they did that the further the question was examined, the more reasons would be found for opposing the predatory schemes of so-called Liberationists. After quoting the opinions of numerous Liberal statesmen, he expressed the opinion that the question was one which would create a serious division in the Liberal party, as many Liberal churchmen would naturally place their Church before their party. Even in the last parliament, with so great a Liberal majority, 75 per cent of the members were Churchmen. The Church had existed from the earliest ages, and had always been the greatest bulwark against oppression and tyranny. Mr. Andrew at Churwell stated that Professor Freeman had said in a letter that he would vote for disestablishment. He (Mr. Bairstow) had written to Professor Freeman, who had replied that he had never said any such thing.

The Church had been connected with the State from the earliest times, even in the time of Pilate. Some people believed that the Church had no existence before the Reformation, but this was a great mistake, as Christianity was preached in England in the year 61, while bishops existed in England in the 3rd and 4th centuries. The invasion of England by the Saxons was a great blow to Christianity. Even in the time of Augustine the Church owned much property, which could not have been given to the Church by the State, as the State could not be said to have an existence at that time. The Church property had been gradually acquired, and had been given by pious landowners, who built and endowed churches on their own estates. Mr. Andrew had wished his audience to believe that the State had given the property to the Church. The Church had received about 2½ millions from the State, while her total possessions were estimated at nearly 200 millions, and it would be manifestly unfair to take away the whole of the Church property because a very small part had been given by the State. Professor Freeman, the Liberal historian, had stated that the chief difference between Church endowments and the endowments of dissenting bodies was that those of the Church were larger and of more ancient date, but that the State had the same right over both. The cry of religious equality was a very specious one, and could never be realised any more than social equality, as the Church from her ancient origin and splendid traditions would hold her place in the hearts of the people, even though stripped of all her worldly possessions. Dissenters have religious equality from a legal point of view, they can build and hold property, which is protected by the State equally with that of the Church. Mr. Miall had said in the House of Commons that the Irish Church was not as free after disestablishment as it was before, while eminent Irishmen, both lay and clerical, had expressed the same opinion. If the Church were deprived of her revenues, the result would be that her work would be crippled. Mr. Andrew had said that the tithe revenues of the Church amounted to 4 millions, but half of this was in the hands of laymen and schools. The only money paid by the State for religious purposes went to chaplains who belonged not to the Church alone, but to all denominations. In the early part of the century grants were made to the dissenters, one of them, the 'Regium Donum,' had been commuted for £700,000. Whether the State had given money to the Church or to any other body, a gift was a gift, and the State had no right to take it back. Much less had they the right to take the whole because they had given a small part. The Liberationist scheme was to take all churches built before 1818, no matter who had built them, to give them to a Parochial Board, who could either let or sell them. Our ancient churches might then be turned into theatres or dancing saloons, as had been done in France. He believed that Englishmen would see the injustice of such a scheme, and as they became more acquainted with the subject, would endeavour to preserve our ancient churches from such base uses. Mr. Andrew had referred to some instances in which church clergymen had been guilty of disreputable conduct. Even among the 'Twelve' there was a Judas, and dissenting ministers were not in all instances free from blame.

The State interfered with the doctrine preached in chapels as well as in churches, and instances were given in which this had been done. Chapels possessing trust property were under State control, and if the Church was disestablished, it would still be under State control in regard to the property left to it. If the Church was disestablished the process would swallow up the proceeds. The Church of England was more vigorous now than ever. From 1840 over 40 millions had been raised by churchmen, to restore or build over 10,000 churches. The Church of England is doing a great work without cost to the ratepayers, both as regards worship and education. Mr. Andrew had stated that the Church only comprised one-third of the community, while Mr. Gladstone stated that the Church comprised two-thirds. Churchmen had always asked for a religious census, but dissenters had always opposed it, being afraid of the result. In conclusion, the lecturer urged upon the audience to read up the question, and not to believe reckless statements put forth by the opponents of the Church, and expressed the belief that the Church would rise superior to the efforts put forth to injure her, and would still live in the hearts of the people, for whose welfare she does so much.

Questions being invited, Mr. B. Marshall asked was there any Act of Parliament establishing the Church of England?

The lecturer quoted Mr. Gladstone and Professor Freeman in support of his statement, that no such Act existed.

Mr. Mitchell also asked a question about an Act of Parliament, but said he could not give the words. He had evidently heard there was such an Act, but was not acquainted with its contents. The lecturer said it was probably the Act referred to by Mr. Marshall

Mr. Beeton quoted Dean Alford in support of disestablishment, but the lecturer said Dean Alford's opinion was not shared by any eminent authorities.

Mr. Beeton asked why the Church was afraid of disestablisement, to which the lecturer replied that the Church was afraid for the sake of the poor.

Mr. Beeton enquired—"Have Government given money to build churches and not given to chapels." The lecturer said he had admitted that Government had given money to the Church, and also £215,000 to dissenters.

Mr. Mitchell asked—"Has there been no grant of money since 1824," which was answered in the negative.

In reply to Mr. Mitchell's question about the remission of duties on materials used in building churches, the lecturer asked for a clearer impression of the questioner's meaning, but from one cause or another, no further information was obtained on the subject.

Mr. G. Armitage asked what the dissenting ministers received the £700,000 for.

The lecturer did not know the reason, but the fact remained that it was given.

Mr. G. Armitage asked further questions about the Mormons and about chapel trust deeds, which the lecturer answered very fully, adducing proof in support of each answer.

The Rev. J. R. Crawford proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer in a few brief sentences.

The Rev. F. Fawkes seconded, saying that the Church of England was not afraid of enquiry, and that in districts where Church work had been efficiently carried out, the people would rise as one man in favor of the Church in her hour of need. (Carried unanimously).

The lecturer having suitably responded, the Rev. Mr. Bywater proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was seconded by the lecturer, and carried unanimously.

The chairman having responded, the proceedings were brought to a close, the meeting having been very orderly throughout.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT (Monday.)

Theft of Watches at Lofthouse.—William Shaw, lacemaker, Nottingham, appeared in the dock charged with stealing two watches, the property of George Kellett, groom, Lofthouse, on the 26th May. —Prosecutor said that on Tuesday afternoon the 26th May, at a quarter-past one o'clock, he left his house, locking the door and hiding the key near the house. When he got home at four o'clock the door was unlocked, and the watches had been taken from upstairs.—Mrs. John Newburn, broker, Leeds, proved purchasing one watch for 10s., and Mr. Alex. Wilson, watchmaker, Bradford, said prisoner offered him a portion of a watch for sale. He gave prisoner 2s. and told him to call in about two hours so that he could examine it. In the meantime he found that the watch was "wanted," and gave prisoner into custody. —Prosecutor identified the watches produced, and said they were worth £9.—Prisoner had nothing to say in reply to the charge, and was committed to take his trial at the sessions.

FRIDAY.

Damaging Crops.—Henry Colley, miner, Lee Moor, was ordered to pay 11s. for treading down the crops of Mr. William Lunn, farmer.

A Belated Traction Engine.—Joseph Fletcher Braime, driver of a traction engine, Hunslet, was charged with using the engine on the highway after sunset.—Police-constable Jackson said that on the 15th inst., he saw the defendant in charge of a traction engine on the Pontefract Road at Rothwell Haigh, at half past seven o'clock in the evening, or more than an hour after sunset. He called the defendants attention to the time, and he replied that he had not been able to find a place to put the engine in before. Defendant put up at the John O' Gaunt Hotel, but it was after eight o'clock before the engine got off the highway.—Defendant who said he could not find a place at Oulton for the engine, was fined 10s. and 10s. costs.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 17, Farringdon-road, London, E. C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

WOODLESFORD and OULTON

Occasional Notes.

The annual Harvest thanksgiving services at Woodlesford Church were held on Tuesday (Michaelmas Day). The service commenced with Morning Prayer at 8 o'clock, Holy Communion was celebrated at 10 30, and Choral Evensong at 7-30. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Scott M. A. vicar of St. John's, Leeds. The church was very prettily decorated. The vicar has gathered around him, a small army of lady "church-workers" ready for any task that comes to hand, from working a mission, to decorating the church, or engineering a parish tea, and in their hands the interior of the church was beautified with grain, fruit and flowers arranged with no little skill and good taste. Special pains had been taken with the chancel wall, and the font; and a very happy effect produced. The church is well adapted for the display of decorative work and the result repays all the labour bestowed upon it. The choral portion of the service was of the usual bright and joyous character, commencing with the time-honoured hymn "Come ye thankful people" as a processional. The other hymns were 384, 365, and 30. Hymns ancient and modern, and an Anthem "Thou visitest the earth" (Greene)—a revival of an old favourite—was sung in the usual place. The choir very wisely refrained from inflicting the usual "services" the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis being sung to good "lifting" chants in which everybody could join. The sermon—which had special reference to the festival of St. Michael and all angels—was preached from the text "The reapers are the angels" St. Matthew xiii. 39. In the first portion of the address, the ministration of angels was ingeniously shewn to be analogous with the occupation of earthly husbandmen, in other phases of their work besides that of reaping. And in conclusion by a reference to another meaning of the term "angel" in the messages sent in the Revelation to the "angels" or "bishops" of the seven churches of Asia; the speaker passed, by an easy transition, to the subject of the proposed new Bishopric of Wakefield, and treated on some of the reasons why church people should support the scheme. The offertory was given to the Wakefield Bishopric Fund. There was a large congregation.

We have heard a great deal of late years of the deterioration in value of house property in Woodlesford; but if the property sale in which a small house changed hands on Tuesday last, is to be taken as a straw indicating the course of the wind, it is evidence to the contrary. The "lot" valued at say from £110 to £120, and which might have been purchased privately for £120, was knocked down, after a spirited competition, to Mr. J. Bramley for £145.

LOFTHOUSE-with-CARLTON.

Facts and Rumours.

Referring again to Mr. W Mitchell's newspaper correspondence, it will be remembered that last week he said he always noticed minor matters first, and for that reason, put 'Facts & Rumours' at the beginning. Well, I have no doubt the patient readers of those "Disestablishment" letters from the dry pen—to coin a phrase—of Mr. Mitchell, would bear composedly such a course of action, if he would ever pass from the style in which he opens out; but he begins, continues, and finishes, with minor—very minor—matters, and one would be inclined to think he himself was a minor too, if one's opinion was to be formed solely on the contents of his newspaper correspondence.

Let me point out a weak place in Mr. Mitchell's case. When he wrote asking information on the Rev. Mr. Crawford's statement about the "Polynesian nation," they simply replied that they never had a missionary called Noble; instead of plainly saying whether the events stated had or had not been brought about either by Mr. Noble or any other Mr.

The posts of head master and mistress at Carlton Board School must be very envyable positions. There were no less than 133 masters, and 42 mistresses applied. The task of selecting the most efficient and suitable teachers out of these, has been somewhat difficult, and one requiring patience. The selection has been finally settled nevertheless, and on Saturday last, the Board at a special meeting convened for the purpose engaged a man and his wife of the name of Walker, to fill the situations made vacant by the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Fairburn.

It is not a part of my duty to report the lecture on "Mother church," but I have a word about it. It shows very plainly that the vicar of Lofthouse is resolved to spare no efforts to gain to his side, as many of the parishioners as possible. The lecture was not so successful as I expected it to be. The attendance was certainly not good, and—worst of all —the lecturer did not make such a stand as was anticipated.

The Carlton Primitives held their harvest thanksgiving services on Sunday and Monday last. The chapel had received a lot of attention at the decorator's hands and presented a very pleasing appearance. The pulpit, communion, the gas brackets and pendants and many other parts, were tastefully decorated with flowers, fruits, plants, vegetables, and grain worked in crosses, wreaths, and garlands, or arranged in groups and clusters of all sizes. The morning service was conducted by Mr. Dibnah, of Leeds, who delivered what he called a "friendly address" on the life of David. In the afternoon and evening the rostrum was occupied by Mrs. Dibnah, who delighted her audience by her two addresses on "God's love towards his children" and "The New Song." Especially in the evening was the audience captivated, by Mrs. Dibnah's words. The usual harvest hymns were used. On Monday a fair number of persons met at the public tea, after which the fruit, vegetables &c., used in the decorations were sold, and a public meeting held. Mr. South, of Leeds occupied the post of honour, and addresses were delivered by Messrs Sheard and Dibnah, after which Mrs. Dibnah recited a good "temperance piece." A collection was taken at the close, which, with the Sunday collections, and the proceeds of the tea, amounted to about £7. 10s.

Special religious services were commenced in the Robin Hood Free Church, by Mr. W. I. Taylor, of London, on Sunday last, when a company of the supporters turned out to sing through the village and invite their friends to the services. Three services were held on Sunday and a meeting has been held each evening during the week.

A miscellaneous entertainment was given in the Carlton Temperance Hall on Saturday evening last. The items which were given by members of the society and friends, included songs, concertina solos, readings and recitations. The songs of Messrs Higgins and Wright were much enjoyed, and received hearty applause. The hall was quite full and Mr. Thomas Taylor occupied the chair.

There are very substantial rumours afloat in Carlton, of the lovemaking of a certain young man, to a young woman whose hymenial vow has been completed some years, and who still resides with her husband. It would be something strange if I had an elopement to record before long, would'nt it.

Holloways Ointment and Pills.—Health's Defences. None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsey will attack those most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

TOWN TALK.

The only bit of interesting business at the Revision Court at Oulton a fortnight ago, hailed from Rothwell. The Rev. Mr. Samwell would feel rather foolish, when he got Mr. Brears into such a scrape. Lack of knowledge on the subject of qualification, &c., seems to have led both Mr. Samwell and Mr. Brears astray. However, I should think nothing more serious than the unpleasantness of rendering oneself liable to "imprisonment or a fine" will come of it.

The Cookery lessons are progressing very satisfactorily. The attendance of ladies and young ladies is good, and the exhibition of cooking seems to be most entertaining. One thing I can vouch for, that the dishes are very delicious, and, no wonder they are so quickly bought up after the lessons are over. If the young folks are successful in catching up Miss Theed's way of cooking, and learn how to prepare the various toothsome dishes which that young lady makes, they will be able in after years, when they are in the places which their mothers occupy to day, to provide a wholesome, varied and pleasing course of dinners. One may have too much of a good thing, and "Roast beef of old England" with potatoes and Yorkshire pudding every day, is not a sufficiently varied course of dinners to be relished. I am desired to say that a little more punctuality in commencing the lesson would be acceptable to the audience. Some of the ladies scarcely appreciate sitting some ten minutes, while the lecturer and one of the audience complete their conversation.

I am glad that the Local Board are taking definite steps in the repair of Butcher Lane. Never since the laying of the common sewer has the condition of this street been satisfactory, but during a long period, it was perfectly disgraceful. There is now a sign that it is to be put right. I should like to draw the attention of the Board to the unsafe condition of the causeway on the south side of Commercial Street, which has never been relaid since the new curbstones were inserted. Then we were led to expect that something was to be done on the Marsh Street flagging; some of the necessary material has been laid on the roadside for months, and it is time this job was completed. It is to be hoped that the Board will see the desirability of having these pieces of work done before the dirty weather comes on, and get them attended to at once.

The Rothwell School Board are for ever cautioning, warning, and threatening. It is almost invariably stated in the report issued in the Rothwell Times that certain parents are to be summoned if their children do not attend better. The next meeting comes round and "certain parents," &c., appears again and yet again. They very seldom carry out the warning, consequently the parents learn that the notice served upon them is meaningless and fail to act upon it. They ought to summon if they threaten to do so without the desired result, and if they are not agreed to prosecute offenders, it would be wise to refrain from saying they will.

I am glad to see a notice that lectures are being arranged for by the Mechanics' Institute Committee. I trust they will succeed in providing a good list.

It is not often that we are favoured with such distinguished visitors as those who were present at Messrs. Charlesworth's coal staith at Rothwell Haigh on Monday morning last. We were honoured in our district by the presence of two prize-fighters with two or three hundred of their aiders and abettors from Hunslet and Holbeck. The fight, I hear, came off uninterupted, and the police were "out of it." Prize fights are of more frequent occurrence than they have been for some time, it strikes me, and it seems strange that such open work cannot be stopped.

The Rothwell Football Club journeyed to Scarboro'on Saturday last to play their first match of the season. A certain party of them, after "mashing" on the Spa at "the Queen," were to be seen, after arriving in Leeds in the early hours on Sunday morning, in close proximity to the "tripe and trotter" and "trunnle pie" stalls, situate in Boar Lane. Not long after they might have been observed strolling down Briggate and Crown Point Road, with their tasty purchases quickly vanishing out of their hands into their capacious stomachs.

GOSSIP.

LIBERATION LECTURE AT ROBIN HOOD.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

In your issue of the 4th of September, there is a letter from the Rev. J. R. Crawford, vicar of Lofthouse, which I wish briefly to notice. I have been nearly a month from home in Ireland, and only got your paper after my arrival in Limerick. Were I at home, I should reply at greater length than I can do now.

When I gave my lecture at Robin Hood, I stated in what sense the words 'state paid,' were used by Liberationists. They do not (as I stated in my lecture) mean that the bishops and clergy are paid out of the annual taxes which pass through the hands of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, but from the tithe rent charge, etc. No doubt a large sum is raised by voluntary means, and every year the amount is increasing. This fact is an indication of the power of voluntaryism. The important question is, to whom does the property—called church property—belong. Some years ago Sir John—now Lord Chief Justice—Coleridge said, "in England, from early times, amidst the rudiments of Parliaments in the beginning of the reign of Henry III, the State had asserted its right of control over ecclesiastical property." Again, he says, "if men give property to the Church, and the church takes it, the property is given and taken subject to State control, on State terms, upon conditions laid down from time to time by the State, and liable to be altered by the power which has laid them down." We have thus high legal authority for our views as to Church property, and on this account I do not care much about using the phrase, 'State paid.' When it is used, we wish it to be understood what we do not mean by it. By the Irish Church Act, Parliament—to use Lord Coleridge's words—"asserted its right of control over ecclesiastical property," and it is utterly useless to argue against the principle then acted upon. When the question of Disestablishment is dealt with in Great Britain, I feel assured that no injustice will be done to the Presbyterians in Scotland or to the Episcopalians in England and Wales. Mr. Crawford says "the whole income of the Church is probably only just over four millions." This, I think, is an under-estimate, but I cannot deal with this matter for want of documents which I have not with me. It is not, however, in this reply a matter of great importance. Mr. Crawford refers to what has taken place at some of the stations of the London Missionary Society in Polynesia. Supposing for argument's sake that Mr. Crawford's statements are correct, what has been done at the Antipodes does not furnish any argument in favor of State churches; two blacks do not make a white; but I deny the correctness of most of Mr. Crawford's statements, and I challenge him to prove that there has ever been—or that there is now—anything like a Union of church and state in any of the Stations of the London Missionary Society. Mr. Crawford refers to one statement that I made in my lecture about naval and military chaplains being paid out of the annual taxation, and that "Mr. Webster reminded me that Wesleyan, Presbyterian and Roman chaplains were also appointed and paid by Parliament." When Mr. Webster said this, I did not say "that I was not aware of the fact." At the moment, I was thinking of the fact that a paid chaplain to a workhouse must be a clergyman of the Established church. It was therefore not ignorance, but a lapse of memory, as Mr. Webster must be aware. Will Mr. Crawford state when "Parliament voted a proportionate sum of money to Nonconformist bodies to enable them to build chapels," and what was the amount thus voted? Mr. Crawford affirms that there is an "ungodly union formed between professed Christians and avowed atheists, which has for its end and aim not the freedom, but the spoliation of the Church." I affirm that Liberationists do not wish to despoil the church. The Church of England is not a legal corporation capable of holding property. As I have stated, Church property is the property of the nation, and the nation cannot rob itself. All that which is the result of voluntary gifts, after a certain date, when disendowment is effected, will be handed back to the Presbyterians and Episcopalians. No Parliament this country is likely to have will ever attempt to commit an act of spoliation. Liberationists are the best friends of Church reform, as events will shew.

Every statement and argument that Mr. Crawford's letter contains is capable of being satisfactorily met and answered, but I cannot now, amid the pressure of work, deal with them.

I am, Dear Sir,
Yours truly,
JOHN ANDREW,
Of Leeds.

Limerick,
Sept 23rd, 1885.

DISESTABLISHMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

I propose to with-hold my letter, already written, until I have seen the one promised us by Mr. Andrew. I am exceedingly pleased to find he has written, for a thorough ventilation of the question is just what we Churchmen desire.

In order to clear the ground for my next letter, I should like to notice two points already raised. One relates to a mistake which I made, (please italicise the noun and pronoun). I quoted the case of the Peel Churches as an exception to the general rule that churches were built by private endowments. I am mistaken; they were no exception, but were so built, and not by the nation. All the Peel Act did was to determine the special channel into which certain monies previously given to the Church should flow. This, of course, does away with any need for a special contemporary grant to Nonconformists.

My second point is, through my bad writing, or printer's error, the name of a Prime Minister, in the newly formed Polynesian Parliament, was wrongly given. Shakespeare asks:—

"What's in a name? that which we call a rose
By any other name will smell as sweet."

The London Missionary Society's Secretary seems to think otherwise, and is apparently in hopes that a chance misnomer on my part will cause the principle I assert to stink in the nostrils of your readers. The name of the missionary was erroneously printed as Noble, it should have been Nott. It would have been more noble not to have tried to run away from my principle, by getting behind a mis-spelt word. We Churchmen are fighting for grand broad principles, and we would assure Liberationists that the truth cannot be hidden by bandying about printer's errors, or minute quibbles. Be the name of the missionary minister Noble or Nott; nay, be it neither Noble nor Nott, the fact remains that Nonconformists have abroad accepted a converted sovereign as a 'nursing father,' and a Christianised state as a 'nursing mother' to their struggling Church. Quite right too, only let them be consistent in their conduct, both at home and abroad.

Yours faithfully,
J. R. CRAWFORD.

SUNDAY NOISES.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

The question of abolishing the various Sunday noises, which have become so intolerable to the peace-loving population is receiving considerable attention just now, and I should like to have a few lines on the matter inserted in next issue. There are two noises in particular which appear to be more prominent than any other, viz:—the Salvation Drum and the church bells. With regard to the former, I am persuaded that to the majority it is a nuisance, though it may sound like "music in the sinner's ears" to some. One thing is certain; the Salvation Army officers will not withdraw the drum, they have not sufficient regard to the comfort of the inhabitants for that. So it rests with some other power to do it. Here follows a quotation from a weekly journal. "The Salvationists cannot enjoy their usual license in Derby. A local act empowers the suppression of outdoor music on the complaint of three inhabitants." I wish we had a "local act" giving us the same privilege; and I should like to know if the Local Board have the power to stop noisy demonstrations, if it can be proved that they are obnoxious to the towns people. If they have, let them use it.

Turning to the second source of complaint (the bells), I am of the same opinion as "Peace." "Gossip" may make fun about being an admirer and lover of music; if he calls the ringing of those bells music, let him come and reside in Churchfields for a year or two, and get plenty of it. I venture to say that even your prying, impudent, and bombastic correspondent "Gossip," would change his tune from "How sweet to hear on sabbath morn" to something like 'Drat those confounded bells," if he lived as near them as I have the misfortune to do. I know, not of one or two, but of many cases in which a sufferer's pains have been increased and intensified by the clanging of the bells so incessantly both on Sunday and weekday. If I am not mistaken a letter was written to the Editor of the Rothwell Times when the Rev. Mr. Heberden changed the mode of ringing, thanking him for the sweeter tone of the new system of machine ringing; so that this complaint is not out of harmony with what has been felt for some years. The late lamented Canon Bell, our most respected vicar, was much against the hand ringing in his day, on account of the hard manual labour it entailed, but he had to bend to the wish of the people and allow it to proceed as usual. The Rev. Mr. Heberden succeeded in introducing the machinery, but it has been since discarded, and we are persecuted as of old. Hoping those who are responsible will take notice of these things. I am, yours &c.,

Sept. 29th, 1885. CHURCHSIDER.

These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London

HIGH AUTHORITY.

DR. THOMPSON says Kidney Disease is probably next to Consumption the commonest cause of death among adults in this climate. You have had a recent and mysterious attack of asthma, pains in the back, and around the loins, severe headache, dizziness, inflamed eyes, a coated tongue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, chilly sensation, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged), dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling (especially at night), puffing or bloating under the eyes, and your muscular system seems utterly helpless. Dr. Roberts, of England; Prof. Thompson, of New York; and other celebrated authorities, tell us that all these symptoms are sure indications of Bright's Disease! With some patients the disease runs slowly and for years. With others it comes as a thief in the night. This fact is an alarming one, and starts the inquiry, What can be done?

For the CURE of Kidney and Liver Complaints, HOP BITTERS have no equal in the world, and those suffering from any of the above symptoms should use them at once.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

Since writing our epitome of political meetings, as contained in our sixth page, two great leaders have spoken.

On Tuesday evening Sir Charles Dilke addressed his constituents at Chelsea, supporting Mr. Gladstone's manifesto, also for free schools, and was willing to allow the question of reforming the House of Lords to be let alone in the next Parliament.

On Wednesday, the Marquis of Salisbury made his long expected speech at Newport, advocating a policy of peace in foreign politics and an increase of local government, the settlement of the Sunday closing question by local authorities, and the transfer of licensing power to local bodies with right of compensation. In Ireland he urged the necessity of maintaining the integrity of the empire, and the suppression of Boycotting. On the land question he favoured easy and cheaper transfer, would make education more liberal, with the right of religious teaching, and would maintain to the uttermost the National Church.

LOCAL BOARD MEETING.

The fortnightly meeting of this Board took place on Monday evening; present, Mr. W. Hargreaves, (chairman), Messrs. J. Holmes, J. Hargreaves, J. Oliver, H. P. Newsome, J. Dobson, J. Nowell, W. Lawton, and the clerk, collector, and surveyor.

The minutes of last meetings were read and confirmed.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.—The Committee appointed to wait on the representatives of the Co., reported that the Co. denied any responsibility for lighting up the Long Bridge. An important train this month having been taken off, the Board instructed the clerk to make complaint, and endeavour to secure its replacement.

HIGHWAYS.—On the motion of Mr. Lawton and Mr. Nowell, the clerk was authorised to affix the Board's seal to certain contracts.

Mr. Lawton drew attention to one of "Gossip's" paragraphs last week, in which reference is made to certain kerbstones laying useless in Marsh Street. In reply to an enquiry on the subject, the surveyor said they had been rejected as not according to contract, and unsuitable for the purpose; there was only one load sent, and he had not yet had any further instruction respecting them. A motion was then carried through the Chairman and Mr. Lawton, to take steps for having them removed; neutral, Mr. Holmes and Mr Dobson.

Mr. Lawton further asked what was going to be done on the 'Old Road'; it much needed repairs, but as Mr. Turner objected so to ashes, Messrs. Charlesworth had ceased bringing them, and now asked 2d. a load for them; after the strong language used some time ago, the Committee were not prepared to do anything further without the Board's order. Mr. Oliver was sorry to hear that what had been said had so affected the Committee, and thought they might have gone on as they had previously done. The Chairman said Messrs. Charlesworth did not personally care anything about getting rid of the ashes, and denied the statement that they were wishing to saddle the ratepayers with this material for their own benefit. A report had been circulated that Lord Stourton had ordered the ashes, etc., to be removed from the pit-heads, but no such thing had occurred; owing to a slight dispute (not between masters and men) the coal getting had been stopped, and in order to keep their men earning a little, Messrs. Charlesworth had decided to engage them to remove the pit-hill refuse; it was an action of pure charity towards those who were unfortunately thrown out of work. Mr. Nowell proposed that the road be left as it is at present. This was not seconded, and Mr. Dobson moved that some ashes be purchased; no one was prepared to second this either, however, and a motion to pass on to the next business, by Mr. Oliver and Mr. Lawton, was carried, the Chairman, Mr. Oliver and Mr. Lawton voting for it, the rest being neutral. Mr. Lawton suggested that Jumbo (Enterprise) be yoked to a waggon load of ashes and bring it behind him on his way home, instead of carrying a lot of children. (Laughter). On someone mentioning the ashes made at the gas works and at the factory, Mr. Dobson dubbed them as 'worse than t'other,' which greatly delighted Dr. Nowell, who considered his opinion of the badness of the 't'other' proved by such a remark. Mr. Nowell asked what was being put on Holmsley, to which the surveyor replied that it was common 4/9 dross, the same as used for Gillett Lane. (Mr. Nowell—"Very common indeed, I should think—or uncommon; it is smashed into smithereens on being touched.")

WATER.—Mr. Lawton, in accordance with notice given, moved that the Board take counsel's opinion as to the Board's powers in the matter of supplying water to persons living 200 or 300 yards from the highroad. Mr. Dobson maintained that landlords should supply their own property with water; if he had'nt water in his houses, they would soon be empty. Mr. Holmes disputed the fact that the Leeds Corporation supply single houses at such a distance as Mr. Lawton suggested, even on payment of 10 per cent. on the cost of laying the pipes. The chairman suggested that the clerk write to other Boards. Mr. Oliver said he had authority for stating that Messrs. Bromet & Taylor would agree to pay half the cost of carrying water to Lord Stourton's farms on the Haigh. Mr. Jas. Hargreaves spoke strongly on the injustice of making small landlords pay for putting the water in, and letting off the wealthy owners; he would go in for fighting such men, and compel them to do what others had had to do. Mr. Newsome agreed, stating that for a small lot of property a short distance from the main, he had paid a plumber's bill of £14, and Mr. Dobson would pay very much more than that for his cottages, and he thought they ought to behave in the same way to large landlords as to smaller ones. Mr. Newsome having seconded the chairman's proposition "to enquire of other Boards" this motion was carried. In the course of discussion, Mr. Lawton felt sure he could guarantee that such an extension of the water supply would be a source of profit to the Board.

Mr. Elsworth, of Judson's Farm, asked the Board to grant him a meter for his water, and the application was at once agreed to, on the motion of Mr. J. Hargreaves, seconded by Dr. Nowell.

Mr. Lawton moved for a return of all persons supplied with town's water, who keep cows, horses or carriages; seconded by Mr. J. Hargreaves and carried.

POLICE STATION.—Mr. Lawton, having referred to a letter in the Times, a short time ago, moved that the authorities at Wakefield be memorialized to erect a police station similar to Methley, at Rothwell. The cost would be borne by the county, and as they paid so much money to the county authority, they ought to have the advantage of having a cell or two in order to lock people up (not Rothwell people of course), and not have the town left without protection whenever a man gets drunk and has to be taken to Wakefield. Mr. Newsome seconded the motion, which was unanimously carried.

Two or three slight complaints were made by Mr. Lawton and Mr. Nowell, but they were already attended to. Mr. Nowell had another 'go' about cutting the hedges, which the clerk said were being gradually finished.

CANAL BOATS.—In reply to an enquiry respecting the Canal Boats Act, the Inspector reported having inspected 300 barges, and his statement regarding them was ordered to be forwarded to the Department.

FINANCE.—The clerk having asked for a meeting of the Finance Committee to lay a new rate, a day was fixed.

General District Rate		64	10	2
Water Rents	...	14	5	7

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The usual fortnightly meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday evening, when Mr James Hargreaves presided, the Rev. J. H. Evans and Mr. Graveley being vice-presidents; there were also present Messrs. C. Grosvenor, G. Jepson, W. Lawton, J. Parker, H. Sheard, J. Jackson, B. Riley, J. Hardcastle and J. Swales, with Mr. T. Schofield (clerk).

After the consideration of the ordinary relief cases, the clerk presented a number of tenders for office stationery and books, and it was decided in regard to the various estimates, that Messrs. Harrison and Waide's offer be accepted.

The Clerk of the Peace wrote to say that the Borough Sessions would take place October 26th.

In reply to Dr. Shirley's request, a complimentary testimonial was drawn up in regard to his services, for which that gentleman returned sincere thanks.

BRANDY SAUCE.—Mr. Hardcastle said that the Finance Committee wished to draw attention to the large increase of expenditure noticed in drugs, and in the course of their examination of the quarter's account, they found no less than £11 charged for the supply of a certain very agreeable medicine (Mist Vini Gall), frequently prescribed for weakly patients, containing some four ounces of french brandy in each bottle. The consumption of this article had very largely increased during the last six months, and the drug account for that period was some £20 more than the corresponding term last year. From further conversation on the subject, it transpired that the poorly patients were not the only persons who thought they required it, but that others assisted in its consumption in the shape of sauce for puddings, &c. The Board felt this was a serious question, and after some discussion, it was agreed to draw the attention of the medical officers to the subject, in order that careful enquiries might be instituted, and the imposition stopped.

THE SAILOR LAD.—Arrangements for placing the lad who longs "for a life on the ocean wave" in a suitable situation have been nearly completed with an owner in Grimsby, and Mr. Graveley has kindly agreed to see the protege safely and comfortably on board (Mr. Lawton.—"And accompany him on his first voyage."). (Laughter).

The usual requirements for the workhouse were agreed to, and the master's report confirmed.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

GENUINE ORANGE BITTERS.—24s. per case of one dozen net cash. These Bitters are made from the very finest Servile oranges and will be found to be an admirable and pleasant tonic. Manufactured by Joseph Hobson, Dantzic Brewery, Regent Street, Leeds.—Rothwell Agent, H. P. Newsome, Grocer, &c.

A TICKET-HOLDER'S 'EXPERIENCE' AMONG THE RADICALS.

Knowing your usual impartiality on all matters, either social, local or political, and seeing at present the air is full of speeches of one sort or another, it occurred to me that your readers might be slightly interested in the perusal of a report of a political gathering, not altogether local, but perhaps of national importance. The lecture on "Practical Politics" on Thursday last, I should have liked to hear, but that being the evening on which a great meeting was to be held at Bradford, under the auspices of the National Liberal Federation, I preferred to visit the latter. A couple of tickets were sent me by a Bradford gentleman, who impressed upon me the fact, that although it stated the doors opened at six o'clock, an hour before the meeting, yet "first come, first served" would be the motto by which all intending hearers could regulate themselves for the evening's proceedings. The friend who accompanied me said "We shall stand the same chance as anybody else;" so that fact consoled us—until we got there. Unfortunately the train timed to leave Leeds at 5.30, was ten minutes late in starting; this caused us to be 'behind time' at our destination. Not perfectly knowing the 'ins and outs' of the town, it took us longer to arrive at "St. George's Hall" than a better acquaintance with the streets would have done, but after several enquiries arrived at the place of meeting, not too late, but nearly so. There were several entrances, for different sections of those who were to compose the audience, but we were relegated to the gallery, or as it is sometimes vulgarly called, "the gods." On ascending the flights of steps we found a regular stream of people returning again.—"Tak back, lads, theer's noa room, t'hoil's full, and it's enuff ta swelt onnybody." But we had travelled too far to be easily repulsed, and having with difficulty arrived at the entrance to the room, found what had been told us to be quite true. The place was literally crammed, the audience 'packed like herrings,' eight or ten thicknesses, while the heat was something tremendous. We had to be content with a 'standing seat,' and no hope of seeing so far below as the speakers, our only 'solatium' was that being debarred from sight, to remember at least in this instance "distance lends enchantment to the ear." How long many had been there I can't tell, but the time of waiting seemed rather tedious, the heat grew more intense, a kind of squeamishness came over me which did not improve private matters; the organist played popular airs, the crowd sang popular words to the different tunes, time rolled slowly on, until a loud cheer heralded the arrival of seven o'clock, and the principal speakers.

The chairman would have liked to inflict a long speech upon the audience, but after being allowed to ventilate one or two pet ideas, cries of "Time" put an end to his oration. The first resolution was moved by Mr. A. Illingworth, one of the borough members. He is a very acceptable speaker, and knows how to suit the public tastes, some of his remarks brought forth expressions of approval from the audience. Following him came an attraction in the person of Mr. Lalmohun Ghose, a Hindoo, and candidate for a Southern constituency. This gentleman, although a foreigner, gave—to my thinking—the neatest speech of the evening. His elocution was perfect, and free from the grammatical errors we might have been led to expect, from one who has had to master the many difficulties of our English language. Being a native, and well versed in the matter, his principal topic was India, and the epitome and defence of the splendid work done by the ex-Viceroy, Lord Ripon, brought his hearers into full sympathy with his sentiments, proving a counterblast to the superior knowledge of a 'three month's excursionist,' and present Cabinet Minister.

Then came the 'hero of the evening,' Mr. Chamberlain. From some reports we have read they would have us believe, owing to the views he holds, he was a very extraordinary, outrageous personage, if not something worse. But "slander, whose edge tho' sharper than the sword," seems powerless to affect his popularity. His address was opened with a sincere hope that Mr. Forster would soon recover from his serious illness; then followed a sarcastic, brilliant, and lively criticism of the 'sayings and doings' of the members of the Government. He was especially 'smart' in his allusion to the Berlin Treaty, and its present aspect, for after alluding to the 'great show' made at the time, he gave the quotation from Shakespeare—

"That all the honour that Salisbury hath won
Is that he was a Lord Ambassador."

His ideas on several matters, such as free education, cheap transfer of land, rearrangement of taxation, which by his opponents have been designated as "riot, ruin, robbery and revolution," seemed however, to be fully endorsed by the majority of his hearers, as being subjects which must 'come to the front' either in the next Parliament or in the 'near future.' The conclusion was a fuller explanation of the position he was placed in, "that he would never purchase position, place and office by the abandonment of opinions already expressed, and that in any case office had no attraction unless it be made to serve the cause he had undertaken to promote."

The address, which took over an hour to deliver, was under the trying circumstances, heard and listened to with interest, excepting the slight interruption of some wishing to get out and could'n't. One man would talk, and was not silenced until another below him landed one on his 'proboscis,' which completely settled him. When Mr. Chamberlain sat down, there was a regular 'stampede' from the meeting, myself along with the rest, 'glad and fain' to get out of such an immense assemblage, which so forcibly reminded one of the Gladstone Demonstration in the Cloth Hall, Leeds.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

Barnsley Juvenile Choir.—Three or four months ago, this interesting band of children visited Rothwell, and produced an exceedingly good impression by their entertainments, the financial results being eminently satisfactory to the Temperance Society, by whom they were engaged. The Society very wisely resolved to invite the Juvenile Choir again, and on Saturday last Mr. Drake brought his little singers into Rothwell. They have given four entertainments, at the Temperance Hall, the room being crowded every evening, and the audience highly pleased. The chair was occupied by Mr. Starkie on Saturday evening, by Mr. Jas. Hargreaves on Monday, Mr. Sidebottom on Tuesday, and by Mr. Ineson on Wednesday. The programme contained some of the former items, and a few new pieces, and were suitably diversified, songs, duets, recitations, short dramatic representations, choruses, and dialogues, making up very pleasing entertainments. On Sunday, two sacred concerts were given to crowded audiences, that in the afternoon being presided over by Mr. Smith, of Chatham House, and at 7 45 by Mr. J. R. Seanor, of Churchfield House. The youthful troupe fully maintained their former character, and did time and space permit, it would be an agreeable task to refer specially to some of the clever efforts of the members. We heartily wish them constant success, under the able guidance of Mr. Drake and his nephew.

Wesleyan Foreign Missions.—The missonary anniversary has been held at Rothwell this week, and has resulted successfully, the financial receipts being in advance of last year. Sermons were preached on Sunday by the Rev. Thos. Rathmell and Mr. T. Stephenson, and collection made during the services. On Tuesday evening, the public meeting took place, Dr. Nowell presiding, and addresses delivered by the Revs. Thos. Rathmell, S. Pitt and Henry Haigh. Mr. Haigh's address on his experiences in South India was particularly interesting, depicting in a clear and attractive manner the joys and sorrows, the difficulties and triumphs of mission work. The Rev. S. Pitt read the various statistics of the Society's report, and Mr. S. Seanor gave the result of local efforts on behalf of missions. Votes of thanks were cordially presented to Dr. Nowell, by Mr. Batty and Mr. J. R. Seanor; and to Mrs. J. W. Gibson and the Committee, by Mr. Morton and Mr. Jas. Hargreaves.

Our Former Vicar.—Most of our townsmen will be fully aware of the presence of the Rev. Mr. Heberden and his lady in the neighbourhood, and many have enjoyed a friendly chat with him during the week. It will be interesting to learn that several friends have resolved that the visit shall be commemorated, and this evening they will present Mr. and Mrs. Heberden with a token of their esteem, in the shape of two church services and hymns in the highest class of binding, and in cases to match.

Attempted Suicide.—On Friday last, October 2nd, William Smith, a cloth manufacturer from Morley, attempted to take away his life by poison. At about 1 30 a.m. on the day mentioned, a young man named William Britton, found the man in a helpless condition laid on his back in a ditch, behind the hedge adjoining the canal bank at Woodlesford; he immediately raised the man's head and discovered two bottles, one of which was empty, but had evidently contained brandy, the other (a smaller one), had "poison" printed in red letters upon the label; this bottle he handed to a man who was travelling along the canal towing path, and had come over to see what was the matter. The police officer and doctor were sent for and the man conveyed to a house on Swillington Bridge. P. C. Phillips and Dr. Purdy speedily arrived and made an examination, when they found in the man's pocket two pocket books and several letters, one of which was addressed to Mrs Smith and contained a £5 bank note and P.O.O. value £3 10s. 0d, with a short letter expressing his sorrow at having to end his life in such an objectionable way; besides these a pocket knife was found smeared with blood, £3 11s. 2d in cash, some keys, pencils, &c. The man had taken a dose of opium, and four cuts were found upon his wrist. When the poor fellow had recovered and declared by the doctor to be out of danger, he was charged with attempting to commit suicide, and apprehended by P. C. Phillips who forthwith hired a cab and conveyed the prisoner to Wakefield gaol. Smith was brought up at the West Riding Police Court on Saturday last before Mr. Marriott, and was discharged on paying costs. He was met by two of his sons at the Court House, who immediately left with their father in a cab.

Stourton St. Andrew's Harvest Festival.—The continuation from Thursday evening of the Stourton St. Andrew's Harvest festival was held on Sunday last. In the morning the Rev. W. J. Jungbluth preached an excellent harvest sermon, when the church was well attended. In the afternoon the Rev. V. Lichfield conducted a children's service and in the evening the Rev. C. Briggs preached, every available seat in the church being occupied. The singing at each service was splendid and much praise is due to the organist and choir master (Mr. Braithwaite) for the able manner in which it had been prepared. The rendering of the 'Hallelujah Chorus' was beyond all expectation. Also the church was exceedingly well decorated, and the willing hands who have so kindly helped to arrange the various bouquets, banners, &c., were very successful in their work. On Monday the poor and sick of the parish each received a share of the decorations, &c. Offertories were received at the close of each service which proved satisfactory.

Stourton Wesleyan Mutual Improvement Class—Lecture.—The 2nd Session in connection with this class was opened on Saturday evening last, when Mr. Walter Hargreaves delivered a lecture on "The Channel Tunnel." Before the lecture however, a sewing meeting tea was held to which a good number assembled. Mr. Hargreaves brought some very interesting and also instructive items on his subject, and the audience (which was very large), were exceedingly pleased with the way in which Mr. Hargreaves dealt with his subject. After the lecture, questions were asked by a number of the audience which were kindly answered by the lecturer. Mr. Cliff (Stourton) the President of the class, occupied the chair. A satisfactory collection was made at the close.

Cookery Lecture.—The course of lessons in Cookery is speedily drawing to a close. Last Monday the fifth lesson in both classes were given by Miss Theed. The "superior cookery" included four dishes 'Puff Pastry,' 'Shrimp Patties,' 'Crême de Volaille and 'London Pudding.' A similar number of dishes were prepared at the "plain cookery" lesson as follows, 'Baked Stuffed Fish,' 'Potato Pie,' 'Macaroni and Cheese' and 'Chop for an invalid.' The evening audience was larger than at any previous lecture.

Oulton Wesleyan Chapel.—On Sunday last, the first harvest thanksgiving services were held in this chapel, the preachers being Mr. J. Blackburn in the morning, and the Rev. A. B. Gardiner in the evening. The chapel was beautifully decorated with the usual materials, flowers, fruit and corn, but with unusual taste and artistic effect, some very novel and charming designs being used by the painstaking friends of this place of worship. Hymns appropriate to the occasion were sung. Collections were made after each service, and the amount raised will be used to cover a portion of the expense of cleaning and repainting the school.

Election News.—The Conservative party at Stourton, not to be behind the times, have already taken steps to further the candidature of Colonel Charlesworth, and a public meeting for that purpose will be held shortly.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

Facts and Rumours.

The Harvest Festival was held at Christ Church, Lofthouse, on Tuesday evening last, and though the weather was wet and stormy, and night very dark, yet the Church was comfortably filled, with an attentive, thoughtful, and no doubt grateful congregation, who joined heartily in the service of praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God, for his bounty in once more giving a good harvest. The church was neatly and beautifully decorated with Corn, Fruit and Flowers which had been given in abundance by the poor as well as rich parishioners. Mrs. Crawford took an active part in the arrangement of the decorations, and was ably assisted, by Mrs. and Miss Marshall, Mrs. Hargreaves, Mrs. Pickersgill, Mrs. Moorhouse, Miss Roodhouse, Miss Tate, Miss Hill, and the following Sunday School teachers, Misses Newton, Lee, Archer, Whitehead, E. Fisher, A. Fisher, Cooper, Gledhill and Lambert; Mr. Webster, Mr. John Dobson, Mr. Squire Dobson, Mr. Herbert Dobson and Mr Seth Ward. The Anthem—"Fear not, O' Land," by Goss, was very ably rendered by the Choir, while the sweet, pure, and various tones of the organ, were brought out under the able manipulation of Mr. B. Marshal. The sermon was preached by the vicar, Rev. J. R. Crawford, and was an earnest, powerful, and effective discourse on the harvest time. He expressed his pleasure at seeing so many willing hands, and in many cases, thoughtful hearts, labouring together to beautify their House of God once a year for the Harvest Festival. He dwelt very touchingly on the harvest at the end of the world, when the angels will be the reapers, and will gather all in, (none being left out by mistake), and will first separate the tares from the good wheat, when none will be taken in by mistake, as the angels will recognize the tares from the good seed, as well as the best farmer in Lofthouse can tell bad from good wheat. The wheat will then be put into God's garner, while the tares will be destroyed. He then affectionately advised his hearers to think seriously over the question, and endeavour to live godly, righteous, and sober lives, so that at the harvest they may be gathered in by the angels as good wheat. The collection was on behalf of the Church National Day School.

The chapel anniversary was celebrated by the Carlton Wesleyans on Sunday and Monday last. The pulpit was occupied on Sunday afternoon and evening by the Rev. Thos. Rathmell, of Wakefield, who delivered two powerful sermons on "The scattered Sheep" and "The Traitor" respectively. The congregations at both the services were very good. On Monday a nice company of friends partook of an excellent tea, after which a public meeting was held. The chair was occupied by Mr. John Keighley, and interesting addresses were given by the Revs. A. B. Gardiner and S. Pitt, and Mr. S. Seanor. Sankey's hymns were used. The total amount netted, including the profits arising out of tea, is about £6. 10s.

Mr. W. Nurse, of Wakefield, preached twice last Sunday in the Ouzlewell Green Wesleyan Chapel, when a new harmonium, which has recently been purchased was "opened," that term implying, I suppose, that it was used for assisting the public service for the first time.

The Lofthouse Ministrel Troupe gave an entertainment in the Robin Hood Board School on Saturday evening last. The programme included a Sketch, Recitations, Songs, Solos, Dances &c., which were productions of Messrs Wilson, Jarrett, Green, Hartley, A. Scholey, G. Scholey, and J. Cooper.

The Special Religious Mission at the Robin Hood Free Church, has been continued throughout the whole of this week. Last Sunday afternoon a Service of Song entitled "The Prodigal Son" was performed, Mr. Taylor, the Evangelist giving the "Readings," while the choir carefully rendered the musical part, Miss A. Webster and Mrs. Mesham singing the solos. This service as well as all the ordinary meetings was well attended. Mr. Taylor is an earnest worker, holding as many as three or four meetings each day; his addresses are aptly suited to the times and are very attractive.

It is rumoured that the Lofthouse Ministrels are to give an entertainment, and the Football Club the proceeds of a match, to assist Mrs. Wright, the widow of the poor fellow who was burned to death at Whitsuntide.

There is a good lot of sickness in Carlton just now, and I am told that no fewer than seventeen cases of enteric fever have occurred. I am not well acquainted as to the exact details, therefore cannot write very precisely on the subject. Some peopel find the cause of this unfortunate outbreak in the state of the sewers, while others blame the scanty and unsatisfactory supply of water. I should think that both these agents are in part the cause of the disease. Certainly the drainage system is in every way bad, if there is a system at all, and there is scarcely any water either for cleansing or drinking purposes.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 17, Farringdon road, London, E. C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON

Occasional Notes.

Preparations are being made to celebrate the Dedication Festival at Woodlesford Church, on lines similar to last year's very successful proceedings. We are to have a Parish Tea followed by a Musical and Dramatic entertainment, as well as special services in the church. The event is sure to be popular and well attended, and it is satisfactory to know that better accomodation will be provided for the audience this time than was the case last year.

Our local Conservative Association is awaking to renewed life and vigour. A social tea and public meeting is to be held next week under its auspices and with the assistance of the "knights and dames of the Oulton Habitation of the Primrose League." Mr. Calverley is to preside, and addresses are announced from the Conservative candidate, Colonel Charlesworth, and others.

Many people here would deeply regret to hear of the death of the Rev. H. M. Sims, vicar of St. Cuthbert's, Hunslet. His was a familiar figure in the village, and he frequently occupied the pulpit in Woodlesford Church. A lively interest has been taken in the success of his work at Hunslet, where he has carved out a parish, built a beautiful little church, and gathered together a large congregation of worshippers mainly from the industrial classes of the most popular quarter of the town, chiefly by his own efforts. The reverend gentleman was the eldest son of the Rev. H M. Sims, of Hinderwell Rectory, near Saltburn. He was thirty-two years of age, and leaves a widow and two children. The deepest sympathy is felt for Mrs. Sims in her irreparable loss.

Respecting a paragraph which appeared in this column a short time ago on sanitary matters in Woodlesford; we are requested by the owner, to state that as far as the vicar's house is concerned the drains were made perfect by the Sanitary Authority before Mr. Irvin took possession, and that any bad smells which may exist about the house must arise from other causes.

TOWN TALK.

I was unable to have a word last week anent the lecture on 'Practical Politics,' so take the opportunity now to make a note or two. Councillor Gordon is a clever speaker, and his address, full as it was of hard hits and pat sentences, was a very interesting one. His remarks, however, about Wm. Ewart Gladstone's attitude in Hawarden Church, 'turning up the whites of his eyes, and acting in so saintly a manner, and yet prepared whenever the country demands it, to pull down his own Church Establishment,' was unnecessary, unchurchmanlike, and extremely unwise. By that sentence he made Mr. Gladstone into a hypocrite. Why do they allow a hypocrite to continue Sunday after Sunday reading the word of God, in the National Church? Further, I should like to enquire if it is not the duty of every statesman to place his personal feelings and prejudices aside when 'the country demands it.' Mr. Gladstone is a true Churchman, and he loves the Church, but when the country demands that it should be disestablished, he is in duty bound to comply with the demand. Mr. John Turner, in seconding the motion of thanks, made an excellent start, and it would have been a neat little 'talk' if he had not 'stuck fast.' Never mind, it was a very fair joke.

There is a sweet little piece of composition in the last week's Rothwell Times, from the pen of 'Churchsider,' which I cannot but notice. A fortnight ago, I wrote about the church bells, I said I was a lover of music, and considered the Church bells musical, and delighted to hear them ring. 'Churchsider' in reply bestows upon me the following not very complimentary adjectives, 'prying,' 'impudent,' 'bombastic.' I shall not attempt to reply to his letter; it contains nothing needing a reply. Every sensible reader of 'Town Talk' will perceive that the letter is the production of a man, who either by the noise produced by the ringing of 'those confounded bells,' or some other cause, has been put considerably 'out of tune.' There is one very good way of getting away from the 'noise' produced by the bells; he may change his place of abode, and I would recommend him to make his home for the rest of his days in some 'cottage near a wood,' where no village bells will disturb the unbroken quiet of his life.

The Rothwell drapers have come to a very wise decision lately. They have for years been labouring under a great burden, inasmuch as they have never had a moment of spare time in which to recruit their tired bodies and depressed spirits. They have sighed and longed for the pleasure of a half day in the fields and lanes, and have sighed and longed in vain. They have been shut up to business from 7.30 a.m. to 8 p.m., during five days of the week, with an additional hour and a half on Saturdays. They appear now to have remembered that 'God helps those who help themselves,' and have agreed to close their shops one half-day each week, after Christmas. The grocers ought to follow suit; they work hard and long enough surely, and can very well do with the same relief from duty. They must let jealousy and envy of each other, have no place in the matter, or they may come to an unsatisfactory end.

The Harvest Festival at Rothwell Church on Sunday next, will bring to a close the Harvest Festival season. It is surprising how these celebrations have increased in number during the last few years, but in spite of the many that have preceded it, that at the Rothwell Church will hold its own old place as the 'cream of the cream.' It is always a high day, this Rothwell Festival, and I hope we may have fine weather.

I caught a glimpse of the Rev. Mr. Heberden as he walked down Commercial Street on Wednesday. I was very pleased to see him looking so well, and I hope to have the pleasure of hearing his voice in the evening service on Sunday next.

DISESTABLISHMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

As far as I am concerned the above controversy ceases after this letter, unless entirely new issues are raised. I have written four letters, and have been asked to repeat myself each time, until it has become a mere game of verbal battledore and shuttlecock, and reminds me of the old story of 'Scissors.' But even apart from any need for constant repetition, the letters of my opponents call for no further refutation. The lecturer himself, after a long letter which leaves my position absolutely untouched, concludes by saying that all my statements could be satisfactorily met, only he has no time to deal with them. Let me, however, rehearse briefly the chief points of the controversy between my opponents and myself:—

They—'The Church is State paid.'—No proofs adduced; but irrelevant exceptions twisted to serve as the rule. I—'The Church is not State paid.'—Half-a dozen eminent authorities quoted. They—'A State Church is anti-scriptural.'—One text quoted. I—A State Church is Scriptural and historical and well-nigh universal.'—Texts quoted and proofs given. But on this point I went further, adding that even if the principle of a State supported Church be anti-scriptural it nevertheless has been virtually adopted abroad as a true principle, by those Nonconformists who condemn it at home. To my proofs of this a quibble was raised, about 'Tweedle-dum and Tweedle-dee,' or Mr Noble and Mr. Nott. Then I reminded them that Nonconformists received State aid—Regium Donum of Charles given as an instance. To this Mr. Andrew in his letter, asks me to requote my proof; but I do not play at 'Scissors,' though I am ready to correct myself when I do make a mistake.

Now, Sir, let me ask what benefit, even viewed from the side of £ s. d., would be gained by Disendowment. 1. What would tithe payers gain? I answer that they would pay the old tithes in the shape of extra rent. A farm or a house let, say at £40 rent, but with £4 tithe, would after disendowment pay £44 rent to the landlord, or he would know the reason why. 2. What would the Individual Parishioner gain? If the Church monies were divided to-morrow, on equitable terms, and equally distributed, he would perhaps pocket a shilling or so; and when that was spent he might be inclined, like the Irishman, to exclaim, 'Bedad, and let us divide it again.' I say 'if this were done on equitable terms,' because Mr. Gladstone, in his last manifesto, suggests that if the Church were disendowed, it should be 'with a large observance of the principles of equity and liberality,' and what this would mean he has before informed us, in a speech upon May 16th, 1873, when he said 'the nation would have to give the Church something like £90,000,000 sterling: a staggering arrangement to make in supplying the young lady with a fortune.' Now Mr. Andrew and Mr. Mitchell both assure us that the Liberationists are prepared to deal with us on this principle of justice and equity. Let us, however, hear what the Liberationists themselves declare their arrangements really are as given in 'The Radical Programme,' a book procurable by any wishing for it. From it we find that they intend to take the Irish Church Act not as a pattern, but as a warning. Any such 'large observance of the principles of equity' as was then acted upon, is not again to be adopted. Indeed, we are told in the book that 'the Church that was built yesterday by the pious munificence of a man still alive, is in law as much a piece of national property as St. Paul's Cathedral or the Tower; and Parliament is not bound to pay any respect whatever to the wishes or intentions of the founder, whose voluntary generosity has placed his hopes and designs at the mercy of the State, and although they would prevent 'such a jar upon right feeling,' yet they are aiming primarily, not at the bare Establishment, not at an empty purse, but at the endowments, and these they intend to take. But are we English folk going to stand idly by, and even applaud them when at this work of theirs? Mr. Andrew quotes Lord Coleridge, but unintentionally misapplies the quotation. As Lord Coleridge states, endowments are given to the Church 'subject to State control.' So are all legacies, as any executor would discover, who sought to alienate them. But there is no difference, in principle, between such private endowments, as for instance those of Llandaff, (given about the end of the 7th century, in the words—'Information is here given that Cynfelyn hath granted to God, and Bishop Grecielis, and all his successors in the Church of Llandaff, for ever, three modii of land, etc., etc. Whoever will keep it, may God keep him! Whoever will separate it from the Church of Llandaff, may he be accursed!') There is really, I repeat, no difference between such early endowments and the last sovereign given for Church purposes yesterday, except as to time. It is true, as Professor Freeman has remarked, that the State can do anything, and that 'an Act of Parliament may be unjust, but it cannot be unlawful; for instance, that the most unjust bill of attainder passed by a Tudor Parliament, though it was a crime in every member who voted for it, was a perfect justification for the executioner acting ministerially;' and so, too, allow that the State can without any observance of equity, take away the fabrics, lands and endowments of the Church or of Nonconformists to-morrow, but it would be a crime in every voter who voted for the members of Parliament who supported such an Act.

But finally, what would the nation lose by Disestablishment? In many a country parish the people would lose their ancient House of God, and with it the responsible presence of a Christian gentleman, who is, at present, there to visit the sick; to administer comfort to the distressed; to counsel the wayward; to baptize, marry, and bury those whom he looks upon as his own flock; to teach religion and morality, and set an example of courteous manners to all; to help the needy with kindly sympathy, and often with tangible aid taken from his own half-empty purse; and (what is not the least feature in the case) to speak to all without fear or favour the whole truth in love, knowing he has no Deacons to starve him out, as is sometimes done (see Nonconformists' speeches) unless he utters their shibboleths or is blind to their faults. This would the nation lose. Electors, be not led away by false promises, unless like your ancestors, who helped to overthrow the monasteries, you would wake up to find yourselves deceived. Then it was said that 'the people should never need to pay subsidies again, and that the overplus (of the plunder) would maintain a standing army of 40,000 men for a perpetual defence of the kingdom.' What was the result? The people have paid subsidies and supported an army ever since. God's part, religion, has been preserved; man's part, national enrichment, has been lost. Mr. Editor, I do not believe that in the face of the justice of her claims, the honesty of her work and the extent of the charities—I do not believe sober-minded Englishmen, be they Churchmen or Nonconformists, can convince their innermost consciences of the equity of voting for Disestablishment and its consequences, simply to please a party. Atheists, of course, do flock round the Church, under the banner of Liberationists, like vultures round a carcase; but then they pretend not to fear God, and have considerable regard for 'grab.'

For your continued courtesy, many thanks,

Yours etc.,

J. R. CRAWFORD.

CHURCH BELLS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Will you kindly allow me space in your columns for a few brief remarks on a paragraph in your last week's issue under "Town Talk" in which "Gossip" is pleased to criticise a letter of mine published in your journal of the previous week, of which he says "I feel inclined to exclaim, what nonsense! but I refrain." After this, one might ask, would it not be wiser for "Gossip" to refrain from twitting anyone with writing nonsense until he has been under the Schoolmaster again for lessons in composition? In this wonderful paragraph of "Gossip's," he has unfortunately laid himself open in almost every sentence to a lashing, but it is not congenial to "Peace" to be whipped or to whip, only so far as is needful for wholesome correction. I only intend at present to inflict a few stripes, after which I trust we shall find "Gossip," if a sadder yet a wiser man. He says that I do not like music. I might have said some weeks since, when he was with high authority and unseemly threatening, chastising the band men for Sunday practicing; "'Gossip' does not like music." I dare say I like music as well as our friend, but I confess I have no liking for loud noises from any musical instruments, be they drums, trumpets, or bells on Sunday, simply because such noises are out of harmony with the day of rest. On the winding up of "Gossip's" (smart?) critique, I would just say, he becomes quite too sentimental, the last five or six lines might grace a novel, but they lack the practical suitable for a newspaper paragraph. Allow me, Mr. Editor, in conclusion, to suggest to our friend "Gossip," that in your useful paper next week he gives us some sound argument in defence of the present custom of working the church bells on Sunday mornings for an hour long at their highest pitch and then in the service after, reading the fourth commandment and repeating the humble and solemn prayer following, which two actions I hold to be wholly inconsistent with each other.

I am, dear Sir,

Yours respectfully,

PEACE.

"OUR MOTHER CHURCH."

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

In reading over the report of the lecture on "Our Mother Church" in last week's Rothwell Times, I find several inaccuracies, and as I am interested I ask you to allow me to point them out. The fourth paragraph, second column and fifth page, is as follows: "Mr. Mitchell also asked a question about an Act of Parliament, but said he could not give the words. He had evidenly heard there was such an Act, but was not acquainted with its contents. The lecturer said it was probably the Act referred to by Mr. Marshall." The circumstances were as follows:—Mr. B. Marshall had asked a question about an Act of Parliament, and the lecturer had replied giving his authority for statement that no such Act existed. I then rose and said "Then what do you make of the Act 2nd and 3rd, Edward vi, c. i.?" The lecturer then said "can you give me the words of the Act?" I said "for reasons you have before given I cannot give you the words of the Act." The reasons were the great length of my extract—about 2 pages closely printed matter. The lecturer then asked "what is the Act?" I replied "It is the act referred to by Mr. Marshall." He then said "I have given my authority for saying that the Act is not in existence." A few sentences further on, your report says Mr. Mitchell asked "Has there been no grant of money since 1824?" which was answered in the negative. I did not ask anything of the kind. My question was "Do I understand you correctly to say there has been no grant of money since 1824?" The lecturer said "Yes." I then said "Then what do you make of the remission of duties on bricks, lime and glass up to 1843?" The lecturer said "I do not understand your question." I repeated it and some gentleman said "Mr. Mitchell means building materials used in erection of churches." I said "Yes," and the lecturer said "I do not know anything about it."

I am, Sir,

Yours truly,

Oct. 5th, 1885. W. MITCHELL.

[A Liberal.—At the last moment we regret to find your letter is too long to get in this week. It stands ready for next issue. The pressure on our space just now is enormous.—Ed.]

Holloway's Pills.—Weakening weather.—The sultry summer days strain the nerves of the feeble and decrepit, and disease may eventuate unless some restorative, such as these purifying Pills, be found to correct the disordering tendency. Holloway's medicine gives potency to the nervous system, which is the source of all vital movements, and presides over every action which maintains the growth and well-being of the body. No one can over-estimate the necessity of keeping the nerves well strung, or the ease with which these Pills accomplish that end. They are the most unfailing antidotes to indigestion, irregular circulation, palpitation, sick headache, and costiveness, and have therefore attained the largest sale and highest reputation.

KAY'S COMPOUND.—Asthma and Bronchitis are immediately relieved by it. Kay Bros. Stockport.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere

Just you try Kaye's Lavaline,

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally "up to all the wrinkles." The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

☞ DO READ THIS!

No person need despair of a speedy restoration to health and strength if he or she will carefully peruse the following, and learn that the great

or,

DR. BELL'S

is the safest, grandest, and most certain discovery ever known for the cure of all bodily ailments arising from indiscretion and other causes. To those afflicted with Nervousness, Nervous Debility, Loss of Physical power, Weakness of Body and Mind, &c., this invention presents a means of cure of so unfailing a character that the greatest sufferers from any of the above distressing complaints may, with confidence, rely upon being quickly restored to a sound state of health and strength. In fact, the many marvellous cures performed by the "Self-Restorer" (UNDENIABLE PROOF OF WHICH CAN BE GIVEN) at once places these extraordinary Instruments far beyond anything of the kind hitherto offered to the public. In order to prove that these Belts are all they claim to be, it would be as well to mention the following circumstance:—

"In the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division) an Injunction was granted on January 24th, 1884, restraining certain unprincipled persons from selling any colourable imitations of the "Self-Restorer" Belt, the Jury giving the proprietor a verdict with costs and damages for such infringement." The Belt was also explained, and its Electrical powers fully tested in open Court, both before Mr. Justice Hawkins and the Jury, upon the same occasion.

Can any other manufacturer of Electric Belts produce evidence of SO SEVERE A TEST? Surely after such proof as this, the most sceptical will believe that it really possesses the great restorative powers ascribed to it.

It may be as well to mention that the action of the "Self-Restorer" is gentle, but exceedingly effective. The mild, but beneficial, current generated by its use, braces the system, and by its benign influence gradually builds up the frame until the mind begins to get brighter, the natural functions become stronger, the elastic spirits of youth once more apparent, and so the progress towards recovery steadily goes on until the patient ultimately realises the fact that he is once more young. In cases of weakness, arising from any of the before mentioned causes, these Belts are at once the most simple and at the same time the most certain remedy ever invented or discovered. They are entirely self-acting and NO ACIDS being required, can be worn at any time without any wetting process or inconvenience to the patient, the salt contained in the insensible perspiration being sufficient to keep it in action.

The cures performed are not of a fleeting character, but permanent, providing the instructions sent with each instrument are carefully adhered to. It speedily removes that most miserable feeling, "lowness of spirits," so often experienced; and after being worn a short time enables a man to look at the future in a more hopeful light, as the certainty of a rapid cure relieves the mind of a great burden.

How many persons who, by living too generously, have become prematurely old, and consequently have these wretched morbid feelings? They have an idea that nature is decaying, and the pleasures of life have departed. In nine cases out of ten this is far from being the fact. Nature has not decayed; it is simply lying dormant, and needs but a little assistance to once more assert its presence. "The creaking gate requires oil, or it will continue to creak." So it is with the human frame. Assist it where weak, put it in a position to recover itself, and you will find that after all life has its pleasures and you the restored inclination to partake of them.

The beneficial action of these truly life giving Belts upon the human frame has been proved so conclusively, by thousands of unsolicited testimonials, that no shadow of doubt remains as to their extraordinary efficacy. They can be worn by either sex with the greatest ease and comfort, without fear of discovery, and by a delicate arrangement can be adjusted to act directly upon the weakened parts, so that immediately upon contact with the body, an electric current is at once produced of a mild, but withal of so efficacious a character, that an almost instantaneous improvement becomes noticeable. The heavy hanging feeling wears off, the eye becomes brighter, the brain clearer, until at last the patient feels in his own mind that he is once more in the possession of the greatest blessing upon earth, viz., HEALTH, STRENGTH, ENERGY, and MANLY VIGOUR.

In cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Paralysis, &c., there is no cure in the world to be compared to these Belts. Nature requires assistance in all these complaints, and that assistance to be thoroughly effective, must be obtained from nature herself—thus, by calling into operation Electricity, a natural ally, congenial to all constitutions is obtained, and the result is in almost every case permanent cures are effected. Again, in cases of Consumption these Belts have been the SOLE MEANS of restoring thousands of both sexes to a healthy and vigorous existence when that fell disease "Consumption" had in the opinion of many eminent medical men, marked them as its victims. These are facts which can be proved to be absolutely true.

To persons desirous of further information, instructions will be given away, in 130 pp. pamphlet, showing sufferers how they may be restored to Health, Strength, and Manly Vigour, without the Aid of Medicine, or will be sent, post free, together with all particulars as to regimen, diet, &c. Address—W. WRIGHT, Esq., Secretary, Volta House, 175, Wardour street, Oxford-street, London, W.

THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS MAY BE SEEN AT THE ESTABLISHMENT.

The Prices of Dr. Bell's Medico-Magnetic or Volta Belts are Important Notice.

Having been asked upon many occasions how it is that our Belts are higher priced than those now being advertised by new firms (with whom we have no connection whatever) we beg to call attention to the following:

This appliance is POSITIVELY WHAT IT PROFESSES TO BE—an "ELECTRIC BELT," which may be proved before purchasing by the Galvanometer, &c. It was explained and fully tested before Mr. Justice Hawkins and a Jury in the Court of Queen's Bench, January 24th, 1884. Moreover, it ENTIRELY DIFFERS from anything of the kind advertised.

A perusal of which will at once show the most dubious that our Belts are, without doubt, infinitely superior to anything of a like character extant, and are as beneficial to exhausted nature as represented. Their having stood the test for 30 years, is a still further guarantee of their genuineness.

ROTHWELL HARVEST FESTIVAL.

PARISH CHURCH.

The annual harvest thanksgiving at our grand old church has this year been celebrated with special interest, on account of the unusual attractions afforded by the presence of the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Ripon, and the highly respected former vicar, the Rev. Geo. Heberden, M.A.

Some time before half-past ten, every ordinary seat in the church was occupied, and many extra seats had to be placed in the aisles in order to accommodate the large number of persons wishful to hear the Bishop. The time of waiting was occupied by many in surveying the harvest decorations usual on such festivals, and it was observable by every one that a marked change had been adopted to the designs of previous years. Partly from choice, and partly from necessity, there were fewer flowers than usual, while the quantity of grain was extraordinarily large. The first item to attract attention was the festooning of the entire nave by a beautifully woven oaten fringe, some 110 yards of oat ears having been twined into this tasteful decoration, (a most arduous labour of love) and looped up at the apex of each arch, and across the chancel. Corn of various descriptions was also largely used in the decoration of the communion, set off by a table full of charming flowers and choice fruit, a number of greenhouse plants occupying positions at either side, kindly lent by Mr. Fielding. On either side of the splendid east window were large wreaths of corn. The pulpit had also received considerable attention, and was pretty nearly covered with the various products of garden and field, a cross of beautiful white flowers being specially prominent in front. The reading desk was very tastefully decorated with fruit, flowers and moss; round the base, there was the motto worked in scarlet mountain-ash berries on green moss "The earth is the Lord's." Looking down the centre aisle towards the font, we could not help noticing the superiority of the pew head decorations; they were abundant, pretty, and uncommon. The font is always very tasty, and this year considerable skill had been exercised in its adornments; the string of white fancy dahlias round the rim of the basin was specially artistic in its composition and was greatly admired. At the same end of the church, on the top of the choir vestry, was placed a well made miniature stack reminding one of the great number of goodly stacks of a thousand times larger dimensions, which adorn the farms at this time of the year, and for which services of praise were being held all over the land.

The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Ripon preached in the morning to a crowded congregation, who listened for forty-five minutes with breathless attention to the well chosen and eloquent words of the preacher. The text was taken from John xii, 24,—"Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit." After pointing out the way in which the Saviour used the things in nature to illustrate his great and glorious gospel, he went on to enforce a lesson from the little corn of wheat. The leading idea contained in the text was that in order to bring forth the harvest the corn had to die, and from this the Bishop cited in beautiful and inspiring language the many departments of life in which the law of "no pains, no gains" has sway. Beginning with the physical, he passed on to the commercial, intellectual and religious lives of men, shewing that success follows suffering, hardship and toil. The lives of such men as Columbus, Howard, and the late lamented Lord Shaftesbury, were referred to, to illustrate the idea, and when the stream of captivating oratory ceased to flow from the Bishop's lips, everyone must have felt an earnest impulse to bear meekly and manfully the toil and labour and anguish of this life in order to gain the brighter, happier and more permanent one in the world to come. The choral portion of the service was specially chosen, and effectively sung, the processional hymn being No. 383 ('We plough the fields') with Nos. 301 and 318. Psalms 111 and 144 were chanted, Ouzely's anthem "How goodly are thy tents" being the one selected for the occasion.

The idea of hearing and seeing the Bishop, and especially so popular and clever a preacher as Dr. Carpenter, was sufficient to draw a large congregation anywhere, but the attraction to the evening service was a sincere wish to exemplify the affection and esteem of the flock for its shepherd, of the people for their former pastor, and as Mr. Heberden passed down the aisle, threading his way amid the crowds of people of all ages, positions, and opinions, there were few whose hearts did not raise a thought-prayer of "God bless him." By six o'clock every seat was filled, and before the service commenced every available position had been occupied, over a hundred more extra seats having been provided than ever before, while many had to be content with a stand. Except the reading of the lessons, the preliminary portion of the service was conducted by the present vicar, Mr. Fawkes, the processional hymn being 382, "Come, ye thankful people, come," and special psalms 104 and 148. The choir rendered the Magnificat and Nunc Dimitis according to Turle's setting in D, the two quartettes being very nice, while the other portion, though difficult, were well sustained. Sydenham's anthem "O give thanks," was the one chosen for this service, and generally reflected credit on the choir, the tenor solo "He watereth all hills" being sung in a particularly sweet and tasteful manner by Mr. Harms, the choirmaster. The 379th hymn having been sung, the Rev. G Heberden ascended the pulpit, and announced his text (Matt. xiii, 30) "Let both grow together until the harvest." Before speaking on this subject, the preacher made reference to the special circumstances under which they were met, and expressed deep gratitude to God that he was permitted once more to speak to them from that pulpit. As he gazed on this crowded congregation, the lapse of the past three years seemed to be bridged over, and he rejoiced in again joining with them in their beautiful church. He was reminded of many whom he had learned to love dearly during the ten years he lived among them. In appearing again before them, he had no new message, but with St. Paul, he besought them to walk by the same rule and mind the same things, and following in the one way Christ had pointed out, so that when the angels came to gather in the wheat from the great field, none of them might be wanting. They had special cause for thankfulness this year, because while sometimes fears had been raised as regards the harvest, this year there was a full average yield both in quantity and quality. He regretted that the husbandman was not the first recipient of the benefits a bountiful harvest realised, but as this subject was not one for the pulpit, he trusted some means would be discovered whereby a better return should be reaped for his labour, so that the sower and the reaper might rejoice together. The object of the collection was warmly commended, as a means of comfort and satisfaction to those who have friends in these institutions; he therefore urged all to give as they were disposed, not grudgingly or of necessity, for "God loveth a cheerful giver." The lessons of the text were then enforced, the strict impartiality of God, and his ability to distinguish the just from the unjust, although man was often mistaken. If their hearts were not changed, they could not become children of the kingdom; the old man must be buried and the new man raised through Christ. He warned those who had not been so changed that there would be no mistake at the great reaping time, and trusted that all their lives would be so ordered, that when the harvest of the world was gathered, every one of his hearers would be found in the heavenly garner. During the collection the hymns 369 and 365 were heartily sung by the large congregation, after which Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" was rendered, the audience being invited to join. The collections amounted to £26 16s. 0d. which will be devoted to the funds of the Leeds Infirmary and the Scarbro' and Bridlington Convalescent Homes.

COLONEL CHARLESWORTH AT OULTON.

Last evening a semi-social meeting was held in the Oulton School-room, under the auspices of "ye knights and dames of ye Primrose league." and was largely attended by members of both sexes. A sumptuous and plentiful tea was enjoyed by the members of the 'Habitation' and other friends, previous to the meeting, the sittings being twice filled.

In the unavoidable absence of Mr. Ed. Calverley (president of the League) through sickness, Mr. J. S. Calverley ably conducted the proceedings, and after expressing his pleasure in meeting his audience, expressed regret at the absence of Mr. Tew and Mr. Sanderson, who were unable to attend. In introducing Colonel Charlesworth as their candidate, he uttered an earnest hope that they might shortly be able to speak of him as the representative of all the electors in the division (cheers).

Colonel Charlesworth, on rising, was warmly received, and in the course of a speech dealing with various items of home and foreign policy, referred more particularly to three points in the Radical Liberal programme—free education, redistribution of land, and the disestablishment and disendowment of the Church. As to free education, he did not see how there could be such. Education must be paid for by somebody, and in some way or other. If it was not paid for in school fees, as it was at present, it must come upon the rates, and if the present system of voluntary schools was done away with, the burden on the rates would be very largely increased. (Hear, hear.) Education being compulsory it was no doubt extremely hard for some very poor people to pay school fees. They had a certain remedy now, but he should like to see some means adopted by which the present pressure should be removed from the very poor people. (Hear, hear) There was among the working classes, however, a great amount of independence, and he believed that many of them would rather pay the school fees than acknowledge that they were obliged to have them paid by others. (Cheers.) Speaking on the proposed disestablishment and disendowment of the Church of England, the Colonel quoted the president of the Church Union, who speaking the other day, said, "With regard to the ambiguous term disestablishment, it cannot be repeated too often that Parliament cannot disestablish what it never established. The Church of England was never established by Parliament. It was in possession of the country before Parliament existed. Neither was it endowed by Parliament. (Cheers.) Its property is almost entirely the result of private benefactions." For his part he would never be a party to the disestablishment and disendowment of the Church of England. (Cheers.) They might depend upon it that if the Church were robbed and plundered, the robbery would not stop there, but the great Nonconformist sects would have to suffer in a somewhat similar way. (Hear, hear.) After favorably comparing the condition of the French peasant proprietor with the English working man, the speaker went on to say that what he should like to see was a revival of the old yeoman class in this country. (Hear, hear.) The more landlords there were the stronger would be the Conservative feeling throughout the country. (Cheers.) But there was one thing with which he would have nothing to do, and that was the taking of land from its present owners by compulsion and selling it without consulting them as to what the price should be. (Hear, hear.) He should like to see some means adopted by which the cost of the transfer of land could be cheapened. He then spoke on the action of the late Liberal government, holding up to contempt their foreign policy in Egypt, in the Transvaal, and on the Continent, while their one-sided free trade was strongly condemned. In conclusion, he said it was most important at this time that the Conservatives should be returned to power. Let them not be led away by the baits that were dangled before their eyes by the Radicals. No matter how tempting they might look, if once they got those baits stuck into them they would find a very sharp barbed hook inside, and struggle as they might they would never be able to get away from them. (Cheers). If they returned him to Parliament he should do all he could to further the interests of that constituency, and would endeavour to the utmost of his power to maintain the ancient constitution of the country, the integrity of the empire, and the honour and welfare of our sovereign and her dominions. (Loud cheers)

A vote of thanks to Colonel Charlesworth was proposed by Mr. Inman, who contrasted the condition of Messrs. Charlesworth's men during the late strike with that of other colliers, and that while Mr. Charlesworth endeavoured to keep his men employed, Mr. Pickard (the Liberal candidate) led the miners into trouble and poverty by means of strikes. Mr. Higgins seconded the vote in a characteristic speech, deeply regretting that for fear of overstepping the regulations of the Corrupt Practices Act, the musical entertainment which was intended to form part of the evening's programme, had had to be dispensed with. The vote was carried most heartily and unanimously. The Colonel in accepting the thanks, expressed his great pleasure in its unanimity, fearing that in few other places, would he receive so unanimous a vote, and he would be most happy to visit them again, and give a fuller exposition of his views on various matters, (temperance and others) before a general meeting of the electors. Mr. Charlesworth shortly afterwards left, in order to catch a train for York.

A lengthy political address was then delivered by Mr. Shuttleworth, Conservative agent, which called forth frequent signs of approval.

Mr. Hoyle, followed, strongly urging the co-operation of all, especially the *she*lectors (as he wittily termed the 'dames' of the league) for the establishment of a Club in Oulton "not to bray wi'" but to "bray in."

The Rev. F. Fawkes next delivered what was without doubt, the speech of the evening, fluency of diction and clearness of thought alike combining to make it a thorough intellectual treat. The main subject was a defence of the Church of England as against disestablishment and disendowment Act, as proposed by Mr. Chamberlain. He held that the popular feeling was against it, and warned the new electors especially, that the poor of the country places would be the greatest sufferers by the proposed measure. He concluded by urging all to vote for Colonel Charlesworth, because as certainly as they supported Mr Pickard, they were voting for the disestablishment of the Church of England.

A vote of thanks for presiding having been presented to Mr. Calverley, through Mr. Shuttleworth and Mr. Boothroyd (secretary of the Association) the meeting concluded.

THE YORKSHIRE COAL TRADE.

AN ADVANCE OF WAGES REFUSED.

A meeting of the Committee of the South Yorkshire Coalowners' Association was held at Sheffield on Wednesday, and a communication was considered from Mr. Benjamin Pickard on behalf of the miners, asking for an advance of fifteen per cent. in wages. It was resolved that an intimation be forwarded to Mr. Pickard to the effect that there was no present indication of such an improvement in the state of trade as would justify the increase asked for, and that no useful purpose would be served by calling together the coalowners to receive a deputation.

Mr. Rhodes, in his letter, writes:—"The committee desire me to state that, in their judgment, no reason whatever exists at the present time which would justify any advance in wages. They therefore consider that no useful object can be gained by calling the coalowners of the district together to meet yourself and a deputation on this subject. The question of the scheme for the regulation of wages is, however, a different matter entirely, and has for some time past been a subject of very anxious consideration. The committee meet again in a few days, when this business will be further considered. I shall then receive instructions thereon. I am desired in the meantime to state that on this point the committee will be very glad indeed if any meetings or negotiations can bring about the establishment of a fair and satisfactory scheme that will avoid disputes and strikes in future."

LOCAL & GENERAL.

SUDDEN DEATH OF A CHILD.—A little girl, aged 2½ years, daughter of James Tiffany, of Graham's yard, Rothwell, died under peculiar circumstances on Sunday night. It seems that on Wednesday the 7th inst., the child was playing in Holmes Square when it accidently fell down a flight of stone steps, and considerably bruised its head, and face. It however did not seem to be seriously injured and on Saturday was running about the street. On Sunday morning the poor child had a very severe fit and did not come round to consciousness again, but died on the evening of the same day.

STOURTON WESLEYAN MUTUAL IMPROVEMENT CLASS.—This class was held on Friday night last, when a good number assembled to hear an essay on "Health" by Mr. Walter Butterfield. The essay was very well rendered, and it proved to be very interesting, and also instructive. Several questions were put to the essayist at the close, which were kindly answered. Mr. Cliffe, the president of the class, occupied the chair.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.—An entertainment was given in the above Hall on Saturday evening last. The principal contributor was Mr. J. A. Longley, of Leeds, who is an excellent elocutionist, and gave several specimens of his powers, grave and gay, with telling effect. His audience did not appear to appreciate his efforts so much as they deserved, but when people get accustomed to the 'comic song' and clog dancing style of entertainment, nothing else seems to go down. The Woodlesford hand-bell ringers were also present, and gave several selections in a careful manner, eliciting loud applause from the rather thin audience.

COOKERY LECTURES.—The last of this very successful series of cookery demonstrations took took place on Monday, when Miss Theed treated her afternoon audience to the manufacture of the following dishes 'Tomato Soup,' 'Kidneys au Vin,' 'Darmstadt Pudding,' 'Short Pastry,' 'Snow Cake. In the evening the hall was more than half full and the programme included the preparation of 'Peas Soup,' 'Boiled and Stuffed Breast of Veal,' 'Batter and Fruit Pudding,' 'Dripping Pastry,' 'Potato Cheese-cakes, all of which commended themselves as toothsome, but inexpensive viands. At the conclusion of lecture, Mr. Tennant (on behalf of Mrs. Tennant, the secretary of the committee) addressed a few words to those present, thanking them for their attendance and interest The committee were highly pleased with the success of their efforts in regard to these cookery lectures, and trusted another series would be carried out by-and-bye. They also thanked Miss Theed for her clear, attractive and valuable lessons. The ladies committee also desired to acknowledge the generosity of the Rothwell Gas Light Company in supplying the gas and oven free of charge. The company then broke up.

" THE appearance upon entering (Providence House 42, North Street, Leeds), gave us an idea of a fair) and of Furniture and Crystal Palace of mirrors."

GIRLS and young people are very apt to give way to distaste for solid food, and to imagine that nature can be agreeably and fully sustained by a light diet of fruit, ices, and sponge cake. I advise every mother to check this propensity to refuse ordinary food at once, by administering doses of Hop Bitters to all the members of her family. The bitters have an appetising and stimulating effect which will remove the feeling of langour, and put an end to the theory that it is quite impossible to partake of such food as bread, beef, mutton, &c. Even the healthiest people sometimes suffer from lack of appetite, while many people seem never to know what it is to have an appetite at all; in either of these cases the Hop Bitters may be taken; in the one case they will create, and in the other restore, the power to assimilate and enjoy food. The Hop Bitters are pure, and prepared from certain well-known vegetable products which act chiefly on the liver, that much abused organ which we are all so apt to forget, until it takes some disagreeable way of reminding us of its existence.—Myra's Journal.

SENSATIONAL CHANCERY SUIT.—Another very interesting case will shortly engage the Court of Chancery. Sir C. S. G. Ward, Bart., cousin to Lord Roseberry, claims by right of descent, the Bixley Hall Estates in Norfolk, said to be worth nearly half-a-million sterling. The court of Chancery has long held possession of the Estates and collected the rents, but the Hall and Park, which is of considerable extent, are practically in the possession of Sir Charles, though nominally held by the Court. The Baronet has locked up the Park gates, turned the tenant out of the Hall and cut down timber in the Park, without meeting with any opposition. Messrs Cox & Co., 41, Southampton Buildings, Holborn, London, publishers of the List of Names of persons entitled to land and property in Chancery, are engaged in collecting information from the Chancery Records and elsewhere; and nothing is wanting to complete the case, but one important document. This document is said to have been placed in a Coffin by the late Earl of Ward, and deposited in the family vault at Bixley. Applicaeation was made to the Home Secretary in the late administration for permission to open the coffin; but owing to the immediate change of Government, the matter dropped for the time. Sir C. S. G. Ward, also claims the title of Earl of Ward, which has lately become vacant.

A REVERIE.

From day to day, from year to year,
The "London bells" I love to hear;
And far from me where "Gossip" dwells,
Ring sweet and clear the village bells.

In youthful days (those golden times),
I revell'd in their silvery chimes;
And happy was the passing hour,
When I 'pull'd a rope' in the old church tow'r.

While more than half my years have fled,
A tuneful London life I've led;
For music sweet all gloom dispels,
Delightful ringing, swinging bells.

And now at morning, noon, or night,
Sweet sounding bells are my delight;
I love it (so t'will ever be),
The art of can-pan-ology.

At evenings close when rest is sweet,
The "Abbey Bells" I love to greet;
O'er "Father Thames" I hear sometimes,
Big Ben's resonant charming chimes.

I've wondered and I've tried to guess,
How music can a man distress;
The music? I don't mean 'by gum,'
That's hammer'd from a senseless drum.

Avaunt! Salvation Army tones,
Which jar my very flesh and bones;
To an ancient village such music (?) sent,
Is neither of use nor ornament.

But gladsome bells throughout the land,
Your joyous peals are simply grand;
Ring on, ring on, where "Gossip" dwells,
Dear old familiar Rothwell Bells.

EPP'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

MY attention was arrested this week by a "head" in the Leeds Mercury "Morley Division.—Selection of a Conservative candidate." The selection was made at a meeting held in the Conservative Working Men's Club, Nelson Street, Dewsbury. There were representatives present from all the townships in the division including Lofthouse-with-Carlton, and East and West Ardsley. On the motion of Mr. Edward T. Ingham, of Mirfield, and Mr. G. Fox, of Staincliffe, it was resolved that Mr. J. J. Dunnington Jefferson, of Thickett Priory, near York, be adopted as the Conservative candidate for the Morley Division, and that the chairman of the association, Mr. J. H. Wheatley, be requested to take all steps necessary towards securing his triumphant return. As the selection of the candidate has been so much delayed, it may be reasonably expected that a visit will be speedily made by Mr. Dunnington Jefferson to our neighbourhood. We have sometime since heard Mr. Milnes Gaskell, speak, it is therefore natural enough, that a chance of hearing something from the other side is earnestly longed for.

THERE are curious rumours afloat to the effect that a certain old man in Lofthouse who has reached the patriarchal age of 80 years is contemplating, if he has not actually perpetrated matrimony. The happy bride, or prospective bride is what is called by the vulgar "an old maid," aged 51. May they "live happily ever after," as the fairy tales always finish.

……

MR. Taylor's Mission at the Robin Hood Free church closed on Saturday when a tea and public meeting were held. The chair was occupied by Mr. Slimming, who delivered a short speech on the recent mission work. Mr. W. Horner followed in a very earnest address appealing to the audience to use every opportunity of doing good and forwarding God's kingdom. The Rev. F Marrs also spoke, especially to the young people, hoping all their efforts would be put forth in good causes. Mr. Mehew made a very eloquent and earnest appeal to the audience to stand steadfast in the faith. He himself had conducted two successful missions in Robin Hood, and was glad to see that his work had not been in vain. The Rev. E. Dutton, late of this circuit, enforced the "grand old Methodist doctrines" in a way which could not be misunderstood. Mr. Taylor speaking of his work during the last fortnight, said he felt grateful to God for the success which attended his efforts, and advised his audience to be Christians, not only in name, but in deed also. The usual votes of thanks brought to a close a most enjoyable meeting.

I AM requested by some of the inhabitants of Carlton to say that when the Rothwell Local Board can find time to look westward they are respectfully invited to pay a little attention to a bit of road on the Carlton Bridge, which at present looks more like the Mill Dam than a public road.

THE Carlton Minstrels gave an entertainment on Saturday last in the Board School. The programme was a varied one including comic and sentimental songs, comic sketch, stump speech, &c. The various items were rendered by Messrs Hobson, Hammill, W. Wilson, Gouldthorpe, and A. Wilson. Mr. J. Ward presided at the piano.

I AM sorry to have to record that the fever has made rapid and alarming strides this week in Carlton. Since my last contribution the number of cases has risen from seventeen to over sixty, while one death, that of a young man aged 16 years, has occurred. In some houses, there are as many as three or four down together. The cases are at the east end of the village, although one or two have occurred at the top. It does not appear to be a very difficult matter to find the cause of the outbreak. How often one finds that in cases of bad sanitary arrangements, nothing short of a very rude awakening is sufficient to make an impression. For years the drains of Carlton have been exceedingly defective, and this, with the scarcity and impure nature of the water is supposed to be the agent in bringing about this serious epidemic. Let me urge every one to unite in the effort to stop the spread of this disease, by keeping everything clean and sweet. Dirt often harbours disease, therefore get rid of the dirt.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

THE public tea and meeting held at Oulton last night under the auspices of the local Conservative Association—popularly styled "T'Blue Tea"—was as successful as the promoters could have expected, or even wished. There was a good attendance at the tea, and a crowded audience at the meeting which followed on. The addresses were fairly interesting, some of them eloquent, notably that of our respected neighbour, the vicar of Rothwell, who roused some enthusiasm by his vigorous defence of the Established Church and his equally vigorous onslaught on Mr. Chamberlain: on the whole the audience was very quiet and undemonstrative, partly on account perhaps of the fact that a large proportion were ladies—presumably "dames of the Primrose League." As one of the speakers observed, the proceedings were partly serious and partly comic, the comic element however was hardly sufficiently appreciated. Very few seemed to see an unconscious pun made by the same speaker, which is worth preserving. While talking of a proposed club, he stated that the word might be said to have two meanings; in Yorkshire phrase it was a "thing to bray wi'" but it was also a "place to bray in."

WE are not quite through the season of Harvest Festivals in our neighbourhood yet. The thanksgiving services are to be held at Swillington Church on Sunday next. There is a peculiar appropriateness about such a service in a church which stands in the midst of fields from which all has been "safely gathered in." The choir there must be growing in efficiency and ambition. They propose to treat their bucolic admirers with a couple of anthems, "How lonely are the messengers" (Mendelsohn) and "Thou visitest the earth."

We are in receipt of a further communication from the owner of the vicar's house at Woodlesford from which it appears that after careful examination, the inspector reports that there is no escape of sewer gas into the rooms, and that the defect in the drain connection is only slight and has been caused by the careless removal and refixing of the gulley.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons the good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and desponding that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain, or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

And a host of others too.

Try Kaye's Lavaline!
You'll say then with the rest
It's the cheapest and the best

TOWN TALK.

DURING the last week or so, although the weather has been sufficiently lively to attract notice, yet comparatively the subject has been neglected. The one engrossing topic has been the sojourn of our late respected vicar amongst us. The polite and agreeable shopkeeper did not salute his customer, as usual, by remarking the weather was cold or wet, or the reverse. Oh, no! it was "Have you seen Mr. Heberden?" This question must have been asked as a business prelude or private salutation, as many times as we have individual inhabitants, if not more. During the fine days of last week the late vicar and vicaress could be seen making calls along the principal streets. Quite a number of respectable householders, their sons and daughters, I heard remark, 'Mr. Heberden called to see us to-day,' or 'Mrs. Heberden called this morning,' with as much pride and satisfaction as if Royalty had honoured them with a visit. To be perfectly candid, I am bound to record Mr. Heberden did not seek me out, as has been reported. Singularly enough, it is said he does not like 'gossips.' I am not in the least offended, and admire his genuine piety none the less. Besides, between the ordinary gossips, and the 'Gossip' of 'Town Talk' our late vicar would draw a broad line, I feel certain. Although lodged at the Hall as the guest of the Squire, and moreover having numerous friends to greet, our late vicar found time to visit the humblest of his old parishioners. Such calls were numerous. Many a widow had the wherewithal to provide a better Sunday dinner, and a warm garment for winter as a result of the visit. Genuine acts of kindness these, bespeaking the thoughtful mind and kindly heart, qualities which endeared him to the poor while yet he resided amongst us.

"Peace" administers what he calls "wholesome correction" to me in his letter last week, and hopes henceforth to find me a sadder and a wiser man. He asks me for sound argument why the bells should be rung, as the custom is, on Sundays. He gives one reason why they should not be rung, I will give one reason why they should. He says the ringing of the bells compels men to break the fourth commandment; I say, the ringing of the church bells is a protest against all Sunday desecration. They are heard for miles round and there is scarcely a corner of our land where some church bells are not heard. Sunday travellers, pleasure seekers, gamblers, drunkards and all sabbath breakers hear the sound of the bells, and it seems like the voice of God protesting against their evil ways, and calling them to attend the holy service in his temple. I don't pretend to reply to his twaddle about composition and lack of pratibabilty, but simply say that it will be another than "Peace" who will instruct me on either point.

The Local Board are about to memorialise the County Authorities to erect a police station at Rothwell. Certainly it will be much better for the police to be able to "house" offenders in a cell at home without having to leave the village entirely unguarded, while they accompany some "erring brother" to Wakefield. If I were one of those who had ever been in the "clutches of the police," or if there was any prospect that I should ever occupy such an uncomfortable position, I should be inclined to open a counter memorial, and have one laid for signature in every "public" in the district. But if a station is built, let us see who can keep out of it longest.

There is a widespread and longstanding notion amongst the ratepayers that the money they pay in the shape of poor rate is not all utilized in feeding the hungry poor. "The folks at Hunslet (whoever 'the folks' means I don't know) get some good tucks out of the rates," I heard one penurious tax-payer say. I thought he was rather severe on the Union officers at the time, but that thought has since been dispelled by an announcement in the Rothwell Times last Friday. During the last three months there has been £20 worth of brandy supplied over and above the quantity used in the corresponding period last year. This is serious, and unless the Guardians put their veto upon such imposition, and "tipple" the lovers of brandy sauce completely out of their service, they will displease the ratepayers generally.

THE lectures at the Mechanics' Institute commence on Monday next, when Mr. Oliver, of Leeds, will lecture on 'Electricity.' I hope there will be a good audience to hear this lecture. Mr. Oliver is a clever electrician, and well merits the attendance of everyone.

How little we hear of the prospective entertainment season. At this time we expect to hear of arrangements being made for concerts of various kinds, but so far there are no whispers in the air. I think the Mechanics' Institute Committee are not making much headway in the proposed Bazaar. Last year there was the Art Exhibition about this time, but I don't think there is any event down for the immediate future. An entertainment of the better class would be successful in about a month's time.

GOSSIP.

COUNCILLOR GORDON'S LECTURE.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

In reading your paper of a fortnight ago, I noticed a report that Mr. Councillor Gordon, of Leeds, had been giving an address on 'Practical Politics,' to an audience partly composed of working men. I also noticed that the chair was occupied by Ed. Calverley, Esq., of Oulton Hall. Now Sir, it seems to me that if by having meetings, addresses, etc., will do the Conservative party any good, they do not hesitate long in getting some of their cleverest men to come. But I find the cleverness of Mr. Gordon has been in criticising the Liberal leaders in all their undertakings while in office during their term of power. Speaking on Mr. Gladstone's paragraph headed 'Disestablishment,' he (Mr. Gordon) pictured that gentleman reading the lessons in Hawarden Church on Sundays, turning up the whites of his eyes, and acting in so saintly a manner.' Now I fail to recognise 'Practical Politics' in any such language as that, but it seems to me that they think they can come and say just what they like to a Rothwell audience about the 'Grand Old Man,' but they find it's a mistake, because it was hooted at as soon as he had finished his sentence. It's not so very long since a very prominent member of the above party talked about 'hashing Mr. Gladstone and his party in a gas oven,' but I wish to inform them that instead of their making progress here, they are getting further in the rear. Mr. Gordon also spoke of poverty and progress, free trade, and many other subjects, and especially on the poor condition of the country generally. Well, we will see how we are standing now; trade is awfully bad they say, and we in England are in a very poor condition through Mr. Gladstone failing to fulfil the promises he made in his electioneering speeches at Midlothian; but I for one disagree with all such statements. If they will go back a hundred years, they will find that everything that was put on a poor man's breakfast table was taxed; for instance, coffee publicly sold had a duty of 4d. per gallon, chocolate and tea 8d., and previous to 1820, about 2,000 Acts of Parliament had been passed, imposing taxes mainly on the necessaries of life. But since then what an alteration; our bread is not taxed, thanks to Cobden, Bright, and other Corn Law reformers; salt, which was heavily taxed 100 years ago, is clear; sugar, though actually freed by Sir Stafford Northcote in 1874, he owes to Mr. Gladstone out of whose surplus this reform was effected; and it's only when we come to tea, coffee or cocoa that we find a contribution exacted for the support of Her Majesty's Government. There's another grand thing we have to be proud of—we can now sit down and read our newspapers, bestowing a benediction on Mr. Gladstone for repealing the paper duty in 1861, and many more reforms that could be named, which are a great boon to the working men of this country. This cry about the country in a worse condition will not bear five minutes' investigation, for there are nearly 100,000 fewer able-bodied paupers in England to-day than there were in 1870, though the population is greater now by six millions. They also complain of everything being too cheap. Food is too cheap, and thank God it is getting cheaper; wool is cheaper, therefore clothes are cheaper. Wood and metals are cheaper, therefore it's easier to build better houses; they think rents are too low, profits of capital are too low; in fact, they think everything is much too low, except wages; they do not do think those are too low, for they have got a Royal Commission to find out how they may screw these things up and stop this plague of abundance. Now I feel confident that if there are any common-sense working men in this town (and I am sure there are) that they won't be gulled to believe that a Tory government will be of any good to them But they are telling us now that we are heavily taxed, and that a lot of alterations are needed for the benefit of the working man. Ah, but what is their meaning? 'Send us to Parliament, and then us first and you last. Did they wish us to have the County Franchise? No, what obstruction they put in its way. Now listen to what Lord R. Churchill said in Edinburgh,—"The assimilation of the Franchise in town and country is uncalled for, premature, inexpedient, unnatural, and therefore highly dangerous. The labourers are uneducated men and of feeble political intelligence." Therefore I would say vote for the men who will serve your interests, and send Mr. Pickard with a bumping majority at the head of the poll.

Yours truly,
A LIBERAL.

BAD ROADS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

As you are ever ready to give publicity, to any neglect of duty by the officials of the township, I wish to point out a much needed improvement in Mill Hill, from the Cross leading down to the beck. Anyone passing this place and caring to take the least notice of the state the hill is in, must be struck by its neglected appearance. It seems to the writer utterly impossible for any horse to get that way at all with a load, for the displaced stones and ruts in the hill are something fearful to behold, and dangerous to foot passengers as well. The inhabitants of the place are crying out bitterly for some improvement, but it is evident the members of the Local Board turn a deaf ear, and I feel sure must go another way, or they would see what a bad state it is in; and again, if it is bad now, what will it be when winter weather sets in? It is fearful to think of. If I wend my way up the Churchfield and past the secretary's house I find things very different and more like a bowling green. Also if I go in other directions, into the aristocratic region of Spibey Row, I find things very different, for the roads are cared for and kept in order, but in Mill Hill no member of that body puts his head, or he could not but be disgusted with the sight presented to him. Trusting my appeal may be noticed by those in authority, and the work of improvement commenced, and the inhabitants in that locality as well as the writer will be glad to see it. Apologising for troubling you,

I remain,
respectfully yours,
A RATEPAYER.

DISESTABLISHMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times

Sir,

The letter of the Rev. J. R. Crawford in your last week's issue is of a piece with his former letter to which I replied a fortnight ago. It contains a good deal that is insulting, and assertions without proofs As I have not had an opportunity of reading all the letters that have appeared in your columns pro and con since my lecture in August, I can only deal with Mr. Crawford's attempt to reply to mine.

In his first letter Mr. Crawford referred to the replies which three statesmen had given to the question about the church being "State-paid." In my lecture I stated what we did mean by this phrase, and what we did not mean On this subject I wish to place before your readers the following quotation from a speech of Mr. W. E. Gladstone, ex-premier, in the House of Commons, March 30th, 1868, on the Irish Church question,—"If I am asked what it is that in endeavouring to put an end to the present Establishment, I renounce for the future, I would again say that that which I renounce for the future, is to attempt to maintain, in association with the State, under the authority of the State, or supported by the income of the State, or by public or national property in any form, a salaried or stipendiary clergy." This declaration fully justifies our position in affirming that church property is national property. No special pleading can successfully disprove its correctness. The highest legal authorities, whose opinion is of any value, have endorsed this view. Mr. Crawford says we affirm that "the Church that was built yesterday by the pious munificence of a man still alive, is in law as much a piece of national property as St. Paul's Cathedral or the Tower; and Parliament is not bound to pay any respect whatever to the wishes and intentions of the founder, whose voluntary generosity has placed his hopes and designs at the mercy of the State." It is true that churches built by the munificence of one or more individuals have become national property but it is not true that Liberationists affirm that "Parliament is not bound to pay any respect to the wishes or intentions of the founder." The "suggestions issued in 1877 by the Liberation Society," do not justify Mr. Crawford's statement. As the late Dean of Alford wisely observed, there is a sense of justice in the English people, and he had no doubt that when the subject of Disestablishment and Disendowment was dealt with, justice would be done to the Episcopalians. Wild and reckless charges of our advocating a policy of robbery and spoiliation are discreditable to those who make them. The great majority of the people have too much sense to believe in the correctness of the statements.

In my letter I challenged Mr. Crawford to give proof of the correctness of his statements respecting what had been done by the missionaries of the London Missionary Society &c. This he has not done in his last letter, and if he has done it in any previous letter I have not seen it. Does he really expect your readers to believe such grave charges on his ipse dixit?

I feel that I may leave your readers to exercise their own judgment on this controversy. In concluding this letter I wish to say, that, State support of religion implies force, and that it is contrary to the Bible to use compulsion for the promotion of religion. "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of the stronghold of sin and satan."

Leeds, Oct. 13th, 1885. JOHN ANDREW.

"MUTHER CHURCH."

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sorr,

It's meself that will be afther beggin' the favor of a wurd in yer honer's paper. That young person 'Sister Church' says 'ivvery two or three days it's Muther Church.' Bedad, she'd be nearer the thruth if she said it was Muther Church every day. Like the thrue woman that she is, our Mother looks afther her children day in and day out. She doesn't belave in sayin' 'Be ye warmed and filled,' and then in sendin' her sufferin' ones empty away. When thrubbles abroad, who helps most to lessen it? Shure it's Mother that's to the fore, both with her prayers, her Word, and her help. It's as plain as the nose on Kit Callaghan's face, or Nelson's monument in dear, dirty Dublin, that 'Sister' was born of a woman who never had any milk of her own; for what child who ever fed at a mother's breast, would talk about any mother's milk as sour? Bad cess to the ill-mannered gurl who spakes afther sich talk. Mother's milk is never sowr; it's the gruel from a hirelin's bottle that's that. But belike 'Sister' thinks it's in good taste to throw durt at another person's mother, just bekase she thinks maybe little enough of her own. Has she ever read of the children who laughed at ould Elisha for his bald head? But maybe the foolish cratur thinks she can distbract the attention of the intelligent readers of yer honer's paper by thryin' to cover thruths anent 'Mother Church' by her own wit. It's her own, I'll be bound; it's not 'mother wit,' and it's poor wit to be blindin' intelligent folk with, by the same token. But she's got no bether. Developement of mind and reformation of manners to her. May she learn, in time, how to trate dacent folk dacently. If insted of blamin' the milk she would draw attention to the water in Carlton, which all the dochters—God prosper and bless them—say is causin' the fever, with its trouble, sickness, and dark death, 'Sister' would be better employed. But maybe she's one of those 'ole women' who are tellin' us 'it's bad colds the people have caught' 'Mother Church' and 'bad colds' indeed: mote belike it's 'murther the church' and 'spare the purses' these folk are afther. They do know betther and should feel kindlier. Maybe 'Sister' will be 'stalled o' readin'' this too. Likely enough, for up till now she's neither thruth, manners, learnin' nor wit, and that's

'PAT,' From a Parson.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. WHITE, Limited, 17, Farringdon road, London, E. C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

☞ DO READ THIS!

NO person need despair of a speedy restoration to health and strength if he or she will carefully peruse the following, and learn that the great

SELF-RESTORER,

OR,

DR. BELL'S

is the safest grandest, and most certain discovery ever known for the cure of all bodily ailments arising from indiscretion and other causes. To those afflicted with Nervousness, Nervous Debility, Loss of Physical power, Weakness of Body and Mind, &c., this invention presents a means of cure of so unfailing a character that the greatest sufferers from any of the above distressing complaints may, with confidence, rely upon being quickly restored to a sound state of health and strength. In fact, the many marvellous cures performed by the "Self-Restorer" (UNDENIABLE PROOF OF WHICH CAN BE GIVEN) at once places these extraordinary Instruments far beyond anything of the kind hitherto offered to the public. In order to prove that these Belts are all they claim to be, it would be as well to mention the following circumstance:—

"In the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division) an Injunction was granted on January 24th 1884, restraining certain unprincipled persons from selling any colourable imitations of the 'Self-Restorer' Belt, the Jury giving the proprietor a verdict with costs and damages for such infringement." The Belt was also explained, and its Electrical powers fully tested in open Court, both before Mr. Justice Hawkins and the Jury, upon the same occasion.

Can any other manufacturer of Electric Belts produce evidence of SO SEVERE A TEST? Surely after such proof as this, the most sceptical will believe that it really possesses the great restorative powers ascribed to it.

It may be as well to mention that the action of the "Self Restorer" is gentle, but exceedingly effective. The mild, but beneficial, current generated by its use, braces the system, and by its benign influence gradually builds up the frame until the mind begins to get brighter, the natural functions become stronger, the elastic spirits of youth once more apparent, and so the progress towards recovery steadily goes on until the patient ultimately realises the fact that he is once more young. In cases of weakness arising from any of the before mentioned causes, these Belts are at once the most simple and at the same time the most certain remedy ever invented or discovered. They are entirely self-acting and NO ACIDS being required, can be worn at any time without any wetting process or inconvenience to the patient, the salt contained in the insensible perspiration being sufficient to keep it in action

The cures performed are not of a fleeting character, but permanent, providing the instructions sent with each instrument are carefully adhered to. It speedily removes that most miserable feeling, "lowness of spirits," so often experienced; and after being worn a short time enables a man to look at the future in a more hopeful light, as the certainty of a rapid cure relieves the mind of a great burden.

How many persons who, by living too generously, have become prematurely old, and consequently have these wretched morbid feelings? They have an idea that nature is decaying, and the pleasures of life have departed. In nine cases out of ten this is far from being the fact. Nature has not decayed; it is simply lying dormant, and needs but a little assistance to once more assert its presence. "The creaking gate requires oil, or it will continue to creak." So it is with the human frame Assist it where weak, put it in a position to recover itself, and you will find that after all life has its pleasures, and you the restored inclination to partake of them.

The beneficial action of these truly life-giving Belts upon the human frame has been proved so conclusively, by thousands of unsolicited testimonials, that no shadow of doubt remains as to their extraordinary efficacy. They can be worn by either sex with the greatest ease and comfort, without fear of discovery, and by a delicate arrangement can be adjusted to act directly upon the weakened parts, so that immediately upon contact with the body, an electric current is at once produced of a mild, but withal of so efficacious a character, that an almost instantaneous improvement becomes noticeable The heavy hanging feeling wears off, the eye becomes brighter, the brain clearer, until at last the patient feels in his own mind that he is once more in the possession of the greatest blessing upon earth, viz., HEALTH, STRENGTH ENERGY, and MANLY VIGOUR.

In cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Paralysis, &c., there is no cure in the world to be compared to these Belts. Nature requires assistance in all these complaints, and that assistance to be thoroughly effective, must be obtained from nature herself—thus by calling into operation Electricity, a natural ally, congenial to all constitutions is obtained, and the result is in almost every case permanent cures are effected. Again, in cases of Consumption these Belts have been the SOLE MEANS of restoring thousands of both sexes to a healthy and vigorous existence when that fell disease "Consumption" had in the opinion of many eminent medical men, marked them as its victims. These are facts which can be proved to be absolutely true.

To persons desirous of further information, instructions will be given away, in 120 pp. pamphlet, showing sufferers how they may be restored to Health, Strength, and Manly Vigour, without the Aid of Medicine, or will be sent, post free, together with all particulars as to regimen, diet, &c. Address—W. WRIGHT, Esq., Secretary, Volta House, 175, Wardour street, Oxford-street, London, W.

THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS MAY BE SEEN AT THE ESTABLISHMENT.

The Prices of Dr. Bell's Medico-Magnetic or Volta Belts are

£2 2s., £3 3s., and £5 5s. each,

Important Notice.

Having been asked upon many occasions how it is that our Belts are higher priced than those now being advertised by new firms (with whom we have no connection whatever) we beg to call attention to the following:

This appliance is POSITIVELY WHAT IT PROFESSES TO BE—an "ELECTRIC BELT," which may be proved before purchasing by the Galvanometer, &c. It was explained and fully tested before Mr. Justice Hawkins and a Jury in the Court of Queen's Bench, January 24th, 1884. Moreover, it ENTIRELY DIFFERS from anything of the kind advertised.

A perusal of which will at once show the most dubious that our Belts are, without doubt, infinitely superior to anything of a like character extant, and are as beneficial to exhausted nature as represented. Their having stood the test for 30 years, is a still further guarantee of their genuineness.

LOCAL BOARD MEETING.

The ordinary meeting of this Board took place on Monday evening, present—Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman), J. Holmes, J. Hargreaves, J. Oliver, H. P. Newsome, J. Dobson, J. Nowell, W. Lawton, and the clerk, collector, and surveyor.

The minutes of last meetings having been read, were confirmed.

WATER.—In accordance with Mr. Lawton's motion last meeting, a list of persons having horses, cows and carriages, was read, and it was found that a large number of these were using town's water for all purposes, although they were only paying for domestic taps. On the motion of the Chairman and Mr. Newsome, it was decided to refer the list to the Waterworks Committee, who shall report on future action in the matter.

In reply to an enquiry addressed to several neighbouring Boards, the Clerk read letters stating the custom of these Boards as regards supplying water to property distant from the main, 200 to 700 yards. Considerable discussion arose on the question, Dr. Nowell and Mr. Lawton furthering a proposal to pay half the outlay in carrying a main to the property concerned (Messrs. Oliver, Lawton, Atkinson, Hoyle, and 5 cottages) if Messrs. Bromet & Taylor are still willing to bear the other half. Mr. Newsome, while very wishful that this property should be supplied with water, thought that as other property owners had had to bear the whole cost, if in this case the Board paid half, there should be a charge of five per cent. made on the landlord for the amount of money paid by the Board. He feared that in future applications other difficulties would arise, unless they were very careful. Mr. Lawton strongly objected to this percentage, distinctly guaranteeing that so far as he was concerned, the scheme would be a source of profit. The water should be supplied by meter, as it was not only wanted for domestic purposes, but for cattle, of which he himself had 38 head, while Mr. Oliver's demand would be still greater. Mr. Oliver also declared for a meter, without which he would not take the water, both because a meter would realise a larger income, and it was more convenient; he was sure the profit would soon cover the outlay in laying the mains. Mr. Newsome, while accepting the meter suggestion as being more likely to result in a profit, than any other mode of charging, still held that the Board should have 5 per cent. interest on the money laid out for the special benefit of Messrs. Lawton, &c., and he could not see how they could refuse other applicants, if they entered on this private property without some guarantee. Mr. J. Hargreaves, while in favour of supplying these houses with water for the last five years, wished to ask whose property would these pipes become, when once laid in Lord Stourton's land. He also commended meters, as small reservoirs would have to be made for this district, which can only be filled at night; neither would they be able to charge on the head of cattle, as the number would be constantly changing; meters were the only practicable means of charging for water in this locality. Mr. Holmes recommended that some written guarantee be obtained from Messrs. Bromet & Taylor before anything further is done, and also an understanding that half the pipes laid down in Lord Stourton's land, still belong to the Board. The Chairman suggested to Dr. Nowell that these two points be added to his resolution, to which he assented. Mr. Newsome having also added this condition to his amendment, Mr. Holmes seconded it. On the amendment being put (which is substantially the same as the proposition, with the exception of 5 per cent. interest being charged on half the Board's cost of laying) only Messrs Newsome and Holmes voted for it. For the resolution there voted the Chairman, Messrs. Lawton, Nowell, Oliver, and J. Hargreaves; Mr. Dobson was neutral, declaring that he should now require half the cost of his pipes repaying.

Mr. J. Hargreaves asked about Mr. Sissons supply, and Mr. Nowell as regards some old cottages in Rothwell, both of which the inspector will enquire into. The inspector stated in reply to Mr. Lawton, that the auditor will not allow the Board to charge for water used on the roads.

HIGHWAYS.—Another attempt was made to get some ashes ordered by the Board, as the Highway Committee decline to take the odium of doing so, and Mr. Oliver moved to pass on to the next business, Mr. Lawton seconded. The surveyor said unless something was done on the Old Road, the police were threatening to summon the Board. Mr. J. Hargreaves also intimated that he should move in the matter. On the resolution to "pass on" being put, only Mr. Oliver and Mr. Lawton voted, the remainder being neutral.

Mr. Nowell drew attention to Carlton Bridge road, to which reference had been made by 'our Carlton correspondent.' Mr Lawton added that a Rothwell man had been nearly drowned, through the disgraceful condition of the footpath and road Some action will probably be taken, though no resolution was passed, owing to the "no ashes" obstruction.

A resolution to charge the Co-operative Society £1 for damage done by their engine, was agreed to.

Messrs. Armitage's offer to replace any objectionable kerbs was accepted, and the order to be completed.

Mr. J. Hargreaves mentioned the state of Mill Hill, as referred to by a writer in the Rothwell Times, and whose remarks were certainly called for. The Chairman said no member had to go that way more frequently than he, and it really wanted attention. The surveyor promised to have some work done in that locality.

NEW RATE.—Mr. Lawton, as chairman of the Finance Committee, stated that the Committee had met, and very carefully gone through the estimated expenditure, and they unanimously decided that 1/9 was the lowest figure they could safely recommend; he therefore moved the laying of a rate of 1/9 in the £ for the next half-year's expenditure. Mr. J. Hargreaves seconded the motion, further explaining the position of the Board, and the anticipation of a further reduction next half-year. The following is the estimate:—

Highways and Main Roads Repairing	844	0	0
Repayment of principal and Interest on Loans
Legal Charges	420	0	0
Miscellaneous Charges	20	0	0

POLICE STATION.—The clerk read the draft of a memorial proposed to be submitted to the County Authority, applying for the establishment of a police station at Rothwell. The memorial was approved.

SANITARY.—Another complaint had been made about a nuisance on Mr. Brown's premises, and steps were ordered for its remedy.

A nuisance was also reported from "Who could ha' thought it," being a stream of sewage which finds its way down from Middleton to near Thos. Marshall's. On the motion of the Chairman and Mr. Newsome, a letter was ordered to be sent to the Rural Sanitary Authority requiring its abatement within 28 days.

Dr. Nowell asked what means had been adopted for the improvement of Dr. Glaister's out-house. It appearing that the accommodation is most objectionable, an order was passed through the Chairman and Mr. Newsome, requiring its remedy within 14 days, in default of which the Board will undertake it and charge to Mr. Mitchell, the owner.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.—The question of a station on the 'Bridge' has not yet been decided by this Company.

FINANCE.—The collector reported having received as follows:—

General District Rate	5	12	7
Water Rents	22	3	1
Miscellaneous	0	5	0
	£28	0	8

THE FEVER.—The Chairman said that Dr. Glaister had sent a message, that owing to his heavy work at Carlton, he was unable to attend the Board, but that there was nothing calling for special notice in Rothwell. The Chairman stated that he had himself visited some fifty cases of fever in Carlton the previous day; in some houses, every inmate was ill in bed, and not a soul to attend to them; he had never known such a state of things before. Some of the members urged a complaint to the Wakefield Authority, while others were in favour of communicating at once with the Local Government Board. It is evident that great laxity and neglect has been displayed by somebody, or the fever would not have been allowed to get such a hold as it has.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The monthly meeting of this Board was held on Friday evening, present—Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman), J. G. Turner, J. R. Seanor, J. Batty, W. Lawton, and the clerk, teachers, and attendance officer.

The minutes of last meeting having been read, were confirmed.

The clerk presented the books kept by him, on the Board's account, and having been examined, the annual financial statement was signed by the chairman. The estimate for the current half-year was then submitted, shewing the following items of expenditure—

Salaries of teachers..	400	0	0
Books, stationery, etc.	47	10	0
Cleaning, fuel and light, and repairs	71	0	0
Rates and Insurance . ..	11	0	0
Interest and repayment of loans	328	0	0
School furnishing and miscellaneous	17	10	0
	£900	0	0

This sum will be partly paid by the anticipated grants and school fees, leaving £496 to be provided from the rates. On the motion of Mr. Seanor and Mr. Batty, precepts were ordered to be served for this amount, £420 on Rothwell overseers, and £6 on Thorp Stapleton.

After being approved by the Finance Committee, cheques were passed for Loan Commissioners £92 2s. 1d., teachers' salaries £76 4s. 10d., tradesmen's accounts £19 11s. 10d.

The several head teachers attended, but nothing of public interest occurred.

The attendance officer reported a much more satisfactory attendance generally.

The applications for remission of fees were very few, as work is now being resumed at the pits; only one case was allowed temporarily.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

Holloways Ointment and Pills—Health's Defences. None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsey will attack those most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The usual monthly meeting of the Board took place on Wednesday, present—Mr. Jas. Hargreaves (chairman), Mr. J. Graveley (vice-chairman), Messrs. J. Parker, W. Lawton, B. Riley, C. Grosvenor, J. Swithenbank, J. Dixon, J. Hardcastle, H. Sheard, R. J. Smith, G. Jepson, and the clerk (Mr. Schofield).

After a lengthy list of relief cases had been considered, the minutes were read and confirmed.

THE SAILOR BOY.—Mr. Graveley reported that he had gone with the boy, Wm. Johnson, to Grimsby, and after satisfying himself that the captain was a highly respectable man, commanding a compact little smack, he left the boy with perfect confidence that he would be well cared for; the lad, on the following morning, presented himself in his sailor garb, and seemed greatly pleased with his master and the prospect of his sea-faring life, looking (as Mr. Graveley said) worth £5 more than he did in his ordinary costume. The Board cordially passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Graveley for his kind attention and gratifying report.

The question of allowing postages to Mr. Snowden for his vaccination notices was considered, and by a slight majority it was decided to let the present arrangements stand.

Mr. Dixon, on behalf of his Committee, reported having purchased a number of blankets for the 'house.'

BRANDY SAUCE.—In accordance with instructions from last meeting, the Clerk had addressed certain queries to the various medical officers on the subject of supplying patients with a certain medicine, containing a large proportion of brandy, and the consumption of which had greatly increased, raising suspicions that it was used for other purposes besides medicine. Dr. Smith replied that he had never prescribed the medicine for his patients, it is a direct stimulant. Dr. Nicholson specified two cases since the first of September, one who had had two bottles for heart disease, and another patient, suffering from enteric fever, who had one bottle, and had died a few days ago. Dr. Shirley stated that the medicine was compounded chiefly of yokes of eggs and brandy, and was more of food than medicine, and is given for cases of debility. Four patients used about six pounds a week, he had now six or seven taking it. If he did not order this concoction, he would prescribe brandy and eggs, and he pointed out that as a portion of the cost of medicine is refunded by the Department, it was a saving to the ratepayers to place it to account as medicine. Mr. Hardcastle strongly objected to the fact of four patients consuming 14/- of this medicine in a week, and would rather that when required, brandy was plainly ordered. He was satisfied, however, now that attention had been called to the subject, and trusted that the next account would be much lighter on this head.

NEWBOLD'S CASE.—After a lengthy and difficult struggle, the Guardians have at last secured the repayment of costs incurred by the man Newbold for the maintenance of his wife and children, he having the means of supporting them, and it is satisfactory to state that a cheque has been paid of more than £40 to recoup the Board.

The usual lists of requirements and statistical reports were then gone through and approved.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

THE lecture on "The Church, its history and property" by the Rev. J. O. West, at Woodlesford on Wednesday evening, was a most valuable contribution of useful information to those, whose busy lives—as the chairman remarked—leave them little leisure to read up or study the question for themselves. The lecturer gave an intelligible and very comprehensive sketch of the history of the church, and the origin and growth of its property from the earliest times; treating the subject as exhaustively as was possible within the limits of a single address, shirking no difficult point, and making his meaning clear, by the use of apt and homely illustrations. In response to the invitation of the promoters, the audience consisted of "persons of all shades of opinion," but the frank and sympathetic manner of the lecturer quite disarmed any latent feeling of opposition which no doubt existed in the minds of many of those present; and he managed to answer fully and satisfactorily one or two awkward questions put to him at the close of the address. There seems to be a general understanding that the question of disestablishment will not be settled in the next Parliament; there is therefore opportunity for quiet and dispassionate consideration of the subject and it is important that people should have the fullest information afforded in this and other ways, to assist them in forming a true and just opinion on the matter.

HARVEST Thanksgiving services were held at Oulton Church, and at the neighbouring church of Swillington on Sunday last. At Swillington church greater efforts had been made both in the way of decoration and special music, than has been usual on previous occasions. The choir, which is composed of mixed voices, has improved very much under the direction of the present choirmaster, Mr. Davis; and considering the disadvantage of being placed away from the organ,—which is at the west end of the church, and at the best not of much assistance to the singers—the Anthem "How lovely are the messengers," Mendelsohn, and the services Ebdon's Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis were very creditably rendered. The sermon was preached by the Rector, Rev. N. Berghiem from Genesis VIII. 22 "While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and winter and summer, and day and night, shall not cease." At Oulton Church the decorations have generally been elaborate and effective, and this year there was no falling off in this respect. The font was beautifully done, so also were the Pulpit and Reading desk. Two miniature stacks surrounded with garden produce, were conspicuous in the chancel and the windows and other parts of the church had received painstaking attention. The anthem was Dr. Stainer's "Ye shall dwell in the Land" and the sermon was preached by the Rev. M. Lewis, of Wakefield Parish Church, from the text "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap" Gal. VI-7.

IT is proposed to place a memorial window in the church of St. Cuthbert's, Hunslet, to the memory of the late vicar the Rev. H. M. Sims, and the parishioners of Woodlesford are offered the opportunity of assisting to promote this object. The church itself is a lasting memorial of the devoted exertions of Mr. Sims, and it is fitting that his name should be for ever associated with it in the manner suggested.

COLONEL CHARLESWORTH AT STOURTON.

On Wednesday evening, a large and intelligent audience filled the Board School (Boys') at Stourton, in order to hear addresses from Colonel Charlesworth, the Conservative candidate for the Normanton division, and other gentlemen desirous of furthering his election. Mr. John Swales presided, and there were present, besides the speakers mentioned below, a fair representation of all classes, farmers, tradespeople, miners, labourers, the majority of whom appeared to be in favor of the principles enunciated.

The chairman (Mr. Swales) in introducing the Colonel, said he was of opinion that questions which were put to a candidate should be answered in a straightforward, direct and fearless manner, and from what he had read of the speeches of Colonel Charlesworth during his electioneering campaign so far he had always answered them straightforwardly. There were persons going about the country who did not answer questions in that way. They had so many "ifs" and "buts" and contingencies, that really the public knew no more when the questions were thus answered than they did before. (Hear, hear). There might be persons present who did not agree with the opinions of the candidate, but he hoped they would give all the speakers a fair hearing. He did not think any good could be got by clamour. (Hear, hear.) Any donkey could bray, and any goose could hiss—(laughter)—but it was for intelligent men, entrusted with the power to vote, calmly and quietly to consider the various matters which were to be brought before them. (Applause.)

Lieutenant-Colonel Charlesworth was most heartily received, and during the entire address, exhibited such decided improvement in his manner, delivery and sentiments, as will very speedily place him among our "good speakers." He said he had been in various parts of this district, and everywhere he had been received in the kindest manner possible, and at no place was he better received than at Sharlston the night before last, where, though everything was not entirely in his favour—(laughter)—they had a very pleasant evening, and he was indebted to the opposite party for the kind way in which they received him. He desired as far as he could to carry on this contest in a straightforward way. (Hear, hear.) He had been told that he ought not to come forward to oppose a labour candidate in the person of their friend Mr. Pickard, but those who said this had got the boot on the wrong foot, because he was brought out as the Conservative candidate in February last, whereas his opponent was not brought forward until the succeeding month. Therefore Mr. Pickard was opposing him, rather than that he was opposing Mr. Pickard. (Applause.) It had also been said that inasmuch as he was a large employer of labour it was not right that he should oppose the labour candidate, because, as was alleged, it was setting capital against labour. When, however, they came to consider things, capital and labour could not be separated. They were bound together inseparably, because without capital there is no means of employing labour, and it depended entirely upon the way capital was invested and spent how the labouring classes fared. The better care the capitalist took of his labourers the better it was for him and the better for the whole community. (Applause.) After criticising the late Government, he declared, in the words of the (London) Daily News, the organ of the Radical party, that the Redistribution Bill was as much Lord Salisbury's and Sir S. Northcote's as that of Mr. Gladstone and his colleagues, and that but for that Bill there would not have been a Normanton division, and he would not have been standing there, as their candidate. Referring to the wide-spread depression of trade, Colonel Charlesworth observed that one of the greatest remedies was peace abroad and confidence in the Government at home. (Hear, hear.) It was most essential that they should have confidence in their Government, but during the last few years they had been suffering in a great measure from the fact that traders and merchants did not have real confidence in the Government. (Hear, hear.) He was a freetrader and by no means a protectionist, but still he did not think that any reason why there should not be an inquiry into our system of trade. He would never vote for the disestablishment and disendowment of the Church; he could not see how we could have free education at present, as the ratepayer had quite plenty to bear just now, without an increased school rate; he would be glad to see a larger number of landowners, and more people staying in their agricultural districts. He was for a cheaper and easier plan of transferring land. As to temperance, he was a very great believer and supporter of those who were endeavouring to check the great amount of intemperance which prevailed in the country, but he did not agree with their scheme of local option plain and simple. He thought it would give the majority in certain districts the right of tyranising over the minority, and if they were to put down public-houses, compensation in some way or other would have to be given, and that compensation would, as a rule, he thought, go to the brewers and not to the occupiers. He thought, however, it was quite possible to have some amendment of the licensing laws, and he should like to see some means by which the enormous traffic in drink could be curtailed. ('Hear, hear,' and cries of 'Suggest one,' and 'What about Sunday closing?' He would have public-houses open for an hour in the middle of the day and an hour in the evening, so that the working man would have an opportunity of getting his beverage if he desired to do so. (Applause.) It had been said that they were using intimidation. When he was at Sharlston, he asked Mr. Cowey to refute it, but he did not. He declared they were wishful that their men should use the ballot, and vote as they thought. All he asked was that they should vote for him if they could; if they did not agree with him he could not help it, and if they could not vote for him, he could only say, "Don't vote for the other." (Laughter.) In conclusion, Colonel Charlesworth asked the support of the electors present.

The chairman then invited questions, but none were asked.

Mr. Joseph Holmes moved a resolution declaring that Colonel Charlesworth is a fit and proper person to represent the Normanton Division in Parliament.

Mr. H Beaumont seconded the resolution, which was supported by

Mr. Henry Westerman, a working man, who strongly denounced the proposal to disestablish and disendow the Church, asking those present if they would like to see their ancient churches put up to auction, and perhaps converted into music halls or dancing saloons. He considered it would be robbing God of money given for his service. ('Let each church keep its own minister.") He urged that if they wanted justice between man and man, let them vote for Colonel Charlesworth. (Cheers.)

The resolution, on being put, was carried with five dissentients.

Mr. F. W. Walker, of Leeds, moved the second resolution, expressing confidence in the present Government, and satisfaction with the manifesto of the Marquis of Salisbury. He ridiculed and denounced the numerous blunders of the late Government, finally pointing out that the engines for working the water mains at Suakim, had only been sent out of Hunslet a few days ago. (Laughter.) Speaking of strikes, he applauded the history of Messrs. Charlesworth and their men, in avoiding strikes, holding that such misfortunes were alike disadvantageous both to masters and men. He was tired of hearing about Free Trade, Fair Trade, and Protection; what they wanted was confidence in our Government, and this would restore England to her proper place as the first country in the world.

Mr. J. L. Wylde seconded the motion in a thoughtful and well delivered address, concluding with his opinion that instead of the Liberals being the only friends of the working classes, he could see nothing they had done, but raise the taxes, and making them pay for it. He also claimed the passing of Criminal Law Amendment Act, as the work of the Marquis of Salisbury, as against the fact that on three different occasions it failed to pass during the Liberal administration.

Mr. C. E. Charlesworth, in supporting the resolution, felt convinced that it was mainly lack of confidence that had brought about bad trade. He had worked with and lived among working men all his life, they had the same interests, and if capital was driven out of the country by want of confidence, labour would proportionately suffer. He desired to level up (not down), and to raise working men to a better and more independent position. Let them support Col. Charlesworth and those of his principles, and secure greater confidence at home and abroad. (Cheers.) The resolution was carried with five dissentients.

Mr. J. Shuttleworth, in moving a resolution pledging the meeting to use every lawful means for the return of Col. Charlesworth at the head of the poll, reiterated the credit due to the Conservatives for the passing of the Redistribution Bill. He defied any one to find a single Act of Parliament passing money for the support of the Church of England, while there were several to assist other denominations.

Mr. Jos. Charlesworth was very warmly received, and in seconding the motion, urged all to follow out its sentiments. He rejoiced in the right which had at last been allowed to working men in the rural districts, and trusted they would be careful how they voted. What they wanted was greater confidence in the Government of the country and in each other. Some time ago a Railway Bill was passed for Rothwell and district; why was it not being carried out? Because there had been no confidence in the money market. He was glad to say things were now going on perfectly satisfactory, and he could assure them that the scheme was not by any means defunct. Referring to rumours of intimidation, he declared that it was their wish that men should use the ballot, and exercise a free expression of opinion.

The Rev. F. Fawkes having been called on, entered his strong protest against the disestablishment and disendowment cry, and in answer to the question "Is the Church of England worth preserving?" pictured a scene he had witnessed last week at the funeral of the Rev. H. M. Sima, of St. Cuthbert's, where almost the entire parish turned out to testify the depth of their sorrow at the loss of so valuable and kindly a pastor, whose congregation was composed principally of working people. Although, said he, the Church may be robbed of her property, she will for ever live in the hearts of the people.

Mr. Oliver (of Rothwell Haigh) moved a vote of thanks to the speakers for their kind assistance, and urged all to do their best that Col. Charlesworth be "first past the winning post." Mr. Coggill seconded the motion, which was unanimously carried, as was also a vote of thanks to Mr. Swales, the chairman.

LECTURE AT WOODLESFORD.

"THE CHURCH: ITS HISTORY & PROPERTY"

On Wednesday evening a lecture on the above subject was delivered in the Woodlesford Board School, by the Rev. J. R. O. West, of Manchester, to a crowded audience, which was composed of persons of "all shades of opinion" with a few "*she*ectors."

Mr. J. W. H. White presided, and in half a dozen sentences introduced the lecturer, saying that the meeting was not a political one, or he would not have occupied the position of chairman.

The Rev. J. R. O. West, who was heartily received, said he had come to speak on "the Church," at the request of the vicar. The question was one of many, which was claiming the attention of the nation. Just now it was a burning question. The lecturer did not propose to take a side in his lecture, he simply wished to lay before the audience the truth. He hoped the chairman would allow any one to ask any question at the close, and he would endeavour to answer them to the best of his ability. He had plenty of time as the Vicar had volunteered to extend his hospitality, and give him shelter until morning. Turning to the history of religion in our country, the lecturer observed that it was very uncertain when christianity was first introduced, but so far back as A. D. 314, an organised and consolidated church had an existence, inasmuch as three Bishops were elected to attend a Council in France, as the representatives of the English Church. The able lecturer then traced the events connected with the Roman evacuation of Britain, the occupation of the land by the Anglo-Saxon tribes, driving the original christian inhabitants of the country westward into Wales, Cornwall and Devon, where they continued their good work of preaching the gospel and serving the true God. Glancing at the heathenism of the Anglo-Saxons, who were now in full possession of England, Mr. West proceeded to speak on the introduction of christianity into Essex by Augustine, who came from Rome and preached the gospel among the tribes. The formation and progress of other schools of religious thought were described. Then came the Council of Hartford A. D. 673 when Theodore induced the various sections, to recognise one Head, residing at Canterbury, to observe one class of religious customs, and also succeeded in establishing the "parochial system" which has lasted until to day. The way in which the numerous churches were erected and endowed, was then forcefully illustrated on the blackboard, shewing that certain lands or portions of crops were voluntarily given to the Church for ever, and therefore were absolutely the property of the Church still. The Church continued to live, but side by side with her, grew up another religion "Romanism." Then came the Reformation, followed shortly after by the church falling into a state of apathy and indifference. The Independents, Baptists, and Quakers "set up little opposition shops," and good, sainted John Wesley, the best churchman who ever lived, came to the front, and said he would rouse the church out of her sleep. Foolish Parsons opposed him, and eventually drove him out of the church. He had drawn to his sect many thousands who were one with the Church in principle, and who he hoped would, ere long, be one with them in union. Some persons would wonder whether the Church had ever received anything from the State. Yes, it had. In the years

1809-20	it	received	£1,100 000
1818	,,		£1 000 000
1825	,,		£500,000
		Total	£2,600,000

But the parsons had paid into the pocket of the State forty millions as first fruits, so that the Church would accept a cheque for thirty seven millions and "settle up," (?). In conclusion the lecturer trusted the great question of "Disestablishment and Disendowment," would be fairly considered by every man, and prayerfully considered by every christian man. He earnestly and solemnly entreated his audience, not to prostitute the Church to political party, but to seek the truth on the subject whatever the truth led to. If they let the Church go, they would be like Esau, who sold his birthright for a mess of pottage, and who came to mourn for it in after years with tears of sorrow and regret.

Questions were asked by Mr. T. Whitehead, of Rothwell, Mr. Parkin, Mr. Hampshire, and Mr. Dalton, of Woodlesford, which were answered at considerable length.

Votes of thanks to the Lecturer and Chairman were presented on the motions of the Rev. A. J. Irvin, and Mr. Hoyle, and the Rev. Mr. West and Mr. Dalton, bringing the meeting to a close at about ten o'clock.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

MR. C. Milnes Gaskell, the Liberal candidate for this division, commenced his election campaign on Friday last, when he addressed a crowded meeting of the electors at Thornhill. He said "at Carlton, where he had been told there was only one Liberal in the place, not a single hand had been raised against his candidature." I wonder who gave Mr. Gaskell his information. Certainly I was not aware that the Liberal element had so few representatives in the village. The question suggests itself to me as to who the "one Liberal," who chooses to make himself so singular, happens to be. Living in such an atmosphere of Conservatism, all alone, I wonder if he is ever taken with the "blues." Altho' the enteric fever rages in our midst, there is little danger of a visitation of "yellow fever" so long as this Gladstonian remains isolated.

I THINK the fever is slightly better this week. There have been few fresh cases, and a number of those who were ill last week have become considerably improved. In one or two cases there are houses in which every inmate is ill, and nurses have had to be secured, to attend to these. In one long row of houses, only two have escaped the disease. The visitation is a serious matter, and will force itself on the attention of the Authority. One thing seems inevitable, viz:—that a better water supply must be obtained; where, when, and how, remains to be seen.

A miscellaneous entertainment was given in the Carlton Temperance Hall on Saturday last. The programme consisted principally of Songs, Readings and Recitations, which were rendered by the following:—Messrs A. Kellett, John Brown, W. Smith, J. Speak, J. Slater, S. Langstaff, W. Firth, I. Blackburn, and A. Firth.

THE Missionary sermons were preached in the Carlton Primitive chapel on Sunday by the Revs. F. Smith and T. Pearson, and on Tuesday evening the missionary meeting was held, when Mr. Tempest and the two rev. gentlemen mentioned, addressed an audience of eleven persons. The small attendance is no doubt attributable to the prevalence of fever in the village, especially in that part where the chapel is situate.

THE Rothwell Primitive Choir had promised to give a Service of Song in the Carlton Wesleyan chapel on Sunday last, when it had been advertised that the harvest festival would be celebrated, but on account of the large number of fever cases the choir declined to pay the visit, so that the festival is indefinitely postponed.

A PUBLIC tea was held on Saturday last in the Lofthouse Primitive Chapel, after which Mr. Alfred Steel, of Rothwell, gave a Magic Lantern entertainment. subject "Jessica's First Prayer" which was most interesting to the large audience.

THE first of a series of monthly entertainments was given on Wednesday last in the Lofthouse National Schools. On this occasion, Mrs. Crawford undertook all responsibility. The music consisted of vocal and instrumental pieces; solos, duets, and trios. Without selecting special performances we would at once remark that the music was all of it good, and this quality, in the airs themselves, was backed up by the way in which they were rendered; nor was the concert spoilt by too much of quantity. Mrs. Glaister, Mrs. Crawford, and Mr. Drury were the vocalists, Messrs. James, John, and Thomas Wormald, with Mr. Walter Marshall, were the instrumentalists, and Dr. Glaister, who at considerable personal inconvenience had undertaken to help in the concert, gave two of his best recitations. The attendance was a comparatively small one, only £1 11s. 6d. being taken at the the door. At the next entertainment in November, of the choir, the charges for admission will be lowered, as the vicar desires that the enjoyment and elevating influence of really good music may be within the reach of all classes of the community in the parish.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

NEXT week, we anticipate being able to publish a most interesting paper in reference to the election of 1807, in connection with the Poll List from which we extracted the names of gentlemen voting in this district at that time. The paper is contributed by our friend Mr. G. Roberts, of Lofthouse.

POETRY.—We have received the manuscript of some new topical verses relating to passing events, from a gentleman pretty well known in this line, and we trust to have space in our next issue for their publication. The title is "Just fancy what would be said."

The service of song entitled "The Torn Bible," or "Hubert's Best Friend," was ably rendered by the Rothwell Wesleyan Musical Society, in the Woodlesford chapel, on Sunday afternoon. The chapel was well filled, and a collection was made in aid of the Trust Funds, which realized £2, for which the stewards are greatly obliged. Mr. J. R. Seanor, with his usual kindness, undertook the connective readings and the choir and players were under the baton of Mr Jos. Idle, fully maintaining their well-earned character for efficiency. Mr. A. Batty played the accompaniments, assisted by several strings.

LECTURE ON ELECTRICITY.—A lecture on "Electricity" was delivered on Monday evening by Mr. Oliver, Electrician at the Leeds Infirmary, in the Rothwell Mechanics' Institute. The chair was occupied by the President, the Rev F. Fawkes, and there was a fair audience present Mr Oliver traced the developement of the science of electricity, and expressed a belief that it was now only a babe, which would grow into a giant of immense strength in years to come, and be the great motive power of the future. The lecturer then described the various theories held by eminent electricians, and also discoursed on the construction of various electric appliances. The illustrations, as is always the case in these lectures, were very interesting, and beautiful, especially those with vacuum tubes. A vote of thanks was presented to Mr. Oliver at the close on the motion of Messrs S. Seanor and J. Hirst.

"FIT it with such Furniture as suits according to the fashion and the times," and purchase from F. Miller, 42, North Street, Leeds.

STOURTON WESLEYAN MUTUAL IMPROVEMENT CLASS.—This class met on Friday evening last, when Mr. T. Genner delivered an essay on "The life and works of G. F. Handel. The essay lasted about half-an-hour, and was very instructive and interesting.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.—On Saturday evening last, the choir from Bethsaida School, Leeds, gave an entertainment, consisting of songs and recitations, in the Rothwell Temperance Hall. The audience was a fair one, and appreciated the efforts of the several performers.

ROTHWELL PRIMITIVES.—The missionary services were conducted in the Rothwell Primitive Chapel on Sunday last, by the Rev. F. Smith in the morning, and Mr. J. Tempest in the evening. On Monday the missionary meeting was held; the chair was occupied by Mr E. Taylor, and addresses were delivered by the Revs. F. Smith and T. Pearson. We are sorry to learn that the attendance was small.

"GOOD NEWS FROM HOME."—A mother residing in Oulton received a message from her son, who is living in New Zealand, asking her to send him the Rothwell Times. She had been in the habit of forwarding him copies of the Leeds and Wakefield papers, but he longed for home news. Send Rothwell Times to distant friends.

DANGEROUS JOKING.—While the Rothwell Wesleyan Musical Society were rehearsing in the School on Tuesday night, some mischievous person, after placing a table from one of the vestries behind the door to impede anyone giving chase, opened the door a few inches, and putting his arm through the opening, fired a pistol in the direction of the group of singers, and decamped. Should the delinquent be discovered, means will be taken for making him remember his dastardly folly.

UNWELCOME TIDINGS.—We are sorry to learn that Wm. Dobson, a young man who three or four years ago left Rothwell as a soldier, has recently died in India. He has been about three years on Indian soil, and belonged to the 1st King's Own Light Infantry. A letter from a brother soldier communicating the sad news was received by the young fellow's foster parents a day or two ago, which stated that death occurred on September 28th, and was caused by remittent fever. The deceased, who was just turned twenty years old, was a member of the regimental band, and a general favorite in the regiment. His funeral was attended by many hundreds of people, and the ceremony was performed with military honours.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. WHITE, Limited, 17, Farringdon-road, London, E. C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

TOWN TALK.

"IN days of old, when Knights were bold, and Barons held their sway," it is said that Rothwell was a market town. The market was held round about the stone cross, and there the produce of the surrounding agriculturists changed hands. In our day it is not so, we have no market day, and the cross stands only as a memento of the distant past. There are however one or two enterprising tradesmen, who have of late weeks, come into the town and set up their "establishment" at the cross, and have succeeded in disposing of a considerable quantity of goods. I have myself seen at different times the Auctioneer with his rude coarse sentences, the Quackdoctor with his everlasting boasting, and the pot seller accompanied with the usual "chink chink." I want to ask if these men are allowed to stand in this public thoroughfare free of charge. If so, it is a great injustice to the local shopkeepers, who are saddled with a heavy burden of rates. A charge should be made for standing here, just as is the case with the swings, booths &c., at the feast time.

A FRIEND of mine told me that he attended the first of a course of lectures at a prominent local institute one evening this week, and although the lecturer seemed to be well up in his subject, yet he appeared to be possessed of an irrepressible inclination to be nervous. Blackboard illustrations were used. My friend observed that the able lecturer, on one occasion, put his pocket handkerchief and duster, each to improper uses, inasmuch as he cleaned the blackboard with the former, while he applied the latter to his nasal organ, according to the custom of enthusiastic philosophers.

MY wife, who, I am happy to say, is ever ready with her thoughtful mind, and nimble fingers, to minister to the requirements of her husband, bought a brown loaf last week. The man from whom she bought it, told her that it was manufactured in Leeds by Mr. Smith, Chatham House, Rothwell. Quite a large number of circulars of various kinds were wrapped up with the loaf, and when I had a little time to spare. I sat down composedly to peruse them. The subject was in one word 'vegetarianism versus flesh eating.' One statement was particularly novel and interesting; after stating that Mr. Smith had tried the vegetarian system for a considerable time, it continued to give a detailed discription of the physical appearance of Mr. Smith. I have misplaced the circular but this is what it said as near as I can remember. 'Mr Smith, who is thirty years of age, measures 42 inches round the chest, weighs 145 lbs, stands 5 feet 10 inches high, and is considered by experts to be a very good specimen of a well developed muscular man." If Mr. Smith possesses such a capital physique on vegetable diet, what a splendid sample of a man he would have been if he had taken a chop or steak occasionally, cooked in one of Wilson's Gas Ovens.

WHEN Colonel Charlesworth addressed the meeting of electors at Rothwell in the spring he took very unpopular views of the temperance question. He seemed to think that "Beer and the Bible" was not a very bad cry after all. The Tory cry of "Poor man's beer," will not be accepted in Rothwell and I was pleased to hear that the gallant Colonel intimated at the meeting at Oulton last week, that he purposed visiting our district again before long, to give a fuller exposition of his views on various matters, notably that of temperance. If he can conscientiously promise to support a measure to bring about "Local Option" he will secure votes which would otherwise go to the other side.

THANKS to Mr. C. Gibson for his "Reverie." His verses will have greater power than my prose. They will help to convince "Peace" that he is wrong. I hope the bells will "ring on, where 'Gossip' dwells," for many years to come, and that in the next generation, there may be no "Peace" to growl so inharmoniously at the "dear old familiar Rothwell bells."

.. ..

THERE is another dispute arising on the miner's wage question. The miners are asking for an advance of 15 per cent on the present rate of wages. Whether this can or cannot be afforded by the masters I am not in a position to say, but, I should be glad to see this demand conceded, for I am confident the miners are poorly paid for their arduous and dangerous work.

GOSSIP.

DISESTABLISHMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times

Sir,

Said a wolf to a lamb "What mean you by fouling the stream and spoiling my afternoon tea?" Said the lamb to the wolf, "Your argument is unsound, Mr. Wolf, for I am down stream and you are above me." Whereupon the wolf clenched the matter by shouting, "What do you mean by insulting me?" and demolished master lamb forthwith. Now, this answered well enough in Fable-land, but it will not go down with your readers. Mr. Andrew's shout that I am insulting, neither demolishes me, nor convinces your readers; I am quite sure of that.

If Mr. Andrew will tell us what he does mean, and not simply state what he does not mean, by the Church being State paid, I shall be able to meet him. How and when was it State paid? Let us have chapter and verse; such chapter and verse, as I have given, as to the endowment over a thousand years ago, of Llandaff Church. When I quoted other men's opinions, and when I gave certain historical facts, I gave both opinions and facts from authenticated sources. I did not trump them up to suit my purpose; and it is for Mr. Andrew to meet them with a deliberate denial, and not with repeated requests to me that I should continue to offer further proofs of their truth. Mr. Andrew does not seem to understand the meaning of 'ipse dixit.' If I were to say, "The Church in England was founded in the first century by St. Paul," and left the statement there, offering no authorities, then I should be asking people to believe that statement on my own bare word—my 'ipse dixit.' But when I say, "Wellington won Waterloo," and refer to English History, I am not bound to verify the statements of the historians, nor am I making an assertion on my own 'ipse dixit.' I said and I repeat it, that as a rule the Church is not State paid; I said and repeat, that exceptional State grants to the Church and Nonconformists, do not disprove the above rule; I said and repeat, that Liberationists are supported by atheists amongst others; I said and repeat that the Nonconformists have converted heathens, and got them to endow the young Church, and to form a Parliament, and to make laws ecclesiastical as well as civil, and to appoint a missionary as Prime Minister; I said and repeat, that the Liberation Society does hope to take all but the latest churches and parsonages and ecclesiastical funds, and put the fabrics up to the highest bidders, for any use those bidders like to make of them; I said and repeat that the Liberation Society hopes to avoid the mistake of the Irish Church Act and to take it as a warning and not a pattern; I said and repeat that disendowment will not benefit the farmers by lowering their rents; and lastly, that disestablishment will most probably cause many parishes to lose the presence of an educated Christian as their friend and guide; and in all these cases (the last excepted, which is of course a deduction from archæology gathered from the Irish Church, and so may be erroneous) I have given quotations and authorities, which anyone who likes can refer to, in my former letters; so that my statements are not ipse dixit, but are authenticated and supported. Let Mr. Andrew, instead of asking more questions, deny these authorities, by showing them to be false. Let him attack me and bring the battle into my territory. Let him produce Acts of Parliament, or Deeds of Gift, (other than the few exceptions we all allow) shewing that the state gave and therefore fairly can take away, and he will utterly rout me and convince your readers. As it is I am in possession of the field. This I know, and thank God with all humility and sincerity for knowing, that the eyes of the people are being opened to the truth. A Nonconformist said to me lately "I never knew what strong ground the church had, until I read and heard the arguments she has been pouring forth." And again, an Agnostic said to me "As a matter of equity the State cannot fairly take away that I, as a historian, now find she never gave." The Liberationists are being beaten all along the line, because they cannot give chapter and verse for their statement that the Church properties were given to her by the State.

BAD DRAINS AT WOODLESFORD.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

As the owner of the house recently occupied by the Vicar of Woodlesford, and respecting which several incorrect statements have appeared in your paper of September 18th, I think it is only just that you should give my side of the question. Before Mr. Irvin occupied the house, the drains had been relaid by the Sanitary Authority, and made perfect; therefore I was surprised to hear about any defective drainage. I at once applied to Mr. Whitehead, the Sanitary Inspector, for his report on the examination of the house, and from it I learn that any nuisance existing is simply caused by the want of proper attention to the drains &c., which I am sorry to find have been much neglected. In fact, Mr Whitehead in his report to me, has stated that he visited the house on several occasions, and could not detect any bad smells, except those arising from want of ventilation and neglect; and gave it as his opinion, that if the ordinary sanitary appliances were properly attended to, there would be no cause for complaint.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN AND HIS DETRACTORS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Mr. Editor,

After reading one of Sir Frederick Milner's scurrilous speeches made at Pontefract, I took the trouble of asking Mr. Chamberlain's opinion as to the truthfulness of it, and I enclose you his reply, to which I ask you to give publicity in your next issue, and remain,

Yours respectfully,

Sir,

I am desired by Mr. Chamberlain to thank you for your note, and to say in reply that he does not consider it at all worth while to notice anything that may be said by Sir F. Milner.

I am, yours obediently,
Wm. WOODING.
Mr. Thos. Baines.

Kaye's Lavaline is king of soaps,
That's what the people say;
They buy from H. P. Newsome,
Who sells it every day;
There is Charles Ward and Son,
Also there's Alfred Drew,
Together with the Co-op'tive Stores,
And a host of others too.
Just you try Kaye's Lavaline,
Try Kaye's Lavaline!
You'll say then with the rest
It's the cheapest and the best
Of all the soaps you've seen.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it soften the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Price 3s. 6d. —For an Oil to make the Hair soft, glossy, and luxuriant, ask for "CARTER'S COLOGNE OIL." Price 1s. of all dealers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

TO THE ELECTORS
OF THE
NORMANTON DIVISION
OF THE
WEST RIDING OF YORKSHIRE.

GENTLEMEN,

Having been requested by an influential body of Electors to offer myself as a Candidate for the Normanton Division of the West Riding of Yorkshire at the approaching Parliamentary Election, I have somewhat reluctantly consented to do so, not from any feeling of personal ambition on my part but from a strong conviction that it is the duty of every man even at some sacrifice of his own affairs, to devote himself to the public interest in this important crisis in the history of our country.

Owing to the Extension of the Franchise, many will be called upon to vote for the first time, and I am pleased to think that by the action of the Conservative Party in insisting upon the Redistribution of Seats, the Electors of this Division will have a Member of their own to represent those important industries in which they are specially engaged; and I would especially congratulate my Normanton friends that, through the action of our Party, the importance of Normanton has been recognised by giving its name to the Division.

As a Colliery Owner, my personal interests are bound up with those of a large proportion of the Voters of this Division, and I am deeply convinced that no trade can prosper unless both masters and work-people work heartily together. I can confidently appeal to the manner in which my firm have always dealt with their work-people as a satisfactory test of the sincerity of my opinions.

Our Commerce is now greatly hampered by hostile tariffs, and our manufacturers cannot compete on equal terms with those of other countries. Our trade declines, and our work-people are unable to support themselves and their families. The present Government have appointed a Royal Commission to enquire into this subject, and valuable information is being obtained which I trust will result in much good for the country.

I deeply deplore the present Agricultural depression, and will at all times most earnestly consider any scheme that may be put forward for the removal of local burdens, or otherwise, for the improvement of the position of the Farmer and the Farm Labourer.

The export trade from this country is enormous, and I am convinced that our commerce will flourish best when our power is respected by foreign countries. The Policy of Mr. Gladstone's Government in shrinking before all powerful nations, whilst engaging in war with small ones, has caused us to be despised by the strong and hated by the weak. Under such circumstances new markets cannot successfully be opened out, and our trade must continue to decrease.

I am in favour of maintaining the most friendly relations with our Colonies, and of knitting them closer to us by every means in our power, believing that in this way we shall obtain an extensive and rapidly-increasing outlet for our manufactures, whilst at the same time strengthening our Empire by uniting the British race in all quarters of the globe.

By justice and firmness, peace and tranquillity may yet be restored to the Irish people, and whilst desirous of supporting all just measures for their increased happiness, and welfare, I would strongly oppose all schemes which can in any way tend to Repeal the Union with Great Britain.

I desire strenuously to oppose all attempts to Disestablish or Disendow the Church of England, believing that the Church has ever been a true friend to the poorer classes of this country, and that their Religious wants will be neglected if ever Disestablishment takes place.

Until the year 1870, almost all the Education in this country was provided by the Church of England; and whilst I rejoice at the impetus which has been given to Education by recent Acts of Parliament, I should be unwilling to support any measure which would have the effect of closing our Voluntary Schools or of depriving the rising generation of Religious Education.

I hope to have many opportunities of explaining to you the details of my views on various topics, and should you return me to Parliament, you may rely on my giving a general support to the present Government, because I believe that the members of the late Government, having failed in the past, are not likely to succeed in the future in conducting the affairs of this great nation either peacefully or with prosperity.

I have the honour to remain,
Gentlemen.
Your obedient servant,
ALBANY HAWKE CHARLESWORTH.

OUR TWELFTH BIRTHDAY.

Amid the excitement of every-day life, and the intense earnestness with which everyone prosecutes his own schemes, it is not likely that many of our readers will have noticed that this day we commence our thirteenth year of existence as journalists. On the 1st November, 1873, we had the temerity and the pleasure of inaugurating the Rothwell Times and we recall, with mixed feelings, the preparation and issue of our first number, which was greedily 'snapped up', and is still carefully preserved by some as an interesting and valuable memento. Since then our life has been somewhat chequered, but the warm blood has never ceased to tingle through our veins, and having overcome many difficulties, we now rejoice in a degree of health, and look forward to many years of useful public toil. We are specially gratified that not only does this journal retain its hold on our Rothwell residents, but that the sister villages on either side of us are beginning to realise the advantage of having a paper of their own, and we hope, will soon use it as freely as Rothwell.

In thanking our correspondents and subscribers for their continued support, we again utter our 'shibboleth' that it is our desire that this, the only local paper, shall be made more than ever, the literary vehicle for every class and creed, assuring our friends that no communication of news, advertisement or correspondence, will be declined because of its political, religious, or otherwise distinctive character. With the conscious feeling of good will and best wishes from our readers, we again lay ourselves open for fresh effort and persevering toil, only asking that every one will support us by making the Rothwell Times "my own paper."

GENERAL ELECTION.

MORLEY DIVISION.

MR. C. MILNES GASKELL, the Liberal candidate for the Morley Division, speaking at a large and enthusiastic meeting at the Mirfield Town Hall, replied to observations made by Mr. Dunnington-Jefferson, the Conservative candidate, and advocated a continuance of Free Trade, in a lengthy and exhaustive address, at the conclusion of which, he said, if he (Mr. Gaskell) were, therefore, asked to suggest a remedy for the state of trade, he would say that he believed in letting the present condition of things alone; but if we had legislation, we should first have a policy of non-intervention—(hear, hear)—we should be at peace as much as possible with all nations, and consequently we should endeavour to open as many markets as possible for our productions. (Cheers.) Then he would suggest also the spread of technical education, and what he was afraid was taking place—the elimination of those not able to bear the struggle, and he believed that these causes would in time have the effect we wished. Liberals, in his opinion, could not wish for a better fighting ground than this. His belief was that when the working classes came to read on these subjects they would undoubtedly adopt the Liberal views; their facts were unimpeachable and their deductions incontrovertible.

On Saturday afternoon, MR. JOSEPH J. DUNNINGTON-JEFFERSON, the Conservative candidate for the Morley division, visited Ossett, and addressed a large meeting of the electors of that district in the Church School. Mr. Jefferson said the Liberals had opposed Conservative franchises on several occasions. The Franchise Bill passed during the last six months had been passed without opposition on the part of the Conservatives. What he meant was that the principle of the Franchise was never opposed by the Conservative party. The Tories felt that it was absolutely necessary that the franchise should be accompanied by a redistribution of seats. If they had had the franchise without redistribution, they would not have had a Member for the Morley division. It was owing to the decided action of the House of Lords, backed by the Conservative party, that the franchise became a reality, and not a sham. With reference to the depression of trade, Mr. Jefferson remarked that he was entirely in favour of Free Trade, but it should be Free Trade proper, pure and simple. But we at present were paying more for Protection than any other country in Europe. We were paying an import duty of £28,000,000, which was 11s. per head of the population. Our principle of Free Trade had been a failure, He believed in a free breakfast table, but it was not free at present. The poor man's tea was more heavily taxed than the rich man's. He was in favour of taxing imported manufactured articles, which would relieve the taxes and improve home trade. In conclusion, he was not in favour of taxing food, he was opposed to the principle of free education, and to Disestablishment, and Disendowment. In answer to questions, the candidate said he was in favour of vaccination, but opposed to cumulative penalties. With regard to local option, he objected to a small majority having the power to close the public-houses.

On Monday evening, Mr. Jefferson addressed a meeting in the Church School-room at Hanging Heaton, near Batley. The meeting was a stormy one, and was evidently well filled with Liberal electors, who were not slow to make their voices heard.

Mr. Jefferson has also addressed two meetings—on Wednesday evening at Batley, and on Thursday at West Ardsley.

NORMANTON DIVISION.

On Monday evening, a largely attended meeting of electors was addressed at Horbury by LIEUT.-COLONEL CHARLESWORTH, the Conservative candidate for the Normanton Division. Mr. Benjamin Wilson presided, and among other gentlemen on the platform were Mr Ed. Green, M.P., the Rev. J. Sharp (Vicar of Horbury), Mr. J. Charlesworth and Mr. C. E. Charlesworth, and Mr. J. Shuttleworth, Conservative agent. Lieut.-Colonel Charlesworth, having remarked that he knew they were not at one in political matters, and begged the meeting to give him Yorkshire fair play, said that for the Education Act of 1870 they were in great measure indebted to the Conservatives. Mr. Forster had publicly thanked the Conservative party for having used no party tactics in opposition to that measure, for if they had done so it would not, in his opinion, have been possible to pass it. Mr. Pickard took great credit to the Liberal party for the Mines Act, but he contended that for legislation of this description they were quite as much indebted to the Conservatives as their opponents. It was the Act of 1842, passed by the Government of Sir Robert Peel, which had put a stop to female labour in mines, and emancipated the wives and children of the miners of this country from what had been called a state of white slavery. It had been, and was now, the object of the Conservative party to improve, as far as they could, the condition of the working classes. On the question of the land laws, he agreed with Mr. Pickard in desiring to see the transfer of land simplified and made easier, and he should also like to see a greater number of people living upon the land. As to local government, that was a matter which would have to be dealt with whichever party came into power. In so far as the licensing laws were concerned, he could not go in for local option, as he believed it would enable a majority to tyrannise over a minority.

MR. BENJAMIN PICKARD, the Liberal candidate for the Normanton Division, addressed a meeting of electors on Wednesday evening in the Bicycle Hall, Normanton Common. There was a large attendance. Mr. Charles Keith presided, and among other gentlemen on the platform were Alderman Peacock, Wakefield; Mr. C. J. Foster, President of the Normanton Liberal Association; Mr. J. Cowey, Sharlston; Mr. H. Burnley, Agbrigg; and Mr. Marshall, Horbury. Mr. Pickard said he was glad to find that no undue pressure was going to be put upon the miners of this district. The miners had a clean book in respect to the exercise of the franchise, and he believed those in this district were determined to do what they had said they were going to do for years, and that was to have somebody in the House of Commons to talk for them. If he were returned to Parliament he should consider it was a proper subject for inquiry what better wages they could have for the work they did, and what higher profits their employers could have for the brain power and the capital which they expended. Several gentlemen having spoken on the vote of confidence, it was put to the meeting and carried.

Mr. Pickard addressed a large meeting at Crigglestone on Tuesday evening, at which he said he did not wish to harm the Church of England; its spiritual good would not be decreased by disendowment.

OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of the Board was held in the Board-room at the schools on Tuesday evening last; present, the Rev. A. J. Irvin, (chairman), Messrs. Hoyle and Flockton, Dr. Nowell, and the clerk (Mr. R. J. Smith.)

The financial statement shewed a credit balance of £53 11s. 5d., and the receipt of £7 16s. 2d. for school fees and 12/9 for rent of rooms; cheques were signed for the teachers' salaries £20 16s. 8d., and for other small payments amounting to about £1. The school fees were remitted for three months in the case of three children, members of one family, after a statement made by their mother respecting the father's earnings and other family circumstances. The question of the school cleaner's wages was again considered, and it was resolved to cancel the resolution advancing the wages 1s. a week, passed at the previous month's meeting, and to make the advance 2s. per week, the work having been increased by the use of an additional room for class work in connection with the Infants' school. Letters were read from the Girls' and Infants' mistresses and from the master of the Boys' school, respecting the approaching alterations in the teaching staff, consequent on the termination of the apprenticeship of the senior pupil teacher in the Girls' and Infants' schools respectively this year, and the resignation of the senior pupil teacher in the Boys' School, and it was resolved on the motion of Mr. Flockton, seconded by Mr. Hoyle, that two transfer (2nd year) pupil teachers be advertised for, to fill the vacancies in the Girls' and Infants' schools. As only a candidate will be required in the Boys' School, the appointment of a suitable one was postponed. The Rev. A. J. Irvin having to leave early, the chair was occupied by Dr. Nowell (vice-chairman) during the latter half of the meeting.

LOFTHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

The monthly meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday night at Robin Hood School. The members present were Messrs. T. Oliver, (chairman) J. Armitage, T. Hargreaves, J. Hammill, and H. Hall, with the clerk, Mr. J. H. Lee.

The Clerk reported that the treasurer had received the following amounts during the month:—Robin Hood school fees, £8 13s. 9d, books sold 18s. 6d.; Carlton school fees, £4 14s. 5d., books sold, 15s. 2d., and £1 10s. for use of schools.

The clerk stated that in accordance with instructions, he had completed arrangements with Mr. and Mrs. Butterworth, of Sowerby Bridge, to take charge of Carlton Schools from the 23rd November next. This appointment was confirmed by the Board. Cheques were signed amounting to £38 17s. 4d. for teachers' salaries and cleaning.

A precept was signed upon the Overseers which will require a rate of 5d. in the £.

The Board arranged that the salary of Mr. J. Slimming, head master at Robin Hood school, should be £80 per year and one-fifth government grant. It was also agreed to give Miss E. Lee some extra salary, during the time she has had charge of the Infants' school. There was one application for remission of fees, which was granted. Other minor business concluded the meeting.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

I SEE a movement has been made towards getting a police station in Rothwell. As an alternative I should suggest that it would be better to have it at Carlton, so that it would serve for the district of Rothwell, Rothwell Haigh, Robin Hood, Carlton and Lofthouse. It would be central, and not much above a mile from any one of those places. As things are now, there is no doubt that many offenders escape punishment simply from a want of some convenient place in which to detain them. Let Lofthouse-cum-Carlton join in the memorial with Rothwell, and have the place centrally situated.

WHILST on the subject of necessities and improvements, I should further suggest that a post office or receiving house at Carlton would be a great convenience, at which letters could be posted and stamped, and at which postal orders, stamps and post cards could be obtained. There is a population of 2,000 at Carlton, and those have only the same accommodation as Thorp with about 80—a pillar letter-box. If the railway goes on the population will be still further increased, and a receiving house thereby more imperatively necessitated.

I HAVE this week received the following from a well-known resident. I don't say I agree with the sentiments of the writer, but publish it on its own merits—"By the Wakefield papers I notice that Messrs. Ingram, Spurr, Stocks, Kaye, Shirt, Archer, Young and Clayton, have directed a water supply for Carlton. It seems singular that persons who know nothing whatever about Carlton should have control over it, and by a stroke of a pen be able to burden the place with additional rates. As to the water, there is as much water in Carlton as ever there was. The old plan of sinking wells and getting good native water from the earth seems to be greatly overlooked. I venture to say that if there is any present necessity for an increased supply, a couple of well fitted up town's wells would be amply sufficient, but all the cry is for pipe water. "Far fetched and dear bought is good for ladies." They say that we sadly want pipe-water, but who's going to pay the piper?"

.. ..

ANOTHER death, that of Mrs. Hampshire, has occurred this week from the fever. This is the second of the members of this family who have succumbed to the disease. There are several other very severe cases, some of which are likely to prove fatal it is feared, but happily no fresh cases have been made known.

YORKSHIRE POLL BOOK FOR 1807.

This volume, kindly lent for inspection by Mr. C. H. Braithwaite, of Leeds, photographer, is exceedingly interesting and valuable, and being scarce, is well worthy of being preserved. I think the readers of the Rothwell Times should feel obliged to the Editor for his trouble in transcribing the particulars which appeared in the issue of September 18th, more especially as we are on the eve of a general election. It is a record of the most famous election that ever took place in the county. It was a trial of strength between the great Yorkshire houses of Harewood on one side, and Fitzwilliam on the other. The novelty and the interest of the struggle were greatly increased by the fact that there had been no contested election for 66 years. The voting for the whole county (all the three Ridings) was concentrated at York, and the roads leading to that city were crowded night and day, for all the fifteen days of the election, with coaches, cars, chaises, military waggons, farmers' waggons, carts and vehicles of every description conveying the voters to the poll. Hundreds also went on foot, walking all the night to be ready for the poll next morning. The Hon. Henry Lascelles and Lord Milton expended about £100,000 each, but as bribery, or rather the purchase of votes was then allowed, there is no difficulty in conceiving how the money was distributed. Shekels were freely scattered all round, and no doubt they would prove a little windfall in many a family. The desire and the hankering after bribes is probably as strong now as it was then. The sentiment is put down, or attempted to be put down by Act of Parliament, but:

> He is of the same opinion still.

The list in the Poll Book is not a full list of the voters; it is a record of those who voted. All the voters at that time were owners of property, i. e., freeholders. There were about 9000 who gave single votes (plumpers) for Milton. The return of Wilberforce was certain. If we look over the book we find in some villages whole rows of voters who voted for Milton; Honley and Thornhill in Agbrigg Wapentake are instances which indicate that the Milton influence in those villages was paramount. In the Wapentake of Claro, nearly all the voters voted for Lascelles. In Rothwell township there were about 47 who voted, but the votes appear to have been divided (with a majority for Milton) amongst the three candidates. In addition to the names of the freeholders, the names of places, often with curious spelling, are very interesting.

In 1812, Lord Milton and Mr. Lascelles were returned to Parliament unopposed, Wilberforce having retired, after having represented Hull and the County for 28 years. Wilberforce was best known in the abolition of slavery. He commenced his career by writing letters to the York papers at the age of 14. He died in London in 1833, and was honoured with a public funeral in Westminster Abbey.

Turning to the local list under Rothwell, we find that many of the families who voted have become extinct, and many of the trades mentioned have died out. There were Copleys who were hat makers. The Copleys still exist but not the trade. Henry Close was glassmaker, William Taylor was seivemaker, and Joseph Boyle was worsted spinner. These (both the families and the trades) have died out. Ralph Henry Brandling, the rector, who voted a plumper for Lascelles, is entered as clerk, and Richard Airey, the Scotch curate, is also entered as clerk. In Carlton there was Fox, the twine-spinner, whose son was a noted politician, and built Milton Cottage. Bland, the roper, the family of which is now extinct, and Wrights, who were then as now, gardeners. In Lofthouse, Thomas Clarkson, cord-wainer, lived in a cottage near Mr. Charlesworth's house, now pulled down. John Dibb, a stage waggoner, was owner and occupier of the Waggon and Horses Inn. Thomas Hammond, grandfather of the present Thomas Hammond, of Wakefield, was owner of the Elephant and Castle. Wm. Spurr was owner of the Rose and Crown. Joseph Batty farmed the land which is now Lofthouse House Park, and the family of Appleyard, a very old family at Thorp and Lofthouse, for generations ground the villagers' corn at their windmill. The list of Rothwell voters in the Poll Book of 1741, included Fenton, Moor, Evers, Houson, Bulmer, and one or two others which appear in the list of 1807. In 1741, there were 93 resident freeholders who voted from the entire parish, in 1807 there were 122.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT (FRIDAY.)

POACHING.—Fred Davis, alias Barson, alias "Big Fred," a miner, formerly living at Lingwell Nook, near Wakefield, was brought up in custody and charged with night poaching and also assaulting Police-constable Phillipson. Mr. Williams prosecuted, and Mr. Lodge defended.—On the night of the 20th of July, 1885, a gang of poachers were found in the park connected with Oulton Hall, the seat of Mr. E. Calverley. The poachers, numbering 14 or 15, attacked the gamekeepers and the police with sticks and stones, and a severe conflict ensued. The prisoner contrived to make his escape, and he eluded the police until a few days ago, when he was apprehended near Barnsley. The case of assault was dismissed, but the defendant was sent to prison for three months for night poaching, and ordered to pay £1. 19s. costs.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

HOUSE-BREAKING AT ROTHWELL.—On Saturday night at about twelve o'clock, the house of Mr. Wm. Lawton, Rothwell Haigh, was entered by burglars. At the hour named, the servant, who was asleep in bed, was awakened by a noise and on opening her eyes, saw a man standing in the room. She immediately screamed for assistance, and attempted to make her escape on to the landing, but the man caught her and endeavoured to prevent her crying out. Mr. Lawton heard the scream, and called out to know what was the matter, when the man made his way out of the window and down the ladder, which was held by another man. Out went Mr. Lawton, without remaining to dress, and let the dogs loose. Of course the two men went off at full run. It happened that P.C. White was on the highway at the time, and hearing somebody coming running down the lane, he hastened to the junction of the two roads, and just dropped in with one of the offenders, and secured him. The man's name is Richard Gorman, living close to Mr. Lawton's house, and the servant states that the man who entered her room was another neighbour called Patrick Macnamarra. This man however succeeded in getting away and has not yet been caught. Gorman was brought up before the West Riding Magistrates on Wednesday and remanded.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.—On Saturday last a very successful tea was held in the Rothwell Temperance Hall, when about 120 persons partook of the refreshment. After tea a well attended entertainment took place, being composed of pieces by local amateurs. Mr. George Brown, of Leeds, was the chairman. The programme opened with a pianoforte solo by Mr. John Ward, followed by a song by Mr. J. Brown "Pilgrim of love." The Stourton Quartette Party rendered two pieces, and Mr. T. Kale from the same place sang two very nice songs. Two songs were also given by Mr. D. Tilley, Mr. W. Varley, and Mr. J. Higgins, and a duet was rendered by Mr and Mrs. A. Smith, of Stourton. Two recitations were given by Mr. J. Coopland, of Leeds one of which received an encore. The chairman and Mr. J. Blackburn each gave a song. The band played two selections entitled "Æolian Lyre" and "Return of Spring." Last but not least, we mention little Horner Blackburn, who played, in very nice style, two cornet solos, "Minstrel Boy" and "Bluebells of Scotland." Such entertainments are the right sort for the Temperance Hall.

FIRE AT OULTON.—At two o'clock on Friday morning last a fire was discovered on the premises of S. Harrison, Quarryman, Oulton. It seems that Harrison has a wood shed where he sells, temperance refreshment &c., and which is heated by means of an ordinary stove. The fire in the stove was put out at ten o'clock on the previous night, and it is not known how the fire originated. A man named Joseph who was returning from his work discovered the fire and gave an alarm, but the building could not be saved and the flames speedily demolished it. The damage is about £15 which is not covered by insurance.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—The Garrick Comedy and Dramatic Company are announced to appear at the above Hall on Saturday and Monday evenings next. To-morrow evening the ever popular "East Lynne" will be produced and on Monday a new local Drama entitled the "Lost Will." The company is a really good one, and from what we hear of their previous performances they ought to score a big success here.

STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE OF MR. PARKER.—It is at the last moment before going to press, that we sorrowfully take up the pen to write an account of the sudden and mysterious disappearance of Mr. Alfred Parker, Chemist and Druggist, of Rothwell. During most of last week the members of Mr. Parker's family thought he was very unusual in his manner, and on Sunday he seemed to be very low spirited. For this reason Mrs. Parker suggested on Monday morning that her daughter Lizzie should accompany her father to business, but he objected to this proposal, and said she might come on in the middle of the forenoon if she liked; so he proceeded to his shop at 9 o'clock alone. The shop had been opened a little over an hour when Mr. Parker locked the door, took the key to the house of Mrs. Copley living close by, and requested that it should be given to his friends. Some time after, Miss Lizzie Parker arrived to find the shop locked up, and immediately apprehended that some misfortune would take place. On returning home to inform her mother of the result of her errand, they deemed it advisable to institute an enquiry at once, and with the assistance of Mr. Oscar Parker, it was found after much fruitless search that Mr. Parker had left the shop and gone down Commercial Street, through Dobson's Yard and along Royds Lane, to Stanley. He had been at the Station about an hour, and called at the Railway Hotel and bought a glass of beer and ate two biscuits placed in his pocket before leaving home. During the remaining part of the day those in search could not get any further news, and the whole night passed slowly away. Next day a few more links were found, and it was discovered that Mr. Parker had crossed the river Calder by the Bottomboat Ferry, and had been seen in Altofts and also in Normanton. Although friends have been constantly pursuing their investigations ever since, no further information has been gained except that two Altofts men say they saw him yesterday, and the relatives are beginning to fear the worst. The Rev. A. M. Samwell and Messrs John Clayton, Andrew and George Barker, and Mr. Armitage (Mr. Parker's brother in-law) have been untiring in their attempts to find our missing townsman. It is earnestly to be hoped that he will yet be found and brought safely home to his family, who are deeply troubled by the sad calamity, and for whom great sympathy is felt by their numerous friends and the inhabitants generally.

THE PISTOL SHOT.—The youth who fired the pistol into the School-room where the Wesleyan Musical Society were rehearsing on the 20th inst., presented himself at the practice on Tuesday evening, and apologised for his conduct, the consequences of which had been more serious than he had thought of. It is always more courageous to confess than to commit a fault, and after this manly confession on the part of the young fellow, the Society cannot but look over and forget the deed.

STOURTON WESLEYAN MUTUAL IMPROVEMENT CLASS.—In connexion with this class an essay was delivered on Friday evening last on "The Earth." There was a good number present, and a very profitable hour was spent. Questions were asked at the close which were kindly answered by the essayist.

SERVICE OF SONG.—A Service of Song entitled "Two Golden Lillies," was given by the Temperance choir in the Temperance Hall, on Sunday evening, when every available seat was occupied. The pieces were well sung, and the connective readings were undertaken by Mr. C. H. Elliott. The choir was conducted by Mr. T. Blackburn, and Mr. Jos. Naylor tastefully played the accompaniments.

THE NEW RAILWAY.—It is most gratifying to learn that another step has been taken towards beginning the long looked for important "Rothwell Railway." The promoters have sent officials down again this week to revise and complete the scheduling of the land required. Of course since 1883 when the land was scheduled before, a considerable number of alterations have been effected among the occupiers, and the object of this recent work, we presume is to prepare for taking over the land before commencing the immediate operations in the actual construction of the line.

FIRE AT THE MATCH FACTORY.—The residents near Messrs Seanor & Sons, Match Factory were suddenly roused from their slumbers on Wednesday morning by the alarming cry of "Fire." Soon the street was alive with half-dressed people of all ages, hurrying down to the scene of the misfortune. The six o'clock buzzar had just blown, and the hands commencing work, when a very simple act caused what might have been a serious and expensive loss. The factory consists of a number of semi detached buildings, most of which are covered with iron roofs and fitted with iron doors; to this circumstance may be attributed the fact that they were enabled to keep the fire in one part and preserve the other buildings free from injury. Just after the buzzar had gone, two girls entered the dipping shop to commence work, and one of them began to remove a frame of dipped matches which had been drying in the rack with many other similar frames. A drop of composition ignited and in two minutes the entire room was on fire, the large stock of dry matches leading continued help to the blaze. This room, like the others, was roofed with iron. A minute or two was lost by reason of the workpeople having only just got to the place, but very speedily the fire hose, always kept on the premises, was attached to the water main, and was soon in full play, and within half an hour, the fire was got under, many willing hands assisting in using other means for preserving the surrounding premises from catching hold by handing water from the adjoining beck. The Messrs Seanor's were fortunately at home, and quickly arriving at the Works, directed the efforts of the workers. The loss consists almost entirely of uncut matches and the wooden racks in which they were drying, there being no machinery in this room, except the shaft used for driving the fan. By seven o'clock the entire works (with the exception of the "dipping room") were in full operation, and arrangements were at once made for repairing the injured premises, and erecting new racks. The damage is estimated at about £20, but it is due to various fortuitous circumstances that the loss is not a hundred times as much. The proprietors of the factory are deeply thankful for the willing and valuable help given by many friends and neighbours.

On Wednesday evening last, an unrehearsed pantomine was enacted in Holmes Square, Rothwell, commonly known as "t Band Walk." It appears that a certain woman, resident in the Square, has taken umbrage at the action of the Salvation Army, in stopping near her house to conduct a meeting, and on the Monday night previous she went to the extent of throwing some dirty water on the members of the "Army." The 'Captain' paid her a visit on Tuesday, but found her in anything but a penitent frame of mind, threatening as a farewell volley, to throw a pail full of dirty 'suds' on them next time they bothered her. On Wednesday evening, therefore, she was waiting for their coming, and as soon as they made their appearance, she commenced pushing them with her fists, and turning out some very objectionable language. The members of the "Army," true to their creed, replied neither with word or action; the police sergeant afterwards put in an appearance, but rightly declined to make the Army 'move on,' and of course the virago kept her mouth shut while he was in the vicinity. The Salvation Army captain has intimated his intention to take legal proceedings against her, but whether or not, it is to be hoped such a disgraceful scene will not occur again.

ERRATA.—In Mr. Crawford's letter of last week read "Analogy" for "Archæology."

"JUST FANCY WHAT WOULD BE SAID."

Whatever is, or should be, for all there is a reason,
But let us hope what we now state, will not be thought 'high treason;'
For when you get in company, reports they soon are spreading,
Then it's easy to imagine what appears now as this heading

If the present new committee of our local Institute
Should—as it's coming winter (and this would greatly suit)—
Obtain some 'local talent,' who'd be glad then to rehearse
At public 'Penny Readings,' both in prose and also verse

It would be a great improvement to an entrance of our town,
If those really 'pretty buildings' near the Church were now pulled down,
For strangers have popped into t'beck' and mistaken the true road,
When this work is completed, then we'll thank the Local Board

Should Liberals have a meeting, got up by 'knights and dames,'
'Admission be by ticket,' and each have on their names;
And to make the matter a 'success' provide a good 'tea fight,'
Then advertise 'that only our own side we'll invite.'

Now as 'they've started measuring' for the long looked for railway,
The treat for everyone would be to 'name the happy day'
When they intend to cut 't'first sod;' (were that duty only mine),
It should be quickly done at once, and complete the useful line.

If as 'election time' draws near, (the result we cannot guess)
But whoever is successful, none will be friends the less,
On all strong 'party feeling' it would prove a 'healing balm'
Should the 'Colonel' and Ben Pickard down the street come 'arm in arm.'

In our village there's a building which is quite a mystery,
'Tis said that when completed, 'twill be used for chemistry,
What it may be in future, to say, 'aye, there's the rub.'
'Just let me see,' says Mr. T., 'we'll have a Liberal Club.'

If without a 'special effort,' when we Harvest celebrate,
Each week the church was crowded, it would really be first-rate,
To have such congregations none could raise the least objection,
More especially if was kept up—the amount of the collection.

In the 'paper war' now raging on 'Disestablishment,'
It has not always been so clear, each writer's argument,
While some of the 'stock phrases' have been so very poor,
'Unless there's some improvement, why let us have no more.'

At each meeting of Board members, more business might be done;
Be punctual at starting; don't be considered rude,
By popping out in 'twos and threes,' leaving no one to conclude.

Should inside matters not be good, you feel a little sickly,
The best plan is 'to get advice,'—this can't be done too quickly,
So visit then our Guardians' Board, 'who've a twenty pounds' stock handy,
You'll find 'it is not bad to take,' the yolk of eggs and brandy.

In bringing to a finish these rather simple rhymes,
Which may—or not—be suited, to please the present 'Times';
And if all does not satisfy, when every verse you've read,
It remains for me to fancy, of course, what will be said.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons the good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince [illegible] will restore and cheer them without danger, pain, or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

TOWN TALK.

IN a village like Rothwell where everybody knows everybody else, there is always abundant matter to talk about. This week has been specially prolific in interesting and startling events. Did Mr. Lawton say at the last Board meeting that a Rothwell man had been nearly drowned in the mud and water near the Carlton Bridge? Yes, poor fellow; he had had a glass too much as usual, and "poor old Rube" would have found "a watery grave" had it not been, that one or two large hearted and strong armed women came to his assistance and succeeded in placing him on terra firma again.

No small concern has been occasioned by the sudden and mysterious disappearance of our friend and townsman, Mr. Parker. Most people know as much or more than I do of the detail. From what I can learn he has not been seen or heard of since about noon on Monday. The story came upon me very sharply, and has grieved me much. He has not been found yet, (this is Thursday morning) and grave doubts are entertained of his safety. I hope he may yet turn up all right. Great sympathy is felt for the family, who are much distressed by the sad occurrence, and who are endeavouring in all directions to find some clue to their missing relative.

"NABBED at last." I have several times warned my readers about using the town's water for stable purposes, without having made application for it, and at last, the Board are taking hold of the matter in earnest. At the Board meeting it was found that a large number of persons were using water for all purposes, who only paid for a supply for domestic purposes. Listen to the decision on the matter; mark the awful words. "It was decided to refer the list to the Waterworks committee, who shall report on future action in the matter." "The way of transgressors is hard." It now remains with the Waterworks committee to decide whether these offenders, shall be drowned in a tub of town's water, or whether they shall be made to go without water altogether, or simply be summoned in the ordinary way before the Magistrates. Either punishment would be unpleasant, and it would not be an unwise thing if all those who have been illegally using the water sought an interview with the Board and paid up at once.

A DEAD lock has taken place on the "ashes" question. The Highways committee decline to take the odium of ordering any, unless the Board sanctions or approves of it. From what I can learn, Messrs Charlesworth decline to let the Board have the ashes any longer, unless on payment of a small sum per load. Well, my opinion is that they are not very saleable, and I should advise the Board not to buy them. Better buy some cheap dross at first, which in the end would be less costly than ashes at a gift. It seems to me putting ashes on a road is simply "throwing dust in the ratepayers' eyes"; the road has the appearance of having been mended, whereas it is not at all improved. A covering of dross on the bye-lanes would last for years, but the ashes (which take as much leading as dross) are done in a few months.

The fire at the Match Works on Wednesday morning might have been a serious one, if good appliances had not been kept on the premises, with which to extinguish the flames. As it was the "dipping room," filled with dry matches ready for boxing, was completely burned out. Great alarm was caused in the immediate neighbourhood by the cry of 'Fire!' and many curious and excited ones flocked into the factory yard. But all was soon over, and it is a matter of thankfulness, that so little damage was done. At the present time when men are doing so badly at the pits, it is a convenient thing to have one or two daughters, who may earn from six to ten shillings per week at the factory. The "dipping room" is situate in the middle of the three rooms in which the girls carry on their work, and had the fire spread a large number would have been thrown out of work.

At all the Tory meetings held in and about Rothwell, the Rev. F. Fawkes takes his stand as the champion of the church of England. I should be glad if the Rev. F. Fawkes would give us an address on this important question. Our vicar has got into trouble for criticising the late administration and eulogising the present one, but nobody could be displeased with him defending the church of which he is a prominent member.

At Stourton, Col. Charlesworth asked his hearers not to vote for Mr. Pickard if they could not vote for him. At Crigglestone, on Tuesday, Mr. Pickard advised the members of his audience to use their votes by all means, and if they could not vote for him, why, of course they must give their vote in favour of the Colonel. I like Mr. Pickard's principle best of the two. This is the first time some of us have had the opportunity of giving our vote in a parliamentary election, and if His Satanic Majesty and his vicegerent were the two candidates, I should give my vote for the one with the least vice.

We are coming down a little at a time. The Local Board Rate in course of preparation is one penny in the £ less than last time. The ratepayers are prepared to pay one and six or one and eight, and it is to be hoped this amount will soon be reached.

Brandy and the yokes of eggs is not a bad medicine, is it? That's what they give the inhabitants of the Hunslet Workhouse when they are poorly. Mr. Lawton would be the right man to enquire at the next Board meeting for a table shewing how often in the year each patient is taken ill, and how long the indisposition generally lasts. I fancy there would be a lot of long standing cases, not to speak of the incurables. How the faces of the old folks will brighten up from grave to gay, as they sip the fragrant decoction; and how thankful they will be as they feel their stomachs warming on the reception of the comfortable stuff, won't they? I think I hear Betty saying to Sally, "What a good chap t'doctor is, lass, to send us that there grand warming medicine." "Hey lass, he is" Sally replies "they mun tak their cooling medicine at likes it, give me t'warming, an it's all for nowt tha knows. What a grand thing t'Warkhouse is after all."

GOSSIP.

CHURCH BELLS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

Kindly allow me a small space in your columns this week to say a few last words (I hope) on the above subject. You will doubtless remember that I asked our friend 'Gossip' to give your readers a sound argument for the long and loud ringing of the church bells on Sundays as the custom now is. But sound arguments are evidently not in his line; sentimental notions he can supply without stint. As the question is one closely connected with religion, I, in my simplicity, thought that 'Gossip' would go at once to the Bible as the highest authority, and from it select material for a foundation whereon to build an argument which would do credit to himself and justify that which he assumes to defend. I am obliged to say that I am disappointed, and cannot accept his weak sentiments for argument. What does 'Gossip' say? "The ringing of the church bells heard for miles round, is a protest against all Sunday desecration." Although it is said, that "God rested on the seventh day, and blessed and sanctified it, because that in it He had rested," thereby giving His own example to men for rest, and although a commandment is given expressly forbidding any manner of work on the seventh day, which commandment, with a solemn prayer to be able to keep it, forms part of the 'holy service' of the church; yet it is deemed right by the authorities to employ a number of trained men to do the hard work of making with the bells as loud a noise as possible, to be heard miles away; and then we are told, forsooth, that it is a 'protest against all Sunday desecration.' But I ask, is it not rather an example and proclamation in favour of desecration of the day? It might well be said here, "Why do you transgress the commandment of God and thus make it of none effect by your tradition. 'Gossip' further says of the bell-ringing, 'It seems like the voice of God protesting against the evil ways" of all sinners. Again I ask, does it not seem more like the voice of sinful pride? To imply, as these words of 'Gossip' do, that God can approve of men breaking the rest of the seventh day, is the height of absurdity, a monstrous reflection on the Divine character, and would make the infinitely wise God as inconsistent as His erring children at Rothwell Church. They call themselves miserable sinners; I call them erring children of God, because I rejoice in the faith that all are His children, and also in the universal salvation of all mankind. I have said above that I hope these are my last words on this subject, but I mean last words to 'Gossip,' who evidently is not qualified to deal with this question. I hope I shall yet have to thank our respected vicar, as pre eminently the authorised religious teacher in this parish, for something from him on this subject; as the matter stands at present, I trust he will feel bound to take it up. When the loud clanging of the bells sounded in my ears on Sunday morning last, I perceived in them no voice of God, nor protest against Sunday desecration; to my imagination they said something more like this—

> Work away lads, make use of your tools
> By banging us (bells) we shall silence the fools.

Yours respectfully,

PEACE.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. WHITE, Limited, 17, Farringdon road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

☞ DO READ THIS!

NO person need despair of a speedy restoration to health and strength if he or she will carefully peruse the following, and learn that the great

SELF-RESTORER,

OR,

DR. BELL'S

is the safest grandest, and most certain discovery ever known for the cure of all bodily ailments arising from indiscretion and other causes. To those afflicted with Nervousness, Nervous Debility, Loss of Physical power Weakness of Body and Mind, &c., this invention presents a means of cure of so unfailing a character that the greatest sufferers from any of the above distressing complaints may, with confidence, rely upon being quickly restored to a sound state of health and strength. In fact, the many marvellous cures performed by the "Self-Restorer" (UNDENIABLE PROOF OF WHICH CAN BE GIVEN) at once places these extraordinary Instruments far beyond anything of the kind hitherto offered to the public. In order to prove that these Belts are all they claim to be, it would be as well to mention the following circumstance:—

"In the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division) an Injunction was granted on January 24th 1884, restraining certain unprincipled persons from selling any colourable imitations of the "Self-Restorer" Belt the Jury giving the proprietor a verdict with costs and damages for such infringement." The Belt was also explained, and its Electrical powers fully tested in open Court, both before Mr. Justice Hawkins and the Jury, upon the same occasion.

Can any other manufacturer of Electric Belts produce evidence of SO SEVERE A TEST? Surely after such proof as this, the most sceptical will believe that it really possesses the great restorative powers ascribed to it.

It may be as well to mention that the action of the "Self Restorer" is gentle, but exceedingly effective. The mild, but beneficial, current generated by its use, braces the system, and by its benign influence gradually builds up the frame until the mind begins to get brighter, the natural functions become stronger the elastic spirits of youth once more apparent, and so the progress towards recovery steadily goes on until the patient ultimately realises the fact that he is once more young. In cases of weakness, arising from any of the before mentioned causes, these Belts are at once the most simple and at the same time the most certain remedy ever invented or discovered. They are entirely self-acting and so ACIDS being required, can be worn at any time without any wetting process or inconvenience to the patient, the salt contained in the insensible perspiration being sufficient to keep it in action.

The cures performed are not of a fleeting character, but permanent, providing the instructions sent with each instrument are carefully adhered to. It speedily removes that most miserable feeling, "lowness of spirits," so often experienced; and after being worn a short time enables a man to look at the future in a more hopeful light, as the certainty of a rapid cure relieves the mind of a great burden.

How many persons who, by living too generously, have become prematurely old, and consequently have these wretched morbid feelings? They have an idea that nature is decaying, and the pleasures of life have departed. In nine cases out of ten this is far from being the fact. Nature has not decayed; it is simply lying dormant, and needs but a little assistance to once more assert its presence. "The creaking gate requires oil, or it will continue to creak." So it is with the human frame. Assist it where weak, put it in a position to recover itself, and you will find that after all life has its pleasures and you the restored inclination to partake of them.

The beneficial action of these truly life-giving Belts upon the human frame has been proved so conclusively, by thousands of unsolicited testimonials, that no shadow of doubt remains as to their extraordinary efficacy. They can be worn by either sex with the greatest ease and comfort, without fear of discovery, and by a delicate arrangement can be adjusted to act directly upon the weakened parts, so that immediately upon contact with the body, an electric current is at once produced of a mild, but withal of so efficacious a character, that an almost instantaneous improvement becomes noticeable. The heavy hanging feeling wears off, the eye becomes brighter the brain clearer, until at last the patient feels in his own mind that he is once more in the possession of the greatest blessing upon earth, viz., HEALTH, STRENGTH ENERGY, and MANLY VIGOUR.

In cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Paralysis, &c., there is no cure in the world to be compared to these Belts. Nature requires assistance in all these complaints, and that assistance to be thoroughly effective, must be obtained from nature herself—thus by calling into operation Electricity, a natural ally, congenial to all constitutions is obtained, and the result is in almost every case permanent cures are effected. Again, in cases of Consumption these Belts have been the SOLE MEANS of restoring thousands of both sexes to a healthy and vigorous existence when that fell disease "Consumption" had in the opinion of many eminent medical men, marked them as its victims. These are facts which can be proved to be absolutely true.

To persons desirous of further information, instructions will be given away, in 130 pp. pamphlet, showing sufferers how they may be restored to Health, Strength, and Manly Vigour, without the Aid of Medicine, or will be sent, post free, together with all particulars as to regimen, diet, &c. Address—W. WRIGHT, Esq., Secretary, Volta House, 175, Wardour street Oxford-street, London W.

THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS MAY BE SEEN AT THE ESTABLISHMENT.

The Prices of Dr. Bell's Medico-Magnetic or Volta Belts are Important Notice.

Having been asked upon many occasions how it is that our Belts are higher priced than those now being advertised by new firms (with whom we have no connection whatever) we beg to call attention to the following:

This appliance is POSITIVELY WHAT IT PROFESSES TO BE—an "ELECTRIC BELT," which may be proved before purchasing by the Galvanometer, &c. It was explained and fully tested before Mr Justice Hawkins and a Jury in the Court of Queen's Bench, January 24th, 1884. Moreover, it ENTIRELY DIFFERS from anything of the kind advertised.

A perusal of which will at once show the most [illegible] that our Belts are, without doubt, infinitely superior to anything of a like character extant and are in construction not as represented. Their having stood the test for 33 years is a [illegible] guarantee of their genuineness.

TO THE ELECTORS
OF THE
NORMANTON DIVISION
OF THE
SOUTHERN PART OF THE WEST RIDING OF THE COUNTY OF YORK.

GENTLEMEN,
Having been adopted by the Liberal representatives of the electors of the Normanton Division, I now beg to lay my views before you on the many and varied questions uppermost in the minds of this and other constituencies throughout the United Kingdom.

Although brought into the field as a Labour Candidate, I may safely say that I am as much a Liberal as any other candidate before our Yorkshire constituencies.

I am in favour of amending the Employers' Liability Act of 1880, in the direction suggested by Mr. Burt, M.P.; amending the present Mines' Act; supporting Enginemen's Certificates and Inspection of Boilers' Bills; amending the Acts relating to Coroners' Courts, Law of Contract, Appointment of Checkweighmen, Inspectors of Mines, and Public Prosecutor. I am in favour of abolishing City Dues on Coal, and other charges having an undue tendency to restrict the coal trade.

I am in favour of drastic alterations in the Land Laws, Local Government, and other purely local questions.

I believe land should be cheaply and easily transferred. Land must be made as saleable as ships, hay, corn, or coal, and primogeniture and entail swept away. No person should have the right to tie up land. Every man being in possession of land should possess the power of its disposal.

I shall give support to Mr. Collings in respect to Peasant Proprietary.

I believe in shorter Parliaments.

I may also say that I believe each Borough and County Division should, out of the rates, pay the returning officers' fees, and that, during the time members are detained in London on Parliamentary business, a salary should be paid them out of the Imperial Exchequer. The Ministry, Court, and other officials are paid, therefore I see no moral degradation in paying a member. If the fact that all persons receiving wages or salaries for the work they do causes them to do it badly, then a great reformation is necessary throughout the United Kingdom and the world. Such is not a fact, therefore the moral points the other way.

The Affirmation Bill will receive my cordial support. Since the middle wall of partition has been broken down, and both Jews and Gentiles allowed to take their seats, minus taking the oath, it is quite clear we must extend the operation of the principle, and allow members to affirm in preference to taking the oath.

I am a firm believer in both Civil and Religious Liberty, and will vote for all measures having these objects in view. The State Church is doomed as a National Institution.

I am strongly in favour of both Local Option and Sunday Closing.

I am in favour of discontinuing all pensions and sinecure offices. The money now paid for these objects would employ many Mines, Factory, and other Inspectors.

I am in favour of Free Elementary Education. Free Schools should be a National Institution.

I am in favour of abolishing Qualifications of Members for Town Councils, Board of Guardians, and Local Boards. I consider these positions should be as accessible as the House of Commons and School Boards.

I am in favour of Reform of the House of Commons and Abolition of the House of Lords.

I am in favour of extending to Ireland all Acts affecting other portions of the United Kingdom.

I believe Ireland should have similar treatment to England, Scotland, or Wales. I am not in favour of Home Rule, if that means separation.

I am a strong believer in Peace, Retrenchment, and Reform, and a firm supporter of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M.P.

In respect to Free Trade versus Fair Trade, I have very little to say, only that my reading and experience prove to me that if the food of the million is taxed at all it will not be done for the benefit of the people, but in the interests of the privileged few. Great Britain with Free Trade has become extremely wealthy, and the poor have received cheaper food and clothing than they otherwise would have done. I have not yet been able to see how any working man is to benefit by a 5s. per quarter minimum tax upon corn.

If Free Trade has knocked off strong fetters, created more work, and more easily filled the stomach and clothed the body, in the name of common sense and the continued good of the many, do not let us be beguiled into replacing the fetters which bound our forefathers.

I am not in favour of foreign wars, but would fight to the last in defence of real British interests.

I appeal to all voters in the Division to give me their support, in order that the Liberal and Labour interest may be fairly represented in the next Parliament.

In conclusion let me say, at all meetings hitherto held I have received the cordial support of all parties, and if the same good feeling is shown and earnest work performed on the day of election, I shall be placed at the head of the poll, to assist in the great work of progress as initiated and carried on for past generations by such men as Mr. Gladstone, Marquis of Hartington, Mr. Chamberlain, and the great Liberal Party.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
BENJAMIN PICKARD.

LOCAL BOARD MEETING.

The ordinary meeting of the Rothwell Local Board took place on Monday last at six o'clock, in the Board-room. The chair was occupied by Mr. Wm. Hargreaves, and there were also present Messrs. Holmes, Oliver, Newsome, Dobson, Turner, Lawton, and J. Hargreaves, with the clerk, surveyor, and medical officer.

The minutes of the last Board meeting and several committee meetings were read over, when Mr. Dobson moved and Mr. Lawton seconded, that they be confirmed. Mr. Turner proposed as an amendment that they be not confirmed, which was seconded by Mr. Holmes. On being asked what part of the minutes he objected to, Mr. Turner stated that he was utterly opposed to spending a single halfpenny in laying water pipes in ground belonging to Lord Stourton, the Board never having entered on private property heretofore. He thought that the proposal to lay pipes half way to the houses of Messrs. Lawton, Oliver and Atkinson was not only unjust, but perfectly ridiculous, inasmuch as they had served notices upon the poorest ratepayers and compelled them, at a great outlay, to connect with the water mains, whereas they were now actually about to help the largest and wealthiest freeholder in the whole district by paying half the cost of the work. He felt great sympathy with Lord Stourton's tenants, but he thought they might compel their landlord to put the water in himself. He also objected to dross being purchased for the repair of Pennington Lane, and to the resolution deciding to buy ashes for road repairing purposes. Mr. Holmes thought it was a great hardship for Stourton ratepayers to have to help to pay the cost of taking water to Lord Stourton's farms, and he strongly opposed assisting one who was able, if not willing, to do the work himself. He asked the clerk if he had not received from the Stourton Ratepayers' Association a letter objecting to the action proposed to be taken. The clerk then read the letter, which consisted of a statement to the effect that the Stourton ratepayers were opposed to the Board's money being spent on private property, that it was their opinion such a course of action would be out of order, and that should it be taken they would appeal against it at the audit. Mr. Lawton having got possession of the meeting, informed the Board that at the meeting of the celebrated Stourton Ratepayers' Association there were only five persons present, and that they did not begin business until nine o'clock. With regard to the water supply he observed that both sides had "tried to compel" before, without result; now a mutual arrangement had been come to, which was satisfactory to Lord Stourton, and which would result in a profit to the Board, while all other supplies were at a loss, and Messrs. Turner and Holmes were now endeavouring to upset the arrangements because they did not want him to have the water. About this time the discussion became so keen, and the debaters so unmanageable that the chairman threatened to close the meeting there and then, unless greater respect was paid to the chair. Forty minutes having passed in fruitless conversation on the minutes, Mr. Oliver suggested that the chairman put them in toto to the vote, and said if any member had an objection to any minute he might give notice to move its rescinding at next meeting. This was accepted by the chairman, and the vote was taken. The chairman and Messrs. Dobson, Lawton, J. Hargreaves and Oliver voted that the minutes be passed, and to the contrary Messrs. Newsome, Holmes and Turner.

Mr. Turner then gave notice that he should move at the next meeting that the resolutions referring to Mr Lawton's water supply, dross for Pennington Lane, and purchase of ashes, be rescinded.

HEALTH REPORT.—Dr. Glaister attended and said there was no infectious disease in the district, although there is so much around it. He had supplied disinfectants to the people at Carlton.

HIGHWAYS.—The Leeds Co-operative Society are going to investigate the matter referring to the damage done by their traction engine, and communicate again with the Board.

CANAL BOATS.—The Local Government Board had sent to the clerk a letter asking for a lot of information about the canal boats, and asking the Board to appoint a Canal Boats Inspector. Mr. Starkie was formally appointed, on the motion of the chairman and Mr. Newsome.

NEW RATE.—Mr. Lawton proposed and Mr. Jas. Hargreaves seconded, that a general district rate at 1/9 in the £ be laid. Carried, Mr. Holmes being neutral, and Mr. Turner having left the meeting at an earlier stage.

SISSONS' WATER.—A resolution was passed empowering Dr. Glaister to send a sample of water from Mr. Sissons' farm to the public analyst.

SCARLET FEVER.—It was reported that scarlet fever had broken out in a house in the Carlton district which is only divided from Rothwell by a wall. On the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. Newsome, a letter was ordered to be sent to the Rural Sanitary Authority drawing their attention to the outbreak. Messrs. Oliver and Lawton were neutral.

BALLOT.—On the motion of Mr. Jas. Hargreaves, seconded by Mr. Lawton, a petition was signed asking that the ballot may be the mode of voting in Local Board elections. (Unanimous.)

PLANS.—One or two lots of plans were approved.

FINANCE.—The collector reported having received £5 14s. 6d. during the fortnight for water rents.

NOTICES.—Mr. Lawton gave notice that at next meeting he would move that all scrapings and sweepings be removed by contract, and that he would ask for a return of the cost of the Wakefield Road for the past twelve months, and also that an agenda paper be supplied for the members' use. This brought the meeting to a close.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The usual Board meeting was held on Wednesday, present:—Mr. Jas. Hargreaves (chairman), Rev. J. H. Evans and Mr. J. Graveley (vice-chairmen), Messrs. W. Lawton, J. Swales, J. Dixon, G. Jepson, J. Hardcastle, J. Swithenbank, H. Sheard, W. Riley, J. Parker, C. Grosvenor, and the Rev. G. M. Platt, with Mr. Schofield (clerk).

The minutes of last meeting having been read, were confirmed.

PORTER.—The present porter having obtained a situation as clerk to the Master of the Bradford Workhouse had sent in his resignation, and the question of filling the vacancy occupied a considerable portion of the early part of the meeting. After several amendments had been put and lost as regards the salary to be paid, it was finally decided on the motion of Mr. Riley, seconded by Mr. Sheard, that the Board advertise for a porter and portress at a salary of £35 per annum, with rations. It was also resolved that the advertisement shall be inserted in the Rothwell Times and other papers, the applications to be considered by the Visiting Committee on Monday week.

Other business of a personal character having been transacted, the various formal votes were agreed to, on the lists of wants and returns.

GENERAL ELECTION.

MORLEY DIVISION.

Mr. Milnes Gaskell, the Liberal candidate for the Morley division, addressed a meeting of electors in the Wesleyan School-room, Middleton, on Tuesday evening. The attendance numbered about 200. Mr. Amos Beeton, of Robin Hood, presided, and delivered a stirring and earnest address, urging the electors to shew by the voting shortly to take place that they have appreciated the good work done on their behalf by the Liberal party in the past. Mr. Milnes Gaskell was cordially received and addressed the meeting at considerable length on the condition of the masses of the people and the country in general under Tory Governments in times past and compared them with the present. In speaking of the prospects of further legislation, he said his opponent had said that he (Mr. Gaskell) had not said either one thing or another on the subject of the disestablishment of the Church. He expressed himself in favour of disestablishing the Scotch Church and the English Church in Wales, and in case a responsible minister brought in a bill to disestablish the Church in England, he would give it his hearty support. Speaking of Fair Trade, he said the Tories, who always opposed progress, wanted to recede forty years, and return to the old system, which meant benefit to a few and injury to the multitude. If Free Trade was let go, the working man would receive a less wage, and have to pay a larger amount for the necessaries of life. He was in favour of local Government. In conclusion he asked for their earnest united help so that he might be returned as the member for the Morley Division. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one and the address of the candidate was very loudly cheered several times. A question was asked "What about Egypt?." Mr. Milnes Gaskell replied that the Liberal Government had made many mistakes there. A vote of confidence in Mr. Milnes Gaskell, proposed by Mr. Slimming, seconded by Mr. T. Hartley, was carried with only six dissentients. Mr. T. C. Watson, and Mr. F. Stapleton also briefly addressed the meeting.

Last night Mr. Milnes Gaskell spoke to a crowded meeting at Batley, reiterating his views on disestablishment as given at Middleton, and approving of land reform. Councillor Marriott, the Vicar of Batley, and other gentlemen having spoken in support, the resolution of confidence was carried with five dissentients.

Mr. Jefferson held a meeting at Thornhill on Friday evening last, during which he expressed his willingness to meet any deputation of miners to hear their opinions on practical questions, and thought they ought certainly to be represented on the Royal Commission on Trade. The vote of confidence was carried by a large majority. On Saturday the candidate was at Dewsbury, addressing some 2,000 persons, but the result of the meeting was not so satisfactory.

NORMANTON DIVISION.

On Tuesday evening LIEUT.-COLONEL CHARLESWORTH, the Conservative candidate for this Division, addressed a meeting of electors at Alverthorpe, near Wakefield. Mr. F. B. Glover, President of the Conservative Association, occupied the chair. The meeting was held in the Church School-room, which was filled, and the proceedings were of a lively character, a great many Liberals as well as Conservatives being present. A resolution expressing confidence in Colonel Charlesworth, and pledging the meeting to support him, was proposed by Mr. Luther Colbeck, manufacturer, seconded by Mr. Percy Tew, J.P., of Heath, and supported by Mr. Harold Thomas, barrister, Sheffield. There were several hands held up against the resolution, but the chairman declared it carried by a large majority.

At Normanton on Tuesday, Mr. Pickard secured a vote of confidence, only five persons objecting; he said he was prepared to advocate eight hours' shifts for signal box men.

MR. PICKARD had a successful meeting at Stanley on Thursday week, Mr. Cookson being in the chair.

MR. PICKARD AT WOODLESFORD.

On Monday evening Mr. Pickard, the Liberal candidate for this Division of the West Riding, visited Woodlesford, and had a most enthusiastic meeting in the Board School room. The room was not only crowded, but a large number of persons had to be content to stand in the passage outside the room.

Dr. Nowell presided, and was supported by J. Austin, Esq., J.P., of Castleford, Mr. Hardaker (Bradford), Mr. Cowey (Sharlston), and Mr. John Turner (Rothwell), Mrs. Austin and other ladies also occupying seats on the platform. In opening the proceedings, the chairman warmly congratulated the working men (of whom there were a large majority in the audience) on at last having the privilege of giving a vote for a member of Parliament, and without staying to decide how much of the credit belonged to the Liberals and how much to the Conservatives, the suffrage was now secured, and he trusted they would use the privilege, and use it well. He reminded them, however, that only a year ago, the Tory party were strongly opposed to working men having the franchise, as exhibited by a near neighbour of theirs—James Lowther. But all that was changed now, and the Tories had not only stolen the clothes of the Liberal party, but their watchwords, and even their colour—the yellow primrose. ("Question.") Yes, the yellow was certainly the Liberal colour. It would have been far more likely for them to have donned the blue ribbon,—only then they would have been mistaken for teetotallers, or Salvationists, or something of that class. He thought green would perhaps have been more appropriate, since they had accepted Mr. Parnell's friendship. Mr. Nowell proceeded further to speak on the removal of taxes on food, on clothes, and other necessaries, as a result of Liberal legislation, and sketched some of the proposed reforms promised by their leaders. He rejoiced that they were met that night to welcome Mr. Pickard, their labour candidate, and to celebrate the birthday of freedom and liberty for the working man in being able to join in electing a Parliament of the people, for the people, and by the people. (Cheers.)

Mr. B. Pickard, on rising, was greeted with repeated cheers, and after expressing his pleasure in coming among them, intimated that arrangements are in progress for the holding of a large meeting at Rothwell, at which Mr. Mundella and other gentlemen of note may be expected. He rejoiced that the time had arrived when men would not only be valued for the amount of work that could be got out of them, but would become citizens and electors, able to say what should be done in carrying on the government of this country. When he thought about their past history as working men, he began to wonder what they had been about the last 15 years; but they were now going to have a 'director in the Company', a man to represent the working men of the West Riding in Parliament. He had been selected by an influential meeting to contest this seat, and he felt, as representing 50,000 working men in the West Riding, that they had a just right to one-eighth of the total representation. (Loud cheers.) To the Education Act, so nobly fought out by Mr. Forster, was attributable many of the advantages they now possessed, and he was glad to find that crime had diminished some 26 per cent since that time. He held it was far better and wiser to spend money on the education of children and bringing them up as good citizens, than in paying money for keeping up jails and other places of punishment. In connection with this subject of education, the Church of England say they have done all the education, but he found from the Report of 1873, that grants were made of nearly two millions for the building, etc., of Church schools,—other religious denominations also receiving assistance in this way. Mr. Pickard went on to enumerate some of the Acts passed by the Liberals, specially advantageous to working men, the Trades Union Act, the Mines Act, the Employers' Liability Act, and others. The Ballot Act (applause) was also the work of the Liberals, and while some Tories wish to make people believe that the ballot is not secret, only a day or two before, the Church authorities had stated that "it was secret," and Lord John Manners, good old Tory as he was, had declared that it is secret. There was also the Corrupt Practices Act (applause) passed by the Liberals. He was not going to send them each a printed address to their private houses by post; he couldn't afford that; but four gentlemen alone had promised £200, the Miners' Union had also guaranteed a good sum, and others were coming forward to help, and they could already see their way through, and were determined to carry the campaign out with clean hands. (Loud applause.) They had no intention of spending a lot of money in promoting this election. (Cheers.) They had not a number of carriages to place at the disposal of their friends, although there would be conveyances sufficient to carry the aged and infirm. Let them all be at the poll, and do their part to secure such a majority for the party, as would enable the wheels of the Government to go forward steadily and quickly. Mr. Pickard deprecated the serious loss of time which had taken place in the House, and was strongly in favour of the reform of Procedure. If such proceedings were attempted in Local Boards and other meetings there would soon be an outcry against them, and he could not see why, as one gentleman had said "they did not get to business till half-past twelve or one in the morning." Why not go right forward after prayers; a far better time to go on with business than after wasting several hours in fruitless talk. He believed in prayer, and that a man was not only better able to do his duty after such an exercise, but that the influence of his life on others was likely to be of a higher and more beneficial character. When he had been in the House of Lords, he used to come away asking himself why some half-dozen men should have the right to have so large an influence in the country (for sometimes only that number would assemble at an ordinary sitting) and he felt that there was something about the House that it could not be mended. He believed in the Disestablishment of the Church of England. (Groans and cheers.) He wished it no harm, but there were practices carried on in some churches that no good Christian could approve. What he wanted to see was a state of religious equality, so that the Primitive Methodist and other denominations should stand on exactly the same level as the Church of England, (applause,) and he believed this would be to the general advantage of the country. On the subject of disendowment he would afterwards appeal for the country's opinion. So far as land reform is considered, Colonel Charlesworth and he seemed pretty much agreed. He would also vote for 'home rule for Yorkshire,' so that a properly constituted county authority should be able to relieve Parliament of the loss of time and expense now entailed by the consideration of various railway, canal and other schemes of a local character. There were two or three subjects entirely omitted in his opponent's address, one of which was the Temperance question. He held that if working men and others were competent to send members to Parliament, they ought also to have the right and opportunity of saying what public-houses should be open in their midst. He referred to Lord Salisbury's speech on this subject, in which he was prepared to hand this subject over to a county governing Board. It was no use the publicans taunting the Liberals with being against them; the Tories were turning, and he would not be surprised if they found some of the Tory leaders changing their tone in regard to another important subject before long. He had already spoken on the Royal Commission in his address at Rothwell, (a very fair report of which appeared in the Rothwell Times), in which he showed that the volume of trade had increased, but the profits were less. He now asked them if they could afford to work for less wages? ("No," in chorus.) Were they prepared to work longer hours? ("No," "Yes," "We're on short time now," and many other cries.) He was not going to say a wrong word against his opponent, and did not intend doing so throughout the campaign. He held that they, as working men, had a right to a voice in Parliament, and he asked them to run him in with a good majority. If during the first session, his votes and action did not meet their views, and they asked him to resign, he would at once do so. (Loud cheers.) If any Conservative working man felt he could not conscientiously vote for him, let him vote for the other side. If any of them were like a gentleman he met a day or two ago, let them act like him, when he said "I can't vote for Mr. Pickard, but I shall vote for the Liberals." (Laughter and cheers.) Let them vote straight and solid, and on the day of election, amid cheers and greetings, they would together rejoice in sending one of their own men to the House of Commons. (Loud and continued cheers.)

Mr. Austin, J.P., of Castleford, rose to move the vote of confidence, and after speaking in the highest terms of Mr. Pickard's previous character and history, warmly congratulated him on the position he now held as candidate for the Normanton Division, and he fully anticipated seeing him and others like him taking their seats in the British House of Commons. The Reform of Procedure in the House he had long considered, and he felt it was high time that the country's business was done by business men, in business hours, and in a business-like way, and that the House should no longer be made a sort of political lounge or club. In an excellent speech he further detailed the alterations required and how they might be carried out. Amid repeated opposing interruptions, Mr. Austin recapitulated the obstructive tactics adopted by the Conservatives, the bills carried through by the Liberals, and the present statements and manifestoes of Lords Salisbury and Randolph Churchill, in regard to both domestic and foreign policy. He concluded by again welcoming Mr. Pickard, and urging not only working men, but commercial men to support his candidature. (Loud cheers). (Having to catch an early train, Mr. Hardaker, of Bradford, was compelled to leave without addressing the meeting, much to the disappointment of many).

Mr. E. Cowey seconded the motion in a bold and striking address, the sentiments of which were evidently in accordance with the majority present. He asked his fellows to send Mr. Pickard as one who was fully acquainted with their wishes and opinions, so that they would not have to educate members, as he had had to, on the subjects affecting working men. He warmly denounced the long list of pensions, the land laws and other subjects for reform. Speaking of Conservative professions of friendship, he referred to the manner in which the working classes had been described in years gone by, and denied that they had given them anything, asking, by illustration, whether they considered that what was forced from a man, was given to them. (No, no, and laughter).

Questions having been invited, two were handed up. "Is Mr. Pickard in favour of handing over voluntary schools to the control of the ratepayers." Mr. Pickard replied that he thought whenever government grants were received, such schools should be controlled by the people. In reply to another question affecting the proposed free education and the estimated increased cost of two millions to the country, Mr. Pickard said the enlarged cost would come, he supposed, from the same source as the smaller amount had been provided. Both questions, however, were still debateable. On the resolution being put, it was carried almost unanimously, only eight persons voting against.

In returning thanks, Mr. Pickard expressed his pleasure in addressing so magnificent a meeting, especially where he was told to expect very little. He then moved a vote of thanks to the Chairman, which was seconded by Mr. John Turner. Mr. Turner referred to the mass meeting it was intended to hold at Rothwell shortly, and stated that they also expected Mr. Rücker, as well as Mr. Mundella, and he hoped Mr. H. Gladstone might be secured. The vote having been unanimously accorded, the meeting closed.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

MRS. Meynell-Ingram has purchased the fine schooner Boadicea, 400 tons, from the executors of the late Mr. Thellusson. The yacht is to undergo a refit at Southampton during the next month, and will then proceed to Marseilles, where she will be joined by her owner for a four months' cruise in the Mediterranean.

STOURTON WESLEYAN MUTUAL IMPROVEMENT CLASS.—This class met in the usual way on Friday evening last, when Mr. A. Smith delivered an essay on "Jewels." There was a very good number present, and all seemed well satisfied with the manner in which the essay was rendered. Questions were asked and kindly answered.

GUN ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last, while Mr Tom Braime, of Rothwell, was shooting with some friends near Barnsley, he accidentally pulled the trigger with his coat sleeve, and the gun went off, blowing the young man's left thumb off by the first joint, and considerably injuring the first finger. The accident is greatly to be deplored, as Mr. Braime should have left Rothwell yesterday for India in charge of certain machinery manufactured by Messrs. McLaren, of Hunslet.

DRAMATIC PERFORMANCES. — The Garrick Comedy and Dramatic Company visited Rothwell on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, and gave three entertainments in the Mechanics' Institute. The Hall was crowded on Saturday evening to witness the ever popular "East Lynne," which was presented with considerable effect. On Monday "The Lost Will" was played, and a good company assembled to witness the performance. The company decided to stay another night, and accordingly on Tuesday, "Ten nights in a bar-room" was reproduced. Farces and comediettas have been given each night in addition to the play, and several songs were interspersed, which proved an agreeable change, and enabled the company to prepare for the next piece.

FATAL ACCIDENT TO A ROTHWELL HAIGH COLLIER.—An inquest was held at the Leeds Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon upon Walter Robinson, aged 24, married, of 19, Gosforth-street, Hunslet. Deceased was a coal miner employed at Beeston Pit, Rothwell Haigh, and on Thursday morning he said to John Breear, his brother-in-law, who worked near, that he should remove a prop. Breear urged him not to do so, the roof being very faulty; but he did so, and shortly afterwards a fall of roof took place, and struck him. He went home, and on Sunday told his wife what had occurred, adding that no one was to blame. He afterwards died.—Mr. Jas. Hargreaves attended, and gave evidence as to the workings and other details. Mr. Gerard, the Deputy Inspector of Mines for the district, said he had examined the deceased's working place, and could not imagine a more reckless proceeding. The removal of the prop would only have been to his advantage for about fifteen minutes.—The jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death."

MAGIC LANTERN.—A magic lantern entertainment was given by Mr. Richard Turley, in the Rothwell Primitive Chapel, on Tuesday last. The audience was not very large in number, but the entertainment was an interesting one, being illustrative of that very touching story, 'Christie's Old Organ.' A number of miscellaneous views and moving figures were afterwards exhibited, causing considerable merriment.

MR. PARKER.—No further news has yet been heard of Mr. Alfred Parker, who has now been missing eleven days. Every means have been employed to find out what has become of him, but all alike have proved of no effect. An account of the finding of a well dressed elderly gentleman at Peterborough on the railway appeared in the papers on Tuesday, and a telegram was at once despatched asking if he answered to the description. The reply proved that it was not the right description. It does appear very strange that no clue can be obtained. It is hoped by his sorrowing family, that he may yet be alive, perhaps detained in some public institution. Although the prospect of his ever being found alive seems very dark, yet we cannot despair of his return until it is proved beyond doubt that he is no longer in existence.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.—The Bazaar Committee provided a scrap tea on Monday last, when a good company sat down at the tables, which were presided over by the male members of the society. A supper was partaken of last night, after which a 'free and easy' was held, when songs, readings, recitations, etc., were given by numerous friends, making a very enjoyable social entertainment.

"THE appearance upon entering (Providence House 42, North Street, Leeds), gave us an idea of a fair) and of Furniture and Crystal Palace of mirrors."

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

THE above church being dedicated to All Saints, the dedication festival was celebrated on Sunday last.—All Saints Day—and the following days. The services on Sunday were of a special nature, there was a full choral celebration of Holy Communion after Morning Prayer, at evening service an anthem—Dr. Stainer's "These are they which came" was sung and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Miller, of Middleton. A special service was also held on Monday evening and a sermon preached by the Rev. T. R. Willacy, of Thorganby, near York, who conducted the mission held in the parish a few months ago. On Tuesday evening the Parish Tea was held, and the tables presented a very brilliant and seductive appearance to the large crowd of people who streamed in when the doors were opened. The tea was very good and well served, and there was a comfortable accommodation for all. The entertainment which followed on was held in the "Pointers" Club room. The proceedings were opened with a short address by the vicar. The musical part of the programme comprised a couple of songs by Miss Lindley, of Leeds—"The maid of the mill" (Adams) and "I dreamed a dream"; two songs by Mr. Geo. Nunns—"Tell me Mary how to woo thee" and "Sally in our alley.' A duett by the same singers 'Home to our mountains,' a song by Mr. T. West—"The kings champion," and a cornet solo with pianoforte accompaniment, by Mr. B. Walker. The Hand-bell ringers gave two "campanological" selections, and recitations were contributed by Dr. Glaister and Dr. Purdy. The vocal items of the programme were accompanied by Mr. W. Lockwood organist. The entertainment concluded with a very clever representation of a short drama in two acts—"Brave Hearts" by the late Arthur Matthison. The parts were sustained by the same company of amateurs who gained more than a local celebrity as the exponents of the "Bed of Roses" last year. Mr. W. Wright as "the broken down French Marquis," Miss Castle as "Dorine his daughter," Mr. H. Robins was represented by R. J. Smith, and Mrs. Sanderson by Mrs. R. J. Smith. "Tibbots the footman was undertaken by Mr. A. Batty and "Albert" by Dr. Purdy. The piece was prettily staged, and the performance generally very successful. The general arrangement were left to a committee of ladies and gentlemen with Mr. J. W. Hampshire as secretary, to whom all concerned are much indebted for his untiring and zealous exertions.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

THE Missionary Sermons were preached in the Carlton Wesleyan chapel on Sunday by the Rev. S. Pitt, and Mr. Jos. Varley, of Rothwell. The congregations were moderately good, but no doubt considerably deminished on account of the meetings at the Temperance Hall. On Wednesday the missionary meeting was held, when Mr. Tattersall, of Wakefield, took the chair. Addresses were delivered by the Revs. H. Jefford, and S. Pitt, and the usual annual report was read. The total proceeds amount to about £13. which will be sent to the central fund.

AT Ouzlewell Green, on Monday evening a Service of Song entitled "Tom O' Jack's Lad" was performed in the Wesleyan chapel. The readings were given by Mr. Robert Watkin, and the singing was very heartily done. There was a good audience and a collection was taken at the close. Previous to the meeting, a public tea was held which was well attended.

* * *

A WELL attended miscellaneous entertainment took place in the Carlton Temperance Hall on Saturday night. Recitations were rendered by Messrs J. Clarkson and F. Young. Two concertina solos were played by Mr. T. Woodhead and songs were given by Messrs R. Illingworth, A. Newton, and S. Goldthorpe. An instrumental quartette was carefully performed by several members of the Rothwell Temperance Band as follows:—Messrs A. Blackburn (cornet), J. W. Ward (2nd cornet), W. Dacre (baritone) and B. Wormald (tenor). A clog dance was performed by Mr. W. Wilson. Mr. J Ward accompanied on the piano and opened the proceedings with a pianoforte solo.

THE anniversary of the Carlton Temperance Society was celebrated on Sunday and Monday last. On Sunday Mr. Pearson of Hunslet, preached two sermons in the afternoon and evening, both services being well attended. On Monday there was a tea, well attended and enjoyed. Then a meeting—a very successful one. Dr. Nowell had promised to preside, but, having been announced to preside at Mr. Pickard's meeting at Woodlesford he was unable to attend. In Mr. Nowell's absence Mr. T. W. Taylor occupied the chair, and two excellent addresses were given by Messrs Laycock and Cave, of Leeds. These speeches were really interesting and the crowded audience could not help being interested and edified thereby. Collections were taken at the close towards helping the work of the committee.

Mr. J. J. Dunnington Jefferson is coming. I want to see and hear him and hope to be present at the meeting.

* * *

AT a recent meeting of the Parochial committee it was decided to make considerable improvements in the drainage of Carlton. I hear a rumour to the effect that, a lot of men will be put on the job and it will be begun, continued, and ended next week. This implies either that the improvements are not to be "considerable" after all, or that a very large number of men are to be set on.

* * *

THE fever is being kept down very well, and altogether much better this week. I am sorry however to have to record that Scarlet Fever has broken out in Carlton. Not in the village proper but in Windmill Lane, close on the border of the Rothwell boundary. I believe there are two cases in this house.

TOWN TALK.

A few "last words" are addressed to me by "Peace" in the last issue of the Rothwell Times. The "few last words" are an interesting study. They are indicative of an unsettled unstable and greatly diversified course of thought. 'Peace' has a good opinion of himself and his ability to deal with matters in general, not an unusual failing with ignorant persons, it may be said. He is so much at random in his writing that I may safely say he is sacriligous and sanctimonious, peevish and sainted, ridiculously foolish and saintedly wise within the same hour. Further he has the audacity to say "I hope I shall have to thank our respected vicar for something from him on this subject." "Peace" says "sound arguments are not in his (Gossip's) line." He believes in argument whole and sole. He runs down sentiment and imagination together. Argument, gentlemen, give me argument, is his cry, but he concludes by saying to my imagination they (the bells) said, something more like this, "Work away lads make use of your tools, by banging us (bells), we shall silence the fools.

* * *

That attack upon the Salvation Army a little over a week ago cannot be condemned in too strong language. In all justice let them have their own way. They have a right to it, just as any other sect. If they were an annoyance to the woman, other steps might have been taken to put a stop to the meetings.

* * *

A couple of local Tory friends, dressed in their Sunday clothes, called upon me this week to secure my vote for Colonel Charlesworth in the forthcoming election. Of course, I at once intimated that I did not intend telling either them or anybody else for whom I intended to vote. Why have the ballot at all, if we are to tell the way in which we vote with our own lips. Canvassing is abominable, and must be dissappproved by all right-thinking men. The new electors don't require advising on the matter, they can think and act for themselves. Some of the canvassers are men who have never voted themselves, and who won't vote in this election, not having the qualification necessary; some of them know as much about politics as they do about the aborigines of New Zealand. Are these the men to advise us on this important subject? No, let them stop at home and cut their wisdom teeth, and minding their own business, allow other people to do the same.

* * *

I was delighted to see that paragraph in the Rothwell Times last week about the new railway. "It must be going on" people are saying on all sides. One day this week I saw Mr. Jos. Charlesworth and several other gentlemen inspecting (as I thought) the course to be taken, and this put another spoke in the wheel, and made me hope more and more that soon we shall see the completed line. I had a dream the following night. I heard a roaring rumbling sound, like the falling of many waters. I looked up from the paper on which I was writing "Town Talk" and beheld a monstrous engine, coming along, down the pastures and across Churchfield. The engine travelled at a tremendous speed, and as it swept along it left behind a perfect and complete line of railway. The rails appeared with perfect regularity, a signal post popped up here, a bridge appeared a bit further on. Most wonderful of all, when the marvellous engine reached Wood Lane, there came out of the mist a beautiful Railway Station with "ROTHWELL." on either side of the line. Then I awoke, and found it was but a dream, but consoled myself with the thought that perhaps it was a sign that the long-looked-for-line would speedily be made, and I said to myself "may I be there to see."

* * *

THE latest Salvation Army novelty is a "Treacle Parkin Lovefeast" held this year at Rothwell on the 5th of November. Will they have a "Spice Bread Lovefeast" at Christmas? or a "Fish Lovefeast" on Good Friday.?

* * *

AFTER all the fuss that was made about the thieves breaking into Mr. Lawton's house the other day, the offender has been discharged, I hear. How did such a thing come about, I wonder.

GOSSIP.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

Apologising for my borrowing the above heading, I shall offer your readers the following remarks, which I think are worthy of some attention. I start with facts and compare them with rumours.

Fact No. 1.—A panic seized Europe late in the tenth century. The world was to come to an end in the year 1000 A.D. It did not. A feeling of thankful piety led many to build and endow churches. Ilbert de Lacey, to whom William the Conqueror had granted the Barony of Pontefract, founded St. Clement's Chapel in Pontefract Castle, endowing it with charges on his demesne in Rothwell and elsewhere. His successors granted, in their turn, the Rothwell tithes to the Priory of Nostel, together, most probably, with the church fabric, which appears to have been built by them about the same time, if we may judge from a portion of a pillar found near the foundations of the present church, and at present in the possession of Mr. Thomas Stainer, of Rothwell, seeing it is in the style prevailing between 1066—1154. In 1259, the Vicar of Nostel Priory presented Roger de Warwycke, presbyter, to the new vicarage at Rothwell, which was then made into a distinct benefice, and what is more, was endowed with such tithes in and about Rothwell as belonged to the Priory of Nostel, and which therefore came originally out of the pockets of the De Lacies.

Rumour No. 1.—Rothwell Church and endowments are State paid and State made; and even if not, in any case they now belong to the State, and by disestablishment and disendowment Rothwell Church "might be used for secular purposes of a public kind"; or "might be sold out and out to the Episcopalian or other religious body."

Note.—Fancy such a scene as the following being even legally possible. The Government Agent speaking; "who bids for t'ould church of Roddill? Going! going!! gone!!!

Fact No. 2.—The Queen—whom God long defend—in obedience to Magna Charta, which declares "that the church shall maintain her rights and liberties inviolate"—took an oath at her Coronation to "maintain and preserve inviolably the settlement of the Church of England, and the doctrine, worship, discipline and government thereof, as by law established."

Rumour No. 2.—Four hundred candidates for Parliament are pledged, on the opportunity presenting itself, to ask the Queen to affix her signature to an Act of Parliament which will amount to a distinct violation of this her Coronation oath. I now proceed with rumours and confront them with facts.

Rumour No. 3.—The church property is the property of the nation as a whole.

Fact No. 3.—If so, the State is a shocking bad landlord. How is it you cannot get one penny for repairs of the churches and parsonages, although the State does keep in repair the buildings of the British Museum and the National Galleries? It is because church property does not belong to the State. The museum and galleries do.

Rumour No. 4.—The church at the Reformation became a new church, founded by Henry, who gave the property of the old church "of Rome in England" to his new church.

Fact No. 4.—A re-formed church is of necessity an old church. Our church at its reformation no more became another church, than our State became another State on the passing of the great Reform Bill. Besides our church was never once called "the church of Rome in England."

Note.—When a miner goes to work, his face is as other Englishmen, white; when he walks home from work his face is as those of the children of Ham, black; when he's "fettled up" he is himself again. In a word, he undergoes a process similar to that which our church underwent; he is formed, deformed, and reformed. But ask his missus if he's the same measter or another, and she'll soon tell you, "He has his ups and downs, but he's t'feather for sure, for all that."

Note.—A church is a living body of souls, laymen and clergy. Of the 9,400 clergy before the Reformation, all but 186 remained clergy of the church, after the reformation; and the laity were in even greater proportion, being "Protestants" to the back-bone. Surely the continuity of the church is with the 98 per cent. who remained, rather than with the 2 per cent. who went out.

Rumour No. 5.—The Liberation Society is a society for the liberation of the church from State control, and has for its ulterior aim "the promotion of christianity."

Fact No. 5.—The Liberation Society has altered its title. It used to call itself the Anti-State Church Association, and as anti means dead against, it used to be dead against the Church of England, as the mother church of this country.

Note.—I add "as the mother church," in fairness both to the Liberation Society and the church. The Church of England is the State church just because of the very fact that she existed at least in the 3rd century, and so herself, through her members in their civil capacity as well as in their ecclesiastical, formed and composed Parliament, which was not in existence until the 13th century, that is six hundred years after the church had elaborated the parochial system.

Note.—The Liberation Society enlists, in its holy work of furthering christianity, all the atheists, and many of the secularists in England. "What part hath he that believeth with an infidel"?

Fact No. 6.—Four hundred candidates are to day pledged to disestablishment and disendowment.

Note.—My statements and quotations are gathered from 'Batty's History of Rothwell,' 'The Radical Programme' (a book Mr. Chamberlain commends), 'The Coronation Service,' the Leeds Mercury, and other sources. I have heard it said; "Oh, but then, what you talk about will never be done." Perhaps not, but only not, if we refuse to support those pledged to the programme of disestablishment and disendowment.

I am, yours, &c.,

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

> "Slander'd to death by villains,
> That dare as well answer a man, indeed,
> As I dare take a serpent by the tongue;
> Boys, apes, braggarts, jacks, milksops!"

On Monday evening last, a youth (whose name indicates that he does not like learning, hail from the East,) was in the train denouncing to some of his companions in unmeasured terms the labour candidate, who was to address the electors of Woodlesford the same evening: being afflicted or affected in his mental and moral as well as his physical vision, the youth could perceive nothing but his own overpowering grandeur in vulgar abuse, until, nearing Woodlesford Station, a hand was put upon his shoulder with the remark "I am Pickard, who are you?" The youth was dumb, but one of his companions having a wholesome fear of consequences, addressed him by a false name, which will doubtless stick to him.

THE DISESTABLISHMENT QUESTION.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I did not receive a copy of your paper for the 23rd ult., until a late hour on the 29th ult., when it was too late to notice Mr. Crawford's letter in your last week's issue. To reply to each statement in his boasting letter would require more time than I can now command, and, perhaps, more space than at this busy electioneering time you could afford. When the approaching General Election is over there will be a better opportunity of having a fuller discussion of this important question on the platform and through the press. It is not likely that either party will let this subject sleep. The Liberationists are anxious that both sides of the Anti-state church question should be presented to the people. They wish Disestablishment to be the result of national conviction, and not of any convulsion amongst churchmen themselves. Let there be a thorough but fair discussion and no abuse and misrepresentation on either side. In the mean time let me say, to use the language of "The Congregationalist," for October, "If the Church Defence party have nothing more to advance except paradoxical and startling assertions that the Church is not established, that it is no more under the control of the State than Dissenting communities, that all endowments are its own private property, bequeathed to it by pious ancestors in [illegible] down to our time, then the case will go by default. There are surely better arguments than these, and yet we can hardly say that the party have nothing more to advance [illegible] the Bishop of Rochester, who insists that Disestablishment would be a huge [illegible] vast districts to a state little above Paganism." We have long thought that those who urge this argument, must in their own secret hearts, be [illegible]. Hoping you will be able to find space for this brief letter,

I am, Dear Sir,
Yours truly,
J. ANDREW.

☞ DO READ THIS!

NO person need despair of a speedy restoration to health and strength if he or she will carefully peruse the following, and learn that the great

SELF - RESTORER,

OR,

DR. BELL'S

Patent Voltaic Belt

is the safest grandest, and most certain discovery ever known for the cure of all bodily ailments arising from indiscretion and other causes. To those afflicted with Nervousness, Nervous Debility, Loss of Physical power, Weakness of Body and Mind, &c., this invention presents a means of cure of so unfailing a character that the greatest sufferers from any of the above distressing complaints may, with confidence, rely upon being quickly restored to a sound state of health and strength. In fact, the many marvellous cures performed by the "Self-Restorer" (UNDENIABLE PROOF OF WHICH CAN BE GIVEN) at once places these extraordinary Instruments far beyond anything of the kind hitherto offered to the public. In order to prove that these Belts are all they claim to be, it would be as well to mention the following circumstance:—

"In the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division) an Injunction was granted on January 24th, 1884, restraining certain unprincipled persons from selling any colourable imitations of the "Self-Restorer" Belt, the Jury giving the proprietor a verdict with costs and damages for such infringement." The Belt was also explained, and its Electrical powers fully tested in open Court, both before Mr. Justice Hawkins and the Jury, upon the same occasion.

Can any other manufacturer of Electric Belts produce evidence of SO SEVERE A TEST? Surely after such proof as this, the most sceptical will believe that it really possesses the great restorative powers ascribed to it.

It may be as well to mention that the action of the "Self-Restorer" is gentle, but exceedingly effective. The mild, but beneficial, current generated by its use, braces the system, and by its benign influence gradually builds up the frame until the mind begins to get brighter, the natural functions become stronger, the elastic spirits of youth once more apparent, and so the progress towards recovery steadily goes on until the patient ultimately realises the fact that he is once more young. In cases of weakness, arising from any of the before mentioned causes, these Belts are at once the most simple and at the same time the most certain remedy ever invented or discovered. They are entirely self-acting and NO ACIDS being required, can be worn at any time without any wetting process or inconvenience to the patient, the salt contained in the insensible perspiration being sufficient to keep it in action.

The cures performed are not of a fleeting character, but permanent, providing the instructions sent with each instrument are carefully adhered to. It speedily removes that most miserable feeling, "lowness of spirits," so often experienced; and after being worn a short time, enables a man to look at the future in a more hopeful light, as the certainty of a rapid cure relieves the mind of a great burden.

How many persons who, by living too generously, have become prematurely old, and consequently have these wretched, morbid feelings? They have an idea that nature is decaying, and the pleasures of life have departed. In nine cases out of ten this is far from being the fact. Nature has not decayed: it is simply lying dormant, and needs but a little assistance to once more assert its presence. "The creaking gate requires oil, or it will continue to creak." So it is with the human frame. Assist it where weak, put it in a position to recover itself, and you will find that after all life has its pleasures, and you the restored inclination to partake of them.

The beneficial action of these truly life-giving Belts upon the human frame has been proved so conclusively, by thousands of unsolicited testimonials, that no shadow of doubt remains as to their extraordinary efficacy. They can be worn by either sex with the greatest ease and comfort, without fear of discovery, and by a delicate arrangement can be adjusted to act directly upon the weakened parts, so that immediately upon contact with the body, an electric current is at once produced of a mild, but withal of so efficacious a character, that an almost instantaneous improvement becomes noticeable. The heavy hanging feeling wears off, the eye becomes brighter, the brain clearer, until at last the patient feels in his own mind that he is once more in the possession of the greatest blessing upon earth, viz., HEALTH, STRENGTH, ENERGY, and MANLY VIGOUR.

In cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Paralysis, &c., there is no cure in the world to be compared to these Belts. Nature requires assistance in all these complaints, and that assistance to be thoroughly effective, must be obtained from nature herself—thus, by calling into operation Electricity, a natural ally, congenial to all constitutions, is obtained, and the result is in almost every case permanent cures are effected. Again, in cases of Consumption these Belts have been the SOLE MEANS of restoring thousands of both sexes to a healthy and vigorous existence when that fell disease "Consumption" had, in the opinion of many eminent medical men, marked them as its victims. These are facts which can be proved to be absolutely true.

To persons desirous of further information: instructions will be given away, in 130 pp. pamphlet, showing sufferers how they may be restored to Health, Strength, and Manly Vigour, without the Aid of Medicine, or will be sent, post-free, together with all particulars as to regimen, diet, &c. Important Notice.

Having been asked upon many occasions how it is that our Belts are higher priced than those now being advertised by new firms (with whom we have no connection whatever) we beg to call attention to the following:

This appliance is POSITIVELY WHAT IT PROFESSES TO BE—an "ELECTRIC BELT," which may be proved before purchasing by the Galvanometer, &c. It was explained and fully tested before Mr. Justice Hawkins and a Jury in the Court of Queen's Bench, January 24th, 1884. Moreover, it ENTIRELY DIFFERS from anything of the kind advertised.

A perusal of which will at once show the most dubious that our Belts are, without doubt, infinitely superior to anything of a like character extant, and are as beneficial to exhausted nature as represented. Their having stood the test for [illegible] years is a sufficient further guarantee of their genuineness.

TO THE ELECTORS
OF THE
NORMANTON DIVISION
OF THE
SOUTHERN PART OF THE WEST RIDING OF THE COUNTY OF YORK.

GENTLEMEN,

Having been adopted by the Liberal representatives of the electors of the Normanton Division, I now beg to lay my views before you on the many and varied questions uppermost in the minds of this and other constituencies throughout the United Kingdom.

Although brought into the field as a Labour Candidate, I may safely say that I am as much a Liberal as any other candidate before our Yorkshire constituencies.

I am in favour of amending the Employers' Liability Act of 1880, in the direction suggested by Mr Burt, M.P.; amending the present Mines' Act; supporting Enginemen's Certificates and Inspection of Boilers' Bills; amending the Acts relating to Coroners' Courts, Law of Contract, Appointment of Checkweighmen, Inspectors of Mines, and Public Prosecutor. I am in favour of abolishing City Dues on Coal, and other charges having an undue tendency to restrict the coal trade.

I am in favour of drastic alterations in the Land Laws, Local Government, and other purely local questions.

I believe land should be cheaply and easily transferred. Land must be made as saleable as ships, hay, corn, or coal, and primogeniture and entail swept away. No person should have the right to tie up land. Every man being in possession of land should possess the power of its disposal.

I shall give support to Mr. Collings in respect to Peasant Proprietary.

I believe in shorter Parliaments.

I may also say that I believe each Borough and County Division should, out of the rates, pay the returning officers' fees, and that, during the time members are detained in London on Parliamentary business, a salary should be paid them out of the Imperial Exchequer. The Ministry, Court, and other officials are paid, therefore I see no moral degradation in paying a member. If the fact that all persons receiving wages or salaries for the work they do causes them to do it badly, then a great reformation is necessary throughout the United Kingdom and the world. Such is not a fact, therefore the moral points the other way.

The Affirmation Bill will receive my cordial support. Since the middle wall of partition has been broken down, and both Jews and Gentiles allowed to take their seats, minus taking the oath, it is quite clear we must extend the operation of the principle, and allow members to affirm in preference to taking the oath.

I am a firm believer in both Civil and Religious Liberty, and will vote for all measures having these objects in view. The State Church is doomed as a National Institution.

I am strongly in favour of both Local Option and Sunday Closing.

I am in favour of discontinuing all pensions and sinecure offices. The money now paid for these objects would employ many Mines, Factory, and other Inspectors.

I am in favour of Free Elementary Education. Free Schools should be a National Institution.

I am in favour of abolishing Qualifications of Members for Town Councils, Board of Guardians, and Local Boards. I consider these positions should be as accessible as the House of Commons and School Boards.

I am in favour of Reform of the House of Commons and Abolition of the House of Lords.

I am in favour of extending to Ireland all Acts affecting other portions of the United Kingdom.

I believe Ireland should have similar treatment to England, Scotland, or Wales. I am not in favour of Home Rule, if that means separation.

I am a strong believer in Peace, Retrenchment, and Reform, and a firm supporter of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M.P.

In respect to Free Trade versus Fair Trade, I have very little to say, only that my reading and experience prove to me that if the food of the million is taxed at all it will not be done for the benefit of the people, but in the interests of the privileged few. Great Britain with Free Trade has become extremely wealthy, and the poor have received cheaper food and clothing than they otherwise would have done. I have not yet been able to see how any working man is to benefit by a 5s. per quarter minimum tax upon corn.

If Free Trade has knocked off strong fetters, created more work, and more easily filled the stomach and clothed the body, in the name of common sense and the continued good of the many, do not let us be beguiled into replacing the fetters which bound our forefathers.

I am not in favour of foreign wars, but would fight to the last in defence of real British interests.

I appeal to all voters in the Division to give me their support, in order that the Liberal and Labour interest may be fairly represented in the next Parliament.

In conclusion let me say, at all meetings hitherto held I have received the cordial support of all parties, and if the same good feeling is shown and earnest work performed on the day of election, I shall be placed at the head of the poll, to assist in the great work of progress as initiated and carried on for past generations by such men as Mr. Gladstone, Marquis of Hartington, Mr. Chamberlain, and the great Liberal Party.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
BENJAMIN PICKARD.

GENERAL ELECTION.

THE POLLING.

It is now definitely settled that the present Parliament will be dissolved on Wednesday next. The writs for the new elections will therefore be received on the day following. The polling day for Morley division is fixed for November 30th, and for Normanton on December 1st. There will be two polling stations for Rothwell at the National Schools.

Mr. Turner, sen., and Mr. Nowell have used their best efforts to secure a second station at Stourton, but owing to certain matters, Mr. Dixon, the presiding officer, shewed them that it could not be done.

NORMANTON DIVISION.

LIEUT.-COL. CHARLESWORTH addressed a crowded meeting at Normanton, on Friday evening, Mr. Percy Tew presiding. The proceedings were lively, but, although he was supported by Mr. Stuart-Wortley, M.P., the Under Secretory for the Home Department, and other gentlemen, the voting was most decidedly adverse. The chairman, in excepting the vote of thanks for presiding, observed that nothing had been said which was not a fair expression of dissent from what was being said by the speakers.

On Tuesday, Col. Charlesworth visited Whitwood, the Rev. Dr. Needham (rector) occupying the chair. There was a large attendance, and a unanimous vote of confidence was carried.

MR. B. PICKARD addressed a meeting at Lakelock on Monday evening, when his candidature was approved, with two dissentients. On Tuesday evening, Mr. Pickard scored a 'big' success at Normanton, where he addressed some 2000 persons. Lord Houghton presided, and was supported by Mr. Herbert Gladstone, M.P., with other local gentlemen. There were only two hands against the vote. On Wednesday, Mr. Pickard spoke to the Altofts people, and a resolution was passed, with several votes against.

MORLEY DIVISION.

On Monday evening, MR. DUNNINGTON JEFFERSON held a meeting at East Ardsley, Mr. Samuel Procter in the chair, and a numerous audience attended. The vote was reported by the chairman as in favor of the candidate, a number of the opposition disputing the statement, however.

At Brownhill (Batley) Mr. Geo. Sheard presided at a highly successful meeting on Tuesday evening, full confidence in the candidate being expressed.

At Bruntcliffe, on Wednesday, Mr. Holton took the chair at a crowded meeting, but the result of the voting was unsatisfactory.

MR. MILNES GASKELL, the Liberal candidate, spoke at West Ardsley on Monday, a torchlight procession having secured a large audience. Dr. Young presided, and the vote of confidence was unanimously passed.

MR. J. J. DUNNINGTON JEFFERSON
AT LOFTHOUSE AND CARLTON.

Last Friday evening, Mr. Dunnington Jefferson, of Thickett Priory, made his first acquaintance with the electors of Lofthouse and Carlton, as the Conservative candidate for the Morley division. Two meetings were held, at Lofthouse National School-room, commencing at half-past six, and at Carlton Board School an hour later. Mr. Jefferson's addresses ran on similar lines at each place, so that a portion of his remarks at Carlton need not be repeated, as they occur in the Lofthouse report.

Mr. J. Charlesworth, of Lofthouse Park, occupied the chair, and Mr. Jefferson was supported by the Rev. J. R. Crawford, Messrs. E. T. Ingham C. E. Charlesworth, W. Holton, B. P. Hepworth, E. Butler, J. H. Rayner W. Hargreaves, W. Hartley, T. Hargreaves, W. W. Scarth, and T. Oliver. There were also present a number of ladies including Mrs J. Charlesworth, Mrs. C. E. Charlesworth, Mrs. Crawford, and Mrs. T. Hargreaves. The room was nearly filled, and the meeting was a most agreeable and orderly one, there being few interruptions, and closing with an almost unanimous vote of confidence.

Mr. Charlesworth, in opening the meeting was heartily welcomed, and in introducing Mr. Jefferson to the electors, expressed the hope that they would listen attentively to each candidate, so as to decide fairly on which side they would use the vote conferred by the Franchise Bill. He referred to the faults of the Liberal Government and denounced their running away from office as they did, and declared them unfit to carry on the business of the country any longer; he asked them if they were going to send the same lot again? (No) He solicited for Mr. Jefferson a fair hearing, and hoped they might be able to convert any of the other side who happened to be present. As there was another meeting at Carlton, he thought it would be better to postpone any questions till then, when their candidate would be glad to answer them after his address there.

Mr. Dunnington Jefferson, on rising, was cordially received, for which he expressed his thanks, and asked them to give him a fair hearing. He maintained that whichever party deserved most credit for the Franchise Bill, it was through the Conservatives and the House of Lords, that the Redistribution Bill was passed, and that they had now the honor of sending a member for Morley division. He wished to speak principally on trade questions, and he pointed out that colliers and the coal trade are almost entirely dependent on other industries, and as other trades were so fearfully depressed, their trade was low. In this condition of things, the Government had got a Royal Commission to institute enquiries on the reason of this depression, and try to remedy it, but hardly a Liberal would accept a seat on that Commission. ("Shame.") This proved that the Conservatives were more anxious to promote good trade than the Liberals. Though a free trader himself, he wanted other countries to act on those principles too, and shewed that while we pay heavy tariffs to other countries for goods, they can send their productions free to us, thereby cutting out our own manufactures, instancing the sugar, iron, and other industries. It was just the same as the army and navy which we maintain; we do not wish to fight, but if we are not prepared for defending ourselves, we are at the mercy of others. So with free trade; at present we are 'cut down' by other competing countries by reason of our ports being open for their produce, while their tariffs are against our exports. Foreigners have also the advantage of England, in that they had no Factory Acts, they work longer hours, and for less wages, and he was sorry to say that some Liberal statesmen were making goods over the water, and then bringing to England to sell. The shipping trade, agriculture, manufactures, were all in a depressed state, and to his mind there must be some form of reciprocity. (Cheers.) Railway tariffs required re-adjustment, and the mode of taxation altering. Of the Acts promised during the Midlothian campaign 5 years ago, only the Malt Tax had been passed, and this was a very doubtful benefit. Mr. Jefferson then went on to mention several things which Lord Salisbury had accomplished since his accession to office:—the Egyptian Loan completed, war with Russia averted, colonial relations improved, the Irish Coercion Acts dropped, all within four months; and concluded by urging their support of the Conservative party. (Loud cheers.) In anticipation of questions, he would like to state that he would never vote for disestablishment and disendowment, which he considered spoliation and robbery. (Cheers.) The Church had given to the State 90 millions of money, and all the Church had received from the State was 2½ millions. As regards free education, it sounded very well, but where were the two millions to come from in place of school fees, and the 18 millions for school buildings? He thought that parents would not like to be pauperised. Having again referred to his wish to have any questions postponed to the Carlton meeting, Mr. Jefferson asked his hearers to vote conscientiously, and if they thought the Conservative policy best, to vote for him. (Loud applause.)

Mr. C. E. Charlesworth moved the resolution of confidence and support, feeling that after making every enquiry as to Mr. Jefferson's character and conduct at home, and hearing his manly and straight-forward speech that night, he was perfectly satisfied with their choice. Quoting the late Mr. Macdonald, M.P., he said the 'Conservatives had done more for the working classes in five years than the Liberals dared to do in fifty.' Of the 31 wars which had taken place, 24 were under Liberal Ministers and only 7 under Conservatives, and during three of these Mr. Gladstone was a member of the Government. The statement that Conservatives were afraid of educating the working classes, was a lie; long before the Liberals commenced, the Conservative party were educating the children of the country, and saving 78 per cent of the rates, while the school-masters were nearly all drawn from the Church Conservative party. (Loud cheers.) Mr. Ingham, in seconding the motion, expressed his belief that if the Church of England were disestablished and disendowed, every other sect and denomination must die—("Nonsense")—at any rate that they were so closely connected as to be seriously affected. On the motion being put, the large majority voted in favour, some eight or nine being against. A vote of thanks was hurriedly passed to the chairman—with unanimity.

It being considerably after half-past seven, the ladies and gentlemen previously enumerated at once drove down to Carlton, a considerable number of persons following on foot. On arriving at the School-room, every seat was fully occupied, and many standing, so that during the entire meeting the speakers, and most of the Lofthouse people, had to content themselves without a seat.

From the first it was evident that those present were not all of one mind, and the Carltoners having been reinforced by considerable numbers of Rothwell politicians, a lively time was at once anticipated. Mr. Charlesworth having briefly opened the proceedings, Mr. Jefferson entered on the discussion of the various subjects referred to at Lofthouse. He was, however, subjected to constant interruption, and had altogether a warm hour, although he never once flinched from a question, or lost his gentlemanly demeanour. In the course of his address, he said he would not tax anything used for manufacturing purposes, but would put a heavier sum on luxuries, as wines, silks, etc. Wages generally were low, and he feared they would have to be still further reduced, owing to the large numbers of people thrown out of work, the only remedy for which seemed to be the keeping of our goods at home, and the raising of the price of our exports. During his remarks on the Church and State question, the confusion and dissent was great, and it was with difficulty that the meeting was kept on. Free education would suit him personally very well, as it would relieve him of the expense he now bore of providing out of his own pocket for the deficiency in his own parish schools, as his people paid no school fees. (Cheers.) He believed that people became more Conservative as they were more educated. The Conservative policy was firmness and consistency towards other countries, and the support and assistance of trade at home. He thanked the Liberals present for the fair hearing they had given him, and expressed his willingness to answer any questions. (Loud cheers.)

Among the list of questions handed up were the following—"Are you in favor of the repeal of Vaccination Acts?" No; the opinion of medical men is almost entirely against, and that it is a great blessing. (Mingled cheers and groans.) I am not in favor of cumulative penalties. (Cheers.)

"Are you in favor of Local Option?" No, it is a tyrannical and arbitrary measure; 252 men have no right to say that 251 of their fellow residents shall not have a glass of beer.

The matter should be left with the Local Government Board. (A voice—"Sir Charles Dilke.") Yes, Sir Charles Dilke or Lord Salisbury.

"Would you vote in favor of the Pension List?" I am in favor of cutting down a good many of these, and any rewards should be granted in a lump sum, as was done with Lord Wolseley.

He would support the opening of museums on Sunday; he approved Sir S. Northcote's action in preventing Mr. Bradlaugh from taking his seat; he was not responsible for Lord R. Churchill's proposal of a penny school fee; he would go in for the ballot at Local Board elections.

"If a working man votes Tory, don't you think either he or his mother had been bitten by a mad dog?' (Loud laughter.) No, I think he had been well educated and profited thereby. (Cheers and Laughter.)

"Do you think you have one millionth part of a chance in this contest? (Laughter.) When I commenced a fortnight ago, I thought the odds were 6 to 4 against me, but since visiting the electors, I consider there is fair probability of being returned at the head of the poll. (Cheers.) I'm glad to find the chances are improving; when this question was first asked, it was a hundred-millionth part of a chance, now it is one-millionth.

[We did not hear his reply to the next question, whether he would put a tax on bachelors.]

Mr. Armitage asked if the candidate would say how many Conservatives voted in favor of the Corn Laws Repeal? 'I cannot say without referring. (Cheers and groans.)

There being no further questions, the chairman called on Mr. Oliver, of Carlton, to move a resolution. Mr. Mitchell asked to be allowed to ask a question. The chairman said it was too late now; unless he had it in writing. Considerable confusion occurred just here between the two parties, Mr. Beeton eventually urging Mr. Mitchell to desist, and allow the meeting to proceed. Mr. Oliver then moved the acceptance of Mr. Dunnington Jefferson as a fit and proper person to represent the division in Parliament, in a capital speech. He thanked their candidate for his addresses, and for the manly way in which he had answered the questions. He warmly approved his opinions on land and on trade depression, and believed that the Conservative party would carry out all reasonable and necessary reforms. He had no doubt that if the election had to depend on Lofthouse and Carlton that Mr. Jefferson would be returned. (Cheers.)

Mr. C. E. Charlesworth seconded the resolution, his reception being most cordial. He referred to the scenes he had witnessed in Hyde Park against the House of Lords, who were endeavouring to pass the Redistribution Bill for their benefit. Mr. Chamberlain, who had made his money out of the working classes (three cheers for Chamberlain) had guarded himself with policemen, when some starving men came to ask his help and advice, and it was a rare good thing for this parish that they had Joe Charlesworth living at the top of the town, and not Joe Chamberlain. (Loud applause.) He spoke very highly of Mr. Jefferson's private benefactions and home character, and was quite sure they would have a worthy member in him. (Loud cheers.)

The Rev. J. R. Crawford supported the motion, and said that though his family had been Liberal for 200 years, he felt that in this crisis, when the Church was in danger, he must join with her defenders. He held it was the parson's place to speak out now (No, not in the pulpit,) —now when their Church is in danger. He referred with satisfaction to the recent manifesto of Liberal peers in favour of Church defence, and found therein commendation for his own secession. He went on, amid much confusion and opposition, to argue various points against disestablishment and disendowment, and concluded by urging all to vote for Mr. Jefferson, who would certainly try to defend the Church from these dangers. (Cheers and cries of "Vote.")

It being nearly ten o'clock, the chairman, amid the greatest excitement, proceeded to put the resolution, when it was quite evident more than half the hands were against. The chairman at once stated that he was sorry to say the vote was against them, but he trusted it would not be so at the polling day. The announcement was received with deafening applause, and 'three cheers for Gaskell' soon resounded through the room. Amid intense excitement, a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to the chairman, through Mr. Thos. Hargreaves and Mr. Raymond Ellis, for his courtesy and impartiality in presiding, after which the people dispersed.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons the good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and desponding that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain, or inconvenience. LECTURE ON PHYSIOGNOMY.

Through the influence of Mr. Smith, Chatham House, the Rothwell Temperance Society had the good fortune to be presented with a lecture by Dr. Wells, the celebrated phrenologist and physiognomist, whose course of lectures in Leeds has been so successfully carried out during the past few weeks. The lecture, entitled "Faces we meet and how to read them," was delivered by the Professor, on Wednesday, to a good though not crowded audience. Mr. Smith occupied the chair, and conducted the meeting in a genial and friendly manner. Dr. Wells in commencing the lecture said he always liked to address an intelligent audience, but as many before him had their hats on he could not estimate the measure of intelligence they possessed, whereupon all hats were displaced in the twinkling of an eye. The lecturer said that a scientific knowledge of physiognomy was of invaluable service to persons in all stations of life; the tradesman ought to know his customer, the traveller his travelling companion, the master his servant. The several features of the face were described separately and their various significations pointed out and illustrated by a large number of well executed pictures. At the conclusion of the lecture Dr. Wells examined publicly the heads of four persons from the audience, and succeeded in giving a very correct description of the character and tendencies of those on whom he operated, and although the examination was in a measure amusing to the audience it could not fail to shew on the most forceful way possible the insight that may be gained into the character of those among whom we live by a careful study of the subject. The usual votes of thanks to the chairman and lecturer brought the meeting to a close. Dr. Wells visited the Hall entirely free of cost and our thanks are richly deserved by him for this visit to the country.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

STOURTON WESLEYAN MUTUAL IMPROVEMENT CLASS.—This class met in the usual way on Friday evening last, to hear an essay delivered by Mr. J Standige, of Middleton, on "True Heroism." A very good audience was present, and the essay passed off in a very profitable way.

OUR BOYS was first produced at the Vauderville Theatre in London in January 1875. It was a great success, having the greatest run of any play—over 1000 nights. Since then it has been revived 3 or 4 times in London and always with great success. Mr. David James, the original Butterman, has up to this date played Perkin Middlewick no fewer than 2,500 times. Over and above its great success in town, it has been played in every theatre in Great Britain, America and the Colonies, and has been translated into French, German and Italian, and acted abroad. The opportunity of seeing such a markedly successful play should not be missed, especially as it will be rendered by amateurs whose histrionic abilities are well known.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—Yesterday at about half-past three o'clock in the afternoon, Mr. W. Jordan, farmer, Rothwell Haigh, who two or three months ago, mysteriously disappeared and was missing for some days before he turned up again, attempted to commit suicide by throwing himself into the Aire & Calder canal at Bullock Bridge. Shortly before the time named, Jordan called at Mr. G. Ducker's house, "The Anchor Inn" which is situate close to Bullock Bridge, and bought two glasses of beer which he drank, and while he was there he destroyed several notes for goods received. He left the Inn and very shortly Miss Ducker saw him plunge into the water. She instantly raised an alarm, and her father presently appeared and securing a long wood rail succeeded in hooking him and dragged him to the side and pulled him out. Mr. Ducker than procured someone to assist him and took him home. Having had time to change and be made comfortable again, the Police-Officer arrived and arrested him, taking him to Wakefield goal. He will be brought before the West Riding Magistrates to day.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.—A very successful entertainment was given in the Rothwell Temperance Hall on Saturday evening, when every available seat was occupied. The programme was a very lengthy one and proved to be of excellent quality too. Miss Belle Stobbs who has performed in this hall several times before, scored another success by her amusing comic and character songs, which she renders in perfect style, and which received hearty applause from the audience. Mr. Gibson Taylor, ventriloquist and mimic, added greatly to the interest of the programme by his excellent ventiloquial exercises, which produced much merriment, and gave him a place as one of the favourites. Mr. Tom Hughes (Basso) and Mr. A. Fieldhouse (tenor) rendered songs in good style and made a good impression. The pianoforte accompaniment was rendered by Mr. C. Brook in a careful and tasty manner.

WESLEYAN CHAPEL.—In connection with the Ladies' Sewing meeting, the usual fortnightly tea was on Wednesday provided by the young men of the Society, the nett balance being £2 8s. The thanks of the ladies were presented by Mrs. Seanor and Mrs. Pitt in a graceful manner, Mr. G. H. Armitage replying on behalf of the subscribing young men.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

PROFITING by the experience of last year, the promoters of the Dedication Festival proceedings have this time managed their arrangements in a manner which has met with general approbation. It is true that here and there a feeble growl of discontent has been heard, but it is impossible to please everybody; the general result was very satisfactory and a very decided contrast to the full chorus of discontent which was raised after the same event last year. The balance, which is to be given partly to the fund for church expenses, and partly towards defraying the cost of pointing the slating of the church roof, amounts to £16.

THE serious expense and difficulty of providing accomodation for 300 or 400 people tends greatly to discourage efforts of this kind in Woodlesford, and has once more directed public attention to the great need of a large room for the district. Various schemes for meeting this want have been mooted, the most practicable of which is to form a Church Institute, and make a home for the Sunday school at the same time.

IT is a satisfactory to learn that there is a near prospect of a start being made with the new proposed vicarage. A suitable site has at last, been decided upon, which is that mentioned as probable in this column a few months ago; part of "Dobson's Estate" abutting on the station lane. As there is a sufficient fund in hand to purchase the site and nearly complete the building which will cost about £2,000, the work will be proceeded with as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

The political meeting on the occasion of the visit of Mr. Dunnington Jefferson to Lofthouse last Friday evening was very orderly, and from a Tory point of view, successful. Such cannot be said of the meeting at Carlton on the same evening. The room was crowded. They were present a lot of Carlton men and lads, and besides these a large number of men and youths from Rothwell, with Messrs. Jas. Nowell, M.D. and John Turner, B.A. at the head, attended, and did the lion's share in making the meeting a boysterous one. The meeting was held in order that the opinion of the Lofthouse-with-Carlton electors might be obtained, and I hold that the visitors from Rothwell had no right to be present in the meeting, inasmuch as they form part of the Normanton constituency. We naturally expect that people from Rothwell (especially doctors and barristers) will behave themselves, as those from that important centre, if not metropolis of civilisation and culture, ought to do; but alas we were deceived; for they indulged most intemperately in shouting, interrupting and hooting, which reflects very discreditably on those who were so lacking in courtesy, as to be guilty of it. They had no doubt "come out for the evening," thinking they would have a bit of their own way at Carlton. The speech was very moderate, and could not provoke them to such conduct. These same men attend Tory meetings at Rothwell and listen to very much stronger language from the speakers there, without making the least attempt to obstruct, and I think they neither benefit their cause or themselves, nor injure the Conservative party by such unmanly behaviour as that shewn on Friday last.

As a result of the very open weather so far, garden flowers are still plentiful. In many church yards the graves are still decked with beautiful wreaths of roses, dahlias, geraniums, calceolarias, French marigolds, and other exotic garden flowers grown in the open air.

The coal trade is looking up. I was at Stanley Ferry the other other day and observed about forty vessels all waiting to be loaded. A boatman told me that the collieries are driving away the trade by mere neglect and inattention. Rather than do this, why not let the men work full time and double shifts.

The polling day for Lofthouse-with-Carlton is fixed for Monday, November 30th, therefore we may expect before long to receive a visit from the Liberal candidate, Mr. Milnes Gaskell.

.. ..

I am sorry to say that several fresh cases of fever have broken out this week, chiefly amongst those who had become quite convalescent, and had unfortunately taken fresh cold. The two cases of scarlet fever referred to last week have both proved fatal, and two other members of the same family are at present suffering from this disease.

An indecent assault was committed one evening last week by a man named Albert Sharp, of Robin Hood, on the highway. Mrs. Alathia Clamp was the victim, and it seems that the woman had been attending on some sick person in Langley, and was returning to Robin Hood between ten and eleven o'clock at night, when Sharp came out of the hedge, and seizing her attempted to carry out his intentions, when a man named Geo. Jackson, came up and prevented him from so doing. The fellow was summoned, and appeared before the West Riding Magistrates on Monday, when the charge was altered from "common" to "indecent" assault, and a fine of £2 and £1 5s. costs was inflicted, or one month's imprisonment. The money was paid.

A magic lantern entertainment and lecture on 'Jane Conquest' was given in the Robin Hood Free Church Sunday school room on Saturday last, by Mr. Alfred Steel. The place was well filled, the amount realised being about £1 2s. 0d.

The missionnary sermons were preached in the Lofthouse Wesleyan Chapel on Sunday last by the Rev. Hy. Jefford and Mr. France, when the congregations were very fair. On Tuesday, the annual meeting was held, the chair being occupied by Mr. Longbottom, of Wakefield. Addresses were delivered by the Revs. A. B. Gardiner and S. Pitt, and the usual report was read. The amount collected, including the amount taken from the boxes, and the collections is only £6 7s. 6d., nearly £3 less than last year, and less than half the amount collected at Carlton. The small amount may be fully accounted for when it mentioned that both on Sunday and Tuesday there were no fires in the chapel, and the extreme cold probably prevented many from attending the services, who otherwise would gladly have brought their mite.

An entertainment consisting of songs, recitations, readings, dialogues, &c., was given in the Carlton Temperance Hall on Saturday evening last, by Mr. J. R. Paul and his family from Hunslet. The Hall was well filled.

TOWN TALK.

JUDGING from the report of the last Local Board meeting, one is included to think that it was rather a stormy one. And so far as I am able to learn, there is every prospect that the meeting on Monday next, will be of a very similar nature. Mr. John Turner has 'another job on,' and will no doubt be in his happiest mood when he is engaged in thrashing Mr. Lawton and his followers. There are good grounds to expect that a long and lively discussion will arise on all the three subjects which Mr. Turder purposes taking up, and he will stand a good chance of keeping the Board meeting on to a midnight sitting. Mr. Lawton's water supply is a large and difficult subject; dross for Pennington Lane may be got rid of without much difficulty; the ashes question is one into which a lot of personality has crept, and is not likely to be the means of knitting the sundry members into one harmonious unity. No, the questions will be warmly debated and stoutly contested, and I almost long to be able to hear the debate. But they won't allow us, who are only ordinary ratepayers, to be present in their meetings, and we have to be content with reading the report published in the Rothwell Times, which report I shall eagerly scan at the earliest possible moment on Friday evening the 20th inst.

THE Rothwell Times report of the last meeting of the Hunslet Board of Guardians concluded that "Other business of a personal character having been transacted," etc. Now when I read, my curiosity was awakened, and I began to listen. I eventually learnt what the 'business of a personal character' had been, but as the editor did not choose to give it in the report, I don't suppose he would admit it in my column. It will soon be the talk of the townsfolk, then it may find its way into 'Town Talk.' All I can say just now, is that certain officials of the Union have neglected donning the 'blue ribbon;' and that this 'sin of omission 'has led to a 'sin of commission,' which is likely to result in their own loss financially, as it has already resulted in their character.

WASN'T I pleased a few days ago, when I heard that 'Old Richard' had gone to London to receive his fortune. A rich relation had died and left him 'All,' and he was gone to claim it. It was not hundreds, but thousands of pounds that he was to receive, besides a carriage and pair and other valuable personal property. Such was the story poured into my attentive ears, while my wondering eyes gleamed with joy. I thought of my old friend Richard Goddard, whose mother received him as a Valentine, living the last few years of his life in a country villa, 'clothed in purple and fine linen, and faring sumptuously every day.' What a pretty end to a long life of toil, thought I. It was like waking out of a pleasant dream, when I heard, a day or two later, that Richard's was only a dream. Poor old man, he had dreamed that he had heired a large estate, and could not be convinced that such was not the case. Then gossip got hold of the tale (not I) and made the imagination into a reality, and if Richard Goddard was not as rich as a Rothschild, he was not much short of it.

I AM pleased to know that Mr. Oscar Parker has been appointed as manager of the Rothwell Gas Works, which are assuming such large proportions. Oscar Parker is one of our own townsmen, and well qualified to do the work. Moreover, he is one of the most agreeable, amiable and obliging workmen I know. For these reasons I am glad the Board of Directors have made such a wise decision, as to appoint a man who will do his work and do it well, as Mr. Parker always does. Everybody expresses the same opinion, they are well satisfied with the appointment.

THE two political parties are playing a game of "who's to have the last word." Both parties fixed a date for their meeting, and both parties have been compelled from various causes to have their meeting indefinitely postponed. The Liberals want Charlesworth to come first, then they will wind up; and the Conservatives want Pickard to deliver his charge, and they will have a shot after him. When I was at school, we lads did what most lads do sometimes; we threw off our outer garments, gathered up the fist, and said 'Touch me;' the other said 'Nay, touch me;' this was repeated about half-a-dozen times; then we sometimes put on our coats, and sometimes we fought as only lads can fight, and the conqueror gave the 'last knocks,'—real thumpers, I remember well. That's what they are doing; 'You strike first' both sides are saying to their opponents. 'Time,' everybody says; this game cannot be carried on long, the polling is fixed for the 1st of December, and we want to hear both sides before that, therefore get to work, and let the last blow be a real 'Yorker.'

CROSSING JORDAN.—Some men are more dangerous to cross than high seas or swollen rivers, and of such is our friend Jordan, the farmer on Rothwell Haigh. On Thursday forenoon some unpleasant words passed, it is said, between his mother and himself, after which the foolish man betook himself to Bullock Bridge, and plunged into the river. One of Mr. Ducker's daughters witnessed the occurrence and gave an alarm, whereupon Mr. Ducker seizing a rail, hitched the drowning farmer to the bank, and pulled him out of the water. The river was very wet and cold, and not over sweet, so that Jordan may be congratulated on his escape from suffocation under such miserable circumstances. My advice to him is, 'Don't do it again,' and if the magistrates impose a fine upon him for his folly, to pay like a man and feel grateful.

GOSSIP.

THE LOCAL BOARD'S ROADS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times

Dear Sir,

I beg to draw the attention of your readers to two propositions of the Local Board—first to purchase dross for the repair of our bye-lanes, and secondly, to purchase ashes for the same purpose.

I intend on Monday next to move to rescind both these propositions.

As to the proposition to purchase dross, I object altogether to spend the rates in procuring expensive metal from a distance when we have excellent material almost on the spot, which is to be had for little or nothing at all.

The material which I propose to utilise is the round smooth stones or pebbles, which are to be found in such large quantities in ploughed fields that they are supposed, I am told by some people, actually to grow there. The farmers I believe collect them and cart them off the land, but as they keep constantly working up to the surface there are always plenty to be seen.

Now Sir, these pebbles are all waterworn, and have at some remote period, ages ago, millions of years perhaps, formed parts of great rocks and beds of stone. Somehow by the powers of nature, these beds of stone have been broken up and the fragments tossed about by the action of water and whirled along by mountain torrents. Thus subjected to violent concussion and mutual attrition they have been so worn and reduced that (and this is the point I wish to emphasize) only the hardest and most refractory parts are left.

These pebbles, Sir, I assert are almost if not quite equal to dross in point of hardness, and I am not aware of any other quality which dross possesses to recommend it a road material; for though dross contains lime it has no binding power inasmuch as the lime is in the condition of agglomerated silicate and not as carbonate, sulphate or oxide, which are the only binding compounds.

If these pebbles were broken by machinery (hand breaking would be quite unsuitable) so as to produce a considerable quantity of small stuff, then, Sir, I am convinced, that by applying the largest pieces first, then the smaller, and lastly the fine sand mixed with a little quick lime and rolling, we might produce a result equal to our best main roads at a merely nominal cost.

I am persuaded that by pursuing the method I have indicated, and removing all scrapings to the fields instead of spreading them on the newly metalled surfaces, a most reprehensible practice, a sum of £500 a year at least might be saved to the Rothwell ratepayers.

I am quite prepared to have my scheme ridiculed by those who boast of their practical experience, but ridicule does not disprove my notions, and the experiment would not cost much to try.

As to the ashes question, I may point out that Springfield Street was ashed and rolled this summer; it is now full of holes and ponds and puddles.

Ashes are costly to bring upon the roads, costly to spread, worthless as regards wear, and costly to scrape off and cart away, besides being unsightly and nasty at all times.

If it should be urged against the pebbles that they are deficient in hardness, they are at all events not so soft as ashes, which in summer grind up to powder and in winter grind up to puddle. I may add that the Local Government Inspector, who visited Rothwell in connection with the steam roller, condemned the use of ashes altogether.

If Messrs. Charlesworth wish to get rid of their ashes, they may surely find some other means of disposing of them than by inflicting them on the ratepayers of Rothwell.

I am, Sir,
Yours truly,
JOHN TURNER.

"IF YOU WISH FOR PEACE, PREPARE FOR WAR."

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

The object Mr. Andrew and all purely political Liberals seemingly have in view is to hush up the Church question until after the general election. This object all Liberals would naturally like to see accomplished, if only they did not happen, many of them, to be Churchmen first and politicians afterwards. As it is, they are determined that their political tendencies shall not endanger the Church they love, since it is a fact that that Church is in danger.

Now it is my object to enforce upon your readers this conviction. "that the Church is in danger." My own opinion on such a point is of course absolutely worthless. I have, however, more obstinate facts to quote. The first is a sentence from a lately issued public address to the electors of the country:—"We, the undersigned, desire to call your attention to the danger to which the Church will be exposed if you fail to use your votes for its defence." The list of signatures to this address includes the names of that great lawyer (the late Liberal Lord Chancellor in Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet) Lord Selborne, together with those of many of our most prominent Liberals, all of them being laymen, none of them clergymen. It will be evident, from their manifesto, that they think the Church is in danger. The second part I have to bring forward is that as far as the Morley and Normanton divisions are concerned, there is no room to question the danger the Church is under, as regards the declared intentions of one of the two candidates in either division. They are distinctly pledged to Disestablishment and Disendowment. Churchmen therefore have no alternative but to support the supporters of the Church, in these two divisions; unless indeed they are so demented, or so filled with the opinion of their own sagacity, as to act in direct opposition to the example set by an overwhelming majority of their brother laity and clergy. "If a majority should be returned pledged to the principle of depriving the Church of England of the position it now holds, it must soon become impossible for any Administration to maintain itself in power without Parliament taking in hand a measure for that purpose." This is another sentence in the Liberal address quoted above. With Churchmen then, in our two divisions, there can be no hesitation as to the side they should take.

But there are others, besides pronounced and decided Churchmen, who have the welfare of the Church and the nation at heart. I would venture to draw their attention to the above opinions, (not mine, but those of leading Liberals), and I would ask them to put the matter to themselves in this way:—Supposing, for argument's sake, that some large portion of the Church's endowments—say some fifty millions, besides the recognised £3,000,000—have been given by the State; why should the State wish to take them away at a time when for religious purposes they are more wanted than ever; and at a time when the atheists "so furiously rage together, and the people imagine a vain thing?" Why should the gifts to the Church be taken, and the gifts to Nonconformists remain? "There is great danger that if the friends of the Church stand by without taking vigorous means of self-defence, its enemies, by their activity and skilful electioneering tactics, might secure a majority in the House of Commons, in spite of their being a majority in the nation." So again say the Liberals (Lord Selborne and others) in the already quoted address. As known to several Nonconformists in this neighbourhood, and as officially at the head of one of the churches in this neighbourhood, I earnestly appeal to 'Friends of the Church,' outside her pale, to weigh well the true position of affairs. A vote to a pledged supporter of Disestablishment and Disendowment is a vote to enable the State to take back some—and to take away other—endowments which are now used by the Church for the welfare of the people; and such a vote rashly given, under the impression that the danger is neither immediate nor real, may end in crippling, for the next two generations, of one of the oldest branches of Christ's Church existing in Christendom.

Yours etc.,
J. R. CRAWFORD.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

As one of the parties immediately concerned in the transaction mentioned by "Six eight p.m." in his letter last week, I shall be glad if you would allow me to give my version of it.

In the first place it is evident that your correspondent was not present at the time, and has therefore been dependent upon others for his information, and what credit can be given, Mr. Editor, to a man, who in order to improve and polish up for party purposes a very simple and rather amusing incident, resorts to his own brilliant imagination for a version of what he considers ought to have taken place, whether it did or not.

"Six eight p.m.'s" letter is simply a string of false statements from beginning to end, and in this assertion I can be supported by the testimony of others who were actually present. I was engaged in a political discussion with a travelling companion holding contrary opinions to myself, and as is not uncommon upon such occasions, no doubt expressed my opinions with some degree of warmth, as did also my opponent, The meeting of that evening being the cause of the discussion, the Liberal candidate naturally came in for a due share of attention, and although I certainly did not speak of that gentleman in the same terms of fulsome adulation which were afterwards used at the meeting, I emphatically deny that a single particle of abuse crossed my lips, and I challenge "Six eight p.m." to make good his statement by proof.

The version given by your correspondent of the manner in which Mr. Pickard made known his presence is as correct as the rest of the letter, the words given not having been used at all, neither was Mr. Pickard's hand placed upon my shoulder as stated. I distinctly deny that I was addressed by any of my friends under a false name, and so far as I am aware Mr. Pickard did not ask for my name; had he done so he would have obtained that of

Your obedient servant,
T. WEST.

Oulton,
Nov. 10th, 1885.

[IF, as we have little doubt, Mr. West's version of this incident is correct, we cannot too strongly express our objection and regret, that our wish to accommodate all correspondents, should have been so improperly taken advantage of as appears in this case. We shall look very suspiciously at such letters in future.—ED.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

There is an old proverb which states that "people who live in glass houses should not throw stones," and I am inclined to think that the person who styles himself "Six eight p.m." might study the saying with advantage.

Without at present in any way going into the correctness or otherwise of "Six eight p.m.'s" letter, there is one reference in it which must in the eyes of all right thinking people, at once condemn the writer as a person entirely devoid of all gentlemanly feeling. We have yet to learn, Sir, that it is the practice of gentlemen to attempt to strengthen their arguments by dastardly allusions to physical infirmities on the part of their opponents. It has been reserved to "Six eight p.m." thus to illustrate the resources of modern Liberalism. I have never yet seen a more striking example of vulgar—not to mention cowardly—abuse than that given by "Six eight p.m." in his letter; whether the law of libel has or has not been transgressed in this instance is probably a matter for further enquiry.

Being acquainted with the subject of "Six eight p.m.'s" strictures, and having moreover heard the story from Mr. Pickard himself the same evening, I have made further enquiry of those actually present in the railway carriage, and I find that the account given last week is entirely wrong and misleading. I therefore think that it is only right to make a slight protest against such attacks.

If in the midst of his Shakespearian studies "Six eight p.m." has time for such a trifling matter, I would in conclusion recommend him to refer to the Holy Bible or the Book of Common Prayer, and he will by diligent search discover therein a passage which runs thus—

"Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour."

Yours truly,
TRUTH.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by a drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. WHITE, Limited, 17, Farringdon road, London, E. C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

WATCHES, JEWELLERY. — MIDLAND COUNTIES WATCH COMPANY.—(Cheapest house in the World) Ladies' or Gents' Fine Silver Crystal Glass, heavy Ladies' Watches, 25/-; Ladies' heavy-cased Gold Levers, 70/-; Gents' do. do. do., 80/-. Before purchasing send for Company's Catalogue, beautifully illustrated, 1,000 fine copper-plate engravings, gratis, post free on application, to any part of the world. Apply Company's Manager, A. Percy, Vyse Street, Birmingham. The press universally recommend their readers to obtain a catalogue.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it soften the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

£100,000,000 IN THE COURT OF CHANCERY!—Cox & Co., 41, Southampton Buildings, Holborn, London, W.C., have just published a list of the heirs to this wealth. Reader, send a postal order for 1s. 6d., and they will forward you this valuable list, and if you find by it that you are entitled to any money or property claim your own. Cox & Co. will show you the way.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Price 3s. 6d. —For an Oil to make the Hair soft, glossy, and luxuriant, ask for "CARTER'S COLOGNE OIL." Price 1s. of all dealers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as SCOTT & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock), of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

TO THE ELECTORS
OF THE
NORMANTON DIVISION
OF THE
WEST RIDING OF YORKSHIRE.

GENTLEMEN,

Having been requested by an influential body of Electors to offer myself as a Candidate for the Normanton Division of the West Riding of Yorkshire at the approaching Parliamentary Election, I have somewhat reluctantly consented to do so, not from any feeling of personal ambition on my part, but from a strong conviction that it is the duty of every man, even at some sacrifice of his own affairs, to devote himself to the public interest in this important crisis in the history of our country.

Owing to the Extension of the Franchise, many will be called upon to vote for the first time, and I am pleased to think that, by the action of the Conservative Party in insisting upon the Redistribution of Seats, the Electors of this Division will have a Member of their own to represent those important industries in which they are specially engaged; and I would especially congratulate my Normanton friends that, through the action of our Party, the importance of Normanton has been recognised by giving its name to the Division.

As a Colliery Owner, my personal interests are bound up with those of a large proportion of the Voters of this Division, and I am deeply convinced that no trade can prosper unless both masters and work-people work heartily together. I can confidently appeal to the manner in which my firm have always dealt with their work-people as a satisfactory test of the sincerity of my opinions.

Our Commerce is now greatly hampered by hostile tariffs, and our manufacturers cannot compete on equal terms with those of other countries. Our trade declines, and our work-people are unable to support themselves and their families. The present Government have appointed a Royal Commission to enquire into this subject, and valuable information is being obtained which I trust will result in much good for the country.

I deeply deplore the present Agricultural depression, and will at all times most earnestly consider any scheme that may be put forward for the removal of local burdens, or otherwise, for the improvement of the position of the Farmer and the Farm Labourer.

The export trade from this country is enormous, and I am convinced that our commerce will flourish best when our power is respected by foreign countries. The Policy of Mr. Gladstone's Government, in shrinking before all powerful nations, whilst engaging in war with small ones, has caused us to be despised by the strong and hated by the weak. Under such circumstances new markets cannot successfully be opened out, and our trade must continue to decrease.

I am in favour of maintaining the most friendly relations with our Colonies, and of knitting them closer to us by every means in our power, believing that in this way we shall obtain an extensive and rapidly-increasing outlet for our manufactures, whilst at the same time strengthening our Empire by uniting the British race in all quarters of the globe.

By justice and firmness, peace and tranquillity may yet be restored to the Irish people, and whilst desirous of supporting all just measures for their increased happiness and welfare, I would strongly oppose all schemes which can in any way tend to Repeal the Union with Great Britain.

I desire strenuously to oppose all attempts to Disestablish or Disendow the Church of England, believing that the Church has ever been a true friend to the poorer classes of this country, and that their Religious wants will be neglected if ever Disestablishment takes place.

Until the year 1870, almost all the Education in this country was provided by the Church of England; and whilst I rejoice at the impetus which has been given to Education by recent Acts of Parliament, I should be unwilling to support any measure which would have the effect of closing our Voluntary Schools or of depriving the rising generation of Religious Education.

I hope to have many opportunities of explaining to you the details of my views on various topics, and should you return me to Parliament, you may rely on my giving a general support to the present Government, because I believe that the members of the late Government, having failed in the past, are not likely to succeed in the future in conducting the affairs of this great nation either peacefully or with prosperity.

I have the honour to remain,
Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

On Monday evening the Board met as usual, present—Messrs. W. Hargreaves, (chairman), J. Oliver, J. Holmes, J. Hargreaves, H. P. Newsome, J. Turner, J. Dobson, J. Nowell, W. Lawton, and the clerk, collector, and surveyor.

The minutes having been read, were confirmed, after which the Board considered the various notices of motion which had been given.

COST OF HIGHWAYS.—In reply to Mr. Lawton's enquiry as to the cost of Wakefield and Leeds Roads during the last twelve months, the clerk stated that from March 25th, 1884, to the same date 1885, it had cost £560 18s. 6d.

DROSS.—Mr. Turner moved that the resolution to repair Pennington Lane with dross, be rescinded. He referred to his letter which appeared in the Rothwell Times of last week, and urged the use of boulders or large pebbles from the fields, which after being machine broken, would make an excellent hard road, the smaller particles being placed on the top, and bound in by the steam roller. He suggested that they try—say 20 yards of road, such as the bottom of Royds Lane; if successful, it would prove his belief, and if not, very little expense would be incurred. Mr. Dobson doubted if a sufficient quantity could be obtained. The chairman gave his experience both as to difficulty of obtaining the boulders, and also the cost of having them broken and led as desired. Mr. Oliver seconded the resolution, as he believed the farmers had an impression that the Board would not accept the stones picked off the fields. Mr. Lawton remarked that they could only be got off during a certain short period. He also explained satisfactorily respecting certain boulders sent by Mrs. Smith some time ago. Mr. Nowell spoke in support of Mr. Turner's motion, and on being put, Mr. Turner, Mr. Oliver, and Mr. Nowell voted for the rescinding, the Chairman, Messrs. W. Lawton, J. Dobson, J. Holmes, and H. P. Newsome against, Mr. Jas. Hargreaves neutral. The resolution therefore stands.

ASHES.—Mr. Turner then moved that the resolution to purchase ashes on the best terms possible, be rescinded. Mr. Nowell seconded. Mr. Holmes asked if all ashes were to be declined; and if so, what about the footpaths? Mr. Newsome replied 'Flag them.' The Chairman—"That will be a cost of—say £1,000; how will you pay for it." Mr. Newsome (laconically)—"Out of the ratepayers." This proposal was also lost, Mr. Lawton having joined with Messrs. Turner and Nowell, Mr. Jas. Hargreaves being neutral, and the other five gentlemen against.

SCRAPINGS.—Mr. Lawton moved that the removal of all road scrapings be tendered for, as there were ratepayers who would gladly lead them away at a more economical rate than the Board were now doing. Mr. Nowell seconded this motion, if by any means these mounds of scrapings could be got away more quickly and effectually than at present; he referred to certain places where the channel is completely choked, causing the water to stand in pools and so injuring the road. In reply to an enquiry, the surveyor said the cost of removing scrapings off Wakefield road, when done by contract, amounted to £85 for six months; the Board had done the work during the last twelve months for £37. It was pointed out, however, that then a considerable quantity of ashes were used, now there is very little. The resolution to advertise for tenders was eventually carried, for the next three months, Mr. Turner being neutral.

LORD STOURTON'S WATER SUPPLY.—Mr. Turner rose to move the rescinding of a resolution to pay half the cost of supplying water mains to Lord Stourton's property at Rothwell Haigh, pointing out that if this was done for Lord Stourton, other property owners would apply for the same advantage, and he should certainly require the Board to stand half the cost of laying water to his premises in Royds Lane. Mr. Newsome cordially seconded the motion. He thought the proposal was illogical, and unjust to other ratepayers. Mr. Lawton warmly supported the scheme to supply water as arranged last meeting, and guaranteed that it should be a means of profit to the Board, so far as he was concerned. He ably argued his necessity and the advantages anticipated, and secured the full sympathy of the Board. The clerk read the reply of Messrs. Bromet & Taylor to his letter offering to pay half the cost of laying the mains on certain specified conditions. As, however, his Lordship's definite acceptance had not been received, and the difficulties of carrying out a safe and satisfactory arrangement rather increased than otherwise, it was finally found that the majority of the Board were for rescinding the proposal, only Mr. Lawton and Mr. Oliver supporting it.

Mr. Lawton next proposed to pay 5 per cent. himself on the outlay for supplying him with water. This idea was willingly taken up by several members, until Mr. Turner pointed out that such an arrangement could hardly be made with the tenant, as the present tenant might leave, or at any rate could not live for ever, and what hold had they on any future tenant; the pipes would be laid in Lord Stourton's land, and unless they could treat with him, he did not see how they could entertain Mr. Lawton's proposal. This argument was at once seen, and on Mr. Jas. Hargreaves' motion, seconded by Dr. Nowell, it was decided to make this proposal to Messrs. Bromet & Taylor; Messrs. Holmes, Oliver and Lawton being neutral.

AGENDA PAPER.—On the motion of Mr. Lawton, seconded by Mr. Turner, it was agreed that a copy of the agenda paper be placed on the table for the use of members.

HIGHWAYS.—The clerk reported that the Co-operative Society had paid £1 compensation for damage done by their engine.

Mr. Lawton mentioned the necessity for flagging Bell Hill causeway, which was seconded by Mr. Newsome. Mr. Nowell pleaded for either flags or ashes in Carlton Lane. On the motion of Mr. Holmes, seconded by Mr. Nowell, it was agreed by four to three, that the cost of re-flagging Bell Hill be prepared by the Surveyor, and that Carlton Lane causeway be repaired with ashes.

WATER.—Tenders for putting water into two properties in Rothwell were agreed to.

FINANCE.—On the motion of Mr. Lawton and Mr. Newsome, the District Rate at 1/9 in the £ just prepared by the Collector, was signed and sealed.

The amount received during the last fortnight, includes

General District Rate	4	11	11
Water Rents	18	12	9

CARLTON FEVER.—A letter was read from Dr. Wood, medical officer to the Wakefield Sanitary Authority, drawing attention to the report of a Board meeting as published in the Rothwell Times, at which certain remarks were made, of which he complained. He stated in reply to these complaints of neglect, that he received the first intimation of the epidemic at Carlton on the 8th Oct., on the 9th the inspector and he visited the village; on the 10th disinfectants were sent, and on the 14th a meeting was held of the Parochial Authority, at which a scheme was agreed on for draining the locality, and which had been pushed forward with all speed. He thought therefore that there had been no delay since the outbreak was first reported.

POSTAL TELEGRAPHS.—A letter was read from the Secretary to the Postmaster General, stating that in consideration of the amount already subscribed for supporting the Telegraph office at Rothwell, he had pleasure in stating that any further guarantee would be dispensed with, and the office continued free. A letter of thanks was ordered.

LAMPS BREAKING.—The chairman complained of the injury sustained, by boys breaking the lamps, &c., and a resolution was agreed on, that offenders shall be prosecuted.

SANITARY.—In consequence of Mr. Jordan's neglect to clean some of the ash-pits at Stourton, notice was ordered to be sent.

ENQUIRY.—Mr. Lawton gave notice that he was going to send a petition to the Local Government Board for an enquiry into the water scheme and the loss on it of £1100, unless the matter is gone into before the 25th March. Mr. Newsome said he thought it ought not to go forth that £1100 had been lost by the Waterworks, as some £700 had been paid back of the principal, which was included.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The usual meeting of this Board took place on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Jas. Hargreaves presiding. There were also present Mr. J. Graveley and the Rev. J. H. Evans (vice-chairmen), Messrs. J. Swales, J. Parker, H. Sheard, J. Hardcastle, J. Swithenbank, J. Dixon, R. J. Smith, J. Jackson, W. Lawton, C. Grosvenor, W. Riley, G. Jepson, and the Rev. G. M. Platt, with Mr. Schofield (clerk.)

ELECTION OF PORTER.—Previous to the reading of the minutes, the Board considered some 34 applications for porter and portress, the candidates hailing from various parts of the country, several even from London. Out of these a committee had previously selected six persons, who attended this meeting. After an hour's discussion, it was decided that John and Emma Duerden, of Ormskirk, be appointed.

The reading of the minutes was then proceeded with, and the business of the previous meeting approved.

BOARDING OUT.—On the application of a person for the custody of two children, the Visiting Committee had agreed to let her have two girls named Bedford, the only expense being a payment of £5 for their outfit. This person has already had eight workhouse children, all of whom she has brought up, and seen comfortably settled, the last having only left her last week to be married. The Guardians expressed great pleasure in placing the girls in such good hands.

VISIT TO HALTON.—According to annual custom, the Guardians arranged to visit Halton and Whitkirk on Friday (to-day) in order to see the aged and infirm recipients of relief in those villages. The Rev. G. M. Platt very generously invited the entire Board to take tea with him at the Vicarage, which was most cordially accepted.

The usual wants and returns were then read and agreed to.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

THE rather mixed reception accorded to Colonel Charlesworth and his friends on their appearance in the crowded room, at once betrayed the presence of a strong element of opposition amongst those gathered to hear his address. This was frankly recognized by the gallant Colonel in his opening words and no doubt acted as a stimulus by putting him upon his mettle, for his remarks were delivered with unusual spirit, and he showed great readiness in dealing with the frequent interjectory remarks from his prospective constituents. His speech was said afterwards by one of his admirers, to be the best he had yet delivered. Mr. W. Robinson, who afterwards addressed the meeting, is a very creditable representation of that somewhat rara avis "The Conservative working man." He was unfortunate enough to raise a perfect storm of disapprobation at the outset of his remarks by a somewhat foolish reference to the grey hairs of a gentleman who generally makes his influence felt at these local political meetings; and he did not mend matters much by appealing to his fellow workmen for consideration because he had contributed to help them during the strike. When he did obtain a hearing however, he extorted the unwilling admiration even of opponents by his ingenious arguments in favor of retaliatory duties as a remedy for the present depression of trade, which remedy he said the Conservative party were willing to apply. The chairman inadvertently no doubt neglected to give his judgement on the voting in favor of, and against, the vote of confidence in the candidate.

THE latest local addition to what has been styled "The noble army of martyrs" is Mr. W. Sissons who has this week surrendered to a young lady, Miss Smith, of York. The newly married couple will occupy the late Mr. Oddie's residence; the best wishes of a large circle of friends will follow Mr. Sissons in his new departure.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

LIEUT.-COL. CHARLESWORTH AT WOODLESFORD.

Considerably before the time fixed for opening the Conservative meeting at Woodlesford on Tuesday evening, the school-room was crowded out and out, and it was evident that the audience were decidedly 'in' for a lively time. The entrance of Mr. Audsley (who took some part in shewing opposition at Mr. Pickard's meeting) was signalled by such a burst of hooting as has seldom been heard in that room before, while the appearance of Dr. Nowell was sufficient to raise "Three cheers for Nowell." Other persons also came in for a greater or less share of 'chaff' or 'cheer," while everybody preserved the greatest good humour and ever-recurring peals of laughter rang through the building. This sort of thing continued till half-past, when calls of 'time' were raised, Mr. Nowell and Mr. Hammond both being proposed as chairman, to the intense amusement of all. About ten minutes past time, the principal speakers arrived however, and were received in the heartiest manner, and with repeated cheers.

Mr. Calverley, the president of the Oulton-with-Woodlesford Conservative Association, having taken the chair, expressed his pleasure in introducing Col. Charlesworth to the electors of Woodlesford, although many present were not included in that description, and hoped that they would give all the speakers a fair hearing. He very deeply regretted that Mr. Edward Green, the M.P. for Wakefield, and Mr. T. K. Sanderson (a strong supporter of the Colonel) were neither of them able to be present. Referring to the candidate, he thought he hardly had any need to say much about him, as wherever the name of Charlesworth was known, it was linked with all that was kindly and generous (cheers). He would like to refer to a remark of Mr. Pickard's (cheers and groans) when at Woodlesford, that he represented 50,000 West Riding workmen. He wished to deny that assertion; he could only claim to represent the men of the Normanton division, of whom he supposed 10,000 were miners, and of these he felt assured at least one half were Conservatives, so that at the most, he could not claim to represent more than 5000 instead of 50,000 workmen. (Cheers). After further remarks on various subjects, the Chairman then called on Col. Charlesworth to address the meeting. (Cheers).

Colonel Charlesworth, on coming forward was received with prolonged cheers mingled with some groans. Having gained silence, he addressed the audience on the depression in trade. It was the desire of the Conservative party to find out the reason for the existing depression, and to suggest remedies for it. (Hear, hear.) With regard to coal, although it was true that the exports of that article to foreign countries had increased, the value of the material had largely decreased, and as a natural consequence the profits diminished, and there was a smaller amount to be divided in the shape of wages. But with regard to trade generally, while the imports of manufactured goods were increasing our exports were decreasing, as well as our imports of raw material. He had no desire to tax food or raw material, and, notwithstanding a statement to the contrary, he had never advocated duties in this direction. (Cheers.) No doubt this country suffered somewhat from the heavy tariffs imposed upon her goods by foreign nations—(cheers)—and it seemed to be absolutely necessary for her to find new markets for her manufactures, for which new markets he was disposed to look to the colonies. His opponent ignored the colonies, but he looked upon them as furnishing a future source of work and food for the industrial population at home. Under these circumstances, free trade ought, as far as possible, to be promoted between the colonies and the mother country, and the parts of the empire thus brought into the closest union. (Cheers.) The kindliness of the colonies to the mother country had been evidenced by the Canadian boatmen and Australian soldiers in their assistance during the late Soudan war. Proceeding to speak of the Radical promises, he said one of these was free education. He pointed out that the cost of education per head in the present Board schools was £3 5s. 5d., or much in excess of the cost in voluntary schools, and he calculated that the extra expenditure to the country for a universal system of Board schools would be over five million pounds. (Cheers.) Through education, and especially religious education; more could be done to stop intemperance and crime than by repressive legislation. (Cheers.) Though he had not alluded in his address to the question of intemperance, there was no question that interested him more than that; but while he would not say that there were not more public-houses in many places than were absolutely necessary, he would not be inclined to leave it to the casting vote of one man to say whether certain public-houses should exist or not. (Hear, hear.) He next mentioned the House of Lords, the remark being received with cheers, and shouts of "Down with it!" He would not be in favour of doing away with the house of Lords, and he did not believe that in this he differed from the body of the Liberal party. (Cheers.) He thought it probable that some reforms might be effected in the House of Lords and in the procedure of the House of Commons. He did not come forward because Mr. Pickard was a labour candidate, nor because he himself was an employer; if any man felt, as a conscientious Liberal, that he could not vote for him, he did not ask that he should. (Loud cheers.) It had been stated in a Liberal paper published within a hundred miles from here ('Name' 'Oh, yes, you shall have the name on Saturday; I do not refer to the Rothwell Times at all; I consider the reports published in the Rothwell Times most fair and correct in every way, both as regards myself and my opponent.' (Loud cheers.) In the Liberal paper referred to, he said the statement was made that pressure was being used towards their workmen in regard to the present contest. He wished most distinctly and emphatically to deny such an imputation, (cheers) and to say that his firm had not done anything of the sort, either themselves or through their managers. (Cheers.) After remarking on the advantages of the Ballot, the Colonel expressed his willingness to vote for the abolition of canvassing altogether, but at present both parties did it. He repeated his views on the land question, (already reported), and his wish that every cottager might have his bit of garden. His remarks on the foreign policy of the late Government met with considerable opposition, especially his heavy charge of the betrayal and murder of the noble Gordon and his faithful garrison at Khartoum. He asked them, in conclusion, to vote so as to do the best for themselves and for the welfare of the country at large. (Loud and prolonged cheers.)

Mr. Percy Tew moved the usual resolution, and in his opening remarks raised a perfect storm by his hope that Col. Charlesworth would shortly be their member, and claiming the Redistribution Bill to the credit of the Conservative party and the House of Lords. His reference to Mr. Chamberlain was also received by loud signs of approval and otherwise, and he remonstrated against raising quarrels between various classes of the community. He also explained the cause of the 2000 Enclosure Acts (referred to by Mr. Chamberlain) as being brought about by the costly wars with France, which raised the price of corn, and in order to provide work and food for the people, these common lands were bought up and cultivated to the advantage of the labouring classes. Mr. Tew concluded by strongly urging the electors to use every legitimate means for Colonel Charlesworth's return. (Cheers and groans.)

Mr. W. B. Robinson, of Leeds, seconded the resolution, in a speech of considerable power and clearness, from a working man's point of view. Some of his statements and deductions were strongly objected to, while his hard hits were cheered or hooted at, according to occasion. He referred to the days of his boyhood, when his father and mother had to work from 4 till 8 o'clock, and which by the action of the Conservative party had been reduced to from 6 to 6. His three children cost him 26s. a year to educate; if he could have it for less, he would gladly accept it, but he warned them that State education was not free education; somebody would have to pay for it somehow. (Cheers.) Once a working man was paid in goods; the Conservative party had got that altered now. (Cheers). The equality of master and servant in a court of law was obtained by the Conservatives. (Cheers and dissent). As to free trade, they wanted free trade, but they wanted it all round, they wanted fair play. As an illustration, France send light wines, silks, &c. Let England put a heavy tariff on such articles, luxuries; France would soon grumble, but we should be using our own manufacture and would provide thereby both labour and goods. After a practical trial of this character, reciprocal tariffs might be arranged. (Loud cheers.)

In reply to questions, Col. Charlesworth said he should certainly prefer that the Government could be carried on without the Irish vote, and trusted the Conservative party would have a sufficient majority. If any improvements were necessary in the Weighing laws, he would be glad to further them. As regards contracting out of the Employers Liability Act, he would have no objection to prevent it, provided certain clauses were made compulsory. He was thoroughly in favour of every man having a 'fair day's wage for a fair day's work' (Loud cheers and laughter.)

The chairman then put the resolution, asking only electors to vote, when a considerable number of hands were held up; the voting against was also large, exceeding those in favour, but as the Chairman did not express his decision, each party will no doubt maintain its own opinion. Dr. Nowell, amid the wildest excitement, asked permission to propose an amendment, but this was not permitted.

Col. Charlesworth moved a vote of thanks to the chairman, who had so ably conducted the meeting. Although they had had a lively time of it, he was sure it had been a pleasant meeting. (Cheers.) Mr. Shuttleworth seconded the resolution, which was carried, with two dissentients, and the meeting closed. Cheers were raised for the "Grand Old Man," which were enthusiastically given, followed by a similar compliment to the candidate.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by a drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 17, Farringdon road, London, E. C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

MR. J. J. DUNNINGTON JEFFERSON AT ROBIN HOOD.

On Wednesday, Mr. John J. Dunnington Jefferson, the Conservative candidate for the Morley division, addressed a meeting of electors in the Robin Hood Board School

Before 7 o'clock, a considerable crowd had assembled near the schools. When the doors were opened the room was speedily filled, and before 7.30 every inch of room was occupied and the vacant places crowded, while many had to be content with a standing place in the lobby.

At 7.35, the chairman, (Jos. Charlesworth, Esq.,) Mr. Jefferson, and other gentlemen, edged their way through the crowded room, towards the platform, and were received with applause.

The chairman, in opening the proceedings, hoped the men present would listen attentively to what Mr. Jefferson had to say, and having considered the subject well, and ascertained which side would represent their interests best, let them vote according to their consciences. (Applause.)

Mr. Dunnington Jefferson expressed his pleasure at seeing such a large audience; it shewed they took a lively interest in the various topics affecting their interests. Referring to the question of trade, he said Mr. Gaskell's remedy for the depression was to let it alone. He thought that was not good enough; the trade of this country was going from bad to worse, and the Tories had instituted an enquiry into the case with a view to its remedy. Our present free trade was not free trade. He would not tax food, neither raw materials used in English manufactures, but there were about 40 millions sterling of imported luxuries, which he would tax heavily. Besides our present system of one-sided free trade, there were other causes involved in the widespread depression in the country, such as estrangement from our colonies, and unfriendliness with foreign powers. With regard to disestablishment and disendowment, he thought Mr. Gladstone ought to say whether he would favor it or no; all he said, however, was the time was not ripe for it. When would the time be ripe for an act of direct robbery? (Murmurs.) He objected to free education on several grounds. The question of Local Government would be taken up whichever party was returned. Contrary to Mr. Gladstone's promise, the late Liberal Government had given no peace, no retrenchment, and the degree of reform they proposed to give would have been but a sham, had it not been for the Conservatives. They had tried to pass the Egyptian Loan, but could not on account of lack of confidence. ('No, no,' and 'Opposition.') He thanked the audience for the patient and fair hearing they had given him, and hoped his opponent would be similarly favoured when he came among them. (Applause.)

A large number of questions were handed up and answered by the candidate. One asked 'Why should a working man vote Tory when the Tories did not want him to have a vote.' Answer—The Tories did want him to have a vote, and secured a bill which provided the country people with proper representation. Question—'Will you vote for the House of Lords being made into a museum, and the Bishops turned into fossils?' Answer—He thought a second chamber was necessary, and the present system the best. Question—'Don't you think Joe Charlesworth would be a better candidate than you?' (Applause.) Answer—Yes, but failing Mr. Charlesworth, he was the next best man. In reply to other questions, he said he would be in favor of enquiring into miners' grievances, of re-adjusting local taxation, of introducing the ballot at Local Board elections; he did not see how canvassing could be stopped, although he did not like the practice; and he was not in favour of local option.

Mr. Percy Tew proposed a vote of confidence and support in Mr. Jefferson. He had pleasure in supporting his candidature. He had made enquiry and found that Mr. Jefferson had a good character in his own district, but especially on account of his politics he approved of him. The Liberal party was a disunited party ('Oh, oh,) and it was perfectly hopeless for a government with such men as Chamberlain and Dilke (applause) on one hand, and Hartington and Goschen on the other, to get on with business. ('Time,' and considerable interruption.) He thought the Conservative party was the party to succeed.

Mr. John Dixon briefly seconded the motion, hoping that the Malt Tax would be abolished, because he thought the beer table should be as free as the breakfast table. He thought Mr. Jefferson was 'the very man' they required. The chairman then took the vote for and against the motion, and in the midst of intense excitement declared it carried by a large majority. Deafening cheering burst from both sides, for the Liberals present evidently held a contrary opinion to that of the chairman.

A vote of thanks to the chairman was proposed by Mr. Holdsworth, and seconded by Mr. Jefferson, which was carried unanimously, and a loud cheer was given for Mr. Charlesworth, after which the audience dispersed.

Holloways Ointment and Pills.—Health's Defences. None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsey will attack those most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

MR. MILNES-GASKELL AT ROBIN HOOD AND CARLTON.

Last night Mr. Charles Milnes-Gaskell, the Liberal candidate for the Morley division, held two very successful meetings, one in the Board School, Robin Hood, at 6.30, and the other in the Board School, Carlton, an hour later. Dr. Nowell, of Rothwell, occupied the chair at both the meetings.

At Robin Hood, Dr. Nowell said that if the great preacher had been living to-day he would have said the same of speeches, as he did of books, and declare, "Of making many speeches there is no end." He rejoiced that the franchise had been extended to the working men of the country, and looked forward hopefully to the time when manhood suffrage—aye, and woman suffrage too—would be enjoyed. In introducing the candidate, the chairman described him as "your future member," which was received with loud cheering.

Mr. Charles Milnes-Gaskell received a very hearty welcome, and delivered a short, pointed address, which met with cordial approbation in the hearty applause which greeted it repeatedly. He said the old Parliament had passed away; it had made many mistakes, but had done some good things. It was now a case for working and shouting, and he advised his supporters to leave no stone unturned, and he was certain of victory on Monday week. His opponent had said he was a 'very worthy man;' did they not want such an one to represent them in Parliament. He then glanced at the Liberal programme. He would free the land from all the trammels with which it is fettered. He was glad that a Local Government scheme was contemplated, whereby the temperance people and Nonconformists, who have long been the backbone of the Liberal party, would be able to control the liquor traffic. He hoped a commission would be appointed to enquire into the revenues and properties of the English Church. The candidate then ridiculed the nonsense of fair trade, on which point Mr. Jefferson was particularly opposing him. Remember what the Liberals have done, he said in conclusion, and come next Monday week; you will vote for the Liberal candidate. (Loud cheering.)

Mr. Geo. Armitage, junr., proposed the vote of confidence in Mr. Milnes-Gaskell, and pledging the meeting to use every means to return him successfully at the head of the poll.

On the vote being taken, quite a forest of hands were held up, and there was not a single dissentient in the meeting.

They then proceeded to Carlton, and on arriving at the school-room, found the room crowded to the doors, every available seat seeming to be occupied. Mr. Gaskell was well received, and proceeded to make a few remarks on his opponent's election address, taking several quotations and using them as pegs on which to hang his speech. He congratulated the men on having obtained the vote, and reminded them that the system used was the ballot system, whereby none could ascertain how they voted. He described the method of voting, and entreated them to be careful to mark their first voting paper properly. In concluding, Mr. Gaskell asked whether they would have such men as Gladstone and Bright, or Salisbury and Churchill to be their leaders. (Cheers and counter cheers.)

Between sixty and seventy questions were sent up on paper. Some were sensible questions, asking Mr. Gaskell's opinion on the popular topics of the day; these received proper answers, but some were impertinent in the extreme, reflecting upon the chairman and speakers on the platform, while some had reference to Mr. Gaskell's daughter and wife, which were not read out, but found a place in Mr. Gaskell's pocket. He was not a subscriber to the Liberation Society. He would certainly favour an Affirmation Bill. He was not in favour of triennial parliaments. He would support a bill for Sunday closing. One question began "In the event of the death of Mr. Gladstone," Mr. Gaskell stopped short, and refused to look at such a contingency, which met with loud and prolonged cheering. Great disorder prevailed for several minutes, when Mr. John W. Wright, of Rothwell, stepped forward and attempted to say something. None of his words were audible, however, as the audience appeared resolved not to hear him.

Mr. John Turner made a good speech in proposing the vote of confidence. He explained the meaning of the words, Liberal, Radical and Conservative, and made a little capital out of the Rev. Mr. Crawford's connection with the last Tory meeting, when he got a bit mixed about the length of time his family had been Liberal.

There was not sufficient time to second the vote, so it was put to the meeting without that usual formality, and it was carried amid the most exciting cheering, with about ten or twelve dissentients. Three cheers were then given for Gladstone, Gaskell, and Chamberlain, and the meeting broke up amid much disorder.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

Dramatic Entertainment.—Last evening, the popular and highly successful play, 'Our Boys,' was enacted at Rothwell, before a thoroughly appreciative, though somewhat small audience. The principal parts were ably represented by Dr. Glaister, (Sir Geoffry Champneys), and Mr. Tennant (his son), Mr. W. Wright (Perkyn Middlewick) and Dr. Purdy (his son), Mrs. Purdy (Violet Melrose), Miss E. Glover (Mary Melrose), Mrs. Tennant (Clarissa Champneys), Miss K. Glover (Belinda), and Mr. A. Batty (the butler). With a group of performers such as these, it goes without saying that the piece was acted to perfection, and as the effort is made in the interests of the Church, the promoters deserve every encouragement, especially from their fellow Churchmen. As the performance is repeated to-night, at easier prices, the Mechanics' Hall will no doubt be crowded, and we anticipate next week having the pleasure of referring to it more critically. Miss Middlemiss kindly filled up the intervals by playing a series of operatic selections.

Stourton Wesleyan Sunday School Band of Hope.—The annual festival in connection with this Band of Hope was held on Saturday last, when about 250 persons sat down to an excellent repast. After tea, an entertainment was given by the members and others, when Mr. J. R. Seanor occupied the chair. Mr. H. Webb read the secretary's report which shewed that there had been 34 meetings held during the year, well attended throughout. 280 members' names appeared on the books, an increase of 17 on last year. Mr. Seanor, in addressing the meeting, said he was very pleased to see the Band of Hope in such a successful condition, and that he hoped it would continue to advance in the future; he believed that the temperance cause was now in a more prosperous state than ever. The programme was then gone through, including solos by Miss Clemson, Miss C. Booth, Messrs. P. Harris, Abm. Smith, and A. C. Smith. A recitation was also rendered by Miss Jane Massey entitled "The curse of drink" in a very creditable manner. Other recitations, &c., were given, completing a capital entertainment. A collection was made at the close, amounting to £1 3s. 0d. The Stourton String Band, under the leadership of Mr. A. C. Smith, accompanied the singing.

New Rates.—At the West Riding Police Court, the following new rates were signed:—A poor rate of 1s. 2d. in the £1, and a sanitary rate of 4d. in the £1, for Oulton-cum-Woodlesford; a highway rate of 5d. in the £1 for Oulton.

Lofthouse Cricket Club Presentation.—On the conclusion of the ordinary business (as reported under 'Athletics,) a pleasing incident occurred, by the President, on behalf of the club, presenting to Mr. J. H. Lee a valuable marble clock, with inlaid bronze figures and opal dial, and two bronze warriors, purchased of Mr. F. K. Perkin, jeweller, Northgate, Wakefield. The inscription on the timepiece was as follows:—"Presented to Mr. Jno. H. Lee, by the members and friends of the Lofthouse Cricket Club, as a token of the respect and esteem in which he is held by them, and also in recognition of the faithful and energetic manner in which he has, for a period extending over 20 years, performed the duties of secretary to the above club. November 7th, 1885.' The president said he had much pleasure in making that presentation as a recognition of his services as secretary and treasurer to the club for a long period. It was greatly owing to his exertions that the club had done so well and was in such a good position that day. He could not speak in too high praise of the way in which he had conducted the business. Mr. Charlesworth referred to the few members remaining in the club who were in it when it was formed, and gave the members some good advice as to fielding and other matters. In conclusion, he expressed the earnest hope of the members, that Mr. Lee would long live to see the time by his new clock.—Mr. Lee, in acknowledgment, reviewed the history of the club, expressed his great interest in it, and his appreciation of the present. Of course the secretary's duties were onerous, and he could not please everybody, but he had pursued a definite course, and he thought with success. They started with eight members, and had to pick up an odd man to make up the team, but by-and-bye players from other clubs joined them and it became a difficult thing to beat the Lofthouse first eleven. He hoped the young blood would try to maintain the credit of the club. Although circumstances had compelled him to resign, he should not cease his connection with the club, and would render his successor and the committee all the aid in his power. (Cheers). The Saturday match had been to him the hey-day of the week, and he hoped the members would feel the same interest in it.—The Rev. J. R. Crawford, in proposing "Success to the club,' gave some excellent advice, and in a witty manner, spoke of the advantage of practicing with broomsticks, in which he received some compliments when a schoolboy, and offered to supply the club with a few sticks to keep their backs straight and make the eye true.—The President, in reply, followed up the remarks of the Vicar, and the rest of the evening was spent in harmony.

Yorkshire Society of Change Ringers.—On Friday evening last, Nov. 13th, at Rothwell Parish Church, a peal of 5040 changs, in seven different methods, was rung in three hours, consisting of the following:—720 College Pleasure; 720 Arnold's Victory; 720 London Scholars' Pleasure; 720 Duke of York; 720 New London Pleasure; 720 Violet; and 720 Oxford Treble Bob. The following were the ringers:—J. Haigh (Woodlesford), treble; A Chapman (Rothwell), 2nd; J. Haigh, junr. (Woodlesford), 3rd; Wm. Abbishaw (Rothwell), 4th; J. Chapman (Rothwell), 5th; J. M. Chadwick (Rothwell), tenor, and conductor. Tenor 13 cwt., in F. This is the first peal on these bells since 1857, by local men, and great credit is due to them for their painstaking efforts in the art of campanology.

Rothwell Temperance Hall.—On Saturday last an entertainment was given in the above Hall. The audience was unfortunately not so large as had been expected, but the entertainment was a very good one. Mr. Harry Fox (character comedian) did his part well, and Messrs Hoyle, Whitehead, Gray, and Wright rendered valuable aid. On Sunday evening the popular Service of Song "Rhoda" was performed by the Temperance choir, when the Hall was quite filled with an interested audience.

Miners' Wages.—We are given to understand that the miners employed at the Rothwell Haigh colliery gave in their notices this morning, in accordance with the plan recommended by the Miners' Union. The object in view is to compel the masters to concede a 10 per cent advance, which the miners think can now be afforded with coals at an advanced price.

"Fit it with such Furniture as suits according to the fashion and the times," and purchase from E. Miller, 42, North Street, Leeds.

Athletics.—The annual meetings of the Rothwell and Lofthouse Cricket Clubs are reported on page 8, under this head, along with Football news.

Stourton Wesleyans.—The Foreign Missionary services were held in this chapel on Sunday last. Mr. M. Barraclough preached in the morning, and Mr Pickles at night. There was a good congregation on each occasion.

Stourton Primitives.—On Monday evening last, an entertainment with the magic lantern was given by Mr. A. Steel, Rothwell, the subject of which was 'Jessica's First Prayer.' Moving figures were also shown at the close. The place was well filled, and all seemed highly pleased with the hour's entertainment.

The Mild Hindoo.—A lecture with the above title was delivered on Wednesday evening, in the Rothwell Wesleyan Chapel, to a numerous audience, by the Rev. Henry Little. The chair was taken by Mr. Joseph Morton, who said that though the wise man declared 'There is nothing new under the sun,' they had appointed a new committee for the purpose of taking some new measures to promote the missionary cause, and the new committee—though against his wish—had selected a new chairman. The Rev. Henry Little said that the last man to shake hands with him when he left his station in the Madras district was the Rev. R. S. Boulter, who was his next neighbour, though at a distance of forty-five miles, and with whom he was intimately acquainted, having once lived in the same house with him for six months. After giving a large amount of information as to the various castes, classes and religions included under the Hindoo name, the lecturer made an appeal on behalf of the Children's Home at Karur. This was established in the famine time to save the children from starvation. It was then thought the work would be temporary, but large numbers of children had been left upon their hands. These they were teaching to work, bringing them up as carpenters, blacksmiths, ropemakers, etc. An exhibition of products of the Madras presidency was held eighteen months ago, at which all the prizes for ropes were awarded to the Children's Home. They had two farms for training purposes which would also serve as model farms for the neighbourhood. The lecturer had brought with him to this country a Hindoo plough, consisting of three sticks, as an illustration of the extreme 'conservatism' of the Hindoo in agriculture. These were drawn by bullocks, which the drivers urged on by twisting their tails, or if that would not do, by biting them. On their farms, on the contrary, they used ploughs made by Ransome and Sons, and his colleague, the Rev. J. W. Gostick, had invented a plough which had been patented. With such implements they were of course getting the best crops in the neighbourhood. Many of the children voluntarily met in class, and some gave encouraging signs of conversion. They looked forward to employing some of them as native teachers and evangelists, but were determined that every child should be so trained as to have an independent living. After the lecture many of the audience had the opportunity of looking at a collection of photographs representing the children grouped according to their various trades, and also some of them singly. One of the prettiest was named 'Jessie,' after Mrs. R. S. Boulter. The collection amounted to £2 16s. 9d., which was afterwards augmented by a gift of 5s. After votes of thanks to the chairman and lecturer, which were spoken to by Mr. S. Batty, Mr. J. R. Seanor, Mr. S. Seanor, and Mr. J. Abbishaw, the proceedings were brought to a close by the benediction.

The Elections.—The period of a General Election always brings a great many special publications into print; but for novelty and usefulness we have seldom come across anything to equal The Elector's Note Book, a work which is being published by The Catherine Street Publishing Association, of Catherine Street, London. The book is so arranged that the reader may see at a glance all the constituencies as they now stand under the Redistribution Act, the number of members which each has to elect, the names and politics of all the candidates who have come forward, the result of the last General Election in each of the old constituencies, and a variety of other things. This, however, is but the minor portion of the work; for, in addition to the above information, the publishers have devised a most ingenious arrangement of blank columns, by filling up which as the Elections proceed, whoever is fortunate enough to possess a copy of the book will be able to ascertain, with infallible accuracy, at any moment, the exact position of the parties, and other interesting particulars; and thus will unquestionably be compiling a book which, during another Election, will be invaluable. Published at the price of one shilling, we can easily understand that the enormous number of 60,000 copies of the book have already been sold.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

Facts and Rumours.

We have been favoured (?) this week with no less than three great political meetings. Mr. Jefferson's meeting at Robin Hood was certainly an improvement on the one held at Carlton a fortnight since, and it is satisfactory to observe that the objectionable practice of interrupting the speakers has been avoided. Last night the meeting at Robin Hood was somewhat quiet (none the worse for that.) Mr. Gaskell spoke well and must have been pleased with the reception he met with. I believe the meeting at Carlton was a noisy one, judging from the shouting and yelling and hooting and cheering I heard at no small distance from the schools.

As winter is upon us I should like to impress upon the surveyors of roads, police, and others, the necessity of looking after coal leaders and other cart drivers who are in the constant habit of placing a greater weight upon narrow wheels than that allowed by law. This in itself is an illegality, as well as being a cruelty to the horses. Anyone can inform, so that ratepayers in their own interests ought to keep a weather eye open.

On Monday last, a lecture was given in the Lofthouse Reading Room by Mr. Frank Curzon (of the Yorkshire Union Mechanics Institutes), entitled "The family likeness," with illustrations on the black board, at which I regret to say there was only a meagre attendance. The lecture was very interesting and instructive, and was listened to with rapt attention. The Rev. J. R. Crawford occupied the chair. At the close a cordial vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Curzon, on the motion of Mr. A. F. Balme.

With reference to the fever at Carlton, I am pleased to learn there are only a very few cases, and that with one or two exceptions the sick persons are all recovering. This is a very gratifying state of things, and must greatly relieve the anxiety of those who are responsible for the sanitary condition of the village, and for the villagers as a whole. It has been a severe visitation and we can all breathe more freely, now that we can see the way clearer. I noticed disinfectants had been placed in and around all the openings to the sewers in the streets, which is very necessary indeed. The drainage of the lower end of the village is being carried out, about 100 yards of large sanitary tubes having been already laid in Carr Lane.

The annual scrap tea was held in the Free Church School-room, Robin Hood, on Saturday last. The provisions for the tea had all been given by the inhabitants, and there was a good attendance at the hour advertised. After tea a lecture was given by the Rev. Francis Marrs, of Leeds, entitled "The Earl of Shaftesbury." The chair was occupied by Mr. D. Duckworth. The lecture was well attended and proved to be an interesting discourse on the life and doings of that great and good man, whose recently passed to his reward. It is satisfactory, that the net proceeds of the tea and lecture amounted to over £8.

TOWN TALK.

How quiet the Rothwell politicians keep. I am hourly expecting some announcement stating arrangements have been made to hold meetings next week. We are all expecting another visit from both sides, and here we are within ten days of the polling day, and there is no news. "No news is good news" some people say, and I suppose, during the next day or two, at the outside, our eyes will be relieved by seeing a couple of neatly executed posters from the Rothwell Steam Printing Works, posted on the walls, announcing visits from both 'blues' and 'yellows,' and looking at each other jealously.

As a suggestion to the promoters of the political meetings to be held no doubt some evening next week I would suggest that beyond one or two seats in front for the ladies, or, as Mr. Hoyle termed them, shelectors, that no seats be allowed in the Hall. The men can stand and the room would hold twice as many persons with this plan as it would in the ordinary way.

Party spirit runs high. I am told that the Cricket Club held their annual meeting one day this week, and that the secretary reported having recently written to Lieutenant Colonel Charlesworth asking his patronage and that he had consented to be a subscriber to the funds of the club. This even led to a division being taken, as to whether the secretary should not be instructed to write to Mr. Pickard. Of course he was not instructed to write. But this is the time to get these gentlemen's sympathy enlisted in the various public bodies and I would recommend all secretaries to imitate the action of Mr. Bennett, the secretary to the cricket club.

GOSSIP.

We regret having to withhold the several letters which have reached us for publication, owing to pressure of time and space.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

PARLIAMENT-MAKING is always a time of excitement, as upon it depends the fate of Governments, but at the present period the process is taking place under new conditions which are invested with exceptional interest and importance. Since the last general election took place the Franchise and Redistribution Acts have wrought a wonderful change on the political face of the country. The constituencies have been to a large extent reconstituted, two millions of voters have been placed on the registration rolls, and an addition of twelve raises the membership of the House of Commons to six hundred and seventy in number. At the general election in 1868, which resulted in a Liberal victory, the newly-enfranchised household electors of the boroughs exhibited much eagerness in voting for the first time, though they had not then the protection of the ballot, and a still greater eagerness is sure to be manifested at the present crisis by the larger body of newly-enfranchised county household electors, who were seventeen years later than their more favoured fellow-subjects in the towns in obtaining votes. According to existing arrangements, the election, which began on Monday, the twenty-third instant, will extend to the eighteenth December, on which day the polling for the affiliated Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrew's falls due.

The first member of the new Parliament was returned unopposed for Wolverhampton on Monday, the veteran Mr. Villiers; Mr. Richard and Mr. James (for Merthyr Tydvill) and Mr. Ferguson (for Carlisle) making up the four uncontested elections of that day. On Tuesday, Mr. Burt became member for Morpeth, along with two Conservatives each for Dublin, Oxford and Cambridge Universities, Mr. Campbell (C) for Aberdeen, and Sir J. Lubbock (L) for London Universities, besides a Conservative for Blackpool, Liberals for Hawick, Fife, Stirling, and Swansea, and Nationalists for Newry and Kilkenny.

There were contests in some 50 boroughs on Tuesday, among the principal being Birmingham, returning Liberals for all seven seats, including the Right Hon. John Bright and Jos. Chamberlain, Lord Churchill losing by 800 votes. Chelsea holds to Sir Chas. Dilke, Sunderland sends her two members, Exeter returns the Hon. H. S. Northcote (C), and the Right Hon. W. H. Smith is returned by more than 100 per cent. majority. Besides these, 15 Liberals were elected, including Mr. A. W. Peel (the speaker), and 22 Conservatives, including Sir John Gorst.

On Wednesday four members had a walk over, two in England and one each in Scotland and Ireland. No fewer than 105 contests were decided on this day, the general result being highly favourable to the Government. Leeds returns three Conservatives (Messrs. Jackson, Dawson and Balfour) and two Liberals (Sir Lyon Playfair and Mr. H. J. Gladstone), Mr. Barran being defeated; Sheffield follows suit, Messrs. Vincent, Stuart Wortley and Ashmead Bartlett (C) having Messrs. Mundella and Coleridge as Liberal colleagues. Liverpool fills her nine seats with eight Conservatives (including Lord C. Hamilton and Baron Worms) and one Nationalist (Mr. O'Connor); Mr. Marriott (C) is safe for Brighton, though Sir M. Hicks Beach is the only Tory returned out of the four seats at Bristol. Sir Wm. Harcourt is accompanied from Derby by Alderman Roe, and Mr. Goschen has secured a seat in Edinburgh. Hull has lost one of her old members, Mr. Norwood, replaced by Mr. King (C) while Mr. Wilson, his former colleague, deteated Dr. Rollitt. Lynn keeps Mr. Bourke, and Northampton holds on to Mr. Bradlaugh and Mr. Labouchere. Lord Churchill is high up at Paddington, but his lieutenant, Sir H. D. Woolf, has lost at Portsmouth. Mr. Winn defeated Mr. Childers at Pontefract by 36 votes, but York returns Mr. Lockwood with Mr. Pease, instead of Sir F. Milner. Salford sends two Liberals and a Conservative, while Bolton returns two Conservatives. Yesterday, about 46 constituencies decided who should be their representatives, several being double membered boroughs, while gentlemen were returned unopposed for Elgin in Scotland, and for five Irish towns, Mr. J. H. McCarthy being one of them. Of the contested elections, Manchester fills five of her six seats with Conservatives, the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour and Lord F. Hamilton being of the number, Mr. Jacob Bright losing his place. The seven seats for Tower Hamlets are occupied by 3 Conservatives, 3 Liberals, and Mr. Durrant, a labour candidate; Lambeth sends four Conservatives—a solid vote; Sotuhwark, two Liberals and a Tory; Marylebone, two Conservatives (one being the gallant Lord Chas. Beresford); Finsbury two Conservatives and a Liberal; Hampstead, Sir H. Holland (C) defeats the Marquis of Lorne; and the City of London returns the late Lord Mayor (Sir R. N. Fowler) and Mr. Hubbard, both Government supporters. Halifax and Leicester send their two Liberals each, while Huddersfield retains her former member, Mr. Leatham (L), and Wakefield hers, Mr. Green (C).

To-day there are 85 contests to be fought, about 30 being county divisions in different parts of the country, and as the results up to now have been severely felt by the Liberals, and rejoiced over by the Conservatives, intense anxiety is being manifested to learn how the new voters will go, many of whom will speak to-day for the first time. Up to this time the results are as follows:—

The polling will take place next Tuesday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Immediately after the close of the polling stations in the division, which extends from Emley on the one side to Woodlesford on the other, the ballot boxes will be conveyed to the Mechanics' Institution at Wakefield as quickly as possible, and there the votes will be cast up the same night, and Mr. Dixon hopes to declare the result shortly after midnight. The following is a summary of the voters in each polling district:—Altofts, 548; Alverthorpe, 946; Crigglestone, 562; Emley, 431; Horbury, 886; Methley, 701; Normanton, 1,723; Oulton-with-Woodlesford, 371; Rothwell-with-Rothwell Haigh and Royds Green, 1,004; Sandal Magna, 375, Sharlston, 530; Shitlington, 455; Stanley, 1,304; Wakefield, 980; Whitwood, 663;—total, 11,479.

Hopkins, the deputy returning officer. The nominations were as follows:—Joseph John Dunnington-Jefferson, Thicket Priory, in the parish of Thorganby, in the East Riding of the County of York, one of Her Majesty's deputy lieutenants of the East Riding (C), was nominated by Joshua Hirst Wheatley, The Hagg, Mirfield, and William Horton, Hughendon, Morley. CONCERT AT LOFTHOUSE.

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 24th, a concert of vocal and instrumental music was given in the Church School-room by the Church Choir, assisted by Mrs. Hill, of Sheffield, and Miss Sargent, of Liverpool, in aid of the Church Building Fund.

The night was unfortunately very dark and wet, yet there was a highly respectable audience, which shows that the Vicar is appreciated in his endeavours to improve the church accommodation.

The choir sang four glees in a very creditable manner. Mr. A. W. Marshall, deputy organist at Lofthouse Church, played two pianoforte solos with great taste, shewing a skilful manipulation of the keys. Messrs. Jos., Thos. and John Wormald gave selections on the violin, flute and pianoforte in a very finished style, so as to be recalled. Mr. Jno. Brown sang two songs with taste and feeling, and Mr. S. Goldthorpe gave two comic sketches, which were applauded and answered by encore songs in character. But the gems of the evening were in the hands of the ladies, whose splendid vocal powers were shown with grace and artistic finish. Mrs. Hill sang "The Star of Life" with such expression as to be recalled, when she sang "Killarney." In her second song "Tell me my heart," she entranced the audience, and in response to a determined encore, she gave "My mother bids me bind my hair." Her full rich tone and finished style, together with her personal appearance, seemed to keep the audience spell-bound. Miss Jennie Sargent also delighted the company with her singing of Pinsuti's "Heaven and Earth." Her rich contralto voice was heard to perfection in her rendering Cowen's "Never again," which was vociferously applauded, when she gave "Love's old sweet song" in a delightful style, quite enrapturing the audience. We may venture to predict that should these ladies visit the district again, they will meet with a very enthusiastic reception. Mr. B. Marshall accompanied their songs with great taste and care. The vicar, the Rev. J. R. Crawford, thanked the ladies for their assistance, and said that the concert was a genuine attempt to raise the taste of the people for really good music.

The National Anthem concluded one of the best concerts we have had the pleasure of hearing.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons the good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and desponding that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain, or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

MINERS' WAGES

MEETING OF MESSRS. CHARLESWORTH'S MEN

A largely attended mass meeting of the men employed at Messrs. Charlesworth's collieries at Rothwell Haigh, Robin Hood and Newmarket, was held in the Football Field, Carlton, on Monday afternoon.

Mr. Richard Lennard occupied the chair, and he was supported by Messrs. Pickard, Parrott and Frith, of the West Yorkshire Coal Miners' Association, and Messrs. Burnley, Beeton, Sykes, Steel, and others.

Mr. Pickard said he had come over to shew that he was in sympathy with Messrs. Charlesworths' men in their troubles, and he had come to speak to them on the wages question. He said, with reference to the proposed ten per cent. advance, that the miners in other districts were not prepared to fight the battle unless Charlesworths' men helped them. Of course it was reported on all sides that the miners employed at the pits belonging to Messrs. Charlesworth were the best paid and the best treated, and that they never complained, or all would be made right for them. He was told that if ever anybody did complain, they were very speedily informed that they did not require grumblers, and they were turned adrift; with reference to the pay, he had been informed that they were working a day and a half, instead of a day, for which they received about three and sixpence, whereas he could mention pits where the men worked eight hours and received two shillings more. He did did want to go at all beyond the men's wishes, and if they were contented he would let them alone. In one part there were twenty or thirty thousand miners whose masters had given the advance, and he thought the Rothwell men ought to go in for shorter hours and more money. The coal owners cherished a hope that the men would waver and be disunited, which was their only chance of success, for if the men would act in concert they were bound to win in the great struggle. Coal had gone up one shilling per ton, the coal merchant had put 3d. more on for his own benefit, and he thought the poor miners had a right to some share in the extra revenue. He concluded his address by urging the men to pull together and benefit themselves, without injuring the firm.

Mr. Amos Beeton then reported the interview the deputation had had with the employers, resulting in an arrangement to "go with the district."

Mr. Parrott said if they had decided to go with the district, they might perhaps like to know what the other miners in the district were doing. He then proceeded to shew that the district men wanted to send in their notices, but they also wanted Messrs. Charlesworth's men to do so. He referred to the meeting held some three years ago in the Sty Bank Field at Rothwell, which was the means of securing the advance. The owners offered them the sliding scale (a voice—"Aye, slidin' dahn t'hill") but that was not what they wanted. In conclusion, he strongly advised the men to join the Union and fight like men.

Mr. Frith and Mr. R. M. Sykes addressed a few remarks to the meeting, and at this stage of the proceedings some personalities were indulged in which threatened to give rise to divisions and strife, when Mr. Pickard interposed, and by a few sentences of strong appeal silenced the voice of discord, and the resolutions were proceeded with.

It was resolved unanimously that the notices for a ten per cent. advance be tendered on Friday, today. It was also decided only to work eight hours' shifts, coming out of the pit at two o'clock, and a third resolution was to the effect that the miners at the several pits join the Miners' Union.

After the business of the meeting had been concluded, Mr. Pickard naturally took the opportunity of making some remarks upon the subject of his candidature for the Normanton Division. He had heard a report to the effect that the deputy in one of the pits had been visiting the men in their several working places and soliciting their votes, which he believed was contrary to the provisions of the Corrupt Practices Bill. He reminded the electors of the Ballot system, by which they were able to give their vote without anybody knowing for whom they had voted. Some of the upper ten said the working man had no right to the vote. They had to work and pay taxes, and be bound by the laws of the land, therefore he held that they had a perfect right to help in making such laws. He had had no adverse vote yet, and did not expect one. The Yorkshire Post, in reporting some of Colonel Charlesworth's meetings, informs the public that the vote of confidence "was put," but does not say whether carried or no. He advised the men to play on the first day of their political freedom, and shew the employers that in the Normanton Division they will send a labour candidate to represent labour.

A vote of confidence was then passed in favour of Mr. Pickard and Mr. Gaskell, and the usual vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close a little before five o'clock

MINERS' MEETING AT EAST ARDSLEY.

A meeting of about 200 of Messrs. Halliday and Sons' workmen employed at the colliery at East Ardsley, was held in a lane near the pit head on Monday to consider the course to be taken on the question of the ten per cent. advance. Mr. Raymond Ellis, of Rothwell, occupied the position of chairman, and it was decided, after some consideration, to adjourn the meeting until Monday next, when it will be decided what action to take. It is probable that they will adopt the same plan as the Charlesworth workpeople, and give in their notices.

Kaye's Lavaline is king of soaps,
That's what the people say;
They buy from H. P. Newsome,
Who sells it every day;
There is Charles Ward and Son,
Also there's Alfred Drew,
Together with the Co-op'tive Stores,
And a host of others too.
Just you try Kaye's Lavaline,
Try Kaye's Lavaline!
You'll say then with the rest
It's the cheapest and the best

CONCERT AT ROTHWELL.

The first concert of the season was given on Monday evening in the Mechanics' Hall, for the benefit of the Rothwell Old Band, whose finances sadly want resuscitating since the unfortunate failure of the Brass Band Contest. Mr. Wm. Harrison and Mr. Jas. Plows kindly offered to get up a concert to assist this object, and it is very gratifying to know their generous efforts proved so successful. Not only was the concert last Monday eminently pleasing, but the hall was crowded in every part, resulting in the receipt of a handsome amount in ticket money.

It has seldom been our fortune to have such a variety of fare as was offered at this concert; the members of the Band wisely refrained from taking a part as performers, devoting their time to the furtherance of the success of the concert. Instead of a brass band selection, a small band of excellent ability and appropriate combination, had been secured, and we think their playing of selections from "Tancredi" and "Zampa" may be placed at the head of any instrumental performance in Rothwell. To this result every one ably contributed, Mr. Archdale occupying the piano seat, while Messrs. Grayley, John R Seanor and Jos. Wormald played the first violin, Messrs. S. Morton and S. Hartley the second, Mr. T. Wormald flute, Mr. S. Fowler cornet, and Mr. E. Butterworth violoncello. These gentlemen will be welcomed whenever they come to Rothwell, and we must very heartily compliment Mr. J. Plows on his accomplishing so well the difficult duty of conductor. Mr. Archdale as accompanist was almost constantly at his work, and assisted the singers with taste and correctness, his two solos from the "Bohemian Girl" and "William Tell" being most effectively and cleverly played, the latter being specially applauded. Mr. Grayley's violin solos "The Last Rose of Summer," and "The Harp that once thro' Tara's Halls," were remarkably well done, and thoroughly enjoyed, the latter being encored. Miss Georgina Fisher, as a stranger, had to make her way, though her choice of Barri's composition, was not one to take an audience by storm. This piece consists of two parts, the recitative "The Beauteous Song," being rather delicate, while the second portion, "Come unto me," is very sweet; both numbers were given with evident appreciation of the writer's purpose, and linger in one's mind as a shadowy dream of beautiful music. In "The Little Hero" there was more latitude, and Miss Fisher easily scored a decided encore, to which she replied in the humorous old song "The three old maids of Lea," which gave great pleasure to the listeners. Mr. Jas. Dobson was never in better form, and seemed so perfectly at home as to secure the thorough sympathy of his friends. It is always a somewhat thankless position to take the first song on a programme, but Mr. Dobson's acceptance of that place in singing "Some day" was a capital point, and gave tone to the whole affair. His second appearance in "As I'd nothing else to do," just suited both him and his audience, and although this song was given at ten o'clock, its repetition was vociferously demanded, and kindly given. Little Miss Mary Blackburn was a picture as she warbled out her little ditties, "I dream'd a dream," and "Come birdie, come;" her evident childhood (7 years), her prim postures, her laughing eyes, all provoked interest and pleasure, and her part in the concert was not the least attractive and agreeable; her brother, Master George Blackburn, played the accompaniments for her. The Church Choir Glee Party, consisting of Messrs. A. Pape, T. Bedford, W. Lambert, J. Woodcock and W. Dobson, did their full share in making the concert a success by singing two glees, "Welcome, welcome," and "Merrily our ship," and very well they sang too, both in time, tune and harmony. The only other item in the programme was the unusual but highly acceptable introduction of two or three recitations, which in the lips of Miss Selina Goldsborough, were not only correctly rendered, but were presented in such a manner as to affect to tears or smiles the large audience who listened with breathless attention to the little girl's story. "The Outcast" was no sooner finished, than the continued applause proved that an encore must be allowed, "The Dean's Brother" being the piece selected. Then in the second part, "Keeping his word" so touched the hearts of the people, that she was again recalled, and gave in a thrilling manner, "The testimony of the dead."

Taken altogether, the entertainment was a complete success, and we are pleased to learn that, although the tickets were very reasonable, a nett sum of £ has been handed over to the treasurer of the Band.

WOODLESFORD AND OULTON.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

A lecture was given on Tuesday evening last, in the School-room Swillington on Church Defence, by Dr. Hayman, late head master at Rugby. The rector, the Rev. N. Bergheim presided, and the meeting was opened with prayer and a singing of a hymn. There was only a thin attendance, partly owing to the miserable weather, and the out of the way situation of the school, but chiefly owing to the fact that few people knew of the event until it was over. The lecture was a most interesting and scholarly address, and the speaker one to whom it would be a pleasure to listen on any subject; it was a pity more people were not there to enjoy the treat. A vote of thanks proposed by the Rev. A. J. Irvin, of Woodlesford, and seconded by the Rev. M. Host, of Kippax, was heartily accorded to the lecturer, and the meeting was closed with the doxology and benediction.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

WE regret that, by some mishap, the promised critical report of the Dramatic Entertainment has not reached us, but if to hand in time, it shall appear in the SPECIAL EDITION.

STOURTON WESLEYANS.—The annual missionary meeting in connexion with this chapel was held on Thursday evening last when a good number attended to hear news of the Foreign missionray work. The Rev. W. G. Dicken, after opening the meeting, introduced the chairman, Mr. J. Grisdale (Leeds) who called upon the reverend gentlemen to read the annual report. Mr. Grisdale then addressed the meeting after which he called upon the Rev. E. Sinzinenex, returned missionary from China, who gave a short outline of the manners and customs of the Chinese, and also gave several instances of the success of his work there. The Rev. F. Booth stationed in the West African provinces afterwards addressed the audience, his speech being very interesting.

A GOLD MEDAL has been awarded to KENDAL & DENT, Watch Makers, 106, Cheapside, London, by the Paris International Exhibition, 1885, for various improvements and general excellence in Watches, among which are Patent Watches for the Blind, &c., &c.

STOURTON PRIMITIVE SCHOOL CHAPEL.—A Service of Song entitled the "Roll Call" was given in the above place of worship on Sunday afternoon, when every seat was filled, solos were given by Miss Tolson (Hunslet), and Mr. A. Smith undertook the work of accompanying the musical numbers.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.—On Saturday last, a miscellaneous entertainment was provided in the above Hall. The audience quite filled the room, and appeared to be well pleased with the effort to provide good and cheap entertainments for them. The several items on the programme were rendered by local amateurs including, Messrs Smith, Blackburn, Ward, Higgins, Kendrew, Wright, Clarkson, Illingworth, Ward and Wilson, while Mr. W. Blackburn presided at the harmonium.

MR. ALFRED PARKER.—During this week men have been engaged dragging the river at Bottomboat in search of Mr. Alfred Parker, who disappeared over a month ago. While thus engaged a piece of important information was secured from a boatman, who after having learnt the object of those engaged in the dragging process, declared that about eight days after Mr. Parker's disappearance he found a hat floating on the water which answered the description given, and that he had given it to a young man at Oulton. The young man was found, and the hat produced, which Mrs. Parker recognises as the one worn by Mr. Parker when he left home. It now appears evident that Mr. Parker has in his mental weakness thrown himself into the water, but there seems little hope of recovering the remains, if such is the case.

MR. CHARLES COLLETTE ON SHIRTS.—A contributor to the St. Stephen's Review says—"A few days ago I noticed an extraordinary letter in the Field, from a gentleman who complained that his shirt always worked up his back when he was hunting. I cannot say that my hunting experience tallies with that of the gentleman in question, but I remember Mr. Chas. Collette's song of "My Uncle Pete," in which he warbled of that worthy that—

"He put his shirt on upside down."

I would recommend the writer to the Field to follow that noble example."

BELL RINGING.—On Sunday, November 22nd, the ringers belonging to the Rothwell Parish Church rang 1800 changes, consisting of 720 Arnold's Victory, 720 Violet, and 360 Duke of York; the bells were muffled as a tribute of respect to the memory of the late J. W. Snowden, Esq., who was president of the Yorkshire Association of change ringers. The following are the names of those taking part:—J. Verity, treble; Alf. Chapman, 2nd; J. M. Chadwick, 3rd; Wm. Abbishaw 4th; S. Stacey, 5th; J. Chapman, tenor.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

I AM greatly surprised, along with many others, that the increased demand for 5d in the £, should be made by the Lofthouse-with-Carlton School Board for the present half year. I thought the Board were pledged to economy, but the increased demand shows a want of economy. The cost for the year, which will be 7½ or 8d., is greater than the cost at Rothwell. This argues badly for the management of the schools, and will tell seriously against the Board at the next election. It has been said that some of the School Boards are wooden, and we shall be strongly inclined to say so at Lofthouse. It is getting time we had a change of timber. Trade and wages and everything else are ebbing, and getting lower and lower, but rates grow and thrive like mushrooms. It is becoming the practice now to have what is called a people's auditor to look over the accounts at the heels of the official auditor. I hope School Boards and all other Boards will take a hint in time. It has been shown that in the corporation accounts of one town as much as £5,000 of extravagant expenses had been passed by the official auditor in one year which ought not to have been passed, the consequence was a surcharge on the auditor himself, and a narrow escape from dismissal.

⁂

THE concert at Lofthouse on Tuesday was one of the most successful that has been given in the district and was comparatively well attended. The editor tells me he has already received a notice of it, so I am prevented detailing.

IT had almost been a case of mistaken identity last Thursday night, when the Rothwell Times reporter made his appearance, arm in arm with his friend Gurney, in the street, when leaving the meeting at which Mr. Milnes-Gaskell had been addressing the free electors of this and other constituencies on his political views. From the report which appeared in the Rothwell Times and other sources I learn that Mr. J. W. Wright, a daring junior tory from Rothwell, had made himself conspicuous and objectionable to the peaceful Liberals assembled, and it appears that they were waiting at the door to celebrate his exit from the schools and village, with musical honours, of the same style as those used in the meeting, hooting, shouting &c. By and by the reporter made his appearance, and being dressed somewhat similarly to the offending youth, he was speedily surrounded and the hooting began. He shouted "What are you hooting at" and his voice was recognised, so he was saved from a very unpleasant experience which was afterwards bestowed on the luckless tory spark.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as SCOTT & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

TOWN TALK.

ALL but the most ardent politicians must be growing tired of election speeches, meetings, and news. Business seems to be at a standstill, and the air is full of election news of every kind. The election news monopolises the columns of the newspapers, and even the 'War in the Balkans,' and the 'Expedition to Burmah,' are in many instances completely overlooked by the average reader. To estimate the total results of the elections would be a most difficult task, and one which I don't desire to undertake, but I must confess that up to the time I write (Wednesday) the Conservatives have something to rejoice over. Turning to the local aspect of the political fight, I find, as I anticipated last week, that a couple of meetings are to be held at the close of this week, when the two parties will meet in deadly conflict. Which will win? The polling day alone can reveal, but judging by the various public meetings that have been held, I should be inclined to say that Colonel Charlesworth and Mr. Dunnington-Jefferson will not be so well on as they hope. Colonel Charlesworth is coming on Friday, and Mr. Pickard on Saturday; let me beseech those who attend either of these meetings to give everybody a fair hearing. The idiotic tumult one hears sometimes is most distressing, and I would urge my readers to refrain. I was visiting a friend of mine in another Riding not long ago, and there instead of hooting and groaning, some fellow at the back struck up in a clear tenor 'Wait till the clouds roll by.' This kind of interruption is to be preferred to the inharmonious hooting, etc., but I would say, have none of it. Tuesday will be a lively day. Look out, 'Gossip' will be there.

⁂

"AWAY went Kirby, and away
Went Kirby's horse and bus,
They little thought when they set out
Of making such a fuss."

That's a weak parody on 'John Gilpin.' Everybody knows that John's ride was extended rather further than he liked, but some people may not know that a similar thing occurred to the passengers in Kirby's Rothwell bus on Tuesday last. When the bus had arrived in Carr Lane, at the bottom of Bell Hill, the horses took it into their heads to go home, and forthwith they went, turning suddenly round and making a quick journey to their stables in Hunslet, where they came to a standstill. Happily, nothing more serious occurred than that several sturdy business men were delayed about an hour, along with sundry other passengers, and that Kirby had to find other horses and start for Rothwell a second time, where, it is satisfactory to learn, he arrived with his precious cargo about half-past six o'clock.

⁂

I READ in the daily paper that the coal owners in West Yorkshire, in view of the anticipated further depression of the coal trade, have come to a decision to resist to the utmost of their power, the demand for a ten per cent. advance on the miners' wages. Well, I am not an expert on the coal trade question, and do not pretend to be able to see far into the future, and divine whether the trade is likely to advance or recede, but there is a fact that appeals very powerfully to my reason and common sense, viz., that in Leeds the price of coal to consumers has been raised 1/3 per ton, and out of this surely the miner has a claim to an advance.

GOSSIP.

ALLEGED INTIMIDATION of VOTERS.

Colonel Charlesworth having requested us to reprint certain correspondence which has taken place under the above head, we have pleasure in publishing the following letters on the subject. Two or three preliminary notes had passed between the Colonel and Mr. McInnes, but they are simply introductory to the two herewith given—and which close the correspondence.

"Free Press" Office.
Wakefield, November 16th, 1885.

Dear Sir,

In accordance with the promise in my letter of November 9th, I forward you fuller details regarding the case of Joseph Harrison. He is now 59 years of age, and entered into the employ of Messrs J. & J. Charlesworth on the 21st January, 1843. Since that time he has been more or less continuously with the firm, and he has always been highly respected by those in authority over him. At the beginning of May last, he was working as a screener at the Beeston Pit, and on the second of that month received permission, from a man named West, to absent himself for a day or two in order to visit Liverpool to see his daughter off to America. On returning home he became unwell through catching cold, but was given to understand that he could resume work when he got better. What was his astonishment, however, shortly afterwards on being told that there was nothing for him to do! This statement was disavowed by the manager! who then told him that he would see what could be done. Harrison waited patiently for some time, and for a long period of twelve or thirteen weeks was, to use his own phrase, bandied about from pillar to post, and could get no satisfactory answer from the persons to whom he applied. That he was considered in the employ of the firm is shown by the fact that during the time referred to he was elected one of the board of management of the Accident Fund, and was summoned to the meetings, the first condition of membership being employment by the firm of Messrs. Charlesworth. At last, after thus being kept dangling about—one thing being said one day and another the next—he was compelled to look for employment elsewhere, and through the kindness of the members of the Local Board he was appointed lamplighter for the township. I may add that personally Harrison has very great respect for the members of the firm, and whilst convinced that he has been made a victim for his outspokeness, he blames the officials rather than Messrs Charlesworth. It is not forgotten that he has been a prominent member of the Liberal Association, and he states that some time ago, in the course of a discussion on the Accident Fund, the significant remark was made to him by a leading official, "I hope Mr. Harrison will use his influence amongst the men, and that he will not forget that he is now getting an old man with grey whiskers." This was taken by him as a hint not to be lost sight of.

Another case was that of a man named Henry Smart, who attended your first meeting at Rothwell, and having shown his Liberalism in a very decided manner, found his services as a miner soon afterwards dispensed with. Not only so, but he complains that as a result of the action at Rothwell he has been unable to obtain work at other pits, and has had to seek employment of another kind altogether. As the result of my enquiries at Rothwell, I have no hesitation in assuring you that considerable feeling prevails, and there are men aggrieved at what they consider the plain hints given to them in the present crisis. I believe it is your wish that they should feel independent in the discharge of their elective rights, and an assurance from you to that effect would go a long way in removing the unpleasantness that exists.

I am, yours truly,
J. McInnes.

Chapelthorpe Hall,
Wakefield, November 18th 1885.

Dear Sir,

I have to thank you for your letter dated November 16th, containing particulars of the two cases quoted by you. The first person you name is Joseph Harrison, who you say is 59 years of age and has been in my employ since 1843, more and less continually. What you mean by more or less continually is not at all clear, but the fact is, that out of the past 20 years he has been employed elsewhere fully 10 years, and of the ten years he has been with us, he has not worked more than two-thirds of his time, as he is a delicate man, and has been tolerated by the manager on that account. As to his alleged discharge you say that Harrison received permission to absent himself for a day or two to see his daughter off to America; that is quite correct, but he absented himself for six or seven weeks instead of a day or two, and never sent any reason to the manager for his absence; another man was therefore set on in place of Harrison, and he was told that as soon as anything turned up he should have work found him. It must be mentioned that Harrison is not a man who could be trusted in any kind of work, as he told the general manager of the collieries that his doctor said he might "drop down dead" at any moment, and he would undoubtedly have had the position of night banksman offered him in a short while but for his statement that he was liable to drop down dead at any time. With respect to Harrison being elected on the Board of Management during the time he was off work, that distinctly proves that he was considered one of my men, and as to his getting employment through the kindness of the Local Board, I may mention that my general manager is chairman of the Board, and gave his casting vote in favour of Harrison, thus proving that there was no prejudice against the man whatever. Your last reference to this man—"The significant remark was made to him by a leading official, I hope Mr. Harrison will use his influence," etc., etc., is an entire fabrication, and if anything approaching that statement was made, it is the corrupt imagination of the man Harrison that construed it into something to suit his present case, but it is absolutely denied by every official that anything of the kind was ever said. I may say that I have no less than six sons and sons-in-law of Harrison employed at my colliery at the present time.

The other case you mention is that of Henry Smart, and the following statement is correct in every detail, and Smart will admit this if brought face to face with the manager:—H. Smart was set on at Rothwell Haigh colliery as a miner on Thursday, April 16th, 1885, and worked the Friday and Saturday following at Beeston Pit with Thomas Chapman, but absented himself from work on Monday and Tuesday, April 20th and 21st. Mr. James Hargreaves, the manager, passed through Smart's working place at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, April 21st, and finding him absent, told Chapman and others that he would start another man in Smart's place, and accordingly did so. The man's name thus started is Walter Butterfield, and he signed the agreement at 1 p.m. on Tuesday, April 21st, 1885. The above transpired seven or eight hours before my meeting at Rothwell. Owing to some misunderstanding with the deputy H. Smart was allowed to descend the pit and work on Wednesday, April 22nd, but was stopped on Thursday morning as soon as he came to work. As to Smart not being able to get work as a miner elsewhere, I may say that he bears the character of an irregular workman wherever he has been, and that is no doubt the secret of a result which he is trying to palm off as Conservative intimidation.

Respectfully yours,
ALBANY H. CHARLESWORTH.

THE LOCAL BOARD'S ROADS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I was somewhat interested and amused at reading a letter in your Times of Friday, the 13th November, under the above heading, in which Mr. John Turner objects to purchasing expensive material or metal in forming roads in this district, which material is procured from a distance, when he asserts we have got "excellent material almost on the spot, and which can be procured for little or nothing; this material being smooth stones or pebbles."

I cannot understand how Mr. Turner reconciles the two statements, 1st, that ashes (which cost nothing and are "procured on the spot") "are very costly," and secondly, that "pebbles" (which are simply consolidated mud) which would have to be bought and would have to undergo a considerable amount of labour in collecting, breaking, screening, spreading (in several layers according to their respective sizes), and finally coating with quick lime (which of course means chalk or limesome, &c., or any carbonate lime deprived of its carbonic acid by the continued action of intense heat and which I presume can also be got on the spot and I think Mr. Turner will also admit that this will have to be paid for) all of which can be done for "little or nothing" or a "merely nominal cost."

Mr. Turner's notions of road making are as antiquated and waterworn as the "pebbles." During the last 20 years I have superintended the forming and maintenance of scores of miles of roads (I may even say hundreds), and if I had to maintain the whole of those roads at my own cost, I would prefer buying good material for them, rather than use these "pebbles" at a gift as I am quite convinced that in the costs (if not the present cost, which I should very much question) there would be no comparison. These pebbles would in a very short space of time be ground into mud by the traffic making impassable roads in winter and covered with dust in summer, thereby costing (instead of having £500 as per Mr. Turner's estimate) more than double the amount of forming a road properly, and according to the best and most modern principle of road making.

Being one of those "who boast of their practical experience" (and experience is a good teacher, but Mr. Turner seems to ignore this), I am prepared to ridicule Mr. Turner's scheme whether it "disproves his notions" or not, and I should not be prepared to have the public money wasted on such antique notions.

I wonder what the inhabitants of our large towns would think if they were to return to ancient customs of road making, and find their main thoroughfares "pebbles," or waterworn stones (alias mud) throwing about instead of roads properly formed according to the best principles of modern road making. Surely after the many years of careful observations as to wear and tear of different material, their first cost and cost of maintenance, keeping in view the cleanliness also of the roads, &c., observations by men such as Macadam, Telford, and later by the best engineers of the day. Have these to be ignored, and have we to be lead by the whim of men of no experience whatever in these matters?

I believe I am correct in stating that three-fourths of the money expended on our main roads in this district have been returned by the County Authorities, thus shewing their appreciation of the manner these roads have been formed of late years. Could Mr. Turner get three-fourths of the money returned if expended on roads formed in the manner he suggests? I think not. And would the Local Government Board grant borrowing powers to roads made in such a manner. I say distinctly they would not lend a single penny towards such a scheme.

The roads in our district have undergone a marked improvement during the last few years, as expressed recently by a gentleman of considerable knowledge in this branch of business, and if the forming and maintenance were left in the hands of the 'practical' instead of the unpractical meddling too much with such work, I have no doubt we should still have even further improvements in this department.

I am, Sir,
Yours faithfully,
Pro Bono Publico,
PRACTICAL.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

In reading over your paper for the 6th inst., I was pleased to find the few remarks made by the writer in your columns, respecting the deplorable state Mill Hill was in. It had been noticed by those in authority and instructions had been given to the surveyor to attend to it. Now, Mr. Editor, I should like to suggest through the same medium that the hill be paved right down to the beck, which would make a permanent and lasting job. I am told that it once had put on it some Skipton stone and ashes, and the first thunder shower that came washed it all into the beck, thereby losing both labour and material. Therefore if it could be paved I am sure it would be a credit to the doers for years to come. Thanking you for inserting this,

I remain,
Yours very respectfully,
A RATEPAYER.

THE DISESTABLISHMENT MOVEMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

When I sent you my last letter I had no intention of writing again before the General Election was over. If Mr. Crawford really believes that those whom he calls "purely political Liberals" wish to "hush up the Church question until after the general election," he is very credulous. The furious utterances of many of the Church Defence party are directing increased attention to the subject, and stimulating inquiry and discussion. Mr. Crawford would act wisely if he would more frequently avoid coming to hasty conclusions. Mr. Crawford thinks that 'the Church is in danger.' If he had said the Church, as an establishment, was in danger, he would have been quite correct. This cry of 'the Church is in danger' is an old one, and it will be as futile, in the long run, as many other cries have been when unjust laws have been assailed. Like many thousands Mr. Crawford can not discern very clearly the signs of the times. Lord Derby sees that Disestablishment is inevitable. The Church in danger! No, not if it be founded upon a rock, as its friends often assert. What did the able and energetic Dr. Hook say in 1869? "I fully believe that, in Ireland, the Church will accomplish more good by being disestablished, than under the circumstance of an establishment she can ever hope to effect.... I trust that, if it shall be decided at any future period that it is for the good of the country that the Church shall be disestablished in England, the clergy will preach the gospel to the nation by an exhibition of their disinterestedness as well as by their zeal." I commend Dr. Hook's views to the consideration of Mr. Crawford and his fellow alarmists.

Yours truly,
Leeds, Nov. 18th. JOHN ANDREW.

THE CHURCH IS IN DANGER.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

We thought this but a passing election cry, like many more that we have heard, but lo! it is still piteously uttered by your voluminous correspondent of a few weeks ago; and he whose family have been Liberal for many generations, has become Conservative because the Church is in danger. Matthew, 16 chap., 18 v., reads thus—"and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Therefore Christian people, don't fear that the Church of Christ is in danger. Still what the vicar says is true. The Church is in danger. The Church that can boast of having the largest number of schools under its care; 73 per cent. of the religious public within its pale; most of the landed gentry its patrons; most of the members of Parliament calling themselves by its name; the only Church represented in the House of Lords; the National Church of England. Yes, 'this Church is in danger,' and the newly enfranchised electors of our Normanton Division are appealed to so piteously to save the Church. Well, we don't wish to harm her by any means, but why should we vote Tory to save the Church—and what to save her from? State patronage we believe, engenders priestly arrogance in the Established Church; hinders her usefulness, fetters her freedom, and in the unprejudiced opinion of many does her an immense deal more harm than good. We venerate her antiquity, respect her sincere followers, and see within her borders an immense power for good; but we cannot vote Tory to save that which we believe is doomed to destruction. Tory rule may delay it, and even a Liberal Government will not dare to meddle of her without an immense amount of thought and consideration. We thank our worthy vicars and squires for their kind attention and advice, but you very unwillingly gave us our votes, and we can scarcely trust you just yet. Please to be as good as our labour candidate in abolishing canvassing. Take care that the promise of Lieutenant Colonel Charlesworth, not to put any pressure upon the working miners is strictly adhered to, by no stewards or deputies pursuing the hateful practice of asking for whom they are going to vote, and you may by-and-bye win the confidence of

Yours faithfully,
A COUNTY VOTER.

CANVASSING.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

The great political struggle is drawing to a close, and very shortly the "newly enfranchised" electors will have the opportunity of exercising their long-delayed rights. Let both the old and new voters consider their position, act independently, and vote according to what they are fully persuaded is right.

Let all remember that everyone is equal in this respect, whether he be a Duke, Earl, or working man, or whatever position he may hold, and interference from any person is decidedly wrong, and hence canvassing is an unjust thing, because it is an endeavour to ascertain the mind of the voter, which no one has a right to know, while to offer intimidation from employers to employed betrays a meanness of spirit which every honourable and generous-minded man looks upon with sincere contempt.

It is well that the ballot way of voting affords protection to such as are in danger of suffering by such dishonourable means. For one person to punish another because his conscientious voting is opposed to theirs, is to revive the old religious temper of persecution, that is, "If you wont have the same religious belief as me I will punish you," so in regard to political matters, "If you won't vote as I do you may expect punishment." Intolerance is a very unpleasant to endure, and if those who carry out this unprincipled work were compelled to receive the same from those to whom they are opposed would find it a portion against which no doubt they would strongly rebel. If every voter acts according to the golden rule "Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you," then they will act honestly and manly, and in this matter at least have a conscience void of offence towards God and man.

Yours,
AN OLD VOTER.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by a drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 17, Farringdon road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

Monday, November 30, 1885.

PARLIAMENT-MAKING is always a time of excitement, as upon it depends the fate of Governments, but at the present period the process is taking place under new conditions which are invested with exceptional interest and importance. Since the last general election took place the Franchise and Redistribution Acts have wrought a wonderful change on the political face of the country. The constituencies have been to a large extent reconstituted, two millions of voters have been placed on the registration rolls, and an addition of twelve raises the membership of the House of Commons to six hundred and seventy in number. At the general election in 1868, which resulted in a Liberal victory, the newly-enfranchised household electors of the boroughs exhibited much eagerness in voting for the first time, though they had not then the protection of the ballot, and a still greater eagerness is sure to be manifested at the present crisis by the larger body of newly-enfranchised county household electors, who were seventeen years later than their more favoured fellow-subjects in the towns in obtaining votes. According to existing arrangements, the elections which began on Monday, the twenty-third instant, when several nominations took place, will extend to the eighteenth December, on which day the polling for the affiliated Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrew's falls due.

The first member of the new Parliament was returned unopposed for Wolverhampton on Monday, the veteran Mr. Villiers; Mr. Richard and Mr. James (for Merthyr Tydvill) and Mr. Ferguson (for Carlisle) making up the four uncontested elections of that day. On Tuesday, Mr. Burt became member for Morpeth, along with two Conservatives each for Dublin, Oxford and Cambridge Universities, Mr. Campbell (C) for Aberdeen, and Sir J. Lubbock (L) for London Universities, besides a Conservative for Blackpool, Liberals for Hawick, Fife, Stirling, and Swansea, and Nationalists for Newry and Kilkenny.

There were contests in some 50 boroughs on Tuesday, among the principal being Birmingham, returning Liberals for all seven seats, including the Right Hon. John Bright and Jos. Chamberlain, Lord Churchill losing by 800 votes. Chelsea holds to Sir Chas. Dilke, Sunderland sends her two members, Exeter returns the Hon. H. S. Northcote (C), and the Right Hon. W. H. Smith is returned by more than 100 per cent. majority. Besides these, 15 Liberals were elected, including Mr. A. W. Peel (the speaker), and 22 Conservatives, including Sir John Gorst.

On Wednesday four members had a walk over, two in England and one each in Scotland and Ireland. No fewer than 105 contests were decided on this day, the general result being highly favourable to the Government. Leeds returns three Conservatives (Messrs. Jackson, Dawson and Balfour) and two Liberals (Sir Lyon Playfair and Mr. H. J. Gladstone), Mr. Barran being defeated; Sheffield follows suit, Messrs. Vincent, Stuart Wortley and Ashmead Bartlett (C) having Messrs. Mundella and Coleridge as Liberal colleagues. Liverpool fills her nine seats with eight Conservatives (including Lord C. Hamilton and Baron Worms) and one Nationalist (Mr. O'Connor); Mr. Marriott (C) is safe for Brighton, though Sir M. Hicks Beach is the only Tory returned out of the four seats at Bristol. Sir Wm. Harcourt is accompanied from Derby by Alderman Roe, and Mr. Goschen has secured a seat in Edinburgh. Hull has lost one of her old members, Mr. Norwood, replaced by Mr. King (C) while Mr. Wilson, his former colleague, defeated Dr. Rollitt. Lynn keeps Mr. Bourke, and Northampton holds on to Mr. Bradlaugh and Mr. Labouchere. Lord Churchill is high up at Paddington, but his lieutenant, Sir H. D. Woolf, has lost at Portsmouth. Mr. Winn defeated Mr. Childers at Pontefract by 30 votes, but York returns Mr. Lockwood with Mr. Pease, instead of Sir F. Milner. Salford sends two Liberals and a Conservative, while Bolton returns two Conservatives. Yesterday, about 46 constituencies decided who should be their representatives, several being double membered boroughs, while gentlemen were returned unopposed for Elgin in Scotland, and for five Irish towns, Mr. J. H. McCarthy being one of them. Of the contested elections, Manchester fills five of her six seats with Conservatives, the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour and Lord F. Hamilton being of the number, Mr. Jacob Bright losing his place. The seven seats for Tower Hamlets are occupied by 3 Conservatives, 3 Liberals, and Mr. Durrant, a labour candidate; Lambeth sends four Conservatives—a solid vote; Sotuhwark, two Liberals and a Tory; Marylebone, two Conservatives (one being the gallant Lord Chas. Beresford); Finsbury two Conservatives and a Liberal; Hampstead, Sir H. Holland (C) defeats the Marquis of Lorne; and the City of London returns the late Lord Mayor (Sir R. N. Fowler) and Mr. Hubbard, both Government supporters. Halifax and Leicester send their two Liberals each, while Huddersfield retains her former member, Mr. Leatham (L), and Wakefield hers, Mr. Green (C).

Since writing the above on Friday, there have been over 100 elections, the total result being a slight improvement for the Liberals. On Friday the principal decisions were:- the late Premier by a majority of 4,600, and the Marquis of Hartington by 1,800, while Glasgow filled her seven seats and Nottingham her three seats with Liberals. On the Tory side Kensington sends her two, Belfast four (one against Mr. Sexton), and fills a number of single vacancies in England and Ireland.

The most important fixture for Saturday was Bradford, where Mr. Forster and two friends now monopolise the representation. Durham County sends Mr. Wilson (Labour) and two other Liberals; Hertfordshire, Kent, and Newington return two Conservatives each. In Louth Division, the Hon. Jas. Lowther has been defeated, while Barkston Ash and Howden have failed to return Liberals. Another labour representative is returned for South West Ham, and Cork City sends Messrs. Parnell and Healy. Several polls, taken on Saturday, will not be published till this afternoon, including Newcastle-on-Tyne.

CONSERVATIVE MEETING.

A mass meeting of electors was held on Friday evening, in the Mechanics' Hall (most of the audience standing), in order to hear Col Charlesworth and other gentlemen, previous to the day of the poll. Half-an-hour before the time of meeting, the hall was nearly filled, the interval of waiting being spent in good humoured jokes and cheers. Just after half-past seven the speakers filed in, their appearance being greeted with the greatest enthusiasm, cheers and counter cheers being given for the chiefs of the two parties, and for other prominent local members. The entrance of W. L. Jackson, Esq., M.P. for Leeds, and of Ed. Green, Esq., just returned for Wakefield, awoke the loudest applause, while Col. Charlesworth was most warmly received and cheered. The presence of Mr. Jackson and Mr. Green was all the more welcome, inasmuch as their coming had not been previously announced, and was only accomplished at the last moment. There were also present with the chairman (Ed. Calverley, Esq.), Mrs. and Miss Charlesworth (the gallant Colonel's mother and sister) and Mrs. C. E. Charlesworth, besides C. E. Dobson, Esq, C. E. Charlesworth, Esq., Percy Tew, Esq., and other gentlemen and ladies of the neighbourhood.

Mr. Calverley, on opening the proceedings was heartily cheered, and after apologising for the absence of Mr. Jos. Charlesworth (who was not well) and Mr. Sanderson (who was voting in Hertfordshire), he congratulated the Conservatives present on the success and presence of Mr. Jackson and Mr. Green (cheers) who had fought a good fight, and achieved a glorious victory ("with the help of the Irish"). He had great pleasure in calling on Col. Charlesworth to address them. (Loud and prolonged cheers, mingled with hooting).

Colonel Charlesworth, on rising, expressed his satisfaction that there were both parties represented, and said he had no objection to opposition, if only they carried it out in a good-natured manner. He then proceeded to compare the state of things when he first addressed them, during a Liberal Government, with the improvement apparent under a Conservative Government to the manifest advantage of the latter, who had secured a better understanding with foreign countries, and were endeavouring to promote good trade at home; asking them if they will not keep such a Government in power. ("Certainly," "Yes," "No, No.") He further spoke on free education, disestablishment and disendowment, cheap transfer of land, taxation of personal property, and local government reform. The Colonel then went on to speak of a personal matter, as to the manner in which this contest was being conducted. He had endeavoured to act in a straightforward way. ("Yes, I've gotten a post card." "You have, my friend, and it says at the bottom, "No one will know how you vote unless you tell".) We don't wish to put pressure on any man. He thought however, that he could hardly say the other party were acting in a straightforward manner, and then remarked on the meeting of the men in Carlton fields last Tuesday, when after discussing the wages question, Mr. Pickard addressed them on politics, thus taking an unfair advantage of his opportunity. ("Shame.") For generations his firm had endeavoured to act towards their men in a generous spirit, so as to avoid strikes and their attendant evils, and he and he earnestly besought them to consider very carefully all that a strike meant to them and to their families, before running such a risk. When an advance was possible, they had not been the last to grant it—("Politics, please.")—he never thought that his candidature would have been used to injure the business relations of employers and men, and felt it acutely. He expected he would be attacked to-morrow night (Saturday), but was satisfied that 'honesty is the best policy.' (Cheers.) He was pleased, however, to tell them some good news, that within the last few days, arrangements had been arrived at with their good friend Mr. Calverley, whereby they hoped soon to open out the Middleton Main Coal, and that the pits which had had to be closed would soon be in full swing again. (Loud cheers.) He apologised for making these remarks, but felt it was right to do so under the circumstances. He trusted they would vote when the day came, without fear of employers, or of Miners' Union. (Cheers.) If they thought him worthy of their vote, let them give it to him; if not, then vote for the other; pointing out the importance of a single vote in the interests of the country. He asked their vote because he was a Conservative, believing that under Lord Salisbury's Government, the honour of England, and the integrity of the empire would be best preserved. (Loud applause.)

Mr. E. Green, M.P., for Wakefield, was vociferously cheered (met by cheers for Beaumont) and in an able and humorous address, enforced the claims of Colonel Charlesworth as a man of superior knowledge, large interest in the district, acquainted with their minds and feelings, and having his time at his own disposal. This latter qualification, he pointed out, could not be held by Mr. Pickard, who had to serve the Miners' Union, and could not attend to the interests of the Normanton division in Parliament at the same time. Replying to the taunts of the Irish vote in securing his seat, Mr. Green remarked that when that vote had been previously given to the Liberal party, there was nothing said about it, but the Irish had come to hate the Gladstone Government, and as they must give it to someone, they gave it to the Conservatives, and they were much obliged. (Loud cheers.) He concluded by proposing Colonel Charlesworth in the usual form, and pledging the meeting to support him.

Mr. Jackson, M.P. for Leeds, was received with a perfect storm of welcome, and after cracking a joke about his losses in fighting in Leeds said he had lost his voice ("But not your seat"), but neither his seat nor his temper. (Cheers.) Life was not long enough to lose one's temper over small matters. After advising the Colonel to take no notice of what his opponents said, as they did'nt mean it all, he referred to the high character of the firm, and their kindly sympathy and help at all times, and went on to say that there were two issues they must consider; first, the individual; second, the party. They were best able to decide as regards the individual candidates, but they must also consider the claims of party. It was said that all the Conservative successes had been gained by the Irish vote; this he denied, though he acknowledged the help they had given. He thought, however, they ought not to speak in this manner of the Irish, but rather let every Englishman, Irishman, Scotchman and Welshman live together in one compact home of British comfort. He then spoke on the failures of the late Government in finance, in foreign relations, and in trade matters, and denied that any measure had been obstructed, on which the mind of the country was made up. Pointing to the wave of Conservative re-action, Mr. Jackson concluded by urging the return of Col. Charlesworth in order to assist in securing a strong Conservative Government, so as to steer the ship of state safely through her difficulties at the present time. (Loud cheers). On being put, the chairman declared the resolution carried, although a number of hands were against.

C. B. Dobson, Esq., proposed a second resolution, expressing confidence in the present Government and delivered an excellent address, specially devoted to trade questions.

C. E. Charlesworth, Esq., seconded the motion, specifying the increased tariff put on English goods as against Germany and other countries, and the efforts put forth by churchmen in the cause of education, and also in supporting hospitals. If they wanted good wages and good work, and harmony and peace to flourish among ourselves and with other countries, let them support the Conservative Government. The resolution was carried without a dissentient.

Col. Charlesworth then moved the best thanks of the meeting to Mr. Calverley for presiding so ably and so pleasantly, seconded by Mr. Percy Tew and carried unanimously. Mr. Calverley suitably replied and the meeting closed with cheers and counter cheers, but in the utmost good humour.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons the good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and desponding that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain, or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

LIBERAL MEETING.

THE HON. A. J. MUNDELLA AT ROTHWELL.

Saturday afternoon ought to be long remembered in the political history of Rothwell, as being the first occasion on which a Minister of the Crown has visited our ancient town. Unfortunately the meeting was called at very short and uncertain notice, or there would have been thousands present where only hundreds had the pleasure of hearing the Right Hon. A. J. Mundella, M.P., for Sheffield.

The meeting was held at half-past two o'clock, in the Mechanics' Hall, the room being filled with an intelligent and interested audience, among whom were a number of working men; the majority of this class, however, being unable to attend. The utmost enthusiasm prevailed, which rose to its height on the gifted Minister entering the room, accompanied by the various speakers.

Mr. J. Turner occupied the chair, and gave an able address (worthy of being printed in detail but for the pressure of time and space) in which, after congratulating his fellow-townsmen on being honoured with the presence of one of her Majesty's Ministers of State, he effectively shewed the evil and unjust influence of the "dead hand" on property, and the necessity for a reform in land transfer; he also warmly advocated a more technical education as against much of the useless information now contained in school curriculum. Remarking on the defeats of the Liberal party, Mr. Turner wound up with the declaration that even if the Conservatives take the Government, they will have to rule according to Liberal ideas, and so promote the greatest good for the greatest number.

Mr J. R. Seanor proposed the resolution of confidence in Mr. Gladstone's policy, and in support of Mr. Pickard's candidature, urging them to give a decided answer to that motion by their action on Tuesday.

Mr. D. McAdoo (Sharlston) seconded in a brief but pungent address, pointing out that almost every class was represented in the House but the largest number, the working class. The illustration of the Conservative and Liberal policy by "the wheelbarrow and he perambulator" will not soon be forgotten.

The chairman then introduced Mr. Mundella, who was greeted with, "Three cheers for the victory of Sheffield." This brought out the criticism, "What a victory!—three to two," was followed by a counter-outburst of "Three cheers for Midlothian."

Mr. Mundella said—ladies and gentlemen, you welcome me here for the first time with a heartiness which is thoroughly characteristic of Yorkshire, and which I always receive when I address a Yorkshire audience. You have given three cheers for the victory at Sheffield. A gentleman on the left says "Three to two." But Sheffield polled a majority of Liberals this week—(cheers)—like Leeds. Leeds polled above three thousand more Liberals than Conservatives. (Cheers.) Up to this moment the Liberals had polled many thousands more than the Conservatives, and you may make up your minds that when the poll is summed up the Conservatives will cut a very bad figure, both as to the number of voters and the number of members. (Cheers.) But you know the divisions of the large constituencies was the Tory price of the Reform Bill. That is what we had to pay for it, and the result is, as you see in Leeds, they have taken vast masses of Liberals out of certain constituencies. And don't let us forget another element; your chairman has referred to it as not difficult to account for. Look at Mr. Parnell's speech in Liverpool. Look at the Irish compact! These men call themselves Conservatives. These are the men who preserve law and order, and maintain the British Constitution—(laughter)—and yet they condescend to any dirty work. ("They go into the pit bottom to do it.") Don't forget, too, the sound of alarm that Lord Salisbury has been issuing—the trumpet he has been blowing for the last two months—"The Church in danger!" (Laughter.) I am a Churchman, and I love my Church—(hear, hear)—but Heaven defend my Church from ever being made the bulwark of the Tory party. (Cheers.) If the Church is in danger, I will tell you what it is in danger from—she is in danger if she stands in the gap preventing Englishmen obtaining those reforms which we need for this country—that legislative justice, that accomplishment of one of the grandest reforms—the great land reform. (Cheers.) If the Church stands in the gap and says, "These reforms must not come because I believe I am in danger," then woe to the Church! (Cheers.) The Church will stand a chance of being swept away with other things which are not so valuable and are not so ingrained in the hearts and affections of the people. (Hear, hear.) I have been grieved to see some things that I have seen in my own contest recently. I have seen the Catholic priest and the Protestant Orangeman on the same platform; and I have seen the ladies of the Primrose League—(laughter)—the titled ladies of the Primrose League—going from public-house to public-house—('Shame') women from the high ancestral homes of England going to the publican, cap in hand, and saying, "Pray use your influence for us." ("Beer and Bible.") Is this the way to elevate the people of our country? ("Never.") No! Thank God we have no such alliances as these, but we are able to stand on our principles, and by these to stand or fall—(hear, hear)—and when you hear—here a case and there a case—of the cry of the Church in danger, or of the Irish alliance, or of the publican alliance, and all combined having upset a seat, there you have evidence of the compact arrived at between these people and the Conservatives. I come here to ask your support of Mr. Pickard's candidature, and I have, I think, some claims upon you. In Mr. Gladstone's first Parliament I fought the battle of labour, your battle, the battle of the Trades Unions, and I never let it rest until I placed you on an equality with the masters before the law. (Cheers.) I fought for your Mines Bill. I kept the children out of the thin seams, you know. (Cheers.) I fought my own Government on the hours of labour for boys—(cheers)—and I remember what a task I had in fighting for the workmen.

Mr. Mundella then spoke on several political questions. He paid a high compliment to Mr. Burt and Mr Broadburst, who, he said, were respected on both sides of the House. In anticipating that Mr. Pickard would join them, he assured his hearers that his time would be employed to their advantage. He therefore urged the electors to send their candidate to support Mr. Gladstone in devoting his last few years to the advancement of the nation's welfare. (Cheers.)

On the resolution being put, every hand save about half-a-dozen, was held up in favor of the resolution.

Besides the meeting held in the afternoon, there was another in the evening, when the hall was well filled, to listen to addresses by gentlemen whose voices are oftener heard amongst us than that of Mr. Mundella, and although Mr. Pickard had been compelled to leave directly after the previous meeting, to speak at Netherton, the gathering was most enthusiastic.

Mr. J. R. Seanor occupied the chair, and after explaining the reason of Mr. Pickard's absence, proceeded in a clear and pointed speech to reply to several questions which had been raised by the Conservatives the night before. He said the pamphlet sent out by Colonel Charlesworth was a mass of Tory misrepresentation. Referring to Lord Salisbury's manifesto, he said he had taken the Liberal programme, and after having cut off the Radical border, had trimmed it with blue, so that if the Tories got in they would do so because they were becoming more Liberal. Some people had no political backbone; he was more decidedly Liberal than ever. (Cheers.) The miners needed representation, and the whole of the miners in this division were dependent upon how Rothwell voted. Would they throw away their chance? ("No, no.") Mr. Charlesworth had sent the electors a post card which he considered subverted the purposes of the Ballot Act.

Mr. Parrott, of the Yorkshire Miners' Union, then testified to the genuineness of Mr. Pickard's personal and official character, believing him to be a very honorable man, and hoping that the electors would send him with a "thumping majority."

Mr. McAdoo (Sharlston) followed with a warm hearty address, in which he referred to the charge frequently brought against Liberals that they were all infidels. Hume and other famous atheists were Tories, so that was only tit for tat. He had not askod one man for whom he intended to vote. (Cheers.) While on the subject of procedure, he said Lord R. Churchill (applause and loud hooting) spoke 1,360 times on the Franchise Bill. The "Upper House" was only a Conservative caucus. He hoped when Gladstone's work was done, his name would be written in golden letters in Westminster Abbey as "the friend of the people." (Loud cheers.)

The chairman then called on Mr. P. Gilston—(a voice—"Peter the Great")—who in his naturally humorous fashion addressed his audience, keeping them in constant mirth, while every now and then he brought home his arguments with force and clearness. The vote of confidence in Mr. Pickard was then taken, nearly every hand going up, leaving about twenty dissentients.

A vote of thanks to the chairman was then accorded on the motion of Messrs. D. Burnley and R. M. Sykes.

THE ELECTIONS.—The period of a General Election always brings a great many special publications into print; but for novelty and usefulness we have seldom come across anything to equal The Elector's Note Book, a work which is being published by The Catherine Street Publishing Association, of Catherine Street, London. The book is so arranged that the reader may see at a glance all the constituencies as they now stand under the Redistribution Act, the number of members which each has to elect, the names and politics of all the candidates who have come forward, the result of the last General Election in each of the old constituencies, and a variety of other things. This, however, is but the minor portion of the work; for, in addition to the above information, the publishers have devised a most ingenious arrangement of blank columns, by filling up which as the Elections proceed, whoever is fortunate enough to possess a copy of the book will be able to ascertain, with infallible accuracy, at any moment, the exact position of the parties, and other interesting particulars; and thus will unquestionably be compiling a book which, during another Election, will be invaluable. Published at the price of one shilling, we can easily understand that the enormous number of 60,000 copies of the book have already been sold.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

WE regret that, by some mishap, the promised critical report of the Dramatic Entertainment has not reached us, but if to hand in time, it shall appear in the SPECIAL EDITION.

STOURTON WESLEYANS.—The annual missionary meeting in connexion with this chapel was held on Thursday evening last when a good number attended to hear news of the Foreign missionary work. The Rev. W. G. Dicken, after opening the meeting, introduced the chairman, Mr. J. Grisdale (Leeds) who called upon the reverend gentlemen to read the annual report. Mr. Grisdale then addressed the meeting after which he called upon the Rev. E. Sinzinenex, returned missionary from China, who gave a short outline of the manners and customs of the Chinese, and also gave several instances of the success of his work there. The Rev. F. Booth stationed in the West African provinces afterwards addressed the audience, his speech being very interesting.

A GOLD MEDAL has been awarded to KENDAL & DENT, Watch Makers, 106, Cheapside, London, by the Paris International Exhibition, 1885, for various improvements and general excellence in Watches, among which are Patent Watches for the Blind, &c., &c.

STOURTON PRIMITIVE SCHOOL CHAPEL.—A Service of Song entitled the "Roll Call" was given in the above place of worship on Sunday afternoon, when every seat was filled, solos were given by Miss Tolson (Hunslet), and Mr. A. Smith undertook the work of accompanying the musical numbers.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.—On Saturday last, a miscellaneous entertainment was provided in the above Hall. The audience quite filled the room, and appeared to be well pleased with the effort to provide good and cheap entertainments for them. The several items on the programme were rendered by local amateurs including, Messrs Smith, Blackburn, Ward, Higgins, Kendrew, Wright, Clarkson, Illingworth, Ward and Wilson, while Mr. W. Blackburn presided at the harmonium.

MR. ALFRED PARKER.—During this week men have been engaged dragging the river at Bottomboat in search of Mr. Alfred Parker, who disappeared over a month ago. While thus engaged a piece of important information was secured from a boatman, who after having learnt the object of those engaged in the dragging process, declared that about eight days after Mr. Parker's disappearance he found a hat floating on the water which answered the description given, and that he had given it to a young man at Oulton. The young man was found, and the hat produced, which Mrs. Parker recognises as the one worn by Mr. Parker when he left home. It now appears evident that Mr. Parker has in his mental weakness thrown himself into the water, but there seems little hope of recovering the remains, if such is the case.

MR. CHARLES COLLETTE ON SHIRTS.—A contributor to the St. Stephen's Review says—"A few days ago I noticed an extraordinary letter in the Field, from a gentleman who complained that his shirt always worked up his back when he was hunting. I cannot say that my hunting experience tallies with that of the gentleman in question, but I remember Mr. Chas. Collette's song of "My Uncle Pete," in which he warbled of that worthy that—

"He put his shirt on upside down."

I would recommend the writer to the Field to follow that noble example."

BELL RINGING.—On Sunday, November 22nd, the ringers belonging to the Rothwell Parish Church rang 1800 changes, consisting of 720 Arnold's Victory, 720 Violet, and 360 Duke of York; the bells were muffled as a tribute of respect to the memory of the late J. W. Snowden, Esq., who was president of the Yorkshire Association of change ringers. The following are the names of those taking part:—J. Verity, treble; Alf. Chapman, 2nd; J. M. Chadwick, 3rd; Wm. Abbishaw 4th; S. Stacey, 5th; J. Chapman, tenor.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

I AM greatly surprised, along with many others, that the increased demand for 5d in the £, should be made by the Lofthouse-with-Carlton School Board for the present half year. I thought the Board were pledged to economy, but the increased demand shows a want of economy. The cost for the year, which will be 7½ or 8d., is greater than the cost at Rothwell. This argues badly for the management of the schools, and will tell seriously against the Board at the next election. It has been said that some of the School Boards are wooden, and we shall be strongly inclined to say so at Lofthouse. It is getting time we had a change of timber. Trade and wages and everything else are ebbing, and getting lower and lower, but rates grow and thrive like mushrooms. It is becoming the practice now to have what is called a people's auditor to look over the accounts at the heels of the official auditor. I hope School Boards and all other Boards will take a hint in time. It has been shown that in the corporation accounts of one town as much as £5,000 of extravagant expenses had been passed by the official auditor in one year which ought not to have been passed, the consequence was a surcharge on the auditor himself, and a narrow escape from dismissal.

THE concert at Lofthouse on Tuesday was one of the most successful that has been given in the district and was comparatively well attended. The editor tells me he has already received a notice of it, so I am prevented detailing.

IT had almost been a case of mistaken identity last Thursday night, when the Rothwell Times reporter made his appearance, arm in arm with his friend Gurney, in the street, when leaving the meeting at which Mr. Milnes-Gaskell had been addressing the free electors of this and other constituencies on his political views. From the report which appeared in the Rothwell Times and other sources I learn that Mr. J. W. Wright, a daring junior tory from Rothwell, had made himself conspicuous and objectionable to the peaceful Liberals assembled, and it appears that they were waiting at the door to celebrate his exit from the schools and village, with musical honours, of the same style as those used in the meeting, hooting, shouting &c. By and by the reporter made his appearance, and being dressed somewhat similarly to the offending youth, he was speedily surrounded and the hooting began. He shouted "What are you hooting at" and his voice was recognised, so he was saved from a very unpleasant experience which was afterwards bestowed on the luckless tory spark.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. So R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as SCOTT & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list

TOWN TALK.

ALL but the most ardent politicians must be growing tired of election speeches, meetings, and news. Business seems to be at a standstill, and the air is full of election news of every kind. The election news monopolises the columns of the newspapers, and even the 'War in the Balkans,' and the 'Expedition to Burmah,' are in many instances completely overlooked by the average reader. To estimate the total results of the elections would be a most difficult task, and one which I don't desire to undertake, but I must confess that up to the time I write (Wednesday) the Conservatives have something to rejoice over. Turning to the local aspect of the political fight, I find, as I anticipated last week, that a couple of meetings are to be held at the close of this week, when the two parties will meet in deadly conflict. Which will win? The polling day alone can reveal, but judging by the various public meetings that have been held, I should be inclined to say that Colonel Charlesworth and Mr. Dunnington-Jefferson will not be so well on as they hope. Colonel Charlesworth is coming on Friday, and Mr. Pickard on Saturday; let me beseech those who attend either of these meetings to give everybody a fair hearing. The idiotic tumult one hears sometimes is most distressing, and I would urge my readers to refrain. I was visiting a friend of mine in another Riding not long ago, and there instead of hooting and groaning, some fellow at the back struck up in a clear tenor 'Wait till the clouds roll by.' This kind of interruption is to be preferred to the inharmonious hooting, etc., but I would say, have none of it. Tuesday will be a lively day. Look out, 'Gossip' will be there.

"AWAY went Kirby, and away
Went Kirby's horse and bus,
They little thought when they set out

That's a weak parody on 'John Gilpin.' Everybody knows that John's ride was extended rather further than he liked, but some people may not know that a similar thing occurred to the passengers in Kirby's Rothwell bus on Tuesday last. When the bus had arrived in Carr Lane, at the bottom of Bell Hill, the horses took it into their heads to go home, and forthwith they went, turning suddenly round and making a quick journey to their stables in Hunslet, where they came to a standstill. Happily, nothing more serious occurred than that several sturdy business men were delayed about an hour, along with sundry other passengers, and that Kirby had to find other horses and start for Rothwell a second time, where, it is satisfactory to learn, he arrived with his precious cargo about half-past six o'clock.

I READ in the daily paper that the coal owners in West Yorkshire, in view of the anticipated further depression of the coal trade, have come to a decision to resist to the utmost of their power, the demand for a ten per cent. advance on the miners' wages. Well, I am not an expert on the coal trade question, and do not pretend to be able to see far into the future, and divine whether the trade is likely to advance or recede, but there is a fact that appeals very powerfully to my reason and common sense, viz., that in Leeds the price of coal to consumers has been raised 1/3 per ton, and out of this surely the miner has a claim to an advance.

GOSSIP.

THE LOCAL BOARD'S ROADS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times

Dear Sir,

I was somewhat interested and amused at reading a letter in your Times of Friday, the 13th November, under the above heading, in which Mr. John Turner objects to purchasing expensive material or metal in forming roads in this district, which material is procured from a distance, when he asserts we have got "excellent material almost on the spot, and which can be procured for little or nothing; this material being smooth stones or pebbles."

I cannot understand how Mr. Turner reconciles the two statements, 1st, that ashes (which cost nothing and are "procured on the spot") "are very costly," and secondly, that "pebbles" (which are simply consolidated mud) which would have to be bought and would have to undergo a considerable amount of labour in collecting, breaking, screening, spreading (in several layers according to their respective sizes), and finally coating with quick lime (which of course means chalk or limesome, &c., or any carbonate lime deprived of its carbonic acid by the continued action of intense heat and which I presume can also be got on the spot and I think Mr. Turner will also admit that this will have to be paid for) all of which can be done for "little or nothing" or a "merely nominal cost."

Mr. Turner's notions of road making are as antiquated and waterworn as the "pebbles." During the last 20 years I have superintended the forming and maintenance of scores of miles of roads (I may even say hundreds), and if I had to maintain the whole of those roads at my own cost, I would prefer buying good material for them, rather than use these "pebbles" at a gift as I am quite convinced that in the costs (if not the present cost, which I should very much question) there would be no comparison. These pebbles would in a very short space of time be ground into mud by the traffic making impassable roads in winter and covered with dust in summer, thereby costing (instead of having £500 as per Mr. Turner's estimate) more than double the amount of forming a road properly, and according to the best and most modern principle of road making.

Being one of those "who boast of their practical experience" (and experience is a good teacher, but Mr. Turner seems to ignore this), I am prepared to ridicule Mr. Turner's scheme whether it "disproves his notions" or not, and I should not be prepared to have the public money wasted on such antique notions.

I wonder what the inhabitants of our large towns would think if they were to return to ancient customs of road making, and find their main thoroughfares "pebbles" or waterworn stones (alias mud) throwing about instead of roads properly formed according to the best principles of modern road making. Surely after the many years of careful observations as to wear and tear of different material, their first cost and cost of maintenance, keeping in view the cleanliness also of the roads, &c., observations by men such as Macadam, Telford, and later by the best engineers of the day. Have these to be ignored, and have we to be lead by the whim of men of no experience whatever in these matters?

I believe I am correct in stating that three-fourths of the money expended on our main roads in this district have been returned by the County Authorities, thus shewing their appreciation of the manner these roads have been formed of late years. Could Mr. Turner get three-fourths of the money returned if expended on roads formed in the manner he suggests? I think not. And would the Local Government Board grant borrowing powers to roads made in such a manner. I say distinctly they would not lend a single penny towards such a scheme.

The roads in our district have undergone a marked improvement during the last few years, as expressed recently by a gentleman of considerable knowledge in this branch of business, and if the forming and maintenance were left in the hands of the 'practical' instead of the unpractical meddling too much with such work, I have no doubt we should still have even further improvements in this department.

I am, Sir,
Yours faithfully,
Pro Bono Publico,
PRACTICAL.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

In reading over your paper for the 6th inst., I was pleased to find the few remarks made by the writer in your columns, respecting the deplorable state Mill Hill was in. It had been noticed by those in authority and instructions had been given to the surveyor to attend to it. Now, Mr. Editor, I should like to suggest through the same medium that the hill be paved right down to the beck, which would make a permanent and lasting job. I am told that it once had put on it some Skipton stone and ashes, and the first thunder shower that came washed it all into the beck, thereby losing both labour and material. Therefore if it could be paved I am sure it would be a credit to the doers for years to come. Thanking you for inserting this,

I remain,
Yours very respectfully,

THE DISESTABLISHMENT MOVEMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

When I sent you my last letter I had no intention of writing again before the General Election was over. If Mr. Crawford really believes that those whom he calls "purely political Liberals" wish to "hush up the Church question until after the general election," he is very credulous. The furious utterances of many of the Church Defence party are directing increased attention to the subject, and stimulating inquiry and discussion. Mr. Crawford would act wisely if he would more frequently avoid coming to hasty conclusions. Mr. Crawford thinks that 'the Church is in danger.' If he had said the Church, as an establishment, was in danger, he would have been quite correct. This cry of 'the Church is in danger' is an old one, and it will be as futile, in the long run, as many other cries have been when unjust laws have been assailed. Like many thousands Mr. Crawford can not discern very clearly the signs of the times. Lord Derby sees that Disestablishment is inevitable. The Church in danger! No, not if it be founded upon a rock, as its friends often assert. 'What did the able and energetic Dr. Hook say in 1869? "I fully believe that, in Ireland, the Church will accomplish more good by being disestablished, than under the circumstance of an establishment she can ever hope to effect....I trust that, if it shall be decided at any future period that it is for the good of the country that the Church shall be disestablished in England, the clergy will preach the gospel to the nation by an exhibition of their disinterestedness as well as by their zeal." I commend Dr. Hook's views to the consideration of Mr. Crawford and his fellow alarmists.

Yours truly,
Leeds, Nov. 18th. JOHN ANDREW.

THE CHURCH IS IN DANGER.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir.

We thought this but a passing election cry, like many more that we have heard, but lo! it is still piteously uttered by your voluminous correspondent of a few weeks ago; and he whose family have been Liberal for many generations, has become Conservative because the Church is in danger. Matthew, 16 chap., 18 v., reads thus—"and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.". Therefore Christian people, don't fear that the Church of Christ is in danger. Still what the vicar says is true. The Church is in danger. The Church that can boast of having the largest number of schools under its care; 73 per cent. of the religious public within its pale; most of the landed gentry its patrons; most of the members of Parliament calling themselves by its name; the only Church represented in the House of Lords; the National Church of England. Yes, 'this Church is in danger,' and the newly enfranchised electors of our Normanton Division are appealed to so piteously to save the Church. Well, we don't wish to harm her by any means, but why should we vote Tory to save the Church—and what to save her from? State patronage we believe, engenders priestly arrogance in the Established Church; hinders her usefulness, fetters her freedom, and in the unprejudiced opinion of many does her an immense deal more harm than good. We venerate her antiquity, respect her sincere followers, and see within her borders an immense power for good; but we cannot vote Tory to save that which we believe is doomed to destruction. Tory rule may delay it, and even a Liberal Government will not dare to meddle of her without an immense amount of thought and consideration. We thank our worthy vicars and squires for their kind attention and advice, but you very unwillingly gave us our votes, and we can scarcely trust you just yet. Please to be as good as our labour candidate in abolishing canvassing. Take care that the promise of Lieutenant Colonel Charlesworth, not to put any pressure upon the working miners is strictly adhered to, by no stewards or deputies pursuing the hateful practice of asking for whom they are going to vote, and you may by-and-bye win the confidence of

Yours faithfully,
A COUNTY VOTER.

CANVASSING.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

The great political struggle is drawing to a close, and very shortly the "newly enfranchised" electors will have the opportunity of exercising their long-delayed rights. Let both the old and new voters consider their position, act independently, and vote according to what they are fully persuaded is right.

Let all remember that everyone is equal in this respect, whether he be a Duke, Earl, or working man, or whatever position he may hold, and interference from any person is decidedly wrong, and hence canvassing is an unjust thing, because it is an endeavour to ascertain the mind of the voter, which no one has a right to know, while to offer intimidation from employers to employed betrays a meanness of spirit which every honourable and generous-minded man looks upon with sincere contempt.

It is well that the ballot way of voting affords protection to such as are in danger of suffering by such dishonourable means. For one person to punish another because his conscientious voting is opposed to theirs, is to revive the old religious temper of persecution, that is, "If you wont have the same religious belief as me I will punish you," so in regard to political matters, "If you won't vote as I do you may expect punishment." Intolerance is a very unpleasant to endure, and if those who carry out this unprincipled work were compelled to receive the same from those to whom they are opposed would find it a portion against which no doubt they would strongly rebel. If every voter acts according to the golden rule "Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you," then they will act honestly and manly, and in this matter at least have a conscience void of offence towards God and man.

Yours,
AN OLD VOTER.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by a drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. WHITE, Limited, 17, Farringdon road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

Friday, December 11, 1885.

THE returns for the whole of the elections having now been received, excepting Orkney and Shetland, and the Edinbro' and St. Andrew's Universities, which will add one to each of the great parties, a comparison can be instituted between the voting strength and the Members returned by the great political parties. In England 454 Members have been elected after contests in a gross poll of 3,317,750 electors. Of candidates elected, 241 were liberals, 213 Conservatives, and one Nationalist. Taking the Liberals and Conservatives, it is found that for each Member returned 7,300 electors have gone to the polls. The Liberals are below the average with 7,070 electors per Member, the Conservatives above it with 7,552, 241 Liberal and 213 Conservatives having been successful at the polls. The counties, with a gross poll of 1,836,833 electors, returned 133 Liberals and 99 Conservatives, only two divisions having no contests. The average number of electors per Member was 7,917, the Conservatives again being above the average, with 8,155 electors per Member; whilst the Liberal average was 7,733. Wales returned twenty-six Members, after contests, with an average of 6,383 electors per Member, 165,966 voters having gone to the poll; 67,350 Conservatives returned three Members, with an average vote of 22,450, and 98,616 Liberals electing 23 representatives, with an average of 4,288 electors per Member. Welsh counties returned, after contests, in which 77,396 voters participated, seventeen Liberals and one Conservative, the average vote being 7,032; the Liberals standing at 4,552 per Member, and the Conservatives having numbered 49,162, 28,224 less than the gross poll of the Liberals. The Scotch counties returned 39 members, two being unopposed. The gross Liberal poll was 149,426 in 37 contests, and the Conservative poll 39,451 in 34 contests. The Scotch boroughs returned 31 members in 27 contests, three being unopposed. The gross number of Liberal voters in Scotch boroughs was 121,346 in 30 contests, and Conservatives 58,466 in 22 contests. In Irish counties there were 85 members returned, 20 of them unopposed. The gross Liberal poll was 28,293 in 18 contests, the Conservative poll was 82,648 in 54 contests, and the Nationalist 251,257 in 58 contests. The Irish boroughs returned 16 members in 13 contests, two being unopposed. The number of Liberal voters in five contests was 7,420, the number of Conservatives in eleven contests 26,745, and the Nationalists in ten contests was 41,628.

Throughout the United Kingdom the 605 contests that have taken place have brought 4,365,688 electors to the polling booths, of whom 2,137,673 voted for Liberals, 1,931,601 for Conservatives, and 296,414 for Nationalists. Last year the total number of voters on the lists was 3,221,864.

WHAT an immense number of old familiar faces will be missing when, in the New Year, the new Parliament meets. More than a dozen members of the late and present Governments have been extinguished at the poll; and a great crowd of tried and useful statesmen of the rank and file—many of them prominent "characters" of the House—will be unable to present themselves to Mr. Speaker to take the oath. But in their stead will be a whole host of new-comers; who will essay to try their "prentice-hands" in the manufacture of statutes of the realm. Among them will be some, doubtless, who will be "heard of again." What a changed Constitution the House will have, to be sure! Eight or nine ex-sons of toil will sit side by side with scions of the great governing families of the Hamiltons, the Bentincks, the Mannerses, the Lowthers, the Stanleys, the Cavendishes, the Gowers, the Grosvenors, and others of noble name. Peer and baronet members and their connections, though there were distinguished candidates in plenty, have suffered great diminution in the new House. In the House of 1880 there was an aristocratic band of eighty-three peers' sons, and seventy baronets; in the new Parliament there will be less than fifty noblemen's sons, and about an equal number of holders of baronetcies, while a corresponding decrease of the kindred of the titled by affinity or blood will also be shown.

THE great middle classes have furnished the new material of the House, and in place of a host of very young connections of the nobility we have an assemblage of staid men, who made their wealth and position in business, and elderly country gentlemen, with a sprinkling of the professional element. There are, perhaps, as many lawyers as ever, and a goodly number from the services, as there should be. Such gallant spirits as Lord Charles Beresford, and Col. Duncan, and General Frazer will be right welcome in the House on the occasion of naval or military debates. Mr. Eccleston Gibb will be an authority on local government, and Mr. Howard Spensley will speak for the Colonies with authority; while Sir Roper Lethbridge, Sir Lewis Pelly, and Sir Guyer Hunter will always have the ear of the House on Foreign affairs.

ENTERTAINMENT AT THE WORKHOUSE.

Tuesday evening will long be remembered by the inmates of the Hunslet Workhouse, as a time of varied and most enjoyable entertainment, and as a proof of the deep and kindly interest taken by the Guardians, and especially Mr. Dixon, in their happiness and pleasure. By the generosity of the above named gentleman, who is well known in Hunslet and throughout the Union as a genial honest soul, a suitable entertainment was arranged to be given to the inmates of the Workhouse on Tuesday evening, the expense of which, together with a bountiful supply of refreshments for invited guests, was borne entirely by himself.

On entering the school-room of the House, we found a most pleasing sight. Row after row of men, women and children filled the seats, all scrupulously clean and tidy, and presenting a spectacle which spoke volumes for the attention and care of Mr. and Mrs. Outram (the master and matron) and their assistants. The chairman of the Board (Mr. James Hargreaves) had kindly promised to occupy the chair, and there were present with him Mrs. Hargreaves, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon and family, Mr. Sheard, Mr. R. J. Smith, Mr. Hardcastle, Mr. Riley, Mr. Swithenbank, Mr. Lawton (Guardians), Councillor Atha, Mr. Schofield (Clerk), and other gentlemen, several of whom were accompanied by members of their families.

Just previous to the commencement of the concert, considerable sympathy and amusement was created by the little songs of a poor blind boy, Johnnie, in whom Mr. Lawton evinces great interest. At half-past seven, Mr. Dixon called on Mr. Hardcastle to propose the chairman for the evening, which, after being seconded by Mr. Smith, was cordially agreed to, and Mr. Hargreaves, having expressed his pleasure in accepting Mr. Dixon's invitation, proceeded to carry out the programme.

The list was commenced by the singing of "The Swiss Toy Girl" by little Miss Dixon (daughter of the benefactor), who acquitted herself well. Mr. Stansfield followed with a recitation "Timothy Brown," the clearness of this gentleman's enunciation being a great point in the effective manner in which he gave it. Miss Watson's voice is of that full mellow description, which it is a pleasure to hear, and "Millie's faith" was well suited to it; in reply to another demand, she repeated the last verse. In Mr. Farrer the comic element was introduced, his impersonation highly delighting the poor folk; his song was "I'll meet her when the sun goes down" encored by "The man of education." Master Robinson's recitation was excellent; in his first "Tha'rt thi Daddy's pet" a little foundling of some three years old was placed in a chair, and addressed by the youthful representative of 'daddy' in the most effective manner, and "Listened to well." Miss Myford followed with the quiet song "My mother bids me bind my hair," and then Mr. Dawson, dressed in a huge pinafore, told his boyish joys on the arrival of "Santa Claus," amid roars of laughter; he gave as encore "Obliging a lady." The Rev. S. Cooper had selected "Ahr Emma" as a reading, which of course, caused considerable amusement. Miss Williams only appeared once, and her rendering of the piece, was eminently suited to her voice and manner "Love's old sweet song." Mr. Sheard's striking impersonation of "The wandering minstrel" will not soon be forgotten, with his definition of "something melancholy, classical, far off, very far off" being suited to the upper orders; "plenty for the money, and finishing with a bounce" for the middle orders; and a sentimental song for the lower orders; of course he was recalled, and gave another recitation. Miss Braime's songs were of an entirely different character to those of her co-artistes and being given with the finish and effect for which she is already well known, were richly enjoyed not only by the more cultured part of the audience, but by those who seldom hear a tasteful singer. "Rose softly blooming" was warmly encored, and another song given. A sudden descent had to be taken from this to the "Sally Walker" who next appeared as a supercargo, and extra to the programme. Master Robinson's recitation on "The romantic tradition of Bretton Hall" was a special proof of our young friend's powers, and deserves great praise. Owing to the late hour which had already been reached, it was announced that no other encores could be accepted. Master Graham and Miss Exley undertook the action duetts "Money matters" and "Lovers' quarrels" in a manner that shewed considerable ability and and care, especially considering the youth of the two performers; they deserve all praise. Miss Dixon gave "Birdie's Ball" (another of her little songs) very nicely indeed, while Miss Watson's "Two Robins," Miss Myford's "Coming of the flowers" and Miss Braime's "English girl's song" were well worthy of a detailed notice, and were each an improvement on the earlier efforts. Mr. Dawson's "Will you lend my mother a saucepan" was well done, and carried a good moral. The gem of the evening, however, was the Rev. Mr. Cooper's rendering of "The Coxswain's address to the Lifeboat Crew" the various thrilling incidents of the 'pull' to the wreck, the rescue of the sinking crew, the welcome home, being declaimed with dramatic power and reality. The accompaniments to the songs were played by Miss Brigham, a step-daughter of Mr. Dixon's, and she acquitted herself most admirably.

Mr. Councillor Atha moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Dixon and the performers, on behalf of all present, in a useful and appropriate address, which was seconded by Mr. Lawton, and carried with loud applause. Mr. Dixon, in replying expressed the pleasure it had afforded him to provide the entertainment, and also of those who had so kindly assisted in the programme of the evening. Mr. Outram, the master, also joined in the general ascription of thanks to Mr Dixon, on behalf of the inmates, all of whom he was sure felt deeply obliged to Mr. Dixon for his kindness, and also to Mr. Hargreaves, the chairman, and the other gentlemen and ladies who had shewn their sympathy and interest in the poor people of the House, by coming among them in this way. Mr. Oakes and Mr. Lawton joined in moving a resolution of thanks to Mr. Hargreaves for presiding, and highly eulogised his conduct, both on the present occasion, and at the more sober and serious meetings of the Board; this resolution was also heartily approved. In accepting the vote of thanks so cordially carried, Mr. Hargreaves said he had been greatly pleased with the evening's entertainment, and he was sure they all felt deeply obliged to Mr. Dixon for his kindness in going to so much trouble and expense for their entertainment. If he had in any way assisted in the evening's success, he was very glad, as there was nothing gave him greater pleasure and satisfaction at the close of the day, than to know he had been the means of making others, especially poor people, happier and more comfortable. The concert closed about half-past ten with the singing of the National Anthem.

Such kindly generous acts as these go a long way towards making the lives of these poor people less sad, and tend to raise their thoughts to a higher level, whence more real and holier fruits may afterwards be reared. May Mr. Dixon's substantial sympathy and desire to cheer our poor fellow men and women, be largely imitated.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT (WEDNESDAY.)

SLEEPING OUT.—Information was given to the police on Tuesday night that a man had taken quarters for the night in Jaw Bone Lane. P. C. Hardy proceeded to the spot and found an old man named Button, an insurance agent from Leeds, lying behind the hedge. He was groaning and appeared to be under the influence of drink, and the cold had made him quite stiff and numb. He was taken to the Beeston Pit and warmed, when he revived, and a trap having been procured, he was conveyed to Wakefield. The prisoner was brought before the magistrates on Wednesday and fined 1s., and costs.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

"NATIVITY" CONCERT.

On Monday evening the members of the Wesleyan Musical Society gave a rendering of the Christmas Cantata, "Nativity," in the Rothwell School-room. The choir mustered in good numbers, the parts being very evenly balanced, and nicely in hand under the bâton of Mr. Joseph Idle. The mixed band, which included harmonium, two flutes, three first and three second violins, 'cello, and two double-basses, was rather too heavy, one of the "giants" being sufficient; with this exception the accompaniments were well played.

The Rev. S. Pitt occupied the chair, and opened the proceedings with the well-known "Christians Awake," introduced by a pleasing little instrumental prelude. A short prayer followed, succeeded by the first number in the work, an instrumental introduction of considerable merit. Mr. W. Varley then sang "For behold darkness" (from Messiah) in excellent voice and with effect, though somewhat handicapped by the overpowering weight of bass accompaniment. The chorus then made their first appearance in a piece recounting the "Angels' appearance to the shepherds," which is a nice flowing composition, and was given with success. The next number is a tenor solo, "O be not afraid," sung by Mr. J. W. Gibson very creditably, especially as it is pitched on D, a very high key for voices of the third part. The succeeding chorus "The song of the angels," is more pretentious than the previous one, and contains some tasty items for each of the several parts; the entrance of the bass song "For over and ever," is charmingly followed by the repetition in harmony first of the tenors, then the altos, then the soprano, finally joining in an ever louder chorus,—a simple symphony closing the piece, and gradually preparing for the "Morning's dawn." "As a fair dream is fading" was unfortunately sung in chorus, instead of a quartette, as the words and music imply, but as a chorus it was as well done as the other portion of the 'full choir' work. A tenor recitative follows, "Then the shepherds said," which was undertaken by Mr. J. W. Gibson, and may be made very effective. An instrumental march is here introduced, which, though simple, was properly done by the gentlemen composing the band. In the next number the shepherds join in a choral march, "We go by angel bidden," and finally arrive at the birthplace of the Saviour. Here again, much of the effect was lost, by the sweet verses in the early part of this song of adoration being sung by all the voices, the last verse alone being intended as full chorus. No. 10 is an alto solo, "Oh, 'twas not a vision we saw," sung by Master S. Armitage, in a manner which augurs well for his future as a singer. A duet and chorus follow, the latter being very effective, the combination first of sopranos and altos, and afterwards of tenors and basses being very tasteful, and the purpose of the composer well understood. A solo "Mary pondering on all she has heard," should have been taken by Miss Hampson, who unfortunately had become unwell; this solo is replied to by the chorus of shepherds, the music being a well-known selection from Spohr. The Magi are now introduced, in a quartette, narrating how after their "Weary weeks of travel," they join the glorious chorale "To Israel's new-born king." Mr. Tilley undertook the well-known "Adeste Fideles," and did full justice to the grand old strains, the chorus taking up the verses in excellent style. The cantata concludes with a new setting to the words "Hallelujah, Amen," a masterly composition, and splendidly sung. All that the chorus did was well done, and would have been more appreciated if the lighter music had been given by single voices. During the evening, the Rev. Mr. Pitt gave a speech quite as entertaining in its way, as the musical performance, his happy hits about the near approach of Christmas as betokened by various signs, and his wise and kindly suggestions on the best way of securing a happy Christmas were most opportune and acceptable. Referring to singing and music generally, he did not agree with the notion of taking the devil's music and setting it to sacred words; he rather leaned to the elevating strains which have become eternally wedded to sacred truth, and in the composition of which the highest and noblest musicians have spent their most precious hours, and reached the highest style of song. He could hardly imagine any greater musical treat than that angel voices should take up some of those glorious numbers which were world-wide known, and were the inspiration of our great masters. He then paid a high compliment to the performers, heartily thanking them for their services, on behalf of all who had been present.

The proceedings concluded with the benediction.

THE London Sunday Times says: "We recently published an article giving some astonishing experiences with a remedial agent now being introduced into this country as an alleviator and remover of certain diseases, hitherto considered as incurable. Miraculous cures were mentioned, verified by gentlemen connected with this paper. It would seem impossible for anything more remarkable to be brought forward. But still more wonderful cases have been brought before our notice, and all old inclinations to doubt and disbelieve have entirely vanished. Mr. W. Y. Peel, nephew of the late Sir Robert Peel, Bachelor of Arts, Cambridge University, had his attention called to the remedy referred to—St. Jacobs Oil—and being a sufferer from neuralgia used it, with startling results. He is fully satisfied of its efficacy. Another eminent gentleman, Mr. R. Butler, Master of Arts of Cambridge, writes that he used it for rheumatism; it not only removed all pain, but the pain has never returned. But the following is the most remarkable proof of the wonderful powers of this remedy: Henry Coates, 11 Chatham Place, Adelaide St., Kingston-upon-Hull, railway employee, had been a terrible sufferer for many years from rheumatism in its worst forms. Before Mr. E. Singleton, Commissioner to administer oaths in the Supreme Court of Judicature, he affirmed, 'that he had been totally unable to work and he had been confined to his bed for a long time; he had tried various doctors and remedies, but grew worse instead of better, and his joints were swollen so that he could not wear boots. Two crutches were hardly able to support him. Having heard of St. Jacob's Oil he purchased a bottle. In twelve hours he found relief, and persevering in its use, he is now cured of his rheumatism, works daily and not only walks with ease, but can run. The proprietors of this wonderful oil—The Charles A. Vogeler Company, of Baltimore, America, have opened at 44 Farringdon Road, London, a branch house, and testimonials can be seen there from all parts of the world, as to the power of this remedy."

LOCAL & GENERAL.

ROTHWELL WORKING MANS' CLUB.—The annual tea and meeting of the above club, was celebrated on Tuesday last. The tea which was provided by the caretaker (Mr. and Mrs. Cromack) was only moderately attended only some 30 persons being present. The meeting commenced at 7.30, when the Rev. F. Fawkes, President of the club, occupied the chair. From the statements made, the club appears to be in a flourishing condition, the number of members and subscribers reaching some 60 or 70, while the financial position is also very gratifying, there being a balance in hand of over £3. The election of officers was next proceeded with, resulting as follows:—President, Rev. F. Fawkes; secretary, Mr. G. Wilson; treasurer, Mr. A. Chapman; committee, Messrs J. Verity, J. W. Chadwick, H. Smith, A. Baines, W. Harrison, A. W. Seanor, and J. W. Wright; librarians Messrs A. Baines and W. Worth. A very important resolution was carried during the meeting asking for an extension of the premises, on account of the increased number of members during the past year, which has made the building sadly too small for their present requirements.

STOURTON WESLEYAN MUTUAL IMPROVEMENT CLASS.—The above class met on Friday evening last, when it was favoured with an interesting and instructive essay on "Volcanoes" by Miss Clemson. At the close numerous questions were put to Miss Clemson, who answered them in a very intelligent manner. This class, is at present in a prosperous condition, both as regards finances and attendance, and the numerous essays, &c., are greatly enjoyed by those present.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT WOODLESFORD.—On Monday last an inquest was held at the Midland Hotel, Woodlesford, before Thos. Taylor, Esq., coroner, relative to the death of a man named James Bennett, coal miner, aged 38, living at New Woodlesford, who met with his death in a sudden and fearful manner on Saturday night. From the evidence given at the inquest, it seems that the deceased man, who leaves a wife and five or six children, was at the house of a man called T. Fisher, of Pottery Hill, Woodlesford, on Saturday evening, being to a considerable extent under the influence of drink. He left this house a few minutes before eleven o'clock, and said he intended going to the station to meet the train. Instead of proceeding to the station as he had intimated, the unfortunate man appears to have found his way along Woodlesford and turned down Stockings Lane, which is the road towards his home. After having passed out of Stockings Lane, the man, it is supposed, lost himself in the field, and in endeavouring to find the footpath, he wandered near Rhodes' Quarry, and took the fatal step which pitched him into the chasm below. On Sunday the relations of the man became very much alarmed at his continued absence from home, and instituted an inquiry, which resulted in the body being found in the said quarry by Samuel Beckwith, at about half-past one. Both the deceased man's legs were broken. After hearing the evidence, the jury came to a verdict of "Accidental death."

A NOVEL PUBLICATION.—Messrs Percy Lund and Co., of the County Press, Ilkley, have just issued a somewhat unique book, entitled "Wise Sayings," and containing a selection of short, pithy extracts from the writings of great men. These selections are left without the authors names, and a prize of three guineas is offered to anyone assigning correct authorship to the largest number of quotations. Nov. 25th, 1886, is the last date for competitions to be sent in. It is expected that this novel publication will meet with a large sale.

OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD BOARD SCHOOL.—The annual inspection of these schools was held on Monday and Tuesday last, Mr. Tillard, one of the principal Inspectors, attending on Monday, and an assistant Inspector on Tuesday. The Rev. A. J. Irvin and Mr. Flockton, members of the Board, were present on the Monday, and Mr. R. J. Smith (Clerk) also attended during part of the afternoon. Mr. Irvin was also present on Tuesday. We hope the results will be satisfactory.

OULTON CHURCH.—Powers are to be applied for amending an Act passed in the 7th and 8th years of the reign of King George IV., intituled "An Act for Building a Church or Chapel-of-Ease within the Township of Oulton-cum-Woodlesford, in the Parish of Rothwell, in the West Riding of the County of York," in order to allow of repairs of the church and the minister's house, the increase of the minister's stipend, and make further provision as to the position of graves and burial places in the churchyard.

A ROTHWELL CRICKETER.—The distribution of prizes won by members of the Hunslet Cricket Club was made at the Mechanics' Institute, Hunslet, on Monday evening last, and we are pleased to notice the name of our young friend Albert Ward figuring prominently in the list of successful players. For the best batting average and the second best bowling average, he was presented by the club with a handsome marble timepiece, and beside this valuable present he secured the guinea bat for second highest score during the season, and a pair of well-made cricket boots for largest number of runs during the whole season, both the latter being offered by supporters of the club. It is also gratifying to us to record that this 'crack' Rothwell player has been engaged as professional for next season by the Darwen C. C., one of the finest clubs in Lancashire, and we heartily wish him good luck.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

Is it true that when Mrs. Jos. Charlesworth visited Carlton a few days ago, on an errand of mercy, (to ascertain what the poor people most needed, as a Christmas present) some of the inhabitants were so ungracious as to hoot in the most rude and disgraceful manner? If so, I say, shame, shame! They are like the dog that bites the hand that feeds him.

THERE is a rumour to the effect that when a certain Conservative working man went to the poll for the purpose of recording his vote, he found to his dismay, that some other person had forestalled him, and taken upon himself his name and recorded the vote for him. This is very improbable I think, and from what I know of the arrangement, well nigh impossible, inasmuch as everybody here knows everybody else, and the representatives of both parties keep their eyes wide open on such an occasion as a general election.

ALTHOUGH the members of the Lofthouse Church choir are noted for the sweet and harmonious music they are capable of producing, it does not follow that they are quite so harmonious in their dealings with each other when out of their places in the church. It is supposed that the report of the concert held some two or three weeks ago, was supplied to the editor of the Rothwell Times by a member of the choir, and one prominently connected with the said concert. It is also believed that a member of the choir, and a performer in the concert, penned that rather jealous better to the Editor last week, in which he somewhat coarsely takes exception to some of the statements contained in the report. So that it is evident from this and other whisperings that discord lingers in the breast of one or two members of this body of musicians. But then this choir is no exception to the rule, for of all folks, musicians are, I think, the most difficult to keep in tune.

AT this particular season of the year, I often notice what I think must be a dangerous nuisance. It is the custom in some parts of Robin Hood and Carlton to throw water used in cleaning into the street. At all times this practice is very objectionable but especially now it is dangerous. The frost comes and makes the road very slippery and it is a wonder the horses manage over these places at all. Let the public cease from committing this fault, and the Highway Surveyors insist upon its being stopped; then there will be no more cause for complaint.

I AM sorry I omitted an important item in my letter last week. I refer to the Football match and entertainment for the relief of widow Wright, which were given on Saturday, the 25th of November. The match was between St. Austins and Lofthouse, and resulted in a win for the Saints. The entertainment, which was held in the Lofthouse National Schools (kindly lent for the occasion) was a most successful one. It was provided by the Wilson's Minstrel Troupe, and this being the first time they have performed at home the audience quite filled the room while many had to leave, who could not gain admittance. The programme consisted of songs &c., by various members of the troupe, and proved to be a most popular one. It is gratifying to know that this kind and commendable effort, to relieve the wants of this unfortunate woman, whose husband was burned to death at Whitsuntide, has met with such a good reception, and that the financial result is quite satisfactory.

FOOTBALL NOTES.

Rothwell was favoured with a visit from the men of Hull Town F. C., the present holders of the Scarbro' and East Riding Challenge Cup, on Saturday. The visitors arrived with only nine men, but found excellent substitutes in Bradley and Coope (Oulton), while the home team had to put up with the absence of several of the first team players, and were consequently placed at a disadvantage. However, things did not turn out so badly as was expected for Rothwell; and further, if the forwards had only taken care and used better judgment when in their opponents' goal-mouth, the victory would have been on the Rothwell side, but their shying was very bad indeed. The home team had the best of the game, and it was owing to the darkness which prevailed towards the finish, that they lost the match, as their opponents being the heavier of the two, told most towards the finish. Rothwell had most decidedly the best of the game in the first half, though they failed to score, but succeeded in 'drawing first blood' after the change of ends; it will thus be seen that although beaten, they were not disgraced, and are to be congratulated on making so good a stand.

The tussle between the representatives of Lofthouse and Carlton caused a great amount of excitement amongst the partizans of both clubs. The game was keenly—perhaps too keenly—contested, but I am unable to state the result, as each side holds to the opinion that victory was gained by them. The Carlton men declare that their score was 1 goal, 1 try and 3 minor points, to 1 goal (which they alleged was got from a try gained after the ball had been in touch) and 1 minor point. Lofthouse puts the result as follows: Lofthouse 1 goal and 3 minor points, to 1 try and 1 minor. However, it is plain enough to be seen that the game was not more friendly than it ought to have been, and the Carlton men emphatically declare that owing to the way in which they were treated by their opponents, they should not be agreeable for any future arrangements being made with Lofthouse club, and so the matter stands. I am sorry to hear that such a rupture should have occurred between the two organisations, but one thing is certain, that the financial success of the two clubs will suffer somewhat from such a course as the Carlton men propose to adopt. Take for example the matches between the clubs of Rothwell and Oulton, which was always reckoned on as the principal 'gate' of the year by each club, and I have no doubt but that such is the case with Lofthouse and Carlton.

Stourton received a visit from Hunslet St. Peter's, who gained such a decisive victory over them (Stourton) only a short while ago. The home team were rather unfortunate in not having their full strength in the field, though the Hunslet team must have been considerably weaker than that which did duty for them on their own ground, as the score at the conclusion of last Saturday's game goes to prove, viz., Hunslet, 1 try and 6 minor points to nil. The brothers Rathmell and B. Ross were especially conspicuous for Stourton, as their play throughout was very good, and their strong determination to save their side from defeat, deserves better results.

The first win for Oulton was (as most people expected) gained last Saturday, though there is nothing in the result of the match to cause any joy at the success achieved on the part of the victorious team—1 try and 2 minor points to nil. As I had occasion to state anent the match Oulton v. Methley, that the players of the former organization, were not too fully acquainted with the rules, was further proved on Saturday, when the visitors had occasion to leave the field some five minutes before time, on account of the reported infringement of the laws of the game by the home team.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—As winter advances and the weather becomes more and more inclement and trying the earliest evidences of ill-health must be immediately checked and removed, or a slight illness may result in a serious malady. Relaxed and sore throat, quinsey, influenza, chronic cough, bronchitis, and most other pulmonary affections will be relieved by rubbing this cooling Ointment into the skin as nearly as practicable to the seat of mischief. This treatment, simple yet effective, is admirably adapted for the removal of these diseases during infancy and youth. Old asthmatic invalids will derive marvellous relief from the use of Holloway's remedies, which have wonderfully relieved many such sufferers, and re-established health after every other means had signally failed.

TOWN TALK.

WHAT raises the indignation of a true-hearted Englishman sooner than insulting the British Flag? Certainly nothing raises his ire so soon as this. It is not to be wondered therefore, that Mr. Jos. Cheetham should be incensed and wounded when, on the night of the election, some person or persons maliciously broke the 'blue' flagstaff, and injured the banner fastened thereto.

THAT piece of information given to us by Colonel Charlesworth at his meeting a fortnight ago, is very welcome. He said that the Charlesworth firm had come to such arrangements as would enable them to speedily put the Rothwell Haigh Colliery in full swing. To those who have been on 'short commons,' this will be a good Christmas greeting. More distress has existed among the miners than many persons have thought of, during the recent lull in the colliery operations. Even our vicar appears to be extremely ignorant of the unhappy condition of the working classes in the village, when he urges them from the pulpit to pay their debts instead of spending their money on luxurious living. The improvement in the state of work will be of little benefit if the strike takes place, which it is to be earnestly hoped may be averted.

I HEARD on good authority this week, that the Midland Railway Co. are contemplating extending their premises at Rothwell Haigh. It was rumoured a few years ago, that the Co. were intending building premises of an extensive kind at Rothwell Haigh, and for that purpose certain lands were bought and enclosed. It is said now, that those who are at present occupying the land are under notice to surrender possession of it, and this gives strong hope that the original plan of the Co. will be shortly carried out. Of course such a scheme would greatly increase the importance of Rothwell, and besides helping our rates to a considerable extent, would find employment for a large number of workmen.

BRING out your skates, and get ready for a spin What could be more delightful to the skaters, who have been prevented indulging in their pleasant pastime for several years, than the severe weather that has come upon us so unexpectedly this week. It is really delightful to contemplate the sound of the skates rattling on the ice once again. Should the frost last but one day more, what a countless host of young men and maidens will turn out of the towns and villages, with their instruments swinging by their side, to enjoy the fun to be obtained at the various sheets of water in the district. But we must remember that during this inclement season those who are poor, are in their extremity, and it would be a commendable thing if we would all in our little sphere imitate the good example set by Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Charlesworth, who are preparing, as is their wont, to present the poor old widows with comfortable articles of clothing.

GOSSIP.

WESLEYAN CHAPEL, ROTHWELL

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times

Dear Sir,

Your correspondent in "Town Talk" of last week, was so reckless in his remarks concerning the repairs needed in the above place of worship, that I am requested to ask your favour of insertion, for a categorical denial of everything that he said about it. First, the joinery contract was not let to the late Mr. William Pinder, of Holbeck, because of his estimate being lower than local contractors, three of the most likely being very similar in amount and four others not exactly local were considerably below Mr. Pinder's; the scale being turned in his favor because, of his tender for stone and brick work, and the desirability of one party having the two contracts. Next the joists and flooring that have decayed, were grown over by a "fungus" similar to what I have seen in large piles of deals, fresh and damp, and not three months out of the ship. No doubt the growth of the fungus has been forced by the heat generated by a hot water pipe under the flooring, but where the growth had not branched out itself, both joists and boards were in good condition. Pleasant and interesting as your "Town Talk" often is, your correspondent is open to be charged with very serious "dry rot" himself when he condemns both living and dead falsely, because of not having made sufficient enquiry on what he writes about.

Yours respectfully,
J. R. SEANOR.
Secretary to the Wesleyan Chapel Trust.

THE LATE FOOTBALL MATCH.

(LOFTHOUSE V. CARLTON.)

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Carlton met Lofthouse on Saturday, but did not go away as they came, for they were sure that they were going to win; but they had not seven men to meet as they had when Lofthouse visited them. I was surprised to see the report in the Yorkshire Post on Tuesday, but we know that Carlton cannot bear to loose with any club, especially Lofthouse. The goal that they say they got was kicked from a touch down, and the goal that Lofthouse got was from a try of Farmery's, and still they dispute the goal and kick off at the half way. If it was a disputed try that was got, what did they kick off as they did for, when the rule is from the '25' flag. Hoping I have not trespassed on your valuable paper,

A VISITOR.

KAYES LAVALINE.—TESTIMONIAL.

Dear Sir,

Many of our customers prefer your Lavaline to dry soaps, washing powders, &c., their testimony to its superiority is "THE CLOTHES DON'T REQUIRE SO MUCH RUBBING."

Our personal experience proves that a small quantity put into the washing-up water is excellent, having an affinity for grease; dirty crockery ware, pots, pans and other cooking utensils are by its use RAPIDLY AND EFFECTIVELY CLEANSED.

I am, dear Sir,
Yours truly,
(Signed) JOHN RIPLEY.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons the good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and desponding that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain, or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved

CHEAP NOURISHMENT.—Fourteen large Breakfast Cups of strong, reliable Cocoa can be made from a Sixpenny Packet of Cadbury's Cocoa Essence. Ask for Cadbury's, and do not be imposed upon.

GENUINE ORANGE BITTERS.—24s. per case of one dozen net cash. These Bitters are made from the very finest Servile oranges and will be found to be an admirable and pleasant tonic. Manufactured by Joseph Hobson, Dantzic Brewery, Regent Street, Leeds.—Rothwell Agent, H. P. Newsome, Grocer, &c

KAY'S COMPOUND.—Asthma and Bronchitis are immediately relieved by it. Kay Bros. Stockport.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by a drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. WHITE, Limited, 17, Farringdon road, London, E. C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it soften the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE ELECTIONS.—The period of a General Election always brings a great many special publications into print; but for novelty and usefulness we have seldom come across anything to equal The Elector's Note Book, a work which is being published by The Catherine Street Publishing Association, of Catherine Street, London. The book is so arranged that the reader may see at a glance all the constituencies as they now stand under the Redistribution Act, the number of members which each has to elect, the names and politics of all the candidates who have come forward, the result of the last General Election in each of the old constituencies, and a variety of other things. This, however, is but the minor portion of the work; for, in addition to the above information, the publishers have devised a most ingenious arrangement of blank columns, by filling up which as the Elections proceed, whoever is fortunate enough to possess a copy of the book will be able to ascertain, with infallible accuracy, at any moment, the exact position of the parties and other interesting particulars; and thus will unquestionably be compiling a book which, during another Election, will be invaluable. Published at the price of one shilling, we can easily understand that the enormous number of 80,000 copies of the book have already been sold.

WATCHES, JEWELLERY. — MIDLAND COUNTIES WATCH COMPANY.—(Cheapest house in the World) Ladies' or Gents' Fine Silver Crystal Glass, heavy Ladies' Watches, 25/-; Ladies' heavy-cased Gold Levers, 70/-; Gents' do. do. do., 80/-. Before purchasing send for Company's Catalogue, beautifully illustrated, 1,000 fine copper-plate engravings, gratis, post free on application, to any part of the world. Apply Company's Manager, A. Percy, Vyse Street, Birmingham. The press universally recommend their readers to obtain a catalogue.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. Mr. R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as SCOTT & CO., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list

☞ DO READ THIS!

NO person need despair of a speedy restoration to health and strength if he or she will carefully peruse the following, and learn that the great

SELF-RESTORER,
OR,
DR. BELL'S Patent Voltaic Belt,

is the safest, grandest, and most certain discovery ever known for the cure of all bodily ailments arising from indiscretion and other causes. To those afflicted with Nervousness, Nervous Debility, Loss of Physical power, Weakness of Body and Mind, &c., this invention presents a means of cure of so unfailing a character that the greatest sufferers from any of the above distressing complaints may, with confidence, rely upon being quickly restored to a sound state of health and strength. In fact, the many marvellous cures performed by the "Self-Restorer" (UNDENIABLE PROOF OF WHICH CAN BE GIVEN) at once places these extraordinary Instruments far beyond anything of the kind hitherto offered to the public. In order to prove that these Belts are all they claim to be, it would be as well to mention the following circumstance:—

"In the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division) an Injunction was granted on January 24th, 1884, restraining certain unprincipled persons from selling any colourable imitations of the "Self-Restorer" Belt, the Jury giving the proprietor a verdict with costs and damages for such infringement." The Belt was also explained, and its Electrical powers fully tested in open Court, both before Mr. Justice Hawkins and the Jury, upon the same occasion.

Can any other manufacturer of Electric Belts produce evidence of SO SEVERE A TEST? Surely after such proof as this, the most sceptical will believe that it really possesses the great restorative powers ascribed to it.

It may be as well to mention that the action of the "Self-Restorer" is gentle, but exceedingly effective. The mild, but benefical, current generated by its use, braces the system, and by its benign influence gradually builds up the frame until the mind begins to get brighter, the natural functions become stronger, the elastic spirits of youth once more apparent, and so the progress towards recovery steadily goes on until the patient ultimately realises the fact that he is once more young. In cases of weakness, arising from any of the before-mentioned causes, these Belts are at once the most simple and at the same time the most certain remedy ever invented or discovered. They are entirely self-acting, and NO ACIDS being required, can be worn at any time without any wetting process or inconvenience to the patient, the salt contained in the insensible perspiration being sufficient to keep it in action.

The cures performed are not of a fleeting character, but permanent, providing the instructions sent with each instrument are carefully adhered to. It speedily removes that most miserable feeling, "lowness of spirits," so often experienced; and after being worn a short time, enables a man to look at the future in a more hopeful light, as the certainty of a rapid cure relieves the mind of a great burden.

How many persons who, by living too generously, have become prematurely old, and consequently have these wretched, morbid feelings? They have an idea that nature is decaying, and the pleasures of life have departed. In nine cases out of ten this is far from being the fact. Nature has not decayed; it is simply lying dormant, and needs but a little assistance to once more assert its presence. "The creaking gate requires oil, or it will continue to creak." So it is with the human frame. Assist it where weak, put it in a position to recover itself, and you will find that after all life has its pleasures, and you the restored inclination to partake of them.

The beneficial action of these truly life-giving Belts upon the human frame has been proved so conclusively, by thousands of unsolicited testimonials, that no shadow of doubt remains as to their extraordinary efficacy. They can be worn by either sex with the greatest ease and comfort, without fear of discovery, and by a delicate arrangement can be adjusted to act directly upon the weakened parts, so that immediately upon contact with the body, an electric current is at once produced of a mild, but withal of so efficacious a character, that an almost instantaneous improvement becomes noticeable. The heavy hanging feeling wears off, the eye becomes brighter, the brain clearer, until at last the patient feels in his own mind that he is once more in the possession of the greatest blessing upon earth, viz., HEALTH, STRENGTH, ENERGY, and MANLY VIGOUR.

In cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Paralysis, &c., there is no cure in the world to be compared to these Belts. Nature requires assistance in all these complaints, and that assistance to be thoroughly effective, must be obtained from nature herself—thus, by calling into operation Electricity, a natural ally, congenial to all constitutions is obtained, and the result is in almost every case permanent cures are effected. Again, in cases of Consumption these Belts have been the SOLE MEANS of restoring thousands of both sexes to a healthy and vigorous existence when that fell disease "Consumption" had in the opinion of many eminent medical men, marked them as its victims. These are facts which can be proved to be absolutely true.

To persons desirous of further information, instructions will be given away, in 130 pp. pamphlet, showing sufferers how they may be restored to Health, Strength, and Manly Vigour, without the Aid of Medicine, or will be sent, post-free, together with all particulars as to regimen, diet, &c., Address—W. WRIGHT, Esq., Secretary, Volta House, 175, Wardour street, Oxford-street, London W.

THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS MAY BE SEEN AT THE ESTABLISHMENT.

The Prices of Dr. Bell's Medico-Magnetic or Volta Belts are £2 2s., £3 3s., and £5 5s. each,

According to power. The instrument can be sent to any part of the known world through the Post, securely packed upon receipt of remittance. P.O.O. made payable to Mr. W. Wright, at the Charing-cross Post Office, London.

NOTE THE ADDRESS—

Important Notice.

Having been asked upon many occasions how it is that our Belts are higher priced than those now being advertised by new firms (with whom we have no connection whatever) we beg to call attention to the following:

This appliance is POSITIVELY WHAT IT PROFESSES TO BE—an "ELECTRIC BELT," which may be proved before purchasing by the Galvanometer, &c. It was explained and fully tested before Mr. Justice Hawkins and a Jury in the Court of Queen's Bench, January 24th, 1884. Moreover, it ENTIRELY DIFFERS from anything of the kind advertised.

A perusal of which will at once show the most dubious that our Belts are, without doubt, infinitely superior to anything of a like character extant, and are as beneficial to exhausted nature as represented. Their having stood the test for 30 years, is a still further guarantee of their genuineness.

Friday, December 18, 1885.

THE Irish question is undoubtedly the first and paramount subject with which the new Parliament will have to deal, and people are looking anxiously for the slightest sign from the great political leaders. So far as can be judged, although the connection between the Conservatives and the Parnellites has been close and apparently united, during the elections, it has been a union of convenience; the two opposites falling together out of mutual hatred, from different causes, of the Liberal party. This connection is now becoming less patent, the more so as the most Lord Salisbury is willing to give Ireland, is equal rights with England, especially as regards County Government, etc. During the last day or two, rumour has drawn attention to the other great leader, and rightly or wrongly, it is said that a scheme of Home Rule is already being considered by Mr. Gladstone and his colleagues, which provides for the establishmet of a Parliament in Dublin for dealing with purely Irish affairs. This proposal is subject to very large limitations, the most important of which are that the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament over all matters affecting Imperial interests shall be maintained; that the rights and interests of the minority in Ireland shall be fully protected; that the distribution of taxation as between England and Ireland shall be fairly adjusted; and that duties of a protective character shall not be imposed on British goods in Ireland. The Irish Members will still attend the Imperial Parliament, but will not be allowed to take part in English or Scotch business. The limitations which Mr. Gladstone's scheme imposes are not intended to be nominal in their character, and merely to smooth over a difficulty. Mr. Parnell and his friends will be required not only to accept them, but to provide adequate guarantees that they shall be faithfully carried out. With regard to the general transference of Irish questions to an Irish Government, the scheme is clear and definite; but, on the other hand, the position of the police is not yet finally determined. It may be difficult to establish local government in Ireland, and refuse it the control of the police; but Mr. Gladstone will not place the police in Irish hands without complete assurance that the force will be employed for the maintenance of law and order, and not as a cover and protection for lawlessness. From this outline of the principles on which Mr. Gladstone proposes to legislate, it will be seen that he intends to deal with the question in a thorough and comprehensive manner. He will give Ireland all that she has a legitimate right to claim, and will at the same time secure the effective guardianship of Imperial interests. How far this report may be true, and if true, to what extent it may meet general approval is for future consideration. Those who live longest will see most.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The ordinary meeting of the Board took place on Monday, present,—Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman), J. Oliver, J. Hargreaves, J. Turner, J. Nowell, W. Lawton, and the clerk, collector and surveyor.

The minutes of last meeting having been read, were confirmed.

MEDICAL OFFICER.—The re-appointment of Dr. Glaister as medical officer, was carried unanimously.

WATER.—The recommendation of the Waterworks Committee to alter the scale of charges of water, was objected to by Mr. Lawton, who maintained that before any final decision is come to, there ought to be a thorough examination into the real cost of the Waterworks scheme, and that the charges ought to be regulated so that the income not only covers the water consumption, but also secures the repayment of the cost incurred in supplying the article within the term of years for which money has been borrowed. The proposed alteration is a charge of 2d. per week for houses under £6 10s., 2½d. up to £10, and 3d. up to £15; with 1/1 per thousand to ordinary consumers by meter, and 10d. to Messrs. Charlesworth (whose annual consumption is between two and three million gallons). He would vote for any scheme which could be shewn to be self-supporting, but he was not yet convinced that this would be. He also objected to a final settlement just now, as it could not come into force till March 25, 1886; he therefore moved that the recommendation be again referred to the Waterworks Committee. Mr. Jas. Hargreaves said that in order to bring the question before the Board, he would second the motion. Mr. Turner moved that the recommendation of the Waterworks Committee be confirmed. He was not the person to propose the alteration of the charges, and he thought it was hardly the thing that Mr. Lawton should now turn round and object. The Committee (of which Mr. Lawton is a member) had spent two evenings on the subject, and had gone as thoroughly into it as possible, and their labour ought not to be thrown away in this manner. The chairman seconded the amendment, feeling with Mr. Turner, that the Committee had gone fully into the matter, and that the proposed charges were as high as they could be raised. Mr. Oliver also supported the amendment. He was in favor of meters, believing that by their general use, they would certainly secure sufficient income at 1/1 per 1,000, to cover all expenses. Mr. Nowell also supported the amendment. If everybody was supplied by meter, they would get paid for what was used, and would also find out whether it was lost before it came to their reservoir. Mr. Jas Hargreaves said he had seconded Mr. Lawton's motion in order to get the question into discussion, and must say he now saw things more clearly than he had before. He had been in favor of meters all along, and agreed with much that Mr. Turner had said. Mr. Lawton, in replying, further explained his position, that he would vote for either this or any other scheme which could be proved as self-supporting, and on behalf of several rat payers, he declared that if the scheme does not pay for itself, the matter will be taken up as a serious grievance. On being put Mr. Lawton's motion was lost, the Chairman, Messrs. Oliver, Turner and Nowell voting against it. Mr. Lawton gave notice, that he should move the rescinding of the resolution at next meeting.

The clerk reported that several persons who have lately been charged water rent for their horses object to pay, and Saturday was arranged for a meeting to hear their reasons.

Messrs. Bromet and Taylor, having been seen by a deputation from the Board, now propose to pay 5 per cent. on the cost of laying water mains to Mr. Lawton's and other property, for 21 years. Mr. Oliver objected to this proposal, as the present ratepayers would thus be heavily burdened with the original expense of such work, while the next generation would have the benefit without any cost. The clerk said the Board could not borrow money for works on private property. The Chairman agreed with Mr. Oliver, and further remarked that other persons would be coming on the Board for water on the same terms, thus throwing a heavy burden on the present ratepayers. Mr. Turner also mentioned the necessities of Royds Green. It was eventually agreed that another interview be held with Messrs. Bromet and Taylor, who shall be asked to put the water in at their own expense.

FINANCE.—A number of accounts and salaries were passed to be paid.

The collector had paid into the bank the following amounts on account of the Board:

General District Rate	70	18	7
Water Rents	18	3	1
	£89	1	8

SANITARY.—Very strong complaints were made against the contractor for removing ashpit contents at Stourton, but the Inspector stated that during the last two or three days, considerable work has been done, and that all would be in order shortly.

Dr. Glaister, the Medical Officer, reported that there was no zymotic disease in the district at present, and that the general health is satisfactory. He also submitted the report of analysis of water from Mr. Sissons' farm, which, though not of the best quality, is nevertheless, not very bad. He also reported on an inspection lately made of Mr. Allen's premises, which he found very unsatisfactory, and it was unanimously agreed that 14 days notice be given to the landlord to have certain nuisances abated. In reply to the Chairman, Dr. Glaister said most of the Carlton fever cases were now convalescent. Dr. Nowell said he had seen the Committee of the Wakefield Rural Sanitary Authority, and had complained to them about their proposal for discharging the Carlton sewage into the beck. The clerk said that the Board had full power to stop such discharge.

RAILWAYS.—The secretary to the Midland Railway Co. wrote to express the inability of the Company to light the Leeds and Pontefract Road Bridge.

The Midland Railway Co propose to divert the footpath between Wakefield and Pontefract Road, and the Board agreed to it.

The promoters of the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway have also submitted plans of proposed alterations, one of which is near Robin Hood Colliery, and also to secure the formal approval of the Board on the Co.'s application for an extension of time. On the motion of Mr. J. Hargreaves and Mr. Turner, the approval was granted.

HIGHWAYS.—Mr. Nowell drew attention to the objectionable condition of Carlton Lane, near the Bridge.

Mr. Oliver also asked the Committee to have the road scrapings removed somehow or other.

Mr. Turner mentioned the state of Butcher Lane, and urged the removal of the loose material now blocking the road. He also took the opportunity of informing the writer of a certain letter in the Rothwell Times that his idea about pebbles was by no means asleep, although they were put down as merely "consolidated mud," and that he should return to the subject shortly.

The proceedings then terminated.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The usual meeting of the Board was held on Wednesday evening, present—Mr. Jas. Hargreaves (chairman), Rev. J. H. Evans (vice-chairman), Messrs. J. Parker, J. Dixon, W. Lawton, H. Sheard, J. Swithenbank, J. Hardcastle, R. J. Smith, W. Riley, C. Grosvenor, G. Jepson, the Rev. G. M. Platt, and Mr. Schofield (clerk).

The relief cases occupied no less than over five hours, and included several disgraceful cases of young able-bodied men who had allowed their wives and families to become chargeable to the Union; stringent orders were given in these cases.

Instructions from the authorities at Wakefield Asylum, informed the Board that any other lunatics from this Union, must be sent to Wadsley Asylum.

Before giving assent to the proposed alterations in the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway, it was decided to be ascertained whether the levels are the same as before.

A letter was read from a lad who has been apprenticed to a tailor, in which certain matters require investigation. It was unanimously agreed that a deputation visit the tailor, and ascertain the state of affairs between the master and apprentice.

CHRISTMAS TREAT.—According to usual custom, it was unanimously agreed that the inmates of the House shall have the usual Christmas dinner and amusements.

MR. DIXON'S TREAT.—Mr. Lawton very happily proposed that the best thanks of the Guardians be presented to Mr. Dixon for his generosity in providing so excellent an entertainment for the inmates on Tuesday week, and complimented him on its success. The Rev. G. M. Platt cordially seconded the motion, which was supported by Mr. Hardcastle, and carried unanimously. Mr. Dixon suitably replied. Reference was also made to the kind hospitality of the Rev. J. H. Evans in entertaining the Guardians last week.

The usual lists of wants, etc., were then gone through and agreed to.

ROTHWELL NATIONAL SCHOOLS.

CONCERT AND PRIZE DISTRIBUTION.

On Monday evening, the tenth annual concert in connection with the National Schools was held in the Mechanics' Hall, the room being crowded with parents and friends interested in the welfare of the schools. Additional interest was attached to the present festival by the presence of F. W. Walker, Esq., one of the new members of the recently elected Leeds School Board. It was nearly half-past seven before the proceedings commenced, when the Vicar suitably introduced Mr. Walker, the guest of the evening. Mr. Walker was very cordially received, and addressed a few remarks on various subjects, both educational and political, at the close urging all who value religious education in the day schools, to support such men as Colonel Charlesworth, who were resolved to maintain their Church and church schools.

The prizes gained by the several scholars who have passed successfully the recent inspection, and have attended not less than 370 times during the year, were then presented, their names being as follows:

The most regular attenders were John Cromack, who has never been absent, and Lizzie Fretwell, who has made 436 times, only once absent.

The Vicar said that they had decided to place the National Anthem first on the programme, owing to the confusion and haste with which it is usually gone through at the close of a concert. This having been sung, five members of the Church Choir Glee Party sang "Welcome Raise." Mr. Jas. Dobson then kindly gave the sea song "Merry May" in his usual happy manner. The "Boys of the Old Brigade" followed by the children, giving excellent promise of their ability and good training. Miss Boucher now introduced her infant choir, who were so successful in "The Polar Bear" that another little song was demanded. Master Parker, in his pianoforte solo, displayed more than ordinary ability, and richly deserved an encore. The youthful choir sang "Lullaby" very tastefully, proper attention being bestowed on the light and shade of the composition. Little Horner Blackburn did his cornet solo "Blue bells of Scotland" capital for such a dot, and as an encore played "Belle Mahone." The round "How great is the pleasure" was well kept by the three parts into which the scholars were divided, and shewed great merit on the part of both teachers and scholars. The first part concluded with the pretty Christmas carol "See amid the winter snow."

During the rather lengthy interval, the Vicar addressed the parents, especially the mothers of the children, urging their co-operation in giving a regular attendance at school, in order to secure the best results. The managers were very gratified with the report of the Inspectors, both boys and infants having done very well, while the girls would have been quite as good but for the irregular attendance of the upper standards. Referring to the late political struggle, Mr. Fawkes said that Mr. Pickard, who now represents this division in Parliament, was educated in the National School, Kippax, and all honour was due to him for the position to which he had raised himself, under such disadvantages. He then called on Mr. Turner to move a vote of thanks to Mr. Walker for coming among them. Mr. Turner expressed their great thanks to Mr. Walker for his kindness, especially remembering the high position he had attained in the late election. Mr. W. Hargreaves very cordially seconded the vote, feeling that the managers had done well in securing Mr. Walker's assistance that evening, and he thought the example might very well be followed. The Vicar, in putting the motion, expressed his opinion that he should'nt wonder if they found some day, that they had been entertaining the future member for South Leeds. Mr. Walker kept touch with the people of Hunslet, and thereby secured the position he now enjoyed. He was pleased that they had such amicable relations with the School Board, that the Chairman and Vice-chairman could join in the present proceedings. The motion was carried with acclamation. Mr. Walker, in accepting the tendered thanks, remarked that any popularity he might have gained was not due to himself so much, but because he had endeavoured to do his best for the working people about him, and he was pleased to believe that there was not one of his men who could say he had ever done a dirty trick to any of them. As a proof of the kindly feeling existing between him and his workmen, he stated that although they were opposed to him in politics, when they heard he was coming out for the School Board, about 100 of them formed an independent Committee and worked so hard for him as to place him at the head of the poll. (Applause.) As regards Parliamentary honours, he had been pressed to stand as candidate for South Leeds, but he considered it would not be fair for him to leave his old father to work in Hunslet in order to keep him in London at the House of Commons; he had therefore decided for the next ten years to earn something himself before devoting his thoughts and time to parliamentary duties. While upholding the position of England as first among the nations, he urged the great necessity for advanced education in order to keep that position, and maintained that the prosperity of the country, depended not so much on capital and labour, as upon brains and labour. He very heartily thanked them for the kind resolution they had just passed.

The children having discussed the oranges which they had been enjoying during the "talkation", the second part of the concert was taken up by their singing of the "Minstrel Boy." The Glee Party then gave "Life and health to England's Queen" very pleasingly, after which the infants prattled on "We love to sing our merry song," followed by "The Rothwell Train," which, of course, took immensely. The "Jolly Miller" had the next place by the juvenile choir, succeeded by little Tim Taylor's song "That's not the way at sea my boys," the last verse of which was redemanded. "Over rock and over weed" was beautifully done by the little folks, and then Mr. Jas. Dobson told the story of "Kit the Cobbler" with good action and in excellent voice, an encore being called for. The popular "Tight little island" went with a splendid swing, and although there are six long verses, the song was not a bit wearisome. Master Norton played two nice little pieces on his violin, and greatly pleased the youthful part of the audience, especially as he was pleasingly accompanied on the piano by a companion, Master John Young. The last item, by the children, was peculiarly sweet and tastefully given, "Children's voices," this bringing the rather over lengthy evening to a happy termination.

The getting up of these concerts entails a vast amount of labour on the teachers, and very many thanks are due to them for their self-denying efforts. Credit is specially due to Mr. Borwell, who conducted, and good as the concert was, we have little doubt but what a second effort will be better still.

The accompaniments were well taken by Mr. A. Batty, who is always ready to help in any musical effort. The success achieved by the head teachers in getting a section of the girls and boys to sing seconds in most of their pieces, deserves remark.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.—On Saturday last, a good company of friends partook of a substantial tea in the above Hall. After tea a Service of Song entitled "Buy your own Cherries" was rendered by the choir, which was conducted by Mr. T. Blackburn and accompanied by Mr. J. Naylor. The chair was occupied by Mr. W. Blackburn and the readings taken by Mr. R. Watkin. On Sunday evening "Little Dot" was rendered before a crowded audience. Mr. Mantle, the president, occupied the chair and the service was a most successful one.

ROMAN CATHOLIC FUNERAL.—A somewhat unusual form of burial took place yesterday in the Rothwell Churchyard, attracting a large number of spectators. The deceased was Mrs. Brown, until a few years ago a highly respected shopkeeper in Rothwell, and who, during a long term of widowhood, honestly maintained herself and family, and strictly conformed to the self denying rites of the Roman Catholic Church, although she had to trudge over three miles to attend the nearest place of worship. Mrs. Brown has, for some five years, been cared for by the "Little Sisters" in Leeds, and was warmly attached to them. She was in her 71st year. The corpse was brought to her daughter's, Mrs. Cheetham, where a private service was held previous to leaving for interment. The procession left the house at a quarter-past three, the relatives and friends walking after the coffin, which was in black cloth, richly ornamented with gold tires, and fittings of similar character, a large gilt cross filling up the space below the name plate. The procession was met by Father Morgan, of Hunslet, in his white embroidered robes, and the impressive service of the Roman Church, was very effectively carried out, the various invocations being accompanied by the sprinkling of holy water, as prescribed in their ritual. The Church was open and the Rev. Mr. Samwell and the sexton were present, but no use whatever was made of the opportunity. The ceremony was carried out without the slightest hitch, and the crowds of onlookers conducted themselves in a most orderly and becoming manner.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

THE results of the annual examination at the Board Schools, which have just come to hand, are very satisfactory indeed. The boys especially, have acquitted themselves brilliantly, the average pass reaching 98 per cent. Mr. Parkin is to be congratulated on the gratifying success which has rewarded his efforts during the past year. The attendance generally, but particularly in the boys department, has been improved in a marked degree by the inducement of valuable prizes offered by the Board to those who attend every time the school is opened. This has no doubt contributed towards bringing about the creditable results of the inspection.

IT is not at all surprising that there is such a general chorus of discontent at the manner in which we are being served by the Gas Company. The gas supplied formerly was, as a rule, of good illuminating power, if it was not always well refined; although the exorbitant price charged—5s per thousand feet—has been paid with a fair amount of cheerfulness. But lately the gas has been both uncertain in quantity and vile indeed in quality. The sulphurous fumes given off by the burning lights on Sunday evening last created a general nuisance, and in the places of worship especially, it was difficult to breathe the poisoned air caused by the large number of lights in use. It is an ill wind that blows no good however, the dealers in oil lamps are taking a benefit.

WE offer no apology for directing the attention of local readers to the Exhibition of Pictures by Yorkshire artists at present open in the Municipal Buildings, Leeds. The fact that this collection of 700 or 800 pictures, many of them important works, is open to the public free, cannot be too widely made known. Anyone having an hour or more to wait for a train might spend the time usefully and pleasantly in looking through this gallery of works of art; but the exhibition is well worth the trouble of a special visit. Visitors from this neighbourhood will be particularly interested in noticing a clever etching of the old timber house at Oulton, which will be found in Gallery V. This, with the Porch, Adel Church, is the work of a Rothwell artist, 'Stanley Medway,' who has already gained a wide celebrity for the nom de plume he has assumed. Visitors to the exhibition should provide themselves with a catalogue, which, besides the description and price of every picture, contains illustrations of a large number of the principal works.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

SERVICES of Song are exceedingly popular, and there is scarcely a week passes, but I see a bill announcing such a service, or a paragraph in the Times reporting it to have taken place. There were two such services in the Primitive Chapel, Carlton, last Sunday. In the afternoon the one entitled "Pioneers of Primitive Methodism" was well rendered by the choir, and in the evening "The Dairyman's Daughter" (or as it was put on the bills "Diaryman's Daughter") was performed before a moderate congregation. The Rev. T. Pearson, gave the readings with considerable effect and the choir was conducted by Mr. Jos. Firth. On Monday a cantata "Under the Palms" or "Jewish Flower Feast" was carefully and heartily sung by the choir, when Mr. Pearson was again present and delivered and interesting speech.

IF I were to record all the rumours, (I can't get hold of the facts) that are afloat about the result of the recent football match between the organisations of Lofthouse and Carlton, I should have to request the genial Editor to issue an "extra special" in which to publish my voluminous epistle. But I don't propose to discuss which club gained the victory. I am sorry the dispute has arisen, which has caused such bitter feeling to spring up between the members of the two clubs. It would tend to injure both clubs, and football as a game, if such proposals as have been hinted, were carried out. I say let both teams make up their minds to play each other again, and when the day arrives be prepared to lose or win, remembering that it is no disgrace to be beaten by a superior lot of players.

Relaxed and sore throat, quinsey, influenza, chronic cough, bronchitis, and most other pulmonary affections will be relieved by rubbing this cooling Ointment into the skin as nearly as practicable to the seat of mischief. This treatment, simple yet effective, is admirably adapted for the removal of these diseases during infancy and youth. Old asthmatic invalids will derive marvellous relief from the use of Holloway's remedies, which have wonderfully relieved many such sufferers, and re-established health after every other means had signally failed.

A PROMINENT DIVINE'S EXPERIENCE.—The Bristol Times and Mirror states that in conversation with a leading divine, he mentioned his experience in the use of an article in favor of which so much is being said. He had suffered intensely with acute lumbago. He received from a friend a bottle of the remedy. It effected a speedy cure. He recommended it to others who used it with marvellous benefit. Mr Henry Gould, 24 Cumberland Street, Bristol, suffered intensely with rheumatism and had to give up work. He consulted doctors, took all kinds of medicine, but all to no use. He was advised to try St. Jacobs Oil—the remedy referred to. After using less than half a bottle, he was able to go to work entirely free from complaint. One application of the magical remedy instantly cured his wife of distressing tooth-ache. Never in the history of medical science, has a remedy been accepted with such general approbation. St. Jacobs Oil is sold by Chemists at 2s. 6d. a bottle, or by post 2s. 9d., from the Charles A. Vogeler Company, sole Proprietors, 45, Farringdon Road, London.

TOWN TALK.

I will notice first of all Mr. J. R. Seanor's letter anent my remarks about the Wesleyan Chapel a fortnight since. To begin with, he makes the work of the men responsible for the building of the chapel worse when he states that their only reason for giving Mr. Pinder the joiner's work was that they desired one party (I suppose he means one person) to do both stonemason's, bricklayer's and joiner's work. Mr. Seanor does not actually state that the present trouble is not the result of bad work, but endeavours to lead his readers to that decision by other means. He says the decayed wood was "grown over by a fungus," and further on he says "but where the growth had not branched out itself both joints and boards were in good condition." From these remarks we are to learn the extraordinary fact that the dry rot had only damaged those parts where it existed, while those parts where it had never been were perfectly sound. That's wonderful. Mr. Seanor calls this dry rot a 'fungus'; it is only like calling the same matches by "Sunflower," "Midland," and a few other names. Mr. Seanor's statement that the mischief had arisen from an escape from the water pipe can hardly be accepted as conclusive or correct, or why should the authorities spend so much labour in excavating under the boards, in order to allow of free ventilation. The work is at fault, however Mr. J. R. Seanor may endeavour to persuade to the contrary, and would have been done very much more cheaply, in the long run, by local men. I know that this is not the only piece of work which has had to be completed by our village joiners. Mr. J. R. Seanor refers to my contribution as having "dry rot" when it "condemns living and dead falsely." He cannot shew that I have done this. Some business men think they are infallible, and are highly offended when some mistake or blunder is pointed out to them. It may be open to discussion whether I have got "dry rot." It is certain they have it in the Wesleyan Chapel.

DID anyone see the members of the Salvation Army walking through the streets this week, when the men were engaged in singing in the heartiest manner possible "I'm a hallelujah lass." I and many other unbelievers were very "hard o'belief," and one fellow observed that if they were "lasses" it was time they got some women's clothes on, and appeared before the public in their true character.

BY-the bye, I hear that the 'Army' are 'going out singing' this Christmas. I hope they won't turn out in the early morning, especially if they are contemplating taking out the big drum with them: They have as much reason for going to their friends as any other society of musicians, only we get enough of the big drum in the early evening without having a dose in the early morning too.

WE are now in the midst of the 'cleaning down' operations. The good wives of Rothwell are in the habit of 'cleaning up' every day in the week, and it is very natural that the monotonous process should be a little varied by a 'cleaning down' twice a year. To husbands let me say don't let the smell of soap powder, furniture polish, etc., weary your patience, and ruffle your sweet tempers, and to wives I will say only "be quick."

AT the Roman Catholic funeral yesterday, a somewhat interesting and suggestive incident occurred. I understand that the previous interment in the grave used for Mrs. Brown, occurred some 42 years ago, when our late townswoman's husband was buried, and his coffin is stated to be in the most perfect preservation. The remarkable fact is this, however, that the oak coffin is bound by strong iron girths, probably so as to secure the remains from intrusion by the 'Resurrectionists,' who plied their nefarious trade about that time. The fact should call up feelings of thankfulness that the unhappy occurrences which used to take place in graveyards, are now no more to be feared, and that it is not necessary for the friends of deceased persons to watch the graves of their relatives all night, in order to preserve them from desecration.

GOSSIP.

THE LATE FOOTBALL MATCH.
(LOFTHOUSE v. CARLTON.)

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Kindly allow me a few words in your paper in reply to the letter of last week signed "A Visitor." He says Carlton did not go away as they came, as they were sure that they would win, and had not seven men to meet as they had when Lofthouse visted Carlton. Yes, when Carlton went to Lofthouse they thought they could win, and so they did, and further, when Lofthouse visited Carlton they started with 14 men, and before half-time had 15 men. He also says he was surprised to see the report in the Yorkshire Post, which it seems has touched him, and it appears the truth does not always suit the Lofthouse umpire, while he ('A Visitor') further states that Carlton cannot bear to lose, especially with Lofthouse. When Carlton Club was first formed, they could bear to lose the first three matches against Lofthouse, but as they (Carlton) have got the better of the two, it is Lofthouse that does not like to lose. Before the match in question had been on ten minutes, J. Rinder got a try for Carlton, to which the Lofthouse umpire quickly objected, but thanks to Farmery, a Lofthouse player, who came forward and acknowledged that he played the ball, which proved the fairness of the try. The Lofthouse umpire never saw it, but still held to his objection, which is good proof that Carlton was playing 15 men, and an umpire worth 10 men more. He ('A visitor') says the goal that Carlton got was from a touch down. Colley alleged that he touched the ball down, but he was at least six yards away when the try was got, which proves that the goal was kicked from a fair try. They (Lofthouse) did not know what to object to, and the goal they got was from a try gained after the ball had been in touch a yard, Farmery having to reach over the heads of the spectators as the ball was bounding. The reason why Carlton kicked off from the centre was because they had either to kick off from there or go home, and as they did not want to disappoint the spectators, they agreed to do so.

Respectfully yours,
RICHARD WARD.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I went to see Carlton meet Lofthouse at football, and I was surprised to see the way in which the Carlton men were treated by Lofthouse, and I think it only fair that I should put a few lines in your columns in reply. I read the letter that I saw in your last week's paper; I think that letter a false, and unprincipled one throughout. The man who signs himself 'A Visitor' says that Carlton did not go away as they came, for they were sure of winning; now I say that is false, for I enquired of the Carlton men whether they thought they would win or not, and they said they hoped they would win, but they thought they would be fairly matched; however, they hoped to have a friendly game. As for having seven men to meet at Carlton, it's utterly absurd; for I saw both the games, and by fair judging, I think myself that the Lofthouse team that played at Carlton was every bit as good as that which played at Lofthouse, and instead of seven men they had fourteen. I can tell you that Carlton are so far ahead [illegible] went into a field, for they will give in like men, and that's a thing that Lofthouse never would do. I have played against both teams, and at Carlton we have received scientific football, and at Lofthouse rough brutality. In the late match at Lofthouse the try that Farmery got was an unfair one, for the ball was bounding in the touch when he got it; while the try that Ducker got for Carlton was a fair try as ever was seen, and the reason that Carlton kicked off from the centre was that the spectators grumbled, and said that they would want their money back, while the Lofthouse players said Carlton must either kick off from the centre, or else go off the field. They actually threatened them, if they didn't do either one or the other, so Carlton agreed to place it in the centre, so that Lofthouse should not lose their spectators. The cause of the bother is that Lofthouse cannot bide beating by Carlton, because the Carlton club has not been going so long as them. Go where you will you can always hear good reports of Carlton, but of Lofthouse, I'm sorry to say, not even one. If you have any space left in your valuable columns would you be kind enough to put this in and I shall be very much obliged to you,

Yours truly,
FAIRPLAY.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

Having read your paper this week, as I do every Monday morning, I was surprised to see the report of the Carlton and Lofthouse football match, as given by the Lofthouse correspondent. Having been at Lofthouse Gate, I stopped to see the game, and before it had proceeded far, it was evident that the Lofthouse men wanted all their own way. Carlton kicked off up-hill, and before long John Rinder got a try, but no goal resulted from it. Lofthouse dropped out, and a bit of loose play followed, then A. Colley tried to make a run, but was well tackled. Ducker brought the ball down the field, and a scrimmage was formed. Then they say Farmery got a try; but if that player would speak honest and fair, he knows the ball went in touch. Ducker afterwards got a try at the low end near the Church; I agree that he lost the ball in his fall, but he got it under his thigh again before anyone got to him; J. Rinder was the next to touch the ball, and then A. Colley had the impudence to say that he dropped over the line with Ducker. He knows very well that he was ten yards away when Ducker dropped over the line; and to think that a man who was picked by the County Committee as a three-quarter back reserve would lie like that, and teach the younger players such like work. It is a disgrace both to him and the Lofthouse team. I was pleased to see the Carlton men conduct themselves in the way they did; but the sooner the Lofthouse Club has done with such men as A. Colley and Illingworth, the better; it was A. Colley that caused all the bother at Carlton on October 24th. However, I hope that they will be all right by next season, and play a good game; but they should have a referee to settle all disputes.

Yours etc.,
H. WOOD.

THE LOCAL BOARD'S ROADS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

It is with regret that the writer has again to draw the attention of the Local Board to the disgraceful state of Mill Hill. Some time ago—I think about two months ago—I saw through your columns that the writer's remarks had been noticed, and mention was made of it by Mr. Jas. Hargreaves, and likewise confirmed by the Chairman of the Board, as to the bad state it is in, but up to the present—so far as the writer can see—no notice has been taken of it. Therefore we can conclude that it is being left until some more important district is attended to. Whether my surmises are right I cannot say; but Mr. Editor, allow me to say that the month of March is fast coming round again, and then I am apprehensive, some of these gentlemen will appear before their constituents, extolling their own good work, and asking to be returned again to the post of honour. Then will be the time, Sir, to confront them, and shew them that they have done that which they ought not to have done, and left undone that which they ought to have done. Thanking you for allowing me the privilege of again bringing the matter before the public, and the Local Board in particular,

I remain,
Yours respectfully,
A RATEPAYER.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE ELECTION.—The period of a General Election always brings a great many special publications into print; but for novelty and usefulness we have seldom come across anything to equal The Elector's Note Book, a work which is being published by The Catherine Street Publishing Association, of Catherine Street, London. The book is so arranged that the reader may see at a glance all the constituencies as they now stand under the Redistribution Act, the number of members which each has to return, the names and politics of all the candidates who have come forward, [illegible] Published at the price of one shilling, we can easily understand that the enormous number of 60,000 copies of the book have already been sold.

WATCHES, JEWELLERY.—MIDLAND COUNTIES WATCH COMPANY.—(Cheapest house in the World). Ladies' or Gents' Fine Silver Crystal Glass, Keyless Watches, 25/-; Ladies' heavy-cased Gold Levers, 70/-; Gents' do. do. do. 80/-. THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections. ☞ DO READ THIS!

NO person need despair of a speedy restoration to health and strength if he or she will carefully peruse the following, and learn that the great

DR. BELL'S

is the safest grandest, and most certain discovery ever known for the cure of all bodily ailments arising from indiscretion and other causes. To those afflicted with Nervousness, Nervous Debility, Loss of Physical power, Weakness of Body and Mind, &c., this invention presents a means of cure of so unfailing a character that the greatest sufferers from any of the above distressing complaints may, with confidence, rely upon being quickly restored to a sound state of health and strength. In fact, the many marvellous cures performed by the "Self-Restorer" (UNDENIABLE PROOF OF WHICH CAN BE GIVEN) at once places these extraordinary Instruments far beyond anything of the kind hitherto offered to the public. In order to prove that these Belts are all they claim to be, it would be as well to mention the following circumstance:—

"In the High Court of Justice (Queen's Bench Division) an Injunction was granted on January 24th, 1884, restraining certain unprincipled persons from selling any colourable imitations of the 'Self-Restorer' Belt, the Jury giving the proprietor a verdict with costs and damages for such infringement." The Belt was also explained, and its Electrical powers fully tested in open Court, both before Mr. Justice Hawkins and the Jury, upon the same occasion.

Can any other manufacturer of Electric Belts produce evidence of, SO SEVERE A TEST? Surely after such proof as this, the most sceptical will believe that it really possesses the great restorative powers ascribed to it.

It may be as well to mention that the action of the "Self-Restorer" is gentle, but exceedingly effective. The mild, but beneficial, current generated by its use, braces the system, and by its benign influence gradually builds up the frame until the mind begins to get brighter, the natural functions become stronger, the elastic spirits of youth once more apparent, and so the progress towards recovery steadily goes on until the patient ultimately realises the fact that he is once more young. In cases of weakness, arising from any of the before mentioned causes, these Belts are at once the most simple and at the same time the most certain remedy ever invented or discovered. They are entirely self-acting, and NO ACIDS being required, can be worn at any time without any wetting process or inconvenience to the patient, the salt contained in the insensible perspiration being sufficient to keep it in action.

The cures performed are not of a fleeting character, but permanent, providing the instructions sent with each instrument are carefully adhered to. It speedily removes that most miserable feeling, "lowness of spirits," so often experienced; and after being worn a short time enables a man to look at the future in a more hopeful light, as the certainty of a rapid cure relieves the mind of a great burden.

How many persons who, by living too generously, have become prematurely old, and consequently have these wretched morbid feelings? They have an idea that nature is decaying, and the pleasures of life have departed. In nine cases out of ten this is far from being the fact. Nature has not decayed: it is simply lying dormant, and needs but a little assistance to once more assert its presence. "The creaking gate requires oil, or it will continue to creak." So it is with the human frame. Assist it where weak, put it in a position to recover itself, and you will find that after all life has its pleasures, and you the restored inclination to partake of them.

The beneficial action of these truly life-giving Belts upon the human frame has been proved so conclusively, by thousands of unsolicited testimonials, that no shadow of doubt remains as to their extraordinary efficacy. They can be worn by either sex with the greatest ease and comfort, without fear of discovery, and by a delicate arrangement can be adjusted to act directly upon the weakened parts, so that immediately upon contact with the body, an electric current is at once produced of a mild, but withal of so efficacious a character, that an almost instantaneous improvement becomes noticeable. The heavy hanging feeling wears off, the eye becomes brighter, the brain clearer, until at last the patient feels in his own mind that he is once more in the possession of the greatest blessing upon earth, viz., HEALTH, STRENGTH, ENERGY, and MANLY VIGOUR.

In cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Paralysis, &c., there is no cure in the world to be compared to these Belts. Nature requires assistance in all these complaints, and that assistance to be thoroughly effective, must be obtained from nature herself—thus, by calling into operation Electricity, a natural ally, congenial to all constitutions, is obtained, and the result is in almost every case permanent cures are effected. Again, in cases of Consumption these Belts have been the SOLE MEANS of restoring thousands of both sexes to a healthy and vigorous existence when that fell disease "Consumption" had, in the opinion of many eminent medical men, marked them as its victims. These are facts which can be proved to be absolutely true.

To persons desirous of further information, instructions will be given away, in 130 pp. pamphlet, showing sufferers how they may be restored to Health, Strength, and Manly Vigour, without the Aid of Medicine, or will be sent, post-free, together with all particulars as to regimen, diet, &c. Address—W. WRIGHT, Esq., Secretary, Volta House, 175, Wardour street, Oxford-street, London, W.

THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS MAY BE SEEN AT THE ESTABLISHMENT.

The Prices of Dr. Bell's Medico-Magnetic or Volta Belts are

£2 2s., £3 3s., and £5 5s. each,

According to power. The instrument can be sent to any part of the known world, through the Post, securely packed, upon receipt of remittance. P.O.O. made payable to Mr. W. Wright, at the Charing-cross Post Office, London.

Important Notice.

Having been asked upon many occasions how it is that our Belts are higher priced than those now being advertised by new firms (with whom we have no connection whatever) we beg to call attention to the following:

This appliance is POSITIVELY WHAT IT PROFESSES TO BE—an "ELECTRIC BELT," which may be proved before purchasing by the Galvanometer, &c. It was explained and fully tested before Mr. Justice Hawkins and a Jury in the Court of Queen's Bench, January 24th, 1884. Moreover, it ENTIRELY DIFFERS from anything of the kind advertised.

A perusal of which will at once show the most dubious that our Belts are, without doubt, infinitely superior to anything of a like character ever offered, and are as beneficial to exhausted nature as represented. Their having stood the test for 30 years, is a still further guarantee of their genuineness.

CHRISTMAS, 1885.

Again we rejoice to meet our readers with the cheery salute and loving wish, which should ever characterise the return of Father Christmas and his gladsome associations. 1885 is nearly gone, and the year has not been uneventful, although [the possibilities which loomed forth when we passed into the future a year ago, have not all been fulfilled.

For the first time in our history, this district has felt the throbs of parliamentary contests, and although some few favoured ones have in previous elections had the privilege of recording their votes for the men of their choice, the late general election has called forth for the first time the voting power of all householders. Lieut.-Col. Charlesworth and Mr. Pickard for the Normanton Division, have thoroughly worked and talked to the people of Rothwell, Oulton, Woodlesford, Stourton, &c., while Mr. Milnes Gaskell and Mr. J. J. Dunnington Jefferson have used their best endeavours to secure the votes of Carlton, Lofthouse, Robin Hood and Middleton. The halls have resounded with cheers and yells, with applause and groans; the walls have been blue and yellow with placards; the people have been advised, warned, persuaded, threatened, by literature of every description. A Cabinet Minister has been heard in our Mechanics' Hall, two or three M.P's have been seen on the same platform, squires and bankers have emerged from their retirement, while hard-handed, hard-headed working men have spoken words of wisdom and intelligence, and now it is all over. The election day has come and gone, the voter has given his decision, the excitement has passed away, the result is declared, and we are more fully represented than ever we were before, whether Mr. Pickard and Mr. Gaskell represent our individual opinions or not. Mr. B. Pickard is the member for Rothwell, Oulton, Woodlesford and Stourton, and Mr. Gaskell represents Carlton, Lofthouse, Middleton and Robin Hood. Let every one (as we are sure Col. Charlesworth and Mr. Jefferson do) accept the result, and render full honour to the men, who, after a severe fight, have secured the prize, and deserve to be acknowledged by all as "our member." We have no doubt our representatives will endeavour to act with equal courtesy to all their constituents, and that every question having the furtherance of our benefit in view, will receive their closest and most interested consideration. The present position of the country is matter for serious thought and some forebodings. The elections have placed the Government in a minority of 86, while the Parnellite cave number 86, whose action may any moment, upset the calculations of those in authority. There seems little doubt but what there will speedily be another appeal to the country, in which the 'Irish question' will be the test of opinion. We can only hope for the best.

The complexion of the Local Board has somewhat changed. We now miss the genial countenance of Mr. Jos. Charlesworth (for ten years its chairman), he having retired last year, and without incurring the slightest feeling of discourtesy to the present members, we feel that in his absence, the Board has lost its most honored and influential member. The chair is now occupied by Mr. W. Hargreaves, who has so frequently directed the discussions of the Board as vice-chairman. Mr. Lawton has at last secured a seat on the Board, and attends its meetings regularly. The entire roads, streets and lanes in the district are now under the control of the Board, and are more satisfactorily and economically kept in repair, although some parts are still unreached. The rates have experienced a reduction of 3d. during the year, and further relief is anticipated. The general health of the district has been good, and the sewage scheme seems to be working satisfactorily.

The School Board has undergone no change. Of the head teachers, Miss Russell is replaced by Miss Walkington in the Rothwell Infants School; temporary assistance has been given in the upper schools both at Rothwell and Rothwell Haigh, which will now be withdrawn, the staff being considered sufficiently large. In the Rothwell Haigh schools the government reports were all good, Mrs. Dobson even securing a second time the "excellent" merit grant. Rothwell, which is a mixed school, was better than the previous year, but not so high as her sister. The annual concert and prize distribution took place in February. The reports of the National schools are very gratifying, especially the boys and infants; the prizes were last week distributed to the most regular scholars, by F. W. Walker, Esq., of Leeds, and a successful concert given.

The Board of Guardians has again elected Mr. James Hargreaves as chairman, being the third time he has received that honour. Mr. Swales and Mr. Lawton are Mr. Hargreaves' colleagues. The proposal to dissolve the Union, and merge the townships into Leeds, Wakefield and Tadcaster, was thoroughly gone into by Government Inspectors in April last, but it seems probable that no more will be heard of the scheme in that form, at any rate.

The Overseers for this year are Messrs. Jas. Hargreaves, J. G. Turner, and J. Sanderson; the poor rates this year have been unusually high, the amount being 2/4, principally caused by the heavy calls made by the County Authority.

The long-looked-for Railway still remains on paper only, and our hopes last year have not been realized. As the promoters have, however, resolved to apply for an extension of time, and surveying has been going on for some months past, it seems probable that active steps will shortly be taken.

The yearly record of the Mechanics' Institute is not particularly striking, several interesting lectures and the usual drawing classes under Mr. Herbert Lockwood, being the only things worthy of note.

The Working Man's Club continues to be the rendezvous for the young men specially interested in athletics.

Political life has been crowded into the last two or three months during the election heat; the Liberal Association hardly has a corporate existence, but the Conservatives have taken the Co-operative Club-room, and are actively engaged in spreading their tenets

The Temperance Society still holds well together, and although little actual advancement has been made, the members are kept in their better ways by means of Saturday night entertainments, lectures, and popular Sunday services,

The year will be remembered by the Gas Light Company as one in which most determined efforts were made to secure for ratepayers, certain oversight of the quality and price of gas. Considerable benefits have since been conferred on consumers by 5d. per thousand reduction in the price, and by a diminution in the rent of meters. Extensive alterations have been made in the Works, for which £2,000 additional capital has been raised.

The Flower Show which has struggled on for nineteen years has this year been given up, and one of the most popular local festivals of the year is no more.

The Model Brass Band got up a Brass Band contest on the 25th of July, at great expense and labour, but owing to various causes, although a good number of bands entered the lists, the financial result was disappointing, and the loss has not yet been retrieved, notwithstanding several efforts have been made.

The Temperance Band continues to advance by practice, and although they have not made any special appearance at home, they have attained some celebrity away.

The public authorities for Oulton and Woodlesford are somewhat changed, Mr. Smith and Mr. Jackson being Guardians of the poor, Mr. Higgins sharing with Mr. Smith the duties of overseer, with Mr. Cockerham as assistant. The surveyors for Oulton are Messrs. Hoyle and King, and for Woodlesford Messrs. Thompson and Langstaff, Mr. Cockerham and Mr. J. H. Langstaff being the respective assistants. The School Board has pursued the even tenor of its way, the boys under Mr. Parkin having passed an average of 98 per cent., while the girls and infants have also done well. Mr. Smith continues clerk to the Board. The Mechanics' Institute still exists, and has had a concert and a lecture or two. The Choral Society has not been so alive as usual, but has appeared in connection with various festivals during the year. The Gospel Temperance Society continues to hold meetings and do good work.

The political conflict has raged more hotly in the Lofthouse-with-Carlton district than anywhere else in this neighbourhood, and both candidates have had crowded lively meetings. The question of Church and State has also been brought prominently forward, lectures having been delivered pro and con, followed by a continued "paper war" in these columns. Of the Local authorities, the School Board remains the same in constitution, Mr. and Mrs. Butterworth having, however, lately succeeded Mr. Fairburn as teachers in Carlton school. Mr. Lunn retains his position as guardian, and Messrs. Jas. Armitage and Harrison as overseers, with Mr. B. Marshall as assistant. The highway surveyors are Messrs. A. Armitage and J. Parker for Lofthouse, and Messrs. G. Armitage and J. Dobson, for Carlton. A serious outbreak of fever visited Carlton in October and November, by which several persons lost their lives; some measures have since been taken to improve the drainage and water supply, but much more is needed. There is a Temperance Hall at Carlton, at which various entertainments and services have been held. A reading room has also been lately opened at Lofthouse, which it is hoped will be well supported.

A first class concert seems to be quite out of the question in our district. Time was when we could raise three or four at least, in a year, but one looks in vain for such a treat all through the year We have plenty of musical friends who are ever willing to assist in any good object, and these have nobly helped in the success of Cricket and Football Concerts, or to push forward some religious object, but they would be delighted to hear more advanced singers and players. Besides these athletic gatherings, the children's performances have been very pleasurable and drew large audiences. The great musical events of the year are in connection with the Infirmary Demonstrations, which have been held at Rothwell, Oulton, Lofthouse and elsewhere, but we regret to say with diminished collections. Harvest Festivals have become so general that not only are they celebrated in churches and chapels, but even the little cottage mission room must have its decorations, its special service, and its special collection. So let it be, if only the outward sign is the evidence of inward gratitude. Parish Teas are another institution which are very popular just now, and are a valuable adjunct to the pastor's labours.

Although there have been no ecclesiastical changes among us, we offer no apology for chronicling the visit of our late vicar and his lady, the Rev. Geo. and Mrs. Heberden, during the early days of October, and we are sure the remembrance of that week will never fade from their minds, so unanimous, so constant, so very cordial, so real, was the welcome accorded to them. On the same Sunday, Oct. 11th, the talented and kindly Bishop of Ripon preached at Rothwell.

Football and cricket continue to be the principal means of outdoor recreation, although the local cricket clubs do not stand so high as they used to do, nor perhaps have some of the football teams so creditable a character as "once on a time." We trust this will be remedied by a resolution to advance, and a disposition to bear defeat in a manly fashion. In all justice, however, we ought to make special reference to the Rothwell F. C., which has secured such a card as few country or even town organisations can beat; several of the matches have been played against present or former holders of Challenge Cups, and right manfully have our "lads" stood their ground, and they deserve this public compliment. Bicycling is not so much indulged in either, some of the more enthusiastic wheelmen having left the neighbourhood, while others have to attend more closely to business. Let our younger men go in for outdoor recreation, along with mental culture, one being a relief to the other, so long as the physical is kept under the higher calls of duty and education. In connection with cricket we ought certainly to notice the presentation to Mr. W. Hirst, of Woodlesford, on leaving the district; the successful efforts of Mr. Albert Ward, of Rothwell, who has taken his first engagement as professional; and the untiring efforts of Mr. J. H. Lee, of Lofthouse, who has just lately had a handsome testimonial presented.

There was a grand bazaar on the 6th of April in aid of the Church expenses, and the usual shoal of sales of work, Christmas trees, etc., is just upon us.

Again we have to render thanks to God for preserving our miners from serious fatalities, although two or three deaths have occurred during the year to individual workmen. For some months, a number of our men have had to be content with small earnings, by reason of two of the pits being closed. Happily there is now a prospect of better times and more constant work. The strikes which affected most of Yorkshire in the spring really turned to the advantage of Rothwell masters and men, and orders came in more quickly than they could possibly be supplied. The late harvest has been a good one, and every article of food, not even excepting meat, is exceedingly cheap and of excellent quality.

So now, although poverty is not unknown among us, and the hard-working bread-winner has sometimes had to contrive and pinch, yet taking things altogether, we have fared better than many of our countrymen, and as we look at our freshly cleaned homes, our healthy children, our numerous joys, our varied advantages, we may again give vent to our gladness and cordially welcome King Christmas and the young New Year with a merry laugh and a hopeful word. Amid our festivities and plenty, let us all seek the highest pleasure, that of giving to others, and emulate so far as our means will allow, such benefactors as Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Charlesworth, making the widow's heart to leap for joy, and brightening the couch of the sick one, by the gifts which perhaps cost little, but are worth much. By such actions we are sure we shall certainly have

A MERRY XMAS & A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The monthly meeting of this Board was held on Friday last, present—Messrs. Wm. Hargreaves, J. G Turner, J. R. Seanor, J. Batty, and the clerk and attendance officer.

The minutes of last meeting having been read, were confirmed.

Mr. Turner introduced the question of the irregular attendance of girls in the upper standards, which greatly damages the general average for the school. The chairman gave notice that at next meeting he should raise the desirability of making a rule by which teachers may refuse to keep on the roll, any scholars of the 5th, 6th and 7th standards, not attending eight times a week.

The clerk reported that the Rothwell Haigh schools were inspected on the 3rd and 4th December, by Mr. Legard and Mr. Tillard, assisted by Mr. Wade and Mr. Haler, and that the schedules had been returned shewing the following results:—

	No. Pres	Reading.	Writing.	Arithmetic.	Average.
Boys' School	132	114	112	111	85½
Girls' School	113	102	102	104	91

In the girls' school, no child failed in all three subjects. In the boys' school, there were four complete failures; the master attributes a loss of 2½ per cent. to the half-timers he has received, out of the district, and the Board formally authorise him to decline in future any half-time scholars living out of the district.

The Rothwell schools were examined on the 7th and 8th instant, by Mr. Legard, and the two assistant inspectors, the result being both a surprise and a disappointment. The schedules shew that of the 139 children examined, 100 passed in reading, 103 in writing, and 100 in arithmetic, an average of nearly 73 per cent., including six complete failures. In a letter from Mr. Harms, the bad attendance is held partly responsible, with other causes. It is hoped the report may throw some light on the unexpected result, and any further steps are delayed till then.

The staff in all the schools having been temporarily enlarged a few months previous to the examinations, the following removals will now take place in a month's time:—Mr. Whitaker from Rothwell, Mr. Pheasey from Rothwell Haigh Boys', and Miss Jagger from Rothwell Haigh Girls'. Owing to continued ill-health, Miss H. E. Holmes has been compelled to cancel her indentures as a pupil teacher in the Infants' school. Two or three candidates will be added to the staff in certain schools, after the holidays

The clerk was instructed to ascertain from neighbouring Boards, the average attendance made by their scholars, and the means used for securing the results.

Owing to the probable small attendance at Rothwell Haigh Schools the next week, it was decided, as the Leeds schools had broken up, that the holidays at Stourton also commence at once. Intimation was to be given immediately to the head teachers, not to open school last Monday. The Rothwell holidays commence to-day (Wednesday).

The chairman gave notice that he would move next meeting as regards the description of rewards to be presented at the forthcoming prize distribution, and an effort was agreed on to secure the assistance of ladies or gentlemen outside the Board, for the pleasure of performing the presentations.

Cheques were drawn for officers' salaries £11 5s. 0d., Rothwell teachers' £29 5s. 0d., Rothwell Haigh teachers' £47 18s. 10d., Public Works Loan Board £127 17s. 6d., Rothwell Gas Light Co. £1 14s. 9d.

The November receipts included Rothwell fees £12 2s. 10d., Rothwell Haigh fees £13 12s. 3d., paid by Guardians 19/9, letting 7/6, and £100 from the overseers.

The attendance officer reported a number of cases of irregular attendance. There were also two poor families, whose fees the Board will assist in paying.

PRIZE DISTRIBUTION.

Last night, the annual prize distribution took place at the Woodlesford Board Schoolroom, which was densely crowded by the parents of scholars and others. The reward books were presented by the Rev. A. J. E. Irvin, chairman of the Board, who, in the course of a very able speech, congratulated the teachers on the good results of the examinations, and urged the scholars to strive with all their power to keep up the high state of efficiency which the schools have attained. He also read out the resolution passed by the School Board respecting the prizes in future. Dr. Nowell also delivered a pithy speech, pointing out the benefits of good attendance to both parents and children, as well as to ratepayers. Mr. Hoyle then proposed three cheers for Mr. Parkin (master of boys'), which were heartily given; and after three cheers had been given to the members, the proceedings terminated. During the evening, school songs and Christmas carols were sung by the children in a very pleasing manner. All the members of the Board were present, with Mr. Smith, the clerk.

The plan adopted by the Board works splendidly, and although the amount expended in prizes in considerable, it is found to produce such results as to warrant the outlay. The Board give to all children who have attended every time the school has been open throughout the year, a prize book value 5/-; to those who have made 400 attendances a book worth 3/6, and to those who have been present 350 times a 2/- work. LOFTHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

A meeting of this Board was held on Friday night, the members present being Messrs. T. Oliver (chairman), J. Armitage, T. Hargreaves and J. Hammill, with Mr. J. H. Lee, clerk.

The amount received during the month by the treasurer is £11 10s. for school fees, and £1 17s. 6d. for rent of schools. Cheques were signed for £52 3s. 4d. for the usual salaries, and £16 10s. to Mr. G. W. Fairburn in settlement of his claims for grant at Carlton school. The applications (15 in number) for the post of assistant teacher in Robin Hood School, caused by the resignation of Miss A. Fisher, were considered, three out of the number being selected to meet the Board at a special meeting. The head teachers made their reports, which were gone into and various matters arranged.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Dr. George Moore, in his work on "Nose and Throat Diseases," says: "The Glycerine Jujubes prepared by James Epps and Co., are of undoubted service as a curative or palliative agent," while Dr. Gordon Holmes, Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary, writes: "After an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease."

LOCAL & GENERAL.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.—On Saturday evening last, a very successful concert was provided in the above Hall, when a moderately good audience assembled to hear an excellent and varied programme. Mr. G. W. Nicholson, who has already won considerable celebrity among the visitors to the Temperance Hall, succeeded in again keeping his audience in a merry mood by his comic songs and clever impersonations. Mr. H. Caylam made a good impression by his wonderful performances on some dozen or more instruments. Mr. Tempest delivered a stump speech, and rendered one or two recitations. Mr J. Higgins, vocalist, and Mr. R. Cowley, humourist, also added to the attractive character of the concert. The chair was occupied by Mr. R. Watkin, and the accompaniments were taken by Mr. Stansfield. Although the expenses of providing this entertainment have been somewhat large, and the audience smaller than was anticipated, it is satisfactory to learn that no loss has been sustained by the Committee, as the takings will just about pay the amount incurred.

CRABTREE'S DOLE.—Monday last being St. Thomas' day, the amount of the late Mr. Crabtree's annuity was distributed among the widows and orphans of Rothwell. The distribution was made at the Parish Church, by the Rev. F. Fawkes, who made a short speech to the old folks, assisted by the Rev. A. M. Samwell. There was an unusually large number amongst whom the money had to be divided, and therefore the amount received by each individual is somewhat less than has been the case on many occasions. There were 63 widows, who had presented to them seven shillings and sixpence each, and four orphans, three of whom were paid six shillings and tenpence each, while the other was allowed seven shillings.

SEASONABLE GIFTS.—All the poor widows have been again the subjects of the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Charlesworth. All kinds of warm and comfortable clothing have been unstintingly distributed by these kind friends of the poor and needy, and many a poor old woman's Christmas will be made happier by this deed of charity, and they will breathe a wish that the Christmas day may be a happy one to Mr. and Mrs. Charlesworth.

ROTHWELL HAIGH BOARD BOYS-SCHOOL.—We are pleased to record that five pupils who left the above school a few months ago, to attend the Higher Grade schools in Leeds, have all successfully passed their recent examination.

STOURTON LIBERAL CLUB.—A public meeting was called on Dec. 3rd, to consider the advisability of forming a Liberal Club or Association for Stourton. It was decided at that meeting to form a Liberal Club, and several gentlemen were appointed to wait upon the leading Liberals in the district, for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions towards furnishing the rooms, which resulted satisfactorily. On Dec. 18th, the election of officers took place: president, Mr. J. Parker; vice-presidents, Messrs. G. A. Cliff and J. T. Armistead; treasurer, Mr. W. H. Bird; secretaries, Messrs. T. Genner and G. E. Thompson; together with several other gentlemen to act as members of the executive committee. Rooms have been taken in Atkinson Street, which can be made quite neat and comfortable with some slight alterations and furnishing, which will cost—it is estimated—some £12 or £14.

LOFTHOUSE-WITH-CARLTON.

FACTS AND RUMOURS.

In connection with the Carlton Temperance Society, a Service of Song was performed on Saturday last in the Hall, by the Wesleyan Choir. The name of the service is "The Torn Bible," being an interesting story of the life of an English soldier in India. The choir acquitted themselves well under the leadership of Mr. Ellis and it was a pity there was so small an audience. Mr. Dennison Bell took the chair and in a very clear manner delivered the connective readings. On Monday the "Carlton Band of Hope Juvenile Singers" gave a miscellaneous entertainment in the Hall, and this also was not well attended. The youngsters were under the command of Mr. T. Priestley, who has trained them in the rendering of solos, trios, recitations, dialogues &c., and great praise is due to him for the way in which the several items were gone through.

THROUGH the kindness of Mr. Joseph Charlesworth, all the old widows in our district, have been presented with various kinds of warm clothing in the way of dresses, blankets, &c., and many thanks are due to the authors of this kindly action. Carlton has been especially favoured by Mr. and Mrs. Charlesworth during the last few months. During the late epidemic of fever they were always ready to help those in distress, and it is to be hoped that they will both be blessed with long life, and that these seasonable gifts to the poor and helpless may be continued. It was said in a recent political meeting, "its a d-v-l-sh good job you have Joe Charlesworth up at Lofthouse Park." It is. May providence defend and prosper him.

THERE is an old unoccupied house in the main street, Carlton, which is in a dangerous condition. The house was occupied some two months ago by old Mrs. Ward, when a part of the roof collapsed and fell in. By propping up the roof it was made possible to remove the furniture into another house, and since that time the house has remained untouched. Another portion of the roof has dissappeared this week, and besides being very unsightly, it appears to me to be in a dangerous condition. Would it be too much to ask that this matter should be attended to, as an accident arising out of the present state of the building might be a serious thing for somebody.

CHRISTMAS is close upon us, and as this is the first time I have had the honour of doing so, I am most pleased to doff my hat, make my politest bow, and wish my readers, and the readers of the Rothwell Times generally, with the editor, sub editor, reporters, correspondents, compositors, P. D's., and all others, either directly or indirectly concerned in the publishing of the Rothwell Times, a

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

To all the readers of the Rothwell Times I wish once more, a Happy Christmas. To local readers who are looking around for opportunities of exercising the benevolence which is always associated with the spirit of Christmas, I commend the case of the widow Bennett, whose husband was killed by falling into the quarry the other day. She is left with six children, totally unprovided for and is of course in great need of help and sympathy.

TOWN TALK.

WHAT would some people talk about if they were obliged to leave politics alone? I did not happen to be present at the concert in connection with the Rothwell National (alias Church, alias Conservative) Schools, which was held during last week, but from the report which appeared I learn that both the supposed future member for South Leeds and the present vicar of Rothwell were unable to refrain from meddling with party politics. Mr. Fawkes seems to have been trying to pay a compliment to Mr. Pickard, which, however, could not sound very hearty on his lips. Mr. Walker actually went so far out of the way as to urge upon the people to vote for such men as Col. Charlesworth. Did not the Col. say when Mr. Pickard made a political speech at Carlton, after the meeting on the wages question, that he thought it was not quite an honourable thing. What would he say if he heard of such a remark as "vote for Charlesworth" being made at a children's concert? Surely he would agree with me in condemning such a course, and let us hope the Conservative party will learn to do better.

I HEAR that there is to be a Conservative tea and ball in the middle of January. Rothwell in the course of a few years will be very much more conservative than it is now. The Tories here are progressing at a wonderful rate. They are wide awake, and are making toryism attractive, bringing about the result of securing a large membership, especially among young men, who will speedily grow into electors, and become fully developed politicians. I say there is great praise due to them for the way in which they are prosecuting their work, and when the Liberals find themselves in the lurch, as they undoubtedly will before very long, they will hear "Gossip" say "and serve them right too." When I gave expression to a similar sentiment some months ago, my remarks were contradicted, but it cannot be denied that since the late lamented death of our active townsman, Mr. B. Batty, Liberalism has declined, and is to all appearances, going off in a galloping consumption.

SCORES of hours have been devoted by that intelligent body of local statesmen, the Rothwell Local Board, to the discussion of that very complex question, of the best means of having the water conveyed to Lord Stourton's property at Rothwell Haigh, and at the end of all these wise deliberations and prolonged negotiations with Lord Stourton's agents, they have arrived at the decision to ask the owners to put the water in at their own expense. This is what should have been done at the first in my opinion, and I am glad to see this end to the question.

THE Midland Railway Co. have asked and obtained permission to divert the footpath between the Wakefield and Pontefract Roads. This in a small measure supports what I said a week or two ago, about the intention of the Co. to considerably extend their premises at Stourton. Let us hope this may be accomplished, and it will greatly benefit that part of our district in many ways.

THE promoters of the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway are neither dead nor asleep. Active operations are being carried out, in preparing to ask permission to make certain alterations in the construction of the line, and in securing an extension of time in which to complete the building of it. It is a comfort to know the scheme has not been abandoned altogether, and I am yet in strong hopes of seeing the work finished at no distant period.

HOW one is reminded at this season of the year, that "time flies." We are drawing close on to the end of the year 1885. The church clock stopped on Saturday morning, as though he wanted to linger a little towards the end of the journey. This weather is not the sort we usually desire at the Christmas season. Dirty, damp and drizzly is the kind of weather, though, to make a Bazaar a success, and there are several in course of preparation for the Christmas holidays. Well, "Christmas comes but once a year, and when it comes it brings good cheer." I hope all my readers will have a "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year," and be better in body and mind for the holiday of this festive season.

GOSSIP.

WESLEYAN CHAPEL, ROTHWELL.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

Your correspondent in "Town Talk" replies to my letter of the previous week on the above subject, by misquoting what I wrote about it, and then endeavouring to make me responsible for his misquotations. My purpose in writing being simply to undo the harm that his charges may bring, I will only reply to his insinuations that I did not deal thoroughly with his "dry rot" business. First, by quoting my letter of a fortnight ago.—"I am requested to ask your favour of insertion, for a categorical denial of everything that he said about it." Surely that is thorough enough for anyone except your correspondent, whose anonymous charges I am openly denying. My meaning is well expressed by Walker & Webster's Dictionary anent the word "categorical," which is given as 'absolute; positive; express;'—not evasive. Next, the difference also between the ravages of 'fungus' in fresh wood, and the 'dry rot' in old wood, accelerated by want of air, is very marked, and can be easily shown by those conversant with the timber trade. I asked a thoroughly practical gentleman who had minutely examined the opened-up floor of the chapel, as to whether Mr. Pinder's kind or quality of wood had occasioned the mischief, and his reply was 'Most decidedly not;' his opinion, mine, and others, being that the 'fungus' commenced its growth in the older portion of the floor which had been undisturbed on fixing the new chapel floors, and the presence of the 'hot water pipe' had forced its growth along the fresh live wood, there not being life enough in the old dead wood to allow of its developement. Of course our removing soil and limeing over the joists and boards was done to prevent any fresh growth among them. I forbear making another 'cap' for my unknown opponent, as he cannot so easily 'doff' that which he has so readily adopted.

Yours most respectfully,
J. R. SEANOR.

Rothwell,
Dec. 19th, 1885.

[As no good object can be obtained by further correspondence on this subject, we would suggest that it now close.—ED.]

THE LATE FOOTBALL MATCH
(LOFTHOUSE v. CARLTON.)

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

Having read various reports respecting the above match, and also being present at it, I think I may venture to say a few words respecting it. In the first place, one letter says that because the Lofthouse umpire disputed Rinder's try it was evident that Carlton was playing 15 men and an umpire worth 10 more. I should like to ask him, was he ever mistaken respecting a try? if so, I wonder whether he would give in as soon as the Lofthouse umpire did when he found he was wrong. In the second instance, he says Farmery acknowledged the Carlton try; yes, that is quite true, but when he got the try for Lofthouse his honesty was at once disputed, because he said the ball did not go in touch. Why: for the reason that it was not for Carlton, this shows clearly, the partiality evinced by the Carlton people, he also says that Farmery had to reach a yard over the heads of the spectators to gather the ball. The ball never went within half a yard of the touch line, so how could he say honestly, neither; I wonder where their eyes were, in fact, they must have been closed; anyone knows that Colley fell on the Carlton man. I say it is a deliberate falsehood to say that Colley was 10 yards off. The Carlton man was tackled by Colley on the line and as he (the Carlton player) lost the ball Colley touched down. Were not they on the ground together, of course they were, and yet they can say that he was not within ten yards of him. I am surprised that one writer should speak so strongly against Colley and Illingworth, by saying that they cause all the bother and the sooner they are done with the better. I should like to know who he is and what authority he has for so speaking; has not Colley a perfect right to tackle a man on the line and touch down, decidedly: does he think that if Colley has been chosen on reserve for county honours, or trial match, if so, he is deceived, for Lofthouse can lose with Carlton as well as any other club, and give in like what one person says Carlton did (like men). Hoping there will be no more ill feeling between the two parties, and that next year they will meet and have pleasant encounters, and also have a referee who can impartially decide any dispute that may arise. Apologising for having trespassed on youa valuable paper.

I remain,
Yours truly,
JUSTIFICATOR.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons the good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and desponding that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain, or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved

IN FAR OFF AUSTRALIA.—The Birmingham Chronicle says: "The distinguished journalist, George Augustus Sala, in a letter from Australia, to the London Daily Telegraph, states that the Royal Mail steamship (which carried him from San Francisco to Sydney) had among its cargo, several tons of St. Jacobs Oil. As this medicinal oil has also recently been largely imported into Great Britain, we were curious with regard to its efficacy. We desired Dr. Collett, M. A., F. R. A. S., of Leicester, to test its utility. To our surprise he has proved it to be an absolute cure for rheumatism, neuralgia, rheumatic gout, and other complaints, and he states that it is the only sure remedy which has come under his notice. He called the attention to his brother, Rev. J. G. Collett, Yorkshire Noncomformists College, Leeds, to the same. He, knowing many who needed such a remedy, at once recommended it. He found it answered in each case and it is used by the College authorities for rheumatism, as well as for sprains and bruises, that may be received in the cricket and football fields and other places. Mr. George Bellhouse, of the Birmingham Fire Brigade, says that he and other members of the brigade, as well as their families have been cured of neuralgia and muscular pains by St. Jacobs Oil. St. Jacobs Oil is sold by Chemists at 2s. 6d. a bottle, or by post 2s. 9d., from the Charles A. Vogeler Company, sole Proprietors, 45, Farringdon Road, London.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by a drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Are there pains in the side and back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold, the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. WHITE, Limited, 17, Farringdon-road, London, E. C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

THE ELECTIONS.—The period of a General Election always brings a great many special publications into print; but for novelty and usefulness we have seldom come across anything to equal The Elector's Note Book, a work which is being published by The Catherine Street Publishing Association, of Catherine Street, London. The book is so arranged that the reader may see at a glance all the constituencies as they now stand under the Redistribution Act, the number of members which each has to elect, the names and politics of all the candidates who have come forward, the result of the last General Election in each of the old constituencies, and a variety of other things. This, however, is but the minor portion of the work; for, in addition to the above information, the publishers have devised a most ingenious arrangement of blank columns, by filling up which as the Elections proceed, whoever is fortunate enough to possess a copy of the book will be able to ascertain, with infallible accuracy, at any moment, the exact position of the parties, and other interesting particulars; and thus will unquestionably be compiling a book which, during another Election, will be invaluable. Published at the price of one shilling, we can easily understand that the enormous number of 60,000 copies of the book have already been sold.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot, 33, Farringdon Road, London.

WATCHES, JEWELLERY.—MIDLAND COUNTIES WATCH COMPANY.—(Cheapest house in the World) Ladies' or Gents' Fine Silver Crystal Glass, heavy Ladies' Watches, 25/-; Ladies' heavy-cased Gold Levers, 70/-; Gents' do. do. do., 80/-. Percy, Vyse Street, Birmingham. The press universally recommend their readers to obtain a catalogue.

VALUE OF EXPERIENCE.—The keen competition nowadays brings ultimate good for the Individual! An instance of this is seen in the Jewellery, Watch, Clock, and Optician Trade. Mr. R. Scott, Goldsmith, &c., so long and favourably known in Leeds, has cast about him to discover how to sell cheaper, and thus command a larger trade. Having been thirty-five years in the trade, in the course of which he has "gone through" each branch, from the Manufacturing to the Retail Shop, he was naturally 'up to all the wrinkles.' The middle men, known by the names of Merchants, Factors, Wholesale Dealers, Commercial Travellers, &c., all, in ordinary course, have a pick at, or "add to" the prices of the Goods before they reach the ultimate user. The question was, "How to jump over these, and thus avoid their profits?" Manufacturing each class of Goods directly on the premises was impracticable, inasmuch as it would require almost a town's population to produce the requisite variety of designs and qualities. What cannot be done in a direct manner can frequently be accomplished indirectly. R. R. Scott has surrendered exclusive proprietorship in favour of Manufacturers, who arranged to supply his Establishment at the cost of materials and men's time in the making. In short, placing the Goods before the public, at single articles at wholesale prices. The management is still under R. Scott's personal control, who takes this opportunity of thanking his Patrons in the past, and hopes to receive anew a mark of their confidence. In future the firm will be known as Scott & Co., Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Opticians, Watch and Clock Makers, Top Corner (The Illuminated Projecting Clock) of Briggate and Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

If your Watches or Clocks are out of order have them properly restored by good workmen. Scott & Co. guarantee their work for 12 months. Silver Plate and Jewellery made as new, on very economical terms. Send stamp for price list.

£100,000,000 IN THE COURT OF CHANCERY!—Cox & Co., 41, Southampton Buildings, Holborn, London, W.C., have just published a list of the heirs to this wealth. Reader, send a postal order for 1s. 6d., and they will forward you this valuable list, and if you find by it that you are entitled to any money or property claim your own. Cox & Co. will show you the way.
